From the outhouses any of the light-fingered gentry could easily have dropped into the street, while the adjacent house, condemned by the London City Council, was easily accessible. The last named tenement, formerly a haunt for vagrants, with all the conveniences of a thieves' kitchen, had associations of the worst kind and has not come under the ban of the London Parliament a moment too soon.

Fagin was a real character, named Isaac Touch, who, when raided by the police, was found to possess a peck measure of watches. He had the name of being a confederate in worse crimes than training young thieves and buying stolen property.

The Cost of London Fogs.

The area which a heavy fog covers in London determines the cost attending it. During the winter of 1902-03, several gas companies disposed of more than a million feet of gas for a single fog, the extra expenditure to the consumers collectively being over $25,000. It has been stated that as much as $75,000 worth of additional gas has been consumed during a single day's fogs. There are likewise numerous accidents and delays to travelers, involving sums which it is difficult to estimate. On a very foggy day the street sellers of London are deprived of their custom, which may be fairly estimated at $15,000 a day. The loss sustained by cabmen is equally great. On the Metropolitan Railways, during a day of heavy fog about $1,500 is spent on fog signals alone, extra expenditure being likewise involved in providing platelayers to guard the lines. Altogether we may safely estimate the collective cost of a London fog to be not less than $250,000.

The Young Princes at School.

The inhabitants of the peaceful Kentish coast town of Westgate-on-Sea are in a great commotion over the news that Prince Edward, their future King, and Prince Albert, his brother, are to be educated at the Wellington House preparatory school for sons of gentlemen, the head of which is Mr. Bull. The young princes will live in a private villa which was recently purchased by Mr. Bull, and which has been thoroughly decorated and furnished by a well-known London firm. The Duke of Portland's elder son, Lord Titchfield, is a pupil at Wellington House, and one of the Duke of Sutherland's sons was there until a few months ago. The pupils, between 50 and 60 in number; range from 8 to 12 years. Wellington House has delightful surroundings, and is considered one of the most select preparatory schools in Great Britain. The young princes took up their residence at Westgate-on-Sea in April.

NEW 'PHONE COMPANY ASKS FOR FRANCHISE

Canadian Machine Telephone Company Applies to the Council.

WILL COMPETE WITH BELL.

Big Programme at Last Night's Meeting of Town Council — 25 Additional Hydrants for Fire Protection—Extension of George Street to the Driving Park.

After a rest of some weeks, a full Board of Aldermen faced the Mayor last night at the special meeting of the Town Council, and the programme for the night was rather an extensive one.

The first important matter to be considered by the Council was an application from the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, of which Mr. Robert Neill is president, and Mr. F. D. MacKay, general manager, for the privilege of installing a system of wiring (partly underground) for the purpose of carrying on their business. This application will be considered at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole on Monday evening, when the officers of the company will confer with the members of the Council on the the proposition. The company instals a system of telephones which does away with the manually operated switchboard, and gives, the company claims an absolutely secret service. The company does not ask an exclusive franchise, but is willing to do business in competition with the present company, if the application to place the wires and poles on the streets is granted. The communication addressed to the Council stated that it was not the intention of the company to erect poles on the business streets, but to place the wires underground. The Mayor assured the officers of the company present that he was very glad to receive the company's application, and it would be carefully considered. The town had experienced the disadvantage of monopolistic conditions.

The bylaw to give the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company lots upon which to erect a new factory of a capacity to accommodate 150 employees, was given its three readings. Every member of the Board, with the exception of Ald. Best, voted in favour of this bylaw.

The proposal to close Wolfe street from George street to the river, and to open up a new street just south of the C. P. R. tracks, occasioned some discussion. The Mayor thought that the new street should be of the full width, 66 feet, whereas the report recommended only 45 feet. This clause of the report was referred to the Committee of the Whole. The C.P.R. made application to run an additional siding across George street on Wolfe street, to accommodate the Matthews factory.

The chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee presented the report of the Town Engineer, Waterworks Superintendent and Fire Chief recommending the location of 25 additional hydrants in town.

The question of extending George street to the Driving Park, was considered, and the committee appointed to look into the matter was asked to report.

The Council meeting last night was attended by Mayor Roger, in the chair, and Ald. Edgcumbe, Johnston, Morrison, Rush, Mason, Hicks, Scott, Adams, Clinksoale, Batten, McWilliams and Best.

The minutes of the last meeting were taken as read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were received and dealt with as indicated:

From Fred W. Bates, asking that the driveway into his yard at 656 Stewart street, be put into proper condition.—Board of Works.

From Thomas J. Wilson and others, asking for granolithic sidewalk on Stewart street, west side, from Murray to McDonnel street.—Board of Works.

From the local manager of the Bell Telephone Company, asking permission to erect poles on Wescott street.—Board of Works.

From S. R. Armstrong, secretary of the Board of Health, calling the Council's attention to the condition of the cess-pool at the House of Providence, which is overflowing and causing a nuisance.—Board of Works.

From F. J. Jancasn and others, asking for granolithic sidewalk on the east side of Harvey street.—Board of Works.

From Rev. Father McColl and others, asking the Council to favourably consider the application of Mr. Dan Foley for a position on the Police Force. — Received. (It was announced that the Council had decided to make no additions to the numbers of the Police Force.

From the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, asking the Council for a franchise of the streets of the town for the purpose of erecting the necessary constructions for the operation of a telephone system. The communication added that this system would give a more efficient service than can be secured with the manually operated board and will furnish subscribers with an absolutely private service at prices lower than are given by the manual system.

The communication adds that it is not the purpose of the Company, should this franchise be granted, to erect poles or string wires in the business centre of the town, but to place the wires there underground while all the construction will be done in the most modern and up-to-date manner in every particular.

Mr. F. D. McKay, the secretary of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, addressed the Council briefly in support of the communication from his company, and stated that Peterborough had been chosen as the place in which to first install their system, since a large number of local gentlemen were interested in the Company. They did not ask any favours, nor an exclusive franchise, but would be willing to install their system in competition with the present company.

Ald. Morrison expressed himself as as being of the opinion that the matter should be referred to the Committee of the Whole, which was concurred in by the Council.

Mr. McKay in further addressing the Council, said that he hoped that the matter would be dealt with at an early date, and should the Council decide to give the company the liberty to install their system the latter would be prepared to proceed at once with the arrangement to install the 'phones

From Jas. Lynch, applying for permission to erect an illuminated sign on the street.—Board of Works.

From C. S. McClelland, calling attention to the condition of the town clock, and stating that three or four days will be required to repair it. Cost will be about $14 or $16.—Property Committee.

From a number of ratepayers, asking that Cambridge street be opened up to form a continuation with Walton street.—Board of Works.

From S. R. Armstrong, returning officer, giving the result of the voting held on May 5th, on the Collegiate Institute and Sugar Company bylaws.—Received.

From John Corbett, King's Wharf, asking the Muyor to use his efforts to have the Pigeon Creek bridge repaired at once, and stating that the delay is occasioning great inconvenience to the farmers in that vicinity. —Received.

From Jas. Irwin, asking for remission of taxes.—Court of Revision.

From W. H. Roberts, asking the town to provide a pound for impounding stray cattle. — Property Committee.

From W. A. Littlejohn, city clerk of Toronto, sending a resolution passed by the City Council, thanking the town for the assistance rendered at the recent fire.—Received.

From Geo. C. Robb, Chief Engineer of the Boiler Inspection and Insurance Company, reporting that the Silsby fire engine had been inspected and the safety valve and water guages were in good order, and the engine ready for use.—Received.

From the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company, asking permission from the town to procure sand from the Hilliard property for use in their foundry.—Board of Works.

From Geo. H. Williamson, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., asking permission of the town to erect an illuminated sign over the sidewalk.—Board of Works.

From J. Eastwood, asking the Council to grant him permission to construct a sewer to connect three houses being erected by him on Hunter street, with the Queen street drain.—Board of Works with power to act.

From the C.P.R. Company enclosing a plan of a siding which the Company propose to run along Wolfe street, to accommodate the Matthews Company. Mr. Wesley Dodds, the agent of the Company, was present at the meeting and addressed the Council briefly, explaining that with the two sidings, less switching over George street would be necessary, since one track would be used for outgoing shipments, and the other for that coming in. This according to Mr. Dodds' contention, would enable the Company to do the switching much more expeditiously, and with less danger and delay.—Board of Works.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Ald. Rush presented the following report, which was adopted:

Your Committee of the Whole Council begs leave to report as follows:

1. That at the request of the Chairman of the Board of Education, we instructed the Town Solicitor, in co-operation with the solicitor of the Board of Education, to secure an option on the separate school property on Murray and McDonel streets for a site for the new armouries and Collegiate Institute.

2. We recommend the the Chairman of the Board of Works be authorized to make the best arrangements he can for storing and testing cement purchased by the town and to purchase three or four cars of cement at once.

3. We instructed the solicitor to amend the by-law prepared to grant a site to the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company to make the $25,000 to be expended in buildings cover the fixtures, the sprinkler system, heating appliances and shafting and to make the number of days they are to operate each year 250 and that the works shall have a capacity to employ 180 hands.

FIRE, WATER AND EIGHT

Ald. Edgcumbe presented the following report, which was referred to the Committee of the Whole, on Monday night, when Mr. Henderson will be asked to be present at the meeting for the purpose of giving information with reference to the water pressure, circulation, etc.

Your Fire, Water and Light Committee begs leave to report and recommend that, in pursuance of the agreement made with the Water Commissioners for 25 additional hydrants on existing mains, the council order the hydrants to be placed at the points recommended by the chief of the fire brigade and town engineer, whose recommendation is attached to this report.

The following is the report:—

Locations for 25 additional hydrants —revised April 25, 1904:

4 George street (four way) at corners of Charlotte, Simcoe, Hunter and Brock.

3 on Aylmer street at corners of Rink, Wolfe and Sherbrooke.

2 on Stewart street at corners of Hunter and Murray.

2 on Bethune street at corners of Dalhousie and Wolfe.

2 on Downie street at corners of McDonel and Hunter.

1 Simcoe street at the gas works.

1 on Lake street at corner of Bethune.

1 on Perry street 260 feet east of Aylmer.

1 on Gilmour street near west boundary.

1 on McDonel street between George and Aylmer.

1 on Dennistoun avenue at corner of Inverlea.

1 on Elizabeth street between Lake and Mark.

1 on Stewart street between Douro and Elizabeth.

1 on Brown street between Douro and Elizabeth.

3 on McDonel street at corners of Bethune, Stewart and Rubidge; pipe to be laid during 1904.

Referring to our report of April 25th 1904, on location of 25 additional hydrants, in which were included three on McDonel street, for which the main is to be laid during the present season we are now asked to provide locations elsewhere on existing mains for these three. After careful consideration we have selected the following as most suitable places:

King street on west side of creek.

Rubidge street at corner of Kirk.

Homewood avenue at Mercer.

We have also been asked to report on the petition for a hydrant on the corner of Dublin and Harvey streets. The nearest one at present is on Water street between London and Dublin at a distance of 430 feet and not directly in line. We consider this a suitable and necessary place to locate a hydrant.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Ald. Best presented the report of the Board of Works as follows:—

Your Board of Works begs leave to report as follows:

1. We recommend that the treasurer be authorized to pay W. Hyslop $18.00 for painting the water carts in accordance with a certificate of the Town Engineer.

2. We recommend that notice be given of the intention of the council to close that part of Wolfe street east of George street, in accordance with a report of the Board of Works adopted by the council on March 7th last, the closing of the street to be considered by the council at its meeting on June 6th next.

3. Your board received a letter from the Peterborough Hardware Co., asking that all money's held by the town on account of S. Kennedy's contract for sidewalks, be paid to them as Kennedy's assigns, but your board cannot recommend any further action in this matter.

4. We recommend that Thomas Kelly be given permission to cut down four trees on Simcoe street and several on Downie street in front of his property.

5. We recommend that a twelve inch drain be constructed on Simcoe street from Water street to the creek, to carry away surface water.

6. We recommend that Stewart street in Ward 5 be watered as far as Sophia street, and the property assessed for the expense at the same rate as other property.

7. We recommend that the Town engineer be instructed to prepare a plan for numbering the houses in ward No. 5.

8. We recommend that the street commissioner repair F. Vinette's fence on Lisburn street, which was injured by the snow plough, and retain the expense from Z. Blodgett, the contractor for the snow ploughing.

9. We recommend that the sale of 6 yards of stone at $1.50 a yard to J. O'Toole be approved.

10. The following petitions for the construction of Granolithic sidewalks as local improvements having been examined and found to be sufficiently signed, we recommend that they be granted, namely: Chamberlain St., north side, from Alfred street to the C. P. R. track. Dalhousie St., north side, from Stewart to Bethune street. Sherbrooke St., north side, from Stewart St., to Bethune street.

11. The petition of George Minorgan and others for a granolithic sidewalk as a local improvement on Stewart street, west side, from Dalhousie to Townsend streets was not sufficiently signed.

13. We have examined a petition for a sewer as a local improvement on Homewood Avenue from Walton street to the Monaghan road and found it sufficiently signed and recommend that it be granted.

14. We recommend that the street commissioner be instructed to fill in the old fire protection water tank at the corner of Bethune and Antrim streets and also to extend the water service in the corporation yard to the present position of the engine.

15. We examined the several petitions objection to the construction of granolithic sidewalks of which the council had given notice and recommend that the council do not proceed with the construction of the sidewalks on Lake street, north side, from George to Aylmer streets, and on George street, west side from Rink to Lake streets.

16. We recommend that the crossings on George and Water streets ordered last year be put in without delay.

17. We recommend that the Matthews Co. be requested to erect a fence south of the C. P. R. track on the diversion of Wolfe street all the way along the top of the bank, eight feet high.

18. We recommend that permission be given to the Peterborough Light and Power Co. to place three poles on Stewart street, between McDonel and Murray streets, provided the Company files a plan showing the location of the poles and subject to the approval of the town engineer.

19. We recommend that the request from Mr. J. Ballantyne for an approach to his property on Concession street be granted.

21. We recommend that the Chairman and the street commissioner be requested to report on the advisability of purchasing a concrete mixer with authority to go to Toronto for that

IN SUPPORT OF A WORTHY OBJECT.

Entertainment To-night for Benefit of Children's Aid Society.

To-night in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, for the benefit of the children's Aid society, an entertainment will be given, and since the object is one particularly worthy of public support there should be a large attendance. Sheriff Hall has very kindly consented to give his interesting lecture, "An Evening With the Poets," and in addition a number of local musicians will contribute to the programme, which promises to be one of more than ordinary merit.

Those having the affair in charge are to be commended for their efforts on behalf of this enterprise, and since they have evidenced such an interest, the public should heartily support them in their entertainment.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT AT ELECTRIC WORKS.

Mr. F. Meadows had his Toes Badly Crushed To-day.

An unfortunate accident occurred at the C.G.E. Works at noon to-day, when Mr. Fletcher Meadows had his foot painfully crushed. He, with another workman was carrying a heavy iron casting which fell, striking Mr. Meadows on the right foot, breaking the large toe and injuring the others. The ambulance was summoned and the injured man was conveyed to his home, 43 Bolivar street, where Dr. Young attended his injury. The accident, while it will not prove serious, was very painful and Mr. Meadows will be laid up for some time as a result.

DOING BUSINESS AGAIN.

Work Being Resumed at the Fitzgerald Carriage Works.

"We're still doing business at the old stand," remarked Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald to the Examiner this afternoon, "and are prepared to fill orders within a short time." Yesterday the staff commenced work again at the carriage works which were so badly gutted by fire on Monday morning. The new work was untouched as the show room was not visited by the fire. The damage is being repaired with all possible speed and things will be in full running order shortly. The damage by the fire was to the extent of nearly $3,000.00, while the insurance amounted to $2,000.00.

Prize Coins.

Look out for three coins, with Dar-lar Cigar, stamped on face, one 50c., one 25c., and one 10c; $3.00, $2.00, and $1.00 respectively will be paid for these by W. J. Morgan, barber and tobacconist, 410 1-2 George street.

ANOTHER NEW HEARSE ARRIVES IN TOWN.

Mr. Martin McFadden has Purchase a Costly Funeral Car.

Mr. Martin McFadden, furniture dealer and undertaker, has purchased a magnificount new hearse, which arrived in town last evening. It was built by S. and G. Penfold of Guelph, and is an elegant piece of skilful workmanship. It is modern in every respect, has a beautiful finish, and is fitted with everything calculated to add appropriateness and finish. The wheels, which are of the latest patent Collnis make, are rubber-tired. Two very fine silver-mounted lamps of ornate design are attached while the drapings and mountings are of the best quality. The hearse is at McFadden's undertaking sheds, where it has been generally admired to-day. It is undoubtedly, one of the most costly and beautiful hearses in the district.

LATEST NEWS OF SPORT.

Baseball Season Opens To-morrow—Quakers and Harwood Football Teams Play To-morrow—Notes.

LACROSSE SCHEDULES WERE DRAFTED.

Intermediate C. L. A. Series and Trent Valley League.

Four Teams in District No 5 Represented at Lindsay Last Evening This Mornings T. V. L. Meeing.

At Lindsay last evening the schedule for District No. 5, of the Intermediate C.L.A. series was drawn up. Four teams were represented as follows:—T. E. Ellis, of Oshawa; J. C. Miller, of Orillia; E. M. Best, of Peterborough; J. Gillespie, of Lindsay.

The schedule was drawn up as follows:—

June 1—Peterborough at Oshawa.
June 2—Lindsay at Orillia.
June 14—Oshawa at Lindsay.
June 16—Orillia at Peterborough.
June 23—Oshawa at Orillia.
June 24—Lindsay at Peterborough.
July 1—Peterborough at Orillia.
July 14—Peterborough at Lindsay.
July 22—Lindsay at Oshawa.
Aug. 1—Orillia at Oshawa.
Aug. 10—Oshawa at Peterborough.
Aug. 14—Orillia at Lindsay.

The following are the referees appointed:—E. Hynds, J. G. Curran, of Orillia; R. M. Glover, F. A. Clarke, of Peterborough; J. Dennistoun, D. Hall, of Oshawa; C. Cameron, W. Reesor, of Lindsay.

Port Hope was not represented at the meeting and that place will play Trent Valley lacrosse.

The Lindsay team will play in Peterborough on May 24th.

SEVEN TEAMS IN T. V. LACROSSE LEAGUE.

The Schedule was Drawn up this Morning.

A meeting of the executive of the Trent Valley League was held in the Oriental Hotel this morning. There were present Messrs. W. Crowley, president; W. J. Hill, Madoc; W. B. Huycke, Tweed; T. Dineon, Havelock; T. E. Scriver, Hastings; M. J. Hickey, of T.A.S.; S. Lockington, Port Hope; and P. J. Lancaster, secretary, Havelock.

Belleville and Lindsay were not represented, and will not enter the League; Millbrook had no representative but will play in the league.

Two districts were arranged as follows: Eastern, Tweed, Madoc and Havelock; Western, T.A.S., Port Hope Millbrook and Hastings.

After some discussion regarding the division of the gate receipts it was moved by Mr. Scriver that the eastern and western districts arrange this question between themselves.

It was moved by Mr. Huycke, seconded by Mr. Hill, that if two clubs cannot agree upon a referee for their match the secretary shall obtain an official, half the expense to be borne by each club.

The following referees were appointed for the season: T. Tuer, C. A. Roach, Port Hope; W. Cross, J. R. Orr, Madoc; J. Johnston, W. B. Huycke, Tweed; H. Andrews, T. E. Dineon, Havelock; J. Welsh, Hastings; W. Crowley, J. McCabe, T.A.S., —. Solam, Millbrook.

There was some discussion regarding the residence rule. It was finally moved by Mr. Lockington that players must be residents of the town where they play 30 days before the first match in which they play, and that no certificates be issued after July 15th. Mr. Hickey seconded the motion, which was carried.

Permits may be granted to students and other residents who may be absent until after the season opens.

It was decided to adopt the C.L.A. rules with the addition of the residence rule.

It was resolved that each team forward a marked cheque for $25 to the president as a guarantee of good faith that they will carry out the schedule of games in their districts. Should any team default, the defaulting team shall lose their $25 which shall go to the team suffering because of the default.

The schedule was arranged as follows:—

District No. 1.

June 3—Tweed at Havelock.
June 10—Havelock at Madoc.
June 17—Madoc at Tweed.
June 24—Madoc at Havelock.
July 8—Havelock at Tweed.
July 15—Tweed at Madoc.

District No. 2.

June 4—Port Hope at T.A.S.
June 10—Millbrook at Port Hope.
June 18—T.A.S. at Hastings.
June 24—Hastings at T.A.S.
June 25—Port Hope at Millbrook.
July 1—T.A.S. at Port Hope.
July 1—Millbrook at Hastings.
July 8—Port Hope at Hastings.
July 15—Hastings at Millbrook.
July 23—Hastings at Port Hope.
July 23—Millbrook at T.A.S.
July 30—T.A.S. at Millbrook.

The finals will be arranged by the executive.

It was decided that the president and secretary draw up a certificate, 25 to be forwarded to each team.

FAST BASEBALL GAME TO-MORROW.

Pirates Toronto's Best Team will Play the Local Nine.

To-morrow afternoon the baseball season as far as Peterborough is concerned, will open, with a game between the Midland League local team and the Pirates of Toronto. The Pirates are playing independent ball this season, and the team is composed of a number of the players on last year's Wellesley's team, the winners of the Sunlight League, and practically the champion amateur baseball team of Toronto. Bentley, the clever twirler, will in all probability be on the rubber for the visitors, and it will be a battle royal between Flaherty and the Toronto man. The local team is hitting the ball better this year than they did last, and the prospects for a good game with lots of sensations are good. The Peterborough team will be:—

Flaherty, pitcher.
Graham, catcher.
J. Pilling, 1st base.
J. Sheridan, 3rd base.
W. Cawthorn, centre field.
R. Simpson, right field.
T. Pilling, left field.
Wareham, short stop.

The second baseman has not been selected yet.

Mr. B. McEwan will umpire.

The game will be called at 2.30 o'clock sharp, and as this will be the first time this season that the local team has played a game outside of practice games, the attendance of fans should be large.

LACROSSE.

The Peterboroughs have decided to enter a team in the senior as well as the intermediate series of the C.L.A. This will mean that the local lovers of our national game will witness some of the finest lacrosse played anywhere in the province here this summer. The club will have a strong bunch to represent them and are deserving of every support.

• • • •

The Peterborough II team will go to Port Hope on Victoria Day to play an exhibition game with the Trent Valley League team of that place.

• • • •

All players are asked to turn out to the practice of the lacrosse team this evening. Every player should turn out from now on, as the first league game comes off early in June.

• • • •

Poor Belleville will have no lacrosse team at all this year according to present appearances. Too bad.

• • • •

Between the T.V.L. and C.L.A. games here this summer, there should be some lacrosse worth witnessing.

• • • •

Peterborough's first game will be two weeks from next Wednesday when the boys go to Oshawa. The home games are with Orillia on June 16th, with Lindsay on June 24, and with Oshawa on Aug. 10th.

FOOTBALL.

To-morrow's game between the Quakers and Harwood should prove a good drawing card. Harwood must win to be in the running while a victory for the Quakers will be a big stride towards the district championship.

• • • •

Omemee has dropped out of the Midland Football League, and the Y. M.C.A. has been declared the winner of District No. 2.

• • • •

The "Y" boys say it is well for Omemee and Bethany that these teams dropped out, for the "Y" lads are in the game for keeps, and promise to make it warm for every team they meet.

• • • •

To-morrow afternoon at two o'clock, the Quakers will meet the Harwood eleven in a Midland League game. This is the last home game of the Quakers until June 4th, when Keene is scheduled to play here. The Quakers are playing good ball as their record so far shows, and as the Harwood bunch can give most of them a hard fight, the game on Saturday promises to be one of the best of the season and all lovers of the good old game should not fail to see this match, and cheer the wearers of the red and white to victory. The line up of the Quakers will be the same as that of Wednesday evening, with the exception that M. Guerin will figure on the forward line, while I. Moore will replace him on the halfback line.

In final preparation for this game the Quakers are asked to turn out for a full practice this evening on the oval at 6.45.

The Quakers in their game with Harwood to-morrow afternoon will give the village team a hard run to win, and no doubt there will be a good crowd on hand to witness the contest. This is the second home game for the Quakers, and their supporters look to them to repeat their victory of Wednesday night. However the Harwood team will take considerable beating and a good game should result. Mr. A. Noble, vice-president of the league, will referee.

BASEBALL.

The Charlotte street Guild will practice to-night at 6.45. All the members will please bear this in mind.

• • • •

The Rangers, Rochester's oldest amateur baseball team, want a game with Manager Whitcroft's team about the end of July.

• • • •

The George street Young Men's Guild team will practice to-night at 6.45 sharp on the new grounds, Benson avenue. All members of the team are requested to turn out on the new grounds.

• • • •

Montreal struck its gait yesterday and beat Providence after losing 10 straight games.

• • • •

The game between the Toronto Pirates and the locals to-morrow afternoon at the T.A.S. grounds is called for 2.30 o'clock. A very fast game is promised and there will no doubt be a large crowd present to see the Midland League coming champions perform for the first time. Flaherty will be on the slab.

• • • •

F. W. Sparling, secretary of the Manitoba Football Association writing to a Galt football man says that the Manitoba Association has 26 clubs in competition this year. Speaking of the proposed trip of the Winnipeg Shamrocks to St. Louis, Mr. Sparling says this is not as yet definitely decided.

In reference to the proposed interprovincial championship, he says:—"In regard to a cup for competition between the various branches for the championship in football, it is difficult for me to say what position the clubs here would take, especially as it is very hard to get sufficient funds to pay the travelling expenses which would necessarily follow in playing for the championship of the Dominion, but I think I may say that this association would be very much pleased if some representative man could be prevailed upon to present a trophy, to be played for under similar terms to the Stanley and Minto cups. I think that the trophy ought to be presented by some official person, and would very much prefer this to one presented by some private person or corporation."

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

Little Girl Carried in a Buggy by a Runaway Horse.

Last night just after 6 o'clock, when the stores and factories had turned out their hundreds of employees, all on their way home for the night, a miraculous escape from death or at least very severe injury occurred. A young woman accompanied by a little girl, the daughter of Mr. Lee, the market clerk, was driving south on Water street. At the corner of Murray something went wrong with the harness, and the young woman stopped the horse and alighted to adjust it. While she was out of the buggy something frightened the horse which started in a mad gallop down Water street with the little child still in the buggy. Although the sidewalks were crowded with pedestrians, a number of whom made efforts to stop the horse, all efforts were unavailing, and probably 200 persons on Water and Hunter streets had to stand helplessly by and witness what everyone fully expected would result in a horrible tragedy. Providence, however, fortunately intervened, and as the horse and buggy swung around the Hunter street corner, the little girl was thrown out, alighting on the sidewalk, away from any further danger from the horse or vehicle. She was at once picked up by those standing near, and instead of a lifeless form as many expected, it was found that outside of a few cuts and a severe shaking up, she was practically uninjured. The horse continued along Hunter and turned up George, and was stopped near the corner of Brock.

PAWKY HUMOR.

Some Stories About the Scots by Sir Archibald Geikie.

Sir Archibald Geikie has just published his Reminiscences—a volume full of stories about the Scots. Here are some of them:

"Weel, Tam, are ye gaun hame wi' your wark?" was the invariable greeting of a doctor to a tailor of his acquaintance, when he met him carrying a bundle. Once the tailor saw the doctor walking in a funeral procession. "Weel, doctor, are ye gaun hame wi' your wark?" he asked.

Descanting on the changes in life and work brought about by time, a farmer said:

"When I was young, I used to think my father hadna muckle sense, but my sons look on mysel' as a born eediot."

At a funeral in Glasgow, a stranger who had taken his seat in one of the mourning coaches, excited the curiosity of the three other occupants, one of whom at last asked him:

"Ye'll be a brither o' the corp?"

"No, I'm no a brither o' the corp."

"Weel, then, ye'll be his cousin?"

"No, I'm no that!"

"Then ye'll be at least a frien' o' the corp?"

"No that either. To tell the truth I've no been weel mysel', and as my doctor has ordered me some carriage exercise, I thocht this wad be the cheapest way to tak' it."

Ho tells, for instance, of the Highlander who had been to Glasgow and seen that wonderful invention, the telegraph:

"What is it like?" his neighbor asked him. "If I trod on ma collie dog's tail in Oban," said Jock, "and it squeaked in Tombermory, that wad be a telegraph."

Then there is the story of the blacksmith who said to his minister:

"Ah, sir, if ye was ance richt drunk, ye wadna want ever to be sober again."

Old England Disappearing.

Bit by bit, says the London correspondent of The Yorkshire Post, the historic old houses in Holborn are disappearing. Furnival's Inn had to be demolished a few years ago to make way for the gigantic buildings of the Prudential Assurance Company. For months there have been rumors that the Black Bull—the famous house of the coaching days, and once the favorite resort of Mrs. Gamp and Mrs. Prig—would soon give way to business premises. The expectation is now about to be realized. Up to a few years ago the Black Bull still preserved in the courtyard the old-fashioned galleries which were so familiar a feature in coaching inns. But for a generation its chief fame has rested upon its association with Dickens. In the back parlor you may still be told that you are seated in a room much frequented by the great novelist. Whether that be true or not, he certainly knew the old place well. "A little dull, but not so bad as might be," was Mrs. Gamp's description of it. "I'm glad to see parralleges in case of fire, and lots of roof and chimbley pots to walk upon." Now that the Black Bull is going, the oldest licensed house in the district will be "Ye Old Mitre," in Hatton Garden, which dates back to 1546.

Mr. and Mrs. Neville Lytton.

It rarely happens, says The Sketch, that the descendants of two famous authors meet and marry. This, however, was the pleasant fate of Mr. and Mrs. Neville Lytton, Lord Lytton's youngest brother is, of course, the grandson of the great Bulwer Lytton, whose fame in English letters is now enjoying a revival, while his young wife was Miss Judith Blunt, the daughter of Mr. Wilfrid and Lady Anne Blunt, and a descendant through her mother of the great Lord Byron. The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Neville Lytton was a great romance, and excited keen interest, both in this country and in Egypt, where the youthful bride was well known. Mr. Lytton was, at the time he became a benedict, only just twenty. He and Mrs. Neville Lytton, who is her distinguished parents' only child, live in a quaint, old-world place, Rake Mill, in Surrey. They are both devoted to outdoor life, Mrs. Lytton being, perhaps, one of the best horsewomen in the kingdom. She also has a great love of flowers and of gardening.

A Little Late.

Lawrence the artist, was a very slow worker. Over his portrait of Lady Mexborough and her child he took an unconscionable time. Promise after promise was made, and at last Lord Mexborough insisted on fulfillment.

"Well," said Lawrence, "if Lady Mexborough will kindly bring the baby once more I will really finish."

"Well, Sir Thomas," answered the patron, "my wife will be happy to give you another sitting whenever you like, but the baby's in the guards!"—London Telegraph.

BRITISH ZOLLVEREIN.

A Dream Is Sir Robert Griffen's Term to Describe the Aspirations in This Direction.

London, May 12.—(C.A.P.)—In the last two essays added to his "Economic Enquiries and Studies," Sir Robert Griffen attacks as a dream the project of a British zollverein, arguing that commercial union does not at the best tend towards political union. He argues it is better to rely still upon free trade and the colonies, abandoning what he admits to be their present favor for preference, and to improve and render more intimate the Empire communications and monetary union, on which rests prosperity.

An Unfair Burden.

London, May 12.—(C.A.P.)—At a banquet of the Navy League, Sir John A. Cockburn, proposing success to the league, spoke of the important work Sir R. H. Wyatt was achieving for the colonies. The number of foreigners and Lascars employed in the British mercantile marine had increased from 6 per cent. in 1860 to 45 per cent. in 1902. He hoped the league would use its influence to secure a larger proportion of British subjects.

Arnold White, speaking at the annual meeting in the afternoon, complained of the unfair burden imposed on the Motherland in the defence of the colonies, and urged the Navy League to establish an intelligence department. Balfour's pmamphlet showed that on the navy alone depended the country's existence. The Navy League Committees had forgotten the fact. Sir E. Freemantle said he would not remain in the league if disrespectful remarks like Mr. White's could be made at meeting concerning those holding important offices under the Crown. The annual report showed that the league had gained strength in the colonies, but had not made relative progress at home.

Coming to Canada.

London, May 12.—(C.A.P.)—The Archbishop of Canterbury leaves in the middle of September on a tour for six weeks through the principal cities of the United States and Canada.

Canada Calls.

London, May 12.(C.A.P.)—Viscount Knutsford, presiding at the annual meeting of the Society for Promoting the Employment of Women, attached great importance to special training for the colonies. There was a good opening in Canada and South Africa for women trained in cookery, poultry keeping and gardening.

To Oppose Haldane

London, May 12.—(C.A.P.)—C. Sellar, ex-secretary to Mr. Chamberlain during his South African tour, said he has accepted the position of Unionist candidate to oppose R. B. Haldane in East Lothian.

Y.M.C.A.'s in Session.

Buffalo, N.Y., May 12.—The International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of North America convened here yesterday. The convention marks the fiftieth anniversary of the first International Convention in America. The convention has brought together about fifteen hundred delegates, representing 600 city associations, 700 student associations, 200 railroad associations, and a large number of miscellaneous associations representing the army, navy, negro and Indian races and industrial concerns.

At the close of the afternoon session J. J. Gartshore of Toronto, presented a large Canadian ensign to the convention. The delegates sang "God Save the King" and "America," followed by "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds."

Presbyterian Progress.

Toronto, May 12.—Yesterday morning the Presbyterian Synod reassembled in Knox Church, the new moderator, Rev. J. A. McKeen, of Orono, presiding. The treasurer's statement of the Synod fund showed receipts $1,924 and expenditure $830. Rev. W. R. McIntosh reported on the Young People's Societies. The total number was 166, a decrease of 6; 80 were Christian Endeavor Societies and one a literary society. Toronto had 27 societies, an increase of 7. Wylie C. Clark presented the augmentation fund report. The receipts amounted to $7,851, about $1,350 increase. Only 350 congregations out of 690 support the fund, and 45 congregations had been assisted.

Explosion Kills Ten Men.

Murphysboro, May 12.—Ten men killed and a large number burned are the known results of an explosion of powder yesterday in shaft No. 7 of the Big Muddy Coal and Iron Mine Company at Herrin, 20 miles from here. About 325 men were at work in the mine. A car containing 50 kegs of powder exploded. The cause of the explosion is not know. Eighty men injured and ten dead have been removed from the mine.

He May Recover.

Kingston, May 12.—Geo. Shortt, the ten-year-old son of Prof. Shortt, who lost both legs by being run over by an electric car on Monday, is showing great pluck in his terrible injury. Yesterday morning he was reported as restless, but the doctors considered his condition as very satisfactory. In the afternoon the report was that he was resting easily and there were bright hopes for his recovery.

Americans Caught in Ambush.

Manila, May 12.—Lieut. Winfield Harper and 39 men of F Company of the Seventeenth U. S. Infantry, were caught on May 8 in an ambush by several hundred Moros. Two American officers and fifteen men were killed and five men were wounded.

No Fight After All.

Lima, Peru, May 12.—Foreign Minister Pardo told the Associated Press correspondent Tuesday that there is no truth whatever in the report that a battle had taken place between Peruvians and Brazilians in the Acre territory.

Deaf Woman Killed.

Windsor, May 12.—Miss Christina Romanesky, a deaf and dumb woman, aged 30 years, was run over and killed by a C.P.R. engine here yesterday. The woman's body was cut completely in two.

AUTHOR AND MORALIST

APOSTLE OF PERSEVERANCE AND FRUIT OF HIS RIPE EXPERIENCE.

A Poor Boy Who by Diligence and Self-Denial Became Wealthy, Famous and Respectable—The Stimulus From Within—"Genius, It Is Patience"—The Obscure Great Men.

Samuel Smiles, the celebrated author and moralist, who died recently, was one of those men who do as much good in the world as many geniuses. Almost invariably a genius is a specialist. He may be an astronomer, a poet, a soldier, what not, but except in rare cases he is one of them only. We call Herschel a genius, for example, but what influence on reader and writer has he had? Any inspiration that has flowed from the heroic career of Herschel, into the lives of those of us who are not astonomers, has been by reason not of his achievements, but of his struggles. To understand his discoveries one must be an astronomer, but to be encouraged by his gallant battle with circumstances one needs only be a reader of Samuel Smiles. He had the Boswellian virtue of appreciating greatness, and the most celebrated of his books teem with helpful illustrations, snatched from the lives of a hundred men. Of course, in "Self-Help," "Duty," and "Character" Mr. Smiles is not seen as a great biographer. He is a teacher, a preacher, who finds his text in the careers of the great. This is what is meant by saying that Mr. Smiles may have done more good than many of the geniuses he speaks about. They supplied the fact. He was the middleman from whom thousands obtained it.

Smiles' Early Struggles.

The Apostle of Perseverance, as he has been called, gave the world "Self-Help" as the fruit of his ripe experience. He was a poor boy, who, by diligence and self-denial, became wealthy, famous and respected. He was a success, in fact. Born in Haddington, Scotland, in 1812, his early outlook was clouded when he was 18 by the death of his father. His mother was left to bring up eleven children as best she could. She struggled bravely on, and was able to send Samuel to Edinburgh University, where he received a good education. The young man, who, as a boy, had resolved to become a doctor, had never lost sight of this resolve, even when circumstances seemed to place its consummation beyond the bounds of possibility, began to study medicine, living with a frugality which to-day would seem downright poverty. His ambition was realized in due course, and for six years Samuel Smiles, M.D., practiced his profession. Seeing an even more congenial occupation in journalism, he abandoned medicine and became editor of The Leeds Times. While holding this position he was offered an even more lucrative post with the Leeds and Thirsk Railway, and this he accepted, holding it until he took his last position, that of secretary of the Southeastern Railway. This he held from 1854 to 1866. He resigned it after his fame as an author had been well established, and after he had acquired a considerable fortune.

The Stimulus From Within.

"Self-Help," the most famous of Dr. Smiles' works, was published at his own expense, though it is said to have made the fortunes of others. He wrote nearly a score of books, but it is as the author of "Self-Help" that he holds a place in English literature. The idea of the book, the great point which Smiles wishes to emphasize, as far as it can be summed up in a sentence, is this: If a man is to amount to anything in the world, the stimulus must come from within, for unless it does, laws, institutions, friends, and schools avail nothing. As it has been well expressed, "the utmost that anything external to ourselves can do is to give us freedom to think and act." This is a thought which, coined in whatever words you will, has a true ring about it. Smiles comes back to strike this keynote a score of times in his noted book, and in one place presents the idea in these words: "It is every day becoming more clearly understood that the function of government is negative and restrictive, being resolved principally into the protection of life, liberty and property. There is no power of law that can make the idle man industrious, the shiftless man provident, or the drunken sober; though every individual can be each and all of these if he will by the exercise of his own free powers of action and self-denial."

"Genius, It Is Patience."

This is what "Self-Help" endeavors to prove, and the evidence Dr. Smiles puts in is most interesting and instructive. His witnesses are some of the world's most famous men. Their wise sayings and those fragments of their lives which inspired them were never put to better use than by Dr. Smiles. They lend to the book its perennial charm, and are as interesting to newspaper readers in the twentieth century as to people dead and gone generations ago. Speaking of genius, we have the authority of one of the greatest thinkers of all time—Sir Isaac Newton—that it is an infinite capacity for taking pains, as Carlyle put it. Newton said: "If I have done the public any service, it is due to industry and patient thought." Says Buffon, the famous naturalist, "Genius, it is patience." Sir Joshua Reynolds was convinced that by patience a man might become an eminent artist. He added: "Whoever is resolved to excel in painting or indeed in any other art, must bring all his mind to bear upon that one object, from the moment that he rises till he goes to bed."

The Obscure Great Men.

Through the pages we get glimpses of little known great men, such as "a manufacturer of pots, named Wedgwood," as the inventor of this famous china described himself; of Flaxman, the artist, and his devoted wife; of Robert Dick, the Scottish baker, who was perhaps the greatest geologist of his day. Smiles loved to tell the story of some forgotten great man, of some fine business genius as great in his way as a poet whose fortune it is to be known, while the other remains a hidden force to the end of his days. We hear of the tremendous labors of men like Palmerston and Derby, Russell and Disraeli, Gladstone and Bulwer, all 18-hour-a-day men. Harking back again to the old text, We have Beaconsfield's famous saying: "We put too much faith in systems and too little in men." One cannot read "Self-Help" without feeling that the author has proved his case, and that "Heaven helps those who help themselves." All truth is not contained in the book, to be sure, but at least it teaches a great lesson, and the world is better because it was written.

Canada Will Not.

Ottawa, May 12.—(Globe Special).—The United States Government, through the British Ambassador at Washington, have again expressed a wish to unite with the Canadian Government in a measure for the protection of salmon fisheries on the coast of British Columbia. They want to assist in the erection and maintenance of a new hatchery in British Columbia. The feeling here against granting the request is very strong.

"Such a Noise!"

The mother says to herself sometimes, "I can hardly endure it." Then a chill creeps over her as she thinks of the awful silence which falls upon the home when children are taken away, and she is glad her children are hardy of body and lusty of lungs.

When a child does not enjoy noisy sports and games there is something wrong, and that something will often be found to be a lack of nutrition adequate to the needs of youth and growth. The stomach is "weak," digestion is imperfect, and so the nourishment of the body is inadequate.

In such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery works wonders. It changes puny, fretful children into healthy, happy girls and boys. The process by which this change is accomplished is strictly along the lines marked by Nature. All growth and strength come from food when it has been digested, converted into nutrition and assimilated. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and so enables the body to obtain without loss or waste the benefit of the nutrition provided in food. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

A Wonderful Thing.

"I have been thinking of writing to you for some time," writes Mrs. W. D. Benson, of Maxton, Robeson Co., N. C., "to let you know what a wonderful thing Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery did for my little boy. He was taken with indigestion when he was a year and a half old and he was under the doctor's treatment for five long years. We spent all we made for doctor's bills, and it did no good. He could eat only a little milk and cracker, and some times even this would make him sick. He could not sit up all day, and I gave up all hope of his ever getting any better. Three years ago I found one of your books, and on looking it over one day I noticed Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery recommended for indigestion. We bought some and gave it to our boy. He had been treated at Hoods by a good doctor and at Bennettsville, S. C., and at Currie and Lumberton and Marion, and was only relieved for a short time. We gave him two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it cured him. He is well as can be and can eat anything that he wants and it does not hurt him. He has not been sick a day since and it has been three years since he took your medicine."

A Thankful Mother.

"I have felt it my duty for a long time," writes Mrs. Mollie Jones, of Gap, Comanche Co. Texas, "to tell you of the wonderful cure effected by your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' in the case of our little boy, now nearly seven years old. When he was two months old he was taken with La Grippe and it settled on his lungs and in his throat. His tonsils enlarged, and when he was two years old we had the doctor operate on them. Then we had the doctor take his tonsils off and he made bad work of it. If he went in the wind he would be sick, and we tried everything we could hear of and consulted every physician we saw, but they did not know what to do. When he was nearly six years old (in October, 1898) he was worse than ever, and I could not rest for being so uneasy about him. He was our fourth boy (the other three were dead), and it seemed to me that if he died I just could not bear it. I would go to sleep crying and begging God to spare him. Well, I could see he was getting so much worse; he was just as poor as he could be, and his kidneys had been troublesome all his life. I had read a book about Dr. Pierce's medicines. It seemed to me that this was the very medicine we wanted, and I told my husband that if he would buy some of Dr. Pierce's medicine I felt almost sure it would help our boy. He sent and got some and we commenced with the 'Golden Medical Discovery' on Friday night, and with the 'Pellets' the next morning. We gave him your medicine three times a day and by Sunday he was able to play, and in one month from the time he commenced taking it he had gained six pounds and his cough was all gone. He has not coughed any since, and he don't take cold any more than the rest of us. He goes about like the rest of the children and plays in the cold and bad weather."

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA

By Booth Tarkington.

The song had ceased, but the musician lingered, and the keys were touched to plaintive harmonies new to him. He had come to Plattville before "Cavalleria Rusticana" won the prize at Rome, and now, entranced, he heard the "Intermezzo" for the first time. Listening to this, he feared to move lest he should wake from a summer night's dream.

A ragged little shadow flitted down the path behind him, and from a solitary apple tree standing like a lonely ghost in the middle of the field came the "Woo!" of a screech owl twice. It was answered—twice—from a clump of elder bushes that grew in a fence corner fifty yards west of the pasture bars. Then the barrel of a squirrel rifle issued, lifted out of the white elder blossoms, and lay along the fence. The music in the house across the way ceased, and Harkless saw two white dresses come out through the long parlor windows on to the veranda. "It will be cooler out here," came the voice of the singer clearly through the quiet. "What a night!"

John vaulted the bars and started to cross the road. They saw him from the veranda, and Miss Briscoe called to him in welcome. As his tall figure stood out plainly in the bright light against the white dust a streak of fire leaped from the elder blossoms, and there rang out the sharp report of a rifle. There were two screams from the veranda. One white figure ran into the house. The other, a little one with a gauzy wrap streaming behind, came flying out into the moonlight straight to Harkless. There was a second report. The rifle shot was answered by a revolver. William Todd had risen up, apparently from nowhere, and, kneeling by the pasture bars, fired at the flash of the rifle.

"Jump fer the shadder, Mr. Harkless!" he shouted. "He's in them elders. Fer God's sake, come back!"

Empty handed as he was, the editor dashed for the treacherous elder bush as fast as his long legs could carry him, but before he had taken six strides a hand clutched his sleeve and a girl's voice quavered from close behind him: "Don't run like that, Mr. Harkless! I can't keep up."

He wheeled about and confronted a vision, a dainty little figure about five feet high, a flushed and lovely face, hair and draperies disarranged and flying. He stamped his foot with rage. "Get back in the house!" he cried.

"You mustn't go!" she panted. "It's the only way to stop you."

"Go back to the house!" he shouted savagely.

"Will you come?"

"Fer God's sake," cried William Todd, "come back! Keep out of the road!" He was emptying his revolver at the clump of bushes, the uproar of his firing blasting the night. Some one screamed from the house:

"Helen, Helen!"

John seized the girl's wrists. Her gray eyes flashed into his defiantly. "Will you go?" he roared.

"No!"

He dropped her wrists, caught her up in his arms as if she had been a kitten and leaped into the shadow of the trees that leaned over the road from the yard. The rifle rang out again, and the little ball whistled venomously overhead. Harkless ran along the fence and turned in at the gate. A loose strand of the girl's hair blew across his cheek, and in the moon her head shone with gold. She had light brown hair and gray eyes and a short upper lip like a curled rose leaf. He set her down on the veranda steps. Both of them laughed wildly.

The rifle rang out again.

"But you came with me," she gasped triumphantly.

"I always thought you were tall," he answered, and there was afterward a time when he had to agree that this was a somewhat vague reply.

CHAPTER IV.

JUDGE BRISCOE smiled grimly and leaned on his shotgun in the moonlight by the veranda. He and William Todd had been kicking down the elder bushes and, returning to the house, found Minnie alone on the porch. "Safe?" he said to his daughter, who turned an anxious face upon him. "They'll be safe enough now, and in our garden."

"Maybe I oughtn't to have let them go."

"Pooh! They're all right. That scalawag's half way to Six Crossroads by this time, isn't he, William?"

"He tuck up the fence like a scared rabbit," Mr. Todd responded, looking into his hat to avoid meeting the eyes of the lady, "and I didn't have no call to foller. He knowed how to run, I reckon. Time Mr. Harkless come out the yard again we see him take across the road to the wedge woods, near half a mile up. Somebody else with him then—looked like a kid. Must 'a' cut across the field to join him. They're fur enough toward home by this."

"Did Miss Helen shake hands with you four or five times?" asked Briscoe, chuckling.

"No. Why?" said Minnie.

"Because Harkless did. My hand aches, and I guess William's does too. He nearly shook our arms off when we told him he'd been a fool. Seemed to do him good. I told him he ought to hire somebody to take a shot at him every morning before breakfast—not that it's any joking matter," the old gentleman finished thoughtfully.

"I should say not," said William, with a deep frown and a jerk of his head toward the rear of the house. "He jokes about it enough. Wouldn't even promise to carry a gun after this. Said he wouldn't know how to use it—never shot one off since he was a boy, on the Fourth of July. This is the third time he's be'n shot at this year, but he says the others was at a—what 'd he call it?"

"'A merely complimentary range,'" Briscoe supplied. He handed William a cigar and bit the end off another himself. "Minnie, you better go in the house and read, I expect, unless you want to go down to the creek and join those folks."

"Me!" she exclaimed. "I know when to stay away, I guess. Do go and put that terrible gun up."

"No," said Briscoe lighting his cigar deliberately. "It's all safe; there's no question of that; but maybe William and I better go out and take a smoke in the orchard as long as they stay down at the creek."

In the garden shafts of white light pierced the bordering trees and fell where June roses breathed the mild night breeze, and here, through summer spells, the editor of the Herald and the lady who had run to him at the pasture bars strolled down a path trembling with shadows to where the creek tinkled over the pebbles. They walked slowly, with an air of being well accustomed friends and comrades, and for some reason it did not strike either of them as unnatural or extraordinary. They came to a bench on the bank, and he made a great fuss dusting the seat for her with his black slouch hat. Then he regretted the hat—it was a shabby old hat of a Carlow county fashion.

It was a long bench, and he seated himself rather remotely toward the end opposite her, suddenly realizing that he had walked very close to her coming down the narrow garden path. Neither knew that neither had spoken since they left the veranda, and it had taken them a long time to come through the little orchard and the garden. She rested her chin on her hand, leaning forward and looking steadily at the creek. Her laughter had quite gone; her attitude seemed a little wistful and a little sad. He noted that her hair curled over her brow in a way he had not pictured in the lady of his dreams. This was so much prettier. He did not care for tall girls. He had not cared for them for almost half an hour. It was so much more beautiful to be dainty and small and piquant. He had no notion that he was sighing in a way that would have put a furnace to shame, but he turned his eyes from her because he feared that if he looked longer he might blurt out some speech about her loveliness. His glance rested on the bank, but its diameter included the edge of her white skirt and the tip of a little white, high heeled slipper that peeped out from beneath, and he had to look away from that, too, to keep from telling her that he meant to advocate a law compelling all women to wear crisp white gowns and white kid slippers on moonlight nights.

She picked a long spear of grass from the turf before her, twisted it absently in her fingers, then turned to him slowly. Her lips parted as if to speak. Then she turned away again. The action was so odd, somehow, as she did it, so adorable, and the preserved silence was such a bond between them, that for his life he could not have helped moving half way up the bench toward her.

"What is it?" he asked, and he spoke in a whisper such as he might have used at the bedside of a dying friend. He would not have laughed if he had known he did so. She twisted the spear of grass into a little ball and threw it at a stone in the water before she answered:

"Do you know, Mr. Harkless, you and I have not 'met,' have we? Didn't we forget to be presented to each other?"

"I beg your pardon, Miss Sherwood. In the perturbation of comedy I forgot."

"It was melodrama, wasn't it?" she said. He laughed, but she shook her head.

"Purest comedy," he said gayly, "except your part of it. You shouldn't have done it. This evening was not arranged in honor of 'visiting ladies.' But you mustn't think me a comedian. Truly, I didn't plan it. My friend from Six Crossroads must be given the credit of devising the scene, though you divined it."

Neither knew that neither had spoken.

"It was a little too picturesque, I think. I know about Six Crossroads. Please tell me what you mean to do."

"Nothing. What should I?"

"You mean that you will keep on letting them shoot at you until they—until you"— She struck the bench angrily with her hand.

"There's no summer theater in Six Crossroads. There's not even a church. Why shouldn't they?" he asked gravely. "During the long and tedious evenings it cheers the poor Crossroader's soul to drop over here and take a shot at me. It whiles away dull care for him, and he has the additional exercise of running all the way home."

"Ah!" she cried indignantly. "They told me you always answered like this."

"Well, you see, the Crossroads efforts have proved so thoroughly hygienic for me. As a patriot I have sometimes felt extreme mortification that such bad marksmanship should exist in the county, but I console myself with the thought that their best shots are, unhappily, in the penitentiary."

"There are many left. Can't you understand that they will organize again and come in a body, as they did before you broke them up? And then, if they come on a night when they know you are wandering out of town"—

"You have not had the advantage of an intimate study of the most exclusive people of the Crossroads, Miss Sherwood. There are about thirty gentlemen who remain in that neighborhood while their relatives sojourn under discipline. If you had the entree over there, you would understand that these thirty could not gather themselves into a company and march the seven miles without physical debate in the ranks. They are not precisely amiable people, even among themselves. They would quarrel and shoot one another to pieces long before they got here."

"But they worked in a company once."

"Never for seven miles. Four miles was their radius. Five would see them all dead."

She struck the bench again. "Oh, you laugh at me! You make a joke of your own life and death and laugh at everything. Have five years of Plattville taught you to do that?"

"I laugh only at taking the poor Crossroaders too seriously. I don't laugh at your running into fire to help a fellow mortal."

"I knew there wasn't any risk. I knew he had to stop to load before he shot again."

"He did shoot again. If I had known you before tonight, I"— His tone changed, and he spoke gravely. "I am at your feet in worship of your divine philanthropy. It's so much finer to risk your life for a stranger than for a friend."

"That is a man's point of view, isn't it?"

"You risked yours for a man you had never seen before."

"Oh, no. I saw you at the lecture. I heard you introduce the Hon. Mr. Halloway."

"Then I don't understand your wishing to save me."

The rifle rang out again.

The duel in the dark was a favorite with duchists. Two men were locked in a dark room and crawled stealthily from corner to corner, until some false step made one of them the target for bullet or blade.

Life is a duel in the dark with disease. One false step, one mistake, and the attack comes swift and sudden. The mistake which commonly opens the way for an attack by disease is neglect of the symptoms of stomach trouble. When eating is followed by undue fullness, belchings, sour or bitter risings, etc., disease is attacking the stomach.

The best way to frustrate such an attack is to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and makes the body strong and healthy.

"I was suffering very much with my head and stomach," writes Mrs. W. C. Gill, of Weldon, Shelby Co., Ala., "head was so dizzy when I would raise up in bed would fall right back. Could eat but very little in fact, scarcely anything, there seemed to be a heavy weight in my stomach, so I could not rest. I had to vomit very often and would vomit up nearly everything I ate. I was in a bad condition. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and five of his 'Favorite Prescription' and am now well and hearty. I feel like a new woman and give Dr. Pierce's medicines credit for it all. I had taken medicine from physicians without any benefit as I could see."

"GET A BOX OF MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS."

He says: "I have been ailing for about a year from deranged nerves, and very often weak spells would come over me and be so bad that I sometimes thought I would be unable to survive them. I have been treated by doctors and have taken numerous preparations but none of them helped me in the least. I finally got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before taking them I did not feel able to do any work, but now I can work as well as ever, thanks to one box of your pills. Weak lungs, throat troubles or bronchial affections get more positive help and relief from Scott's Emulsion than from any other source.

Cod liver oil itself is very scarce just now; cheap adulterations and mixtures of inferior oils are offered everywhere.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET.

The Fluctuations of the Leading Stocks

The Wall street market was slightly more active this morning although the trading in the first hour or so was of a very narrow nature. Copper, which was a strong feature yesterday afternoon, continued to advance and by one o'clock had reached 51. Metropolitan, too, showed some strength during the noon hour and touched 110 1-4. The steel stocks continued to be very weak and new low levels were reached. U. S. Steel common falling to 8 1-2. General Electric was erratic. It opened at 154, sold down to 152 and reacted to 153. C.P.R. came out at 116 3-4, went to 117 and fell back again to 116 3-4. These were the only changes of importance up until 2.00 p. m.

NEW 'PHONE COMPANY ASK FOR FRANCHISE

purpose and that the treasurer be authorized to pay their expenses on the certificate of the chairman,

22. We recommend that notice be given of the intention of the council to construct sewers as local improvements on the following parts of streets: Sherbrooke street, from Bethune to Stewart; Park street, from Weller to Cedar; Park street, from Charlotte to King; Park street from King to Rink; Antrim street, from George west to No. 168 Antrim street; London street, from Downie street to Reid street and Dublin street from George to Aylmer streets.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The Mayor referring to the clause of the report recommending that Wolfe street be closed from George street to the river, and opening up a narrow street next to the C.P.R. tracks, stated that he wished to record his dissent from the clause. While he thought the town should meet the wishes of the Matthews Company as fully as possible, he was of the opinion that the company should be satisfied if the street were moved, without the width being decreased. He said it was a dangerous place for teams, and 66 feet was none too wide.

Ald. Best explained that as a matter of fact the town only had the use of 40 feet on Wolfe street at present, since there was now a C.P.R. siding on the street opposite the Matthews Company's factory, which took up more than 20 feet of the street. The motion as it stood at present was giving forty feet and getting in return a forty-five foot street.

A number of the aldermen expressed their opinion that a street of less than 66 feet would be unsafe, since there would doubtless be considerable traffic on this street.

The Mayor also thought that in the matter of surface water as advised upon in clause 5, the advice of the Town Engineer should be obtained.

The report, with the exception of clauses 5 and 17, which were referred to the Committee of the Whole, was adopted.

2. We recommend that the final payments of $25 to Wm. Firth and of $35 to A. McCarthy for snow ploughing during the past season in Ward No. 5, be approved.

Ald. Batten moved, seconded by Ald. Clinksonle, that the chairman of the Property Committee be authorized to have the gates in the cattle yards on the market repaired, and the eavestroughing fixed.

Ald. Adams called the attention of the council to the report of the proceedings of the County Council in which the county will request the town to refund to the county the grants paid by the latter to ten South African heroes, who belonged to the town, and to whom the county paid grants by mistake. These ten men had been bona-fide residents of the town, and a certificate from Lt. Col. Miller to that effect was produced.

The Mayor remarked that this was a matter which affected the honour of the town, since the town had by resolution agreed to pay them grants.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald Mason, that the council refund the treasurer of the county $250, being the amount paid by the latter to veterans who were bona fide residents of the town. This was carried.

BYLAWS

Ald. Morrison moved the first reading of a bylaw respecting the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, providing that the company shall erect a building to cost, together with that of a sprinkling system, heating plant, and shafting, etc., $25,000, and capable of giving employment to 150 hands, within 18 months after the passing of the bylaw. On these conditions the town will grant to the company certain lots in the town at the junction of the G.T.R. and C.P.R. tracks, and fix the assessment for the plant and lands at $12,000.

Ald. Morrison, in explaining the conditions of the bylaw, said in answer to an objection taken by Mr. Best, that the committee set the number of hands to be employed at 150, and had been assured by Mr. Stratton that the company would be glad to employ that number, or more if the trade warranted it, but it would be hardly fair to the company to stipulate that 150 men should be employed continuously, in case there should be a decrease in the volume of trade. The building, with the cost of heating, sprinkling and shafting, would be $25,000, and the heating and other fixtures mentioned would cost about $5,000, the remainder being put into the building.

Ald. Johnston, speaking on the bylaw, said the only objection he had taken was to the granting of the land to the company, but he would not like his vote to do anything which would result in driving the Lock Works from Peterborough.

Ald. Best reiistered his objection to the bylaw on principle.

Ald. Batten said that he understood there was a capitalist now who was waiting the outcome of the bylaw, to rent the present building occupied by the Lock Company, and he thought this aspect should be considered.

Ald. Edgcombe remarked that if his memory served him right some lots as those named in the bylaw had been offered to a shovel manufacturing concern if it would employ 25 hands. He saw no objection to the bylaw, which was passed, all the members, with the exception of Ald. Best, voting in favour of it.

Ald. Rush addressed the council on the question of extending George street. For about 20 years the town had been trying to get this street extended and moved that proceedings be taken at once to expropriate the land necessary to extend this street to the Driving Park, in case arrangements cannot be effected with the owners of land through which the town proposes to run the street. A number of the property owners had agreed to give their land for nothing; others had agreed to accept a price already offered by the council.

Ald. Rush estimated that the cost of expropriations would be probably $5,000; but in any case he thought that the cost now would be much lower than if it was left for the future.

Ald. Mason moved, seconded by Ald. Adams, that the committee appointed to arrange for the extension of George street, be asked to report to the council as to the cost of the different properties to be acquired.

This motion carried, and the council then adjourned.

The first eight of an order for twenty-five of a new type of tourist cars, have been placed by the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., on the runs between Boston, Montreal, Toronto, and Vancouver. They are the handsomest tourist sleepers ever built, and are highly creditable to the C.P.R. Company's shops, Montreal, at which they were constructed. These magnificent cars are 72 feet long, and contain fourteen compartments, seating fifty-six passengers. They have complete kitchen and toilet arrangements, and spacious smoking rooms. In fact, with the exception of being upholstered in leather instead of plush or velvet, and with interior fittings of birch instead of mahogany, they might easily be taken for first-class sleepers. A noticeable improvement over similar cars which have been previously turned out, is the arrangement of the seats, which are so constructed as to leave ample room beneath them for hand baggage. Tourist cars have always been a great feature of the C.P.R. equipment, and these new ones will make them more popular than ever amongst those who wish to combine economy with all the comfort that is possible to get while on the road.

An unusually fine set of publications descriptive of scenery, places of sport and district for settlement is being issued by the C.P.R. A handbook on glaciers is cleverly written, by Geo. S. Vaux. The annual publication of fishing and hunting has been completely revised and will be issued soon. It is heavily illustrated. A new pamphlet on mountains deals exhaustively with the country between Calgary and the Coast. Others equally as good are also forthcoming, such as "New Highways," and a revised folder on the Imperial Limited train.

If you're feeling warm, drop in and have a "Hiawatha," "David Harum" or a "Crushed Fruit Sundae" at HOOPER'S.

AN ABRIDGED BIBLE.

Why Only the Two Covers and a Few Tatters Were Left.

At a gathering of several ministers one of them, who is opposed to the so called "higher criticism," told the following story:

"One day a member of a certain church, who had listened attentively for five years to the preaching of his pastor, took to the divine his Bible, which was truly a sight to behold, with whole books clipped out here or a passage gone there. Indeed, between the covers there was little else left but a few shreds of paper. The pastor was horrified and rebuked his parishioner for using the Bible so shockingly. The parishioner meekly replied:

"'It is all the result of your preaching. When I went home from church each Sunday I cut out of the book that which you had criticised in your sermon of that day. That verse on the Trinity was an interpolation, so out went the strong verse. Then the canonicity of this book and that was doubtful, so out went this book and that. John did not write the gospel of John, so out went what was called the gospel of John. This bit of history was not history, only allegory, so out went that false and deceiving thing. Positively, sir, I have been faithful with my shears, and this is all the Bible I have left—the two covers and a few tatters.'

JAP TORPEDO BOAT DESTROYED

No. 48 the First Warship Japan has Lost in the War.

GEN. KUROKI IS ADVANCING.

Port Arthur is Isolated—Russians now Admit That Communications are cut—Some Skirmishing on the Road Towards Liaoyang—Pu La Tien Again Occupied by the Japanese—Telegraph Cot.

Tokio, May 14.—The Japanese torpedo boat No. 48 was destroyed while removing mines from Kerr Bay, north of Talienwan (Port Dalny), Thursday. Seven men were killed and seven were wounded. This is the first warship Japan has lost in the war.

How the Boat Was Lost.

The torpedo boat was lost during a series of bombardments and surveying operations at Talienwan, Deep and Kerr Bays, by Admiral Kataoka, commander of the third squadron. The Admiral arrived at Kerr Bay early in the morning and detached the cruisers Itsukushima, Nisshin and Miyako, ordering them to bombard the land batteries, while a flotilla of torpedo boats swept the harbor of mines. A second flotilla of torpedo boats, which had been engaged in guarding Port Arthur the previous night, joined the squadron and began the work of surveying the harbor. The Miyako discovered a company of Russian infantry, with a detachment of cavalry, on shore, and dispersed them. The survey was completed at 8 o'clock in the afternoon.

Cut Telegraph Line.

Two torpedo boats that were reconnoitering and removing mines in the west shore of Kerr Bay discovered a telegraph line running along the Takushan peninsula. In order to destroy it Lieut. Hotta and four sailors landed and scaled the heights under the protection of the guns of the torpedo boats and cut the line. The Japanese vessel then discovered three bodies of Russian troops, one large and two small ones, whereupon the squadron advanced close to the shore and shelled them. The Miyako, which was reconnoitering in Deep Bay, discovered a Russian guard post on a mountain the northwest of Robinson promontory and destroyed it.

Dispersed Russian Force.

A Russian force, estimated at 10 companies, took refuge behind a eminence, but it was dispersed by the Japanese. Torpedo boats numbers 48 and 49 discovered a large mine in Kerr Bay. The various attempts to blow it up failed, and it suddenly exploded itself, cutting No. 48 in two. The torpedo boat sank in seven minutes. The squadron hurried boats to the rescue and picked up the wounded. Three other mines were discovered and exploded. The squadron completed its operations at 6 o'clock in the evening and returned to its base.

Port Arthur Cut Off.

St. Petersburg, May 14.—Both telegraph and railroad communication with Port Arthur have been cut off.

Japs in Occupation.

Mukden, May 14.—Pu La Tien (near Port Adams, Liaotung Peninsula) has again been occupied by the Japanese. Communication with Port Arthur is interrupted.

Second Jap Army.

Shanghai, May 14.—The second Japanese army, numbering 70,000 men, left Chinampo on 83 transports May 4. They reached Chemulpo 12 days later.

New Russian Concentration.

London, May 14.—The Daily Mail this morning publishes a despatch from Constantinople, according to which Russia is concentrating troops just beyond the Caucasus. The most reliable information, the despatch says, fixes the present total number of troops at 125,000.

KUROKI ADVANCING.

Some Skirmishing on the Road Toward Liaoyang.

Liaoyang, May 14.—The advance guard of the 1st Japanese army has appeared six miles below Lienchenkuan, on the road to Liaoyang. It is not making any further advance, but is erecting strong fortifications. The Japanese movements were made with the greatest care.

A persistent report is current here that a Russian squadron of cavalry succeeded in getting behind the Japanese, who were several squadrons strong, and in occupying Kuandiansan. The unexpected appearance of the Russians caused the Japanese to immediately evacuate the town and retire toward the Yalu. The report is believed to be correct.

Prof. Karavieff, who has arrived here on a train from Port Arthur, claims that he saw near Poiandien station the body of a Russian soldier, one of the railway patrol, cut into quarters.

In a skirmish near Poiandien, one of the patrol was wounded. On the Japanese approaching the soldier feigned death and a Japanese officer passing shot him in the mouth.

Col. Elshen, who has returned from a reconnaisance of the district near the River Taitsi was attacked May 9 by Chinese bandits. One Cossack and two porters were killed by the bandits, who were driven off.

Kuropatkin Sees Them.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—From a despatch received by the Czar from Gen. Kuropatkin, it is evident the Japanese advance towards Liaoyang has now begun in earnest. At dawn on May 11 the Japanese moved out of Fengwangcheng by the Liaoyang road and proceeded to drive the Russians out of the villages held by them in that neighborhood. The Cossacks sustained some loss.

On May 10 Japanese infantry detachments about 10,000 strong, with fifty to eighty guns, advanced towards Siuyen, an important town about twenty miles due west of Fengwangcheng. In this movement they were supported by the force landed at Takushan, who are evidently designed to form the left wing of the Japanese united army of invasion. The effect of the combined operations will be the turning on the south of the chain of mountains behind which Gen. Kuropatkin is massing the Russian troops.

A private telegram also announces that a Japanese force has been landed near Newchwang and was within twelve miles of that town. The Russians have now only two regiments in Newchwang, the remainder of the garrison having been withdrawn to Mukden. In their retreat the Russians are burning the railroad stations and such foodstuffs as they are unable to take with them.

Where Japs Are.

London, May 14.—The Morning Post's Shanghai correspondent says: "The Japanese first army has occupied Aiyang.

"Viceroy Alexieff has sent a note to the Tartar general of Manchuria, complaining that the Chinese villagers refused to sell supplies to Russian troops, and demanding that the general issue a proclamation ordering the natives to supply foodstuffs.

"Some of the Chinese Viceroys are anxious for war with Russia."

Grand Duke Cyril.

St. Petersburg, May 14.—Grand Duke Cyril is suffering from displacement of the heart, resulting from extreme weakness and necessitating complete rest for a long time.

Tramp Locked Up.

Morrisburg, May 14.—The tramp who Thursday afternoon attempted an assault on the three-year-old daughter of Harry McEgar of this place, was, after a hard chase, captured on the farm of Alfred Clements, about eight miles northeast of here, and placed in the lockup yesterday morning.

Wanted in Dawson.

Ottawa, May 14.—Lieut.-Col. Sherwood, C.M.G., Commissioner of Dominion Police, has returned from St. Louis, where he served the necessary papers for the arrest of T. Burpee, wanted in Dawson on a charge of theft.

POLICY IS PAROCHIAL.

Major Seely, M.P., Condemns Chamberlain Policy For This Cause.

London, May 14.—(C.A.P.)—Major Seely, M.P., speaking at a meeting of the Free Trade Educational Committee, when a paper was read on free trade as the best foundation for the Empire, condemned the Chamberlain policy as parochial, instead of in view of the whole Empire. Under the old colonial preference preferential duties were continually evaded. Baltic timber was shipped to Canada and back again to England, so great was the preference given colonial timber.

Acquitted of Corruption.

London, May 14.—(C. A. P.)—Justice Hood, in the report of the Victorian Bribery Commission, acquits Sir Alexander Peacock of any corruption in the case. The Melbourne Age declares it a psychological puzzle why Sir Alexander Peacock made use for party purposes of the Montague donation which Mitchell rejected, and suggests that it would be good taste on his part to stand aside from politics.

Floating Exhibition Fails.

London, May 14.—(C. A. P.)—The proposed English floating exhibition, which was scheduled to visit the colonies in the interest of preferential tariffs, has fallen through. Attempts had been made to get the British Empire League to assume the scheme but without success.

Secretary of Defence.

London, May 14.—(C.A.P.) — Sir George Clarke was appointed secretary of the Defence Committee.

The Light Dues Bill.

London, May 14.—(C.A.P.)—In the House of Commons, the bill proposing to abolish light dues and to throw the cost of coast lighting upon the Exchequer was carried by a majority of 28 voters. The Standard decalres it impossible for the light dues bill to be carried further this session, owing to the opposition of the Government. The light dues bill has passed its second reading.

Canada the Donor.

London, May 14.—(C. A. P.)—The donor of the prize offered for a fable on the British Fire Prevention Committee is Col. Goad, a Canadian. The maximum length of the fable is 1,200 words.

More Than Half.

London, May 14.—(C. A. P.)—The number of British emigrants, 250,950, for 1904, is greater than for any year since 1889. The increase is chiefly due to the large number going to Canada and South Africa. Rather more than one-half went to the British colonies.

Coffee to Dye Eggs.

London, May 14.—(C.A.P.)—British egg dealers are greatly interested in Lord Onslow's advice to use coffee to dye home eggs to compete with the tinted article from abroad. Colored eggs run a shilling higher per 100.

METHODS OF THE TURK.

Armenians Slaughtered Throughout the District of Sassoun.

Paris, May 14.—An official despatch to the Foreign Office from Constantinople confirms the reports that Turkish troops have burned villages throughout the Sassoun district of Armenia, killing the inhabitants. The French Ambassador, M. Constans, has joined with the Russian and British Ambassadors in sending Consuls to Erberum, in the hope of limiting the destruction and bloodshed. However, the official advices, although brief, indicate the work of exterminating the Armenians occupying the mountainous district of Sassoun is practically accomplished.

Anthracite Coal Production.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 14.—The annual report of the United States Department of Mines for 1903, relating to the anthracite coal trade of Pennsylvania, shows a total production for the year of 67,000,000 tons. This output is valued at $135,000,000 at the mines and $300,000,000 at the points of distribution. There were 518 fatal accidents in the anthracite region. There are 151,827 employes in and about all mines, and they worked an average of 211 days in the year.

Will Recover.

Kingston, May 14.—George Shortt, son of Prof. Shortt, was resting quietly yesterday afternoon and the doctors announce that all danger of the shock proving fatal is at an end.

Forestry Nursery.

Mr. E. J. Zavitz has been appointed director of the Forest Tree Nursery, which it is proposed to establish in connection with the Ontario Agricultural College. Mr. Zavitz is now attending the Yale Forestry School.

It is the present intention of the Agricultural Department to plant a large quantity of seedlings on a tract of land which has been set out for that purpose, and within a year they expect to be able to supply the farmers of the province with sturdy young forest trees. The work will necessarily be carried on in a small way at present, as only $3,500 has been placed at the department's disposal by the Legislature. Besides rearing trees suitable to the province, the nursery will take the place of a forestry school. The students of the college, or rather the majority of them, are expected to take a deep interest in the scheme.

A Fast Crab.

"As awkward as a crab" does not apply on some of the South Sea Islands, for a crab is found there that not only runs as fast as an average man, but climbs trees with the ease of a schoolboy.

A Marked Down Social.

George Street Epworth League will hold a unique entertainment next Monday night in the form of a "Marked Down" Social. Some interesting features will be presented and a very pleasant evening is assured. Admission 15 cents.

Winnipeg, May 14.—Frank Marat, a Frenchman, two years out from France, has confessed to murdering his brother, near Canmore.

Found Dead in Canal.

Cornwall, May 14.—Early yesterday morning the lockmen found the body of a man floating in the canal at the lower docks. All the clothes were gone except the shoes and socks. The body had evidently been in the water a long time. The head was crushed and both arms were missing. It is possible that it may be the remains of E. McClusky, the G.T.R. operator, who mysteriously disappeared from here last October.

Drowned in Sturgeon Creek.

Winnipeg, May 14.—F. Pelletier lost his life in Sturgeon Creek, near Edmonton, recently. He attempted to shoot Saskatchewan Rapids, but the boat upset and he was drowned.

Albert Kumpis, sectionman, aged 22 years, was killed by a train near Savane.

Drowned in Pike River.

Wiarton, May 14. — Alexander Blake, clerk of the Commercial Hotel, was drowned yesterday morning while fishing at Pike River. He was in a boat with Harry Brown, when it capsized.

PORT ARTHUR'S FIREBUG.

Citizens Aroused By Many Signs of Deep Laid Plans.

Port Arthur, May 14.—A firebug is at work in town. Lately several incipient fires have occurred, which have led to the belief that some person is engaged in the nefarious work of setting fire to buildings. Thursday suspicion was turned to certainty by the discovery of a blaze, which occurred at Dalton's warehouse. Oil had been poured in an opening around the door from the outside and a match applied. The miscreant had barely done his work and escaped when the fire was discovered. The same night an attempt was made to burn Victoria Rink, but the fire was put out in time to save it from considerable loss. On investigation a pile of chips covered with oil was found in the building ready to be set on fire.

Fire at Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, May 14.—The Superior Brewery and Malting Company's Brewery was gutted by fire last night, entailing a loss of $6,000. It is thought to be the work of a firebug.

Twenty Houses Burned.

Montreal, May 14.—Shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a fire broke out in the block of residences in St. Margaret street, St. Henri, and before the firemen could get the flames under control some twenty small houses of the block had been destroyed. The loss will fall upon about twelve proprietors and three families have been made homeless. The loss will be heavy, as the houses were only partly insured.

Shingle Mill Burned.

Uhthoff, May 4. — The lumber, stave and shingle mill belonging to G. H. Smith at this place was burned down early yesterday morning. It is a complete loss of $8,000. No insurance.

Insurance Losses at Toronto.

Toronto, May 14. — The total amount of insurance losses reported adjusted at the close of yesterday's sitting of the general committee was $11,681,206.87, based on the "sound value of the stock and buildings of which the insurance companies will be called upon to pay $8,108,866.90. The figures up to Thursday totalled $3,851,881.22, and $2,885,974.90, respectively, so that the results of the appraisements handed in yesterday were $329,335.17 additional valuation of property and stock damaged, and $272,892.30 in further insurance losses.

Three Years in Kingston.

Cornwall, May 14.—Two weeks ago J. C. Stewart, fourth concession of Lancaster, engaged a couple of young Englishmen to assist about the farm. On Friday, while Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were absent attending a funeral, the two men ransacked the house and decamped with some jewelry and $140 in cash. One of the thieves, who gave his name as Percy Jones, was arrested in Montreal and was brought to Lancaster. The prisoner admitted his guilt. Jones was sent to Cornwall and was tried Thursday before Judge O'Reilly, who sentenced him to three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

PEOPLING THE COUNTRY

Since Confederation we have spent $8750,000 on the Immigration service. Large expenditures began in 1872, the largest being in 1884, when it reached $500,000. For years Parliament lived in a fool's paradise, the returns of the yearly arrivals including thousands who came out as tourists or commercial agents; even persons who landed at Canadian ports en route to the United States were counted. The result was that each decennial census showed a wide divergence between the number of persons of European birth reported as being in the country and the number actually in it. The system, in short, was an imposture. Under Mr. Sifton's administration there is every reason to believe that we are getting full value for our money. Care is taken to distinguish between the transient visitor and the man who comes here for the purpose of taking up land or going into some other permanent occupation. According to British returns, emigration to British North America for every ten year period from 1861 to 1900 was as follows:—

1860-70	195,000
1871-80	232,000
1881-90	395,000
1891-1900	328,000

These figures do not altogether agree with those of the department. They are sufficiently accurate however, to show that there was a considerable decline in the last period by comparison with its predecessor. Since 1900 emigration from the United Kingdom to Canada has been increasing, the number of arrivals during the last calendar year being over 50,000. There is reason to believe that the increase will be maintained for a long time to come, Canada being now better known in Britain than ever before. It would not be surprising if the aggregate arrivals for the ten year period ending 1910 were in excess of 600,000.

Immigration from the United States into the Canadian Northwest dates from 1898. Since then about 130,000 American settlers have entered, mostly from Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and Wisconsin. American interests are taking alarm, and some of the railways are endeavouring to divert the stream to the Southern and Southwestern States. Nevertheless the prospects of the rush to Western Canada continuing in constantly increasing volume are good. The Americans are admirable pioneers, just the men to open up the region lying between the western boundary of Assiniboia and the Rockies. Before he can obtain his patent the American who settles on Government land must take the oath of allegiance; if he buys from private owners he is at liberty, of course, to remain an American citizen, only, as such, he cannot vote at elections. The great majority are becoming British subjects, and no one save some incurable pessimist looks for trouble on their account.

The number of immigrants who have arrived in Canada since 1897, counting British, American, those from the continental countries of Europe and all others, is 870,000. In 1902-3 alone the number was 128,000, over twice as many as ever came in any single year under Conservative rule. The value of this growing influx of new population cannot be calculated with nicety, but every reasonable man will admit that, if population is what the country stands most in need of, Mr. Sifton and his agents deserve well at its hands. It is the business of our "Tory" friends to attack the Government at every point, but, judged by the results of their administration, and that is the supreme test, Liberals have a good deal to be proud of.

Recent bye-elections in England, fought on the Chamberlain issue, have resulted so disastrously for the Balfour Cabinet that the report that the Tories intend to abandon that issue, or at any rate postpone it to a more convenient season, is not improbable. A few months ago every "Tory" paper in Canada was abusing Sir Wilfrid Laurier for "refusing to lend a hand to Chamberlain." Were a British Ministry or a British public man with free-trade convictions to interfere in a campaign in this country on behalf of tariff reduction, our Conservative friends would promptly tell him to mind his own business. Sir Wilfrid took a wise course in refusing to mingle, directly or indirectly, in the fray. Had he sided with Mr. Chamberlain the British democracy would have resented it just as they resented the appearance on English platforms of certain Canadian orators who were trying to induce them to tax themselves for our benefit, we who, man for man, are so much better off than they. And in all likelihood he would have been warned by Canadian "Tories" like Mr. Kendry, M.P., that he was going out of his way to encourage an Empire movement that was aiming at a greatly increased preference in our market for British goods, to the loss and injury of the Canadian manufacturer. As it is, Sir Wilfrid's neutrality has not prejudiced Canada in the eyes of either party in Britain. Whichever side ultimately wins, he can treat with it on perfectly friendly terms. What is almost equally important, neither camp in England has been furnished with an excuse for meddling in the tariff controversies of Canada.

RICH MICA MINES IN HALIBURTON.

Mrs. C. A. Bridgewood the Only Lady Mine Owner on Canada.

(Toronto World.)

An interesting interview was accorded The World by Mrs. C. A. Bridgewood, who enjoys the distinction of being the most extensive lady mine owner in Canada. Not only does she control mining properties, but she operates them. With an experience of many years gained all over the continent she has decided to devote her energies to developing the mineral resources of certain parts of Canada. At present she is mining mica in Haliburton, and was the first to discover the possibilites of that locality, which she declares is possessed of exhaustless mineral deposits of many varieties, as well as mica. All the year round she keeps a gang of men constantly employed.

She has the greatest faith in Canada's mineral values. But her greatest faith is pinned in Ontario, where she emphatically asserts, there has been a lamentable apathy on the part of business men to take advantage of wealth that lies close at hand. Commenting on it she remarked: "There is hardly a mineral found here that has not a constant market. The transportation facilities offered are as good as in any other place in America. There is absolutely nothing to prevent development, but lack of enterprise. I am surprised at the amount of ignorance displayed by the people, who should have a knowledge of affairs in so far as the mineral possibilities of Ontario are concerned.

"Mica is what I am principally interested in at present. I have established a mill for the treatment of it, and can work my properties at a good profit. Many offers of purchase have been made, but I prefer to retain my holdings and make what there is in them myself.

"It amuses me," continued Mrs. Bridgewood, "to hear what the people are saying of the possibilities there are and to think of what was said to me some twenty years ago when I first started in. They laughed and told me that I was only losing my money."

Mrs. Bridgewood proposes entering into the mining of mica on a much larger scale. She will shortly form a company for mining and treating mica upon rather different lines than have yet been adopted in Canada and will establish a big magazine in the central part of the district with tools and machinery necessary to get the mineral out, selling explosives and tools at cost to the farmers upon whose property the mica is in large quantities and have them mine it. All that they mine will be bought from them by this company at a fair price, and then treated and shipped to the markets of the world.

"This will be somewhat of a co-operative system," she remarked, "and will give the farmers a chance of making a great deal more money than they can ever expect, to get out of their farms by purely agriculture. They cannot do it unaided, as they are the most of them financially unable."

WILL OBSERVE THE LICENSE LAW.

License Holders of East Peterborough Will Abide by Decision of the Provincial Secretary's Department.

A meeting of the hotel keepers of East Peterborough was held at the Brennan House, Norwood, a few days ago. The meeting was called by the Inspector, Mr. J. J. Crowe, to talk over with them the matter of the enforcement of the License Act. Mr. Crowe stated that he had received a circular from the Provincial Secretary's Department stating that complaints had reached the Department that many of the Inspectors were not doing their duty in looking after the enforcement of the Act. He said that the Department was determined that the law should be enforced and had intimated plainly that any Inspector who failed to do his duty must vacate his office. Mr. Crowe said that he was determined to enforce the law, and he wished it to be thoroughly understood that he had no pets, that he would serve all alike and prosecute in every instance where sufficient proof could be found that the law had been violated.

The following agreement was then drawn up and has been signed by every license holder in East Peterborough:—

"We, the undersigned hotelkeepers of East Peterborough, hereby agree to strictly observe the provisions of the License Act of Ontario regarding the sale of intoxicating liquors between the hours of seven o'clock on Saturday night and six o'clock of the following Monday morning. And further agree that any one of us found guilty of any violation of the provisions of the said Act shall forfeit the right to our license." — Register.

At the Y.M.C.A. Convention.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 14.—An important question of policy was decided at yesterday's sessions of the thirty-fifth international convention of the Young Men's Christian Association. Those who favored taking the power of dealing with the railroads for the railroad Y. M. C. A.'s from the international committee, and placing it with the State and local committees were defeated by a large majority.

At the Y. M. C. A. Convention, Hon. George W. Ross, Premier of the Ontario Legislature, spoke during the day.

Sister of Lady Jette Buried.

Ottawa, May 14.—The funeral of Sister Marie de la Nativitie, who was for fifty years connected with the Grey Nunnery, took place yesterday morning. The deceased lady was sister of the late Hon. Rodolphe Laflamme, Minister of Justice in the Mackenzie Government, and sister of Lady Jette. Sir Louis and Lady Jette, Lady Laurier, Rodolphe Lemieux, Solicitor-General, and S. F. Lemieux, were present at the funeral service.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

The following is a part of what was said at the Wednesday evening meeting in the First Church of Christ Scientist, 378 Aylmer street, May 12th. The first speaker was a lady whom, I am informed, had previously been a trained nurse, but a little over a year ago, was healed by Christian Science treatment of nervous prostration and decline, a trouble her brother, a druggist, had died with some years ago, her child also had been healed by the same treatment, for which she was very grateful to God and to Mrs. Eddy through whom He had spoken on to this age. Another lady, a devout methodist, gave grateful testimony for the spiritual uplifting she had received through the study of the text book, "Science and Health," she laid off her glasses which she was compelled to use for eight years, and now she can see as well as ever she could.

Another lady said her boy came home from school very ill in a high fever. She just read to him from Mrs. Eddy's book and next morning he was alright. A gentleman stated he had been called on that morning to a friend who had been suddenly taken down with pneumonia. When he reached the bed side the patient was delerious and in a heavy fever. The medicine of Christian Science—the truth, as taught by Christ Jesus, was administered mentally to the patient. In half an hour he was resting quietly in sleep; in another half hour he awoke in his right mind, free from pain and knew those around him; during the afternoon was resting quietly, although sore and weak.

Another lady read a clipping from the daily paper of the healing by Christian Science of Lord Dunmore of England, after all other means had failed.

What does this all mean? The people once said after listening to Jesus: "We have seen strange things to-day." Luke 36th Chapter, 5th verse; also Acts 17, 20.

Stubborn Skin Diseases.

Nothing is more discouraging than a case of eczema or salt rheum which refuses to heal. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment, however, you soon see that new skin is forming and the sore part is becoming smaller and smaller. The itching is entirely overcome after a few applications and you are given satisfactory evidence that a continuation of the treatment will bring a thorough cure.

NEW CANADA.

Manitoba, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta contain, in round figures, 250,000,000 acres of land. About 20,000,000 acres have already been given away as free homesteads, and 50,000,000 acres is a large estimate of the lands unfit for cultivation, the lakes, rivers, and so on. This leaves 18,000,000 acres still to be settled, including, of course, the grants to the Canadian Pacific and other railways. Over and above this there is an area of 160,000,000 acres of first class ranch and grain-growing land in the unorganized district of Athabasca, embracing the Peace River country. All told, then, there are 340,000,000 acres of good land waiting for the plough and locomotive in the Northwest. To put it differently, there is sufficient to furnish 160-acre farms for 2,000,000 heads of families, representing, with five as the average size of a family, a population of ten million souls.

It is just as important, however, that the wild lands in the older provinces should be opened to colonization. Not having any such reserve, the New England States have almost ceased to be farming States and their population is increasing but slowly. Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are getting into the same condition. These old provinces have not spared themselves in their efforts to develop the West, and the West will agree that it is time they did something for themselves. Making a liberal allowance for bad lands, the area fit for cultivation which will be opened by the Grand Trunk Pacific in Quebec, New Brunswick and Ontario is large enough to provide 100-acre farms for over 1,000,000 heads of families, say 5,000,000 souls. Without the railway, this vast territory must remain a howling wilderness of no use to Canada, whilst at the same time our surplus population will continue to flow, during periods of depression, to the United States.

Which is it to be? Canadians for Canada, or Canadians obliged for lack of homes to go into exile?

Eureka in a Collision.

Ottawa, May 14.—A despatch was received at the Department of Public Works yesterday stating that the Government steamer Eureka while passing down the St. Lawrence Thursday night collided in Lake St. Francis with a barge and a Dominion Coal Company's vessel. Four compartments of the Eureka were stove in, and other injuries were sustained, but no one was injured. Hon. James Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, was aboard the Eureka making an inspection of the canal.

An Open Letter.

From the Chapin, S. C., News: Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhoea, and so severe were the pains that we called in a physician, who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand, gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. C. Bailey, Editor. ALIENS IN CANADA

Sir William Mulock's Correspondence With Mr. Hays.

ANENT THEIR EMPLOYMENT

Engineers on Grand Trunk Pacific Surveys—Sir William Takes a Firm Stand For Canadian Labor—Reply to Mr. Clarke's Criticism — National Telephone System—Municipalities Could Not Agree.

Ottawa, May 14.—A lively debate marked the end of the week's work in the House of Commons on the employment of aliens in the survey work on the Grand Trunk Pacific yesterday. A reference was made to the matter in the afternoon, and the Premier quoted Mr. Hays' statement to him, that 96 per cent. of the employes were Canadians or British subjects, and only 3½ per cent. Americans. Last evening Sir William Mulock read a very interesting batch of correspondence between himself, as Minister of Labor, and Mr. Hays of the Grand Trunk. In these letters he voiced the complaints of the Institute of Amalgamated Engineers and demanded an explanation from the company. Mr. Hays replied in a general way at first, and in the second instance said it was not possible without much delay to get the information asked for. The Minister of Labor replied yesterday to this letter, complaining that the company had not shown sufficient industry, and declaring that the reply was not satisfactory. Sir William added, for the information of the House, that the Government proposed to get the information in other ways if the company would not furnish it. The Government's attitude was to secure the work for Canadians so long as Canadians were available. If it were necessary to do so, the alien labor law would be amended to make it even stronger than the American law, which originally gave rise to it. The employment of one man was as much a violation of the spirit of the law as many men. The Opposition, led by Mr. E. F. Clarke, took the ground that the Government should have taken the matter up before now, and not confine their efforts to writing a few letters. The balance of the day was spent in discussing the railway bill in committee and slight progress was made.

A number of private bills were introduced.

One Rule of Navigation.

Hon. Mr. Prefontaine introduced a bill respecting the navigation of Canadian waters, which, he explained, is intended to remove the difficulties in connection with conflicting rules of navigation observed by Canadian and United States mariners. After fully considering the matter the Canadian Marine Association had concluded it would be better to have one rule, and were willing now to adopt the United States rules. The bill had for its object the adoption of uniform rules.

National Telephone System.

Upon the orders of the day being called, Mr. W. F. Maclean moved the adjournment of the House, in order to call the attention of the Government to the advantage of nationalizing the telephone and telegraph services of the country.

He complained that the Minister of Justice had not fulfilled his promise to bring in a bill providing for the nationalization of telephones, and promised to bring the matter up again as an amendment to the motion to go into supply.

Mr. Fitzpatrick asked when he had made any such promise.

Mr. Maclean said the promise had been to introduce a measure regulating the telephone and telegraph systems, and such a bill would necessarily include such a provision.

Municipalities Could Not Agree.

Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that in 1902 he had introduced bills, which were held over for consultation with the Union of Municipalities, with the result that when the representatives of the municipalities met no two Mayors could agree as to what course ought to be pursued, and the result was that nothing was done.

Dr. Sproule supported the nationalization of telephones and telegraphs.

Transcontinental Railway.

The motion to adjourn was lost, and the House went into committee on the National Transcontinental Railway Bill.

Mr. Fitzpatrick moved an amendment declaring that the G. T. R. Company and their directors have been, since March 8, 1904, entitled and authorized to use the credit and the stock of the G.T.R. for the purpose of providing the deposit of $5,000,000 required by the bill. The amendment was allowed to stand for consideration.

An amendment suggested by Mr. Borden was accepted by Mr. Fitzpatrick, making the powers conferred upon the Grand Trunk Railway by this act subject to and in accordance with the provisions of the act of last session.

After the debate on alien workers in Canada, at 12.35 the committee reported progress and the House adjourned.

Want Provincial Control.

Ottawa, May 14.—Yesterday morning a deputation presented a largely-signed petition to the Government, requesting legislation enacting that electric railways holding Dominion charters should be subjected to provincial legislation, with the special object of enabling the provincial authorities to control the operation of such lines, so far as Sunday is concerned. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick Sir William Mulock, Hon. William Paterson and Hon. C. S. Hyman were present. The Premier promised consideration.

HOW A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN ESCAPED SPRING CATARRH BY USE OF PE-RU-NA.

Nothing Robs One of Strength Like Spring Catarrh--Spring Fever Is Spring Catarrh.

MISS HELEN WHITMAN.

Miss Helen Whitman, 308½ Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"There is nothing like Peruna for that tired feeling, which gives you no ambition for work or play. After a prolonged illness, about a year ago I felt unable to regain my health, but four bottles of Peruna made a wonderful change and restored me to perfect health. As long as you keep your blood in good condition you are all right, and Peruna seems to fill the veins with pure, healthful blood. I thoroughly endorse it."

MISS HELEN WHITMAN.

Have you got nerves? Well, you ought to have nerves. But they ought to be strong nerves, good nerves. Does your hand tremble? You are living too fast. Does your heart flutter at times? You had better call a halt. Americans live too fast. They crowd too much into a single day. They have too little leisure. The hospitals and insane asylums are filling up. The quiet, pastoral scenes of yore are becoming rare. It's time that we quit this sort of business.

How to Get Strong Nerves.

First, repair the injury already done to your nerves. The way to do this is to do exactly as did Mattie B. Curtis, Secretary of Legion of Loyal Women, Hotel Salem, Boston, Mass. She said in a recent letter: "I suffered for over a year with general weakness and debility manifested in severe headache and backache. I took four bottles of Peruna, and for two months have been entirely free from these maladies."

Nervous Prostration.

Thousands of cases might be quoted in which Peruna has been used to rescue people from the perdition of deranged nerves, and put them on the good, solid foundation of health. The County Auditor of Erie county, New York, Hon. John W. Neff, in a recent letter written at Buffalo, New York, stated: "I was persuaded by a friend to try a bottle of your great nerve tonic, Peruna, and the results were so gratifying that I am more than pleased to recommend it."

A Spring Tonic.

Almost everybody needs a tonic in the spring. Something to brace the nerves, invigorate the brain and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question. Everyone who has tried it has had the same experience as Mrs. D. W. Timberlake, of Lynchburg, Va., who, in a recent letter, made use of the following words: "I always take a dose of Peruna after business hours, as it is a great thing for the nerves. There is no better spring tonic, and I have used about all of them."

Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the best time to treat catarrh. Nature renews herself every spring. The system is rejuvenated by spring weather. This renders medicines more effective. A short course of Peruna, assisted by the balmy air of spring, will cure old, stubborn cases of catarrh that have resisted treatment for years. Everybody should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book on catarrh. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Lulu Larmer, Stoughton, Wis., says:

"For two years I suffered with nervous trouble and stomach disorders until it seemed that there was nothing to me but a bundle of nerves. I was very irritable, could not sleep, rest or compose myself, and was certainly unfit to take care of a household. I took nerve tonics and pills without benefit. When I began taking Peruna I grew steadily better, my nerves grew stronger, my rest was no longer fitful, and to-day I consider myself in perfect health and strength. My recovery was slow but sure, but I persevered and was rewarded by perfect health."—Mrs. Lulu Larmer.

Mrs. Lulu Larmer.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Transvaal Not Mentioned.

London, May 14.—The Anglo-Chinese Labor Convention was signed by Foreign Minister Lansdowne and the Chinese minister at the Foreign Office yesterday afternoon. The convention applies to all British possessions. The word "Transvaal" is not mentioned.

Not in Westminster.

London, May 14.—Sir Henry M. Stanley will not be buried in Westminster Abbey. A memorial service will be held there on the day of the funeral, May 17.

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough." This remedy keeps the cough loose, lessens the severity and frequency of the coughing spells and counteracts any tendency towards pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

The Dazzler Coin

The 25 cent Dazzler Coin, issued by Mr. W. Morgan has at last returned. The person who had the coin was a Mr. Irwin, a farmer, who did not appreciate the value of his possession until his attention was called to it by a neighbour. He had rather an extraordinary experience in keeping the coin until he could get to town, in fact he thought it had been lost for two weeks. He eventually found it however, and immediately came to Peterborough with the valuable piece of money, and took it to Mr. Morgan, with this remark: "I've got your 25 cent piece with the 'sprinkler' stamped on it." After ascertaining that it was the proper coin, Mr. Morgan gave him the $2.00 for it, and it will again be put into circulation.

ENTERTAINMENT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

Sheriff Hall's Address in the Y. M. C. A. Last Evening

Was Very Enjoyable—Ably Assisted by Vocal Soloists—Proceeds in Aid of the Children's Aid Society.

A large audience gathered in the Y.M.C.A. Assembly Hall, the occasion being the entertainment in aid of the sick children's fund, of the Children's Aid Society in town. Such a worthy object was one which would at any time receive hearty support, but the programme of last evening was of a highly attractive nature, the address upon "An Evening With the Poets," by Sheriff Hall being very instructive and enjoyable while the musical portion of the evening was also of a very pleasing character. The proceeds were large and will assist materially in the promotion of the interests of the Society.

Rev. Dr. Torrance was chairman and in introducing the speaker, he referred to him as one of whom Peterborough should be proud and he doubted if any other town in the province had a Sheriff who could deal with the subject of "Poets" as he felt assured Mr. Hall would deal with it.

Sheriff Hall spoke briefly of the praise-worthy work of the Children's Aid Society, referring to the extent and importance of the work. The Society was splendidly officered and had a model agent in Mr. Geo. Cochrane. The care which neglected children receive at the present time was far different from that of previous years and the speaker read a poem showing the condition of affairs fifty years ago.

In dealing with the subject of poetry generally, Sheriff Hall gave a few definitions of the word poetry, stating that there was something in poetry which we cannot analyse but its effects are felt by all. Poetry was a revelation showing to us life and the poet reflects life in all its largeness, beauty and loveliness, and eliminates what is base or narrow in our lives. It shows life in its variety and true character, and helps us learn lessons regarding ourselves. The Sheriff spoke of the qualities which constitute a great poet, these fame was not as much in what he said, but in the manner of saying it. He takes a common every day circumstance, the scenes and scenes of which we are perfectly familiar with, and with our common language puts them together in a manner peculiar to himself and in a manner which delights all who read his poems.

The speaker wished to refer to a few poets whose works stand out prominently in the history of English literature. These were Chaucer, Spencer, Shakspere, Milton, Wordsworth, Burns and Tennyson. Chaucer wrote in a transitional period, over 300 years ago, when French was the ruling language spoken in England. Latin was spoken by the learned and by churchmen; French was the language of the court, and the fashionable world, while English was the language of the common people. Chaucer, although well versed in Latin and French, chose to write in the language of the people. He was distinguished by the variety of his poems, and by his wise, thoughtful and always genial, disposition. At this time, England, though her soldiers were covering themselves with glorious but futile victories, was probably at her lowest state, having just been visited by the dreadful plague. Chaucer deals with the misery of the poor and the fortunes of the well-to-do. The whole country was corrupt, from the King down, including the church, state, society, and Chaucer was one of the few exceptions who were not corrupted by their surroundings. In connection with Chaucer, Sheriff Hall referred to the Canterbury Tales, which gave some idea of the life led by the English people at that time.

During the Wars of the Roses, no poems were written, because of the dangerous condition of the times, but after a period of 100 years subsequent to Chaucer's death, Spencer wrote his "Faerie Queen," which was at once received with popular favour, and from the time of Spencer the poetry-writing of England continued without a break. The speaker, in reference to Shakspere and Milton, read a few extracts from well known critics, showing the high regard in which the writings of these famous men were held and are still held.

Between the death of Milton and the appearance in the poetic world of Wordsworth, poetry in England was at a low ebb and external nature was absent almost completely from the writings. But there was a change at the end of the 18th century, when Burns, Cowper and others began to become famous writers. Wordsworth was the chief of those of his time as a poet preeminently of nature, and it seemed as though nature breathed through him.

"Bobby" Burns held a place in the hearts of his countrymen such as no other poet has ever done in any country. Burns represented the most of what was best and purest in life, and the sweetest in its surroundings. He possessed a sympathy with nature, but what he gave in his writings was only an indication of what he might have given.

The speaker referred briefly to the works of Tennyson, but had to curtail his remarks, owing to the advanced stage of the night. His address was a thoughtful and clever one, showing him to be fully competent to deal with such a subject, and his remarks were highly appreciated.

Previous to the address Miss Myrtle Kline of Lakefield, sang the "Staccato Polka." This young lady possesses a remarkably clear and sweet soprano voice of fine range and quality and gives promise of developing into a soprano soloist of more than ordinary ability. Her singing was enthusiastically received, and she responded with an encore. Mr. R. N. Jolliffe sang "Island of Dreams," and responded to an encore. After the address, Miss Helen Davies sang in beautiful voice, and with warmth of expression, "Lovely Spring," and was heartily encored. Mr. J. Laurance, as usual, sang in delightful fashion, his number being "Mary of Argyle," which was rendered with artistic taste. He was recalled and responded to the encore.

The accompanists were Mrs. W. J. Morrow, who played for her pupils, Miss Kline and Mr. Jolliffe; Mrs. Mowat and Miss Davies.

The evening was in every way a most delightful one and the promoters of the affair may well feel gratified with its success.

INTERESTING ADDRESS AT CHARLOTTE STREET GUILD.

Dr. Morrison Spoke to a Large Turnout of Members Last Evening.

The Charlotte street Young Men's Guild held a most interesting meeting in the school room last evening. There was a large turn out of members to hear an address by Dr. Morrison upon the subject, "How young men should treat their fellows." All young men exert an influence on others either of a helpful or a hurtful nature, said the speaker, and the most subtle is the unconscious influence. Everyone should have an aim and ambition in life and should have set before him a high ideal which he should seek to reach. It may take years to do this, but if the effort be an earnest and determined one, success will eventually crown such efforts. There were often complaints that institutions were not doing all they should for the betterment of the young, but such complainants as a general thing stand aside and do nothing. It is far better to help to make things right and be workers than to stand aside and grumble. By doing good, we elevate ourselves and benefit others. A determined effort should be made to overcome wrong that obstacles may be removed which would prove stumbling blocks in the pathway of many. Christ should be taken as the ideal and we should be imitators of Him. We should strive to be men who will scorn to do wrong, always remembering that there is no place for nonentities and that there is a great sphere for men of knowledge. The opportunities for increasing in knowledge are many and those opportunities should not be wasted but improved in order that we may become increasingly useful. Always guard against extravagance and keep your credit good, was the advice of the speaker before closing.

The address was of a highly interesting and instructive nature and was highly appreciated by the Guild.

'LUNGE FISHING IN RICE LAKE.

The Impression is That the Close Season Will End on June 1st.

The many hundreds of local fishermen, as well as an equally, if not larger number of prospective fishermen from other points, are considerably concerned just now in the new regulations enacted in the Legislature in respect to fishing regulations. The Examiner has received numerous enquiries recently from fishermen, asking if the new regulations fixing the close season for maskinonge on Rice Lake were to be enforced this year. Previous to this year the season opened in Rice Lake on June 1st, 15 days earlier than in other waters, the reason for this being that if the season did not open until June 15th the growth of rice on the lake would be such as to seriously interfere with trawling. In view of this fact the Fishery Department allowed 'lunge to be caught after June 1st. By the new regulations the close season extends to July 1st, in the case of Rice Lake, one month later than usual, and in other waters, 15 days later.

It is now learned from the Fishery Department Toronto, that correspondence is being carried on between the Deputy Commissioner and Ottawa, on this matter, and the Department is of the opinion that the regulation will not be insisted upon, this year, but at any rate they do not think the close season will be extended over June 1st. In view of the fact that there are some matters still to be adjusted between the Dominion and Provincial authorities, a positive announcement is impossible, but it is believed that fishing in Rice Lake this year, will be allowed after June 1st.

This will be welcome news to anglers, since many are delaying preparations for the fishing season pending the decision of the Department in this matter, and the belief that fishing this year may be conducted as usual will bring gladness to many piscatorial artists.

SEVENTY DOLLARS NETTED FOR SICK CHILDREN'S FUND

The Material Outcome of Last Night's Charity Concert.

The result of the entertainment last night in the interests of the Sick Children's Fund of the local Children's Aid Society, was to add seventy solid dollars to the bank account of the society. In this connection it is proper to recognise the good services of those who contributed to this result. Foremost should be mentioned the excellent work of the efficient agent of the Society, Mr. George Cochrane, who pushed the sale of tickets with as much success as zeal. Sheriff Hall comes in as a good second, and the thanks of the Society are due, and are hereby tendered to those others who contributed to the excellent musical programme of last night.

GOOD NEWS BUT STILL NO NEWS.

"I want to give you a bit of news", said a prominent and jubilant Smith agriculturist, conveniently called a farmer, who dropped into the Examiner sanctum this morning.

"Yes? Let's have it."

"Well, the farmers are nearly done seeding and their grain is growing, and this glorious rain is worth a million dollars a township, more or less."

Another honest farmer,—there are a few farmers not honest, but they are fortunately dead—was met in the street this morning, his face glowing—

"Have you finished seeding?"

"Yes, b'gosh finished last night and now with this great rain, I can lie abed nights and hear the grain grow."

The Kidney Pill

HELD BY A HAIR

By Elliot Walker

....Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure....

When Happy was ushered into this world of light and shadow John Mollett consulted Sextus Sears regarding a suitable title for the little stranger.

Mr. Sears was the village authority on Christian names, being addicted to a superficial study of classic literature. Having afflicted seven of his own hopefuls with appellations calculated to attract attention (and they had), his services were quite frequently in demand.

So he at once decided upon Hypatia as eminently attractive to the ear, and Mr. Mollett ambled homeward, much pleased. Patience, his wife, welcomed this relief from responsibility with becoming gratitude. Hypatia, of course, had as yet no words to express a sense of the honor thrust upon her. As soon as she began to babble, though, "Happy" was the best she could make of it. Thereafter Happy Mollett obtained, even Mr. Sears making no objection.

Now she was twenty, round and rosy, and laughed nearly all the time, barring church services, slumber and funerals.

Very amused blue eyes had Happy, dimples and a tangle of sunny hair, one thread of the latter being sufficient to bear the sword which literally hung suspended over the head of Damocles Sears, fourth son of Sextus.

Damocles, whose common sobriquet among jocular youths of his acquaintance may be better imagined than written, had suffered for two years in a bashful state of suspense, longing, yet not daring, to chance the severance of cordial friendship by a declaration of his consuming passion.

He knew Happy would laugh. That could not be borne. No; it were best to wait, pine and grow thin.

Miss Mollett observed this, smiled broadly and mentally dubbed the unfortunate a fool. Possibly a passing thought of his nickname broadened the smile. She herself always addressed this bashful lover as Mr. Sears. This was proper and dignified, but had she once departed from grace Damocles would have greeted it as a step in the direction of deliverance.

He had had many chances, being high in the mirthful affections of Happy, who enjoyed his quiet ways and rare bursts of levity, deeming herself silly with her well nigh uncontrollable merriment. Knowing naught of this, the disconsolate lover knew only that he wanted her, and she seemed far removed. He could afford to marry. Sextus named, brought up and established his boys with mechanical justice, and it was now the turn of Damocles. The thrifty old man had already a tidy farm for him when he "got ready."

Happy was fully aware of all this. She had no ambition beyond her familiar surroundings, plenty of work and a kind husband. To be a rolly poly old grandma was her ultimate view. Then she could sit and knit, with cats and children about, laughing at the past, cheery in the present, beloved by all, and regard her inevitable end with the resignation of a useful life.

After all, she guessed Damocles Sears was the one, if only he would brace up. If not, well, she should not wait too long. There were plenty of others. "Perhaps," Happy giggled, "if she could accidentally have something happen maybe he might see how she felt about it. No need of his acting afraid to sit up with her. Now, if he would only come in tonight, with her parents quite ready for bed. It was lovely on the bench under the maple trees—a moon too. Was that his step—yes—and going by."

"Mr. Sears," called Happy. "Is that you?"

"Thought the folks were going to bed," mumbled Damocles, coming in haltingly, "and of course"—

"And of course you wouldn't dare to visit with me out here in the moonlight," chuckled Miss Mollett. "Oh, come on in and sit with me. I was just thinking about you."

"And laughing, I'll bet," returned her lover tremulously. But he sat down on the end of the settee, with a faint sidelong glance of admiration.

"Well, I was a little bit. You're so funny. Move up here by me, and I'll tell you."

Mr. Sears drew a long breath and hitched along slowly.

"Nearer," said the girl; "right up here in the shade. I don't want every one to see us. Father and mother will be peekin' out, listenin'. If they don't call me in we can sit here ever so long, and I never get a chance to talk with you lately. Seems to me you have mighty little to tell me about what is going on with your folks and what you hear down at the village nowndays."

Damocles gave a tiny grunt of apology, his heart beating rapidly as his arm touched her plump one. "Haven't been feelin' much like talkin' to any one," he muttered. "I'm sort of cross this spring—and—and—wore out. Laugh if you want to. What was it?"

Happy drew close, her lips to his ear. "I was only smiling about something," she whispered.

"Well, what?"

"Just wonderin' what you would say if some day I should unexpectedly call out when you were going by, 'Hello'— Oh, I guess I won't say it—I wouldn't, of course—your nickname, you know."

"I wish to gracious you would," said Damocles savagely. "Anything's better than Mr. Sears from you, Happy."

He sat, stilled by his temerity, waiting for an outburst of mirth, but none came. Only a queer silence. Had he offended her? "Time I went," he groaned. "Always sayin' the wrong thing."

"My, there's a bat!" cried Happy, with a squeak of apparent fright. "Don't let him get in my hair! Has he gone?"

Her curly head was wriggling against the upper buttons of the vest of Damocles. He held it close for a second with a long quivering gasp, then released her.

"Yes, he's gone," he said kindly. "To bad to scare you so. Why, what's the matter?"

"I've got a hair caught in one of your buttons. No, I can't get it off. Ow! Can you undo it? I'm held fast, Damocles. There, I'll put my head down—so—you don't mind, do you? See if it will come loose."

The man's fingers fumbled at the golden thread. "It's off," he said hoarsely. "You can lift your head now—but—but I wish it could stay there forever."

"I wish so too," murmured the girl. "It's where I want it to rest, dear."

Where the Blame Lay.

Sternly the judge regarded the prisoner before him. He beheld a man of tender, unripe years, whose face was fair to look upon, bearing as it did every known mark of honesty. Appearances gave no reason for committing the crime, and yet the jury had decided, on first ballot, that the prisoner was guilty. In fact, the plea for the defense was very weak.

"It seems incredible," said the judge, "that a man with your connections should have stooped so low as to become a common forger. Surely some one else must have been the cause of your downfall."

"There was some one," replied the prisoner. "It is yourself, your honor."

"I?" ejaculated the judge, amazed.

"Just so. A short time ago I was a member of the graduating class in my college. You were one of the speakers at the farewell session. You may remember your words: 'The world lies ahead of you. But you must push your way steadily. I want each one of you to forge to the front; I want to soon see each occupying a prominent position in the eyes of your families and of the world.'" The prisoner paused and smiled. "I forged quicker than the others. I've gained a place before the public. And now, what next?"

"Three years," laconically said the judge. "Next case!"—New York Times.

English Battle Axes.

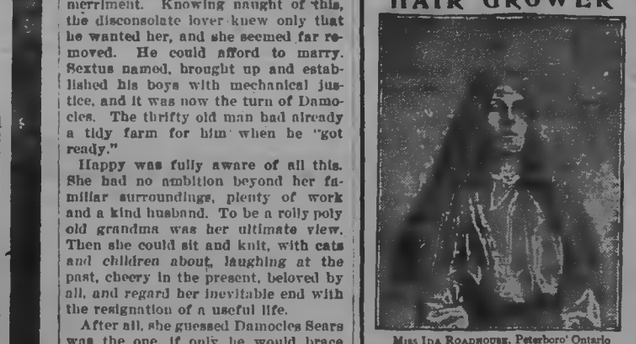
What was the great weapon used by the Englishman at Hastings? With what weapon was he armed for the most part when he dealt such deadly blows upon the Norman horsemen in the earlier part of the day? As to the answer to this question we are left in no doubt. History and tradition alike ascribe to his long resistance to one weapon, and one weapon alone, the famous Danish ax.

With one exception every single act of valor which the Englishman achieved at Hastings was wrought with the ax or the gisarme. As the Norman weapon was the lance, so the English was the ax. "The Normans," says Harold to his brother Gurth, "are good vassals, valiant on foot and on horse. They have long lances and swords, and we have sharp axes and great edged bills." A few lines further on we read that the English were armed with "hache or gisarme," "with axes and well cutting gisarmes."—Contemporary Review.

The Wise Elephant.

A gentleman once went away for a long time leaving his elephant in charge of its keeper. He asked a lady to see that the elephant had a certain amount of rice every day, and that the keeper did not retain any of it for himself. At first all was right, but soon the lady thought the rice was getting less every day, so she asked the keeper whether he gave the animal enough rice. The keeper, patting the elephant, said: "Madame, I treat my elephant like my child, and do you think I would rob my child?" The elephant seemed to understand, and with his trunk he pulled down the cloth round the keeper's waist, and a quantity of rice fell out which he had stolen.

7 Sutherland Sisters' HAIR GROWER



MISS IDA ROADHOUSE, Peterboro' Ontario

Seven Sutherland Sisters' Hair Grower and Scalp Cleaner shows results from the very first. Here is more proof that we have the greatest hair grower science ever produced.

Seven Sutherland Sisters
Dear Ladies,—Having been benefited by the use of your Hair Grower and Scalp Cleaner, I take much pleasure in recommending same. At the time of your visit to Peterboro' last October, I showed you my head, which I thought was a hopeless case, and after looking at the bald spot on my head which was then about the size of a fifty cent piece, and enlarging more every day, you advised me to try your wonderful remedy, which is worthy of being termed so. I did, and to my surprise, before I had used one of your large sized bottles of Hair Grower and only half a package of Scalp Cleaner I could see a covering of a sort of a fuzz and upon continuing to use it the scales fell off without leaving a mark of any kind. My hair now on the bald spot is about three inches long and grow more and more every day to my delight. I cannot really recommend it enough and am thankful that such a remedy came to my reach.
Yours truly, IDA ROADHOUSE,
Peterboro' Ont., Box 859.

Two sizes, Hair Grower 50c and $1.00; Scalp Cleaner 50c. The only dandruff cure. For shampooing it has no equal. At all druggists.

DENSITY OF LIQUIDS.

A Homemade Hydrometer and a Neat Little Experiment.

The instrument used for measuring the density of water or other liquids is called a hydrometer, and it is a very simple affair, consisting of a glass or metal float with a stem projecting out of the water. The hydrometer sinks deeper in light liquids than in heavy ones, and as the stem is graduated or marked off by lines like a thermometer the mark to which it sinks gives us the density of the liquid. The principle of the instrument is easy to understand. A floating body is held up or kept from sinking by the weight of the displaced liquid—that is, by the weight of a quantity of liquid equal in bulk to the submerged part of the body.

No matter in what liquid the body is placed, the weight of the displaced liquid must be the same, equal to the weight of the body itself, if the latter is to float at all; hence it will sink deeper in a light liquid than in a heavy one, because it must displace a greater bulk to make up the required weight. Of course if the liquid is too light the body will be entirely covered and will then sink to the bottom. This brings us to the very pretty and simple device by which, without using a regular graduated hydrometer, you can test the truth of the statement that water is heaviest at 39 degrees.

This device is merely a blown out eggshell, with the holes in its ends stopped with wax and weighted with a bit of wire or a coin or two. You have a vessel, preferably a tall glass jar, filled with water, which you can bring to the temperature of 39 degrees or thereabout by adding a bit of ice, then a dash of warm water and so on till you get it right, testing it all the time with a thermometer. Then adjust the weight on your egg so that it just floats with a little bit of the shell peeping out of the water. Now add cracked ice to cool the water. Very soon you will see the egg sink to the bottom of the jar.

The next thing to do, supposing that you are experimenting in a warm room, is to do nothing. The water gradually warms. When it reaches 39 degrees again up bobs the egg, but in a little while, as the water continues to grow warmer, it sinks once more. By adding more cracked ice you can repeat the experiment as often as you like.

An Amusing Trick.

Say to a person, "If you will stand on a chair in this room I can make you come down the very first time I tell you." The person will probably say you can do nothing of the sort. However, he will get on to the chair just to show you that he doesn't mean to come down directly he's told.

As soon as he is up on the chair say, "Come down." He will of course say, "I shan't do anything of the sort." Then you answer, "Very well, then; unless you wish to remain there for the rest of your life you will have to come down off that chair the first time I tell you, because I do not intend to tell you a second time."

Tomorrow.

Molly—Is this today or tomorrow? Nurse—Today, of course. Molly (disconsolately)—I don't s'pose I'll ever get the chocolate mother promised me when tomorrow came. It always seems to be today.

A Nursery Ten.

When I have cake and jam enough
For two or maybe three
I beg Louise or Grace to come
To supper here with me.
But when there isn't very much,
And yet I'd like a guest,
I'll tell you who's the nicest one,
The pleasantest and best:
It's my dear Angelina Maud,
'Cause when I move her up
In her high chair and set for her
A plate and spoon and cup
And things to eat she sits right there
With such a lovely smile
And not one bit of appetite!
And when a long, long while
Has gone and still she doesn't touch
A mouthful, then I say,
"I'll eat your share to save it!"
And she smiles and smiles away!

A Charm You Can Cultivate.

There is one charm every woman may possess, and it is a very attractive one, neatness. The plainest woman is a delight to look upon if her toilet is one of exquisite neatness in every respect. Her hair must be done up securely and not look as if it were ready to tumble around her shoulders at any moment. Her gloves must be always mended, her boots in perfect condition and never any tag ends at the bottoms of her skirts. Most men know nothing about fashion, but will notice whether a woman is neat or not, and it is the quality they most admire in woman.

Wine Stains.

Removing wine stains from tablecloths is a difficult task unless you know how to do it. Listen. Soak the affected part of the cloth in cold water for half an hour or longer. Then hold it over an empty vessel and pour through it a kettleful of scalding water, just as if you were straining something. The stain will disappear as if by magic. You need not buy a lot of trash at drug stores to ruin your cloth with. This plan was learned of the shrewdest washwoman in New York.

An Encouraging Message

I have a message of hope and good cheer, of encouragement and inspiration to every suffering woman. I have endured the torture due to female troubles and the consequent dependency and heartbreaking frame of mind almost to the point of despair, and I have been restored from this condition to a state of vigorous health, and to the happy, cheering frame of mind which accompanies physical well-being. This change has been brought about entirely by the use of ORANGE LILY.

In addition, I have had the privilege and pleasure of inducing multitudes of other suffering women to give ORANGE LILY a trial, and have received thousands of enthusiastic acknowledgements of the blessings it has brought to them. The following is a sample:

Truro, N. S., April 5, 1904.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—Your very kind letter was received yesterday. In reply to your question about my health, I am thankful to say that I am very well. As I have never given you a statement of my case you may be interested in it.

For several years I have suffered untold agony. This suffering was continuous, but I would have violent attacks every few weeks, each attack lasting several days. The first Sunday in November, I felt the pains increasing and so did not go to prayers. The rest of the family did go and soon after the forcing down pains seized me and I had to remain on the floor until their return. I was in great pain all night, and was very sick for a whole week.

Then Mrs. L. came to see me and told me of your wonderful medicine. I got my husband to send for it right away, as I was too sick to write myself. (My doctor could do nothing for me.) I have used 8 boxes of ORANGE LILY, have had three months of good rest, and am now well, never better in my life. I have not had the old pains since. I often ask my husband if it is myself that is going around and doing my own work. I can scarcely believe it. It brings tears of joy to my eyes. I could shout it to all the world. I cannot speak enough in its praise.

Your friend, MRS. E. H. F.

Receiving as I do, dozens of such reports each day, I felt impelled to make known to my suffering sisters the merits of ORANGE LILY. It differs from the other so-called remedies in that it is not taken internally. It is a strictly local treatment, and is applied directly to the affected organs. Its curative elements are absorbed into the congested tissues, expelling the stagnant foreign matter which has been irritating the membrane and oppressing the nerves, and a growing feeling of physical and mental relief is noticeable almost from the start. It is a positive, scientific remedy, and even if you use no more than the Free trial Treatment you will be very materially benefitted.

FREE TRIAL OFFER.

I want every reader of this who suffers in any way from painful monthly periods, irregularities leucorrhœa, inflammation or congestion of the womb, pains in the back, etc., to send me their addresses, and I will forward at once, without charge, 10 days' treatment. If your case is not far advanced it may entirely cure you, and in any event it will do you much good. I am so earnest in making this statement, and so positive that it is true, that I trust every sufferer who reads this notice will take advantage of my offer and get cured at home, without a doctor's bill.

MRS. F. C. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.

CREATED A SENSATION IN GALT

The Whole Country Ringing with Praises of

PSYCHINE

(PRONOUNCED SI-KEEN)

Mr Weaver, Cured two years ago, continues to spread the good news of his recovery from Grinder's

CONSUMPTION

Publicly corroborates the history of his restoration to health, as published recently by the daily press of Canada.

Doctors and specialists despaired of a cure and gave Mr. Weaver but three months to live.

MR. L. WEAVER, GALT.

Who desires to publicly confirm the history of his remarkable recovery, as published quite recently by the daily press of Canada. Mr. Weaver was as bad a case of Consumption as might well be imagined. He was employed for five years in the grinding room of James Warnock & Co's, better known as "The Axe Factory," in Galt. Here he contracted consumption from the steel-laden dust. He persisted with local physicians' treatment for over a year, also consulted a number of lung specialists. They all did their utmost to cure, but declared Mr. Weaver's an incurable case of grinder's consumption giving him but three months to live. Mr. Weaver himself, despaired of a permanent cure, as two of his brothers before him had already died of consumption.

It is but seldom that any remedy receives such strong endorsement as Psychine is receiving daily. Seldom indeed that the cured come forward voluntarily to state their case a second time so that all may be convinced of the truth. The instance herein reported from the busy town of Galt, Ont., is a typical [illegible] of what is occurring in every city, town [illegible] city-side in the broad Dominion.

[illegible] living in Galt some long ago [illegible] while the publication of it in the daily press came as a revelation.

Scores of people recently called upon Mr. Weaver to see if all that had been published was really true. Medical men evidenced a desire to see the good work wrought with Dr. Slocum's famous remedy, Psychine (Si-keen). Mr. Weaver has also been the recipient of hundreds of letters from all parts of the country enquiring as to his case.

Sad and sorrowful is the first chapter of the story told by the man whose case has excited the interest of Lung Specialists and of medical men and whose cure and complete restoration to health is the talk of Galt and the wonder of the medical profession. Such, in brief, are the opening remarks of the case of Mr. Weaver, of Galt, whose portrait appears above.

Mr. Weaver is to-day a splendid specimen of manhood and the picture of robust health. His lungs give him no more trouble. He is strong and healthy, eats and sleeps well, and feels better than he has for ten years.

Mr. Weaver's Case as given to the press, January 30th, 1904.

Dr. T. A. Slocum:—For five years I worked as a grinder in the James Warnock, better known as the Axe Factory, here. The dust from the grinding did for me what it has done for many others. It gave me "grinder's consumption." I was compelled, of course, to quit work. I persisted with two local physicians, and also consulted a number of lung specialists. Their diagnoses were all alike:—"You have Grinder's Consumption, and may possibly live three months, but you are liable to drop off at any time." This was over two years ago.

I then almost abandoned myself to what seemed my fate, my two brothers having died of consumption a few years previous. I was in an advanced stage of the disease. I was thin and weak, had night sweats, chills and fever, and a terrible cough.

I saw your advertisement of "Psychine," and I determined to try it. Through the kind advice and assistance of REV. MR. KETTLEWELL, Methodist minister in charge here at that time, I procured your treatment. The very first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking six bottles I could walk down town and even work occasionally. Have since then entirely regained my health, and work hard every day. I can eat and sleep well. I feel better to-day than I have for years. I owe my life to Psychine.

Yours truly,
LEVI WEAVER.

Mr. Weaver's second statement after the above was published.

GALT, ONT.

Dr. T. A. Slocum:—The publication of the history of my case in Toronto and Galt papers has caused quite a sensation in this town. There have been scores of people ask me if such were really the case. I have also received by mail numbers of like enquiries. Some people hardly think it possible that I was so near death's door. But I can say for certain that Psychine saved my life and I bless the day I saw Psychine advertised, and became convinced of its merits enough to try it. I have spread the good news in three counties, and shall ever continue to praise Psychine. Every word, as published January 30th, is true to the facts of the case.

Yours truly,
LEVI WEAVER.

If you suffer from Lung Trouble, La Grippe, Asthma, Throat Diseases, Pneumonia, Catarrh of the Stomach, Bronchitis, Night Sweats, Loss of Flesh or Run-down System, or diseases where a tonic is required, there is no other medicine in the wide world that will act more promptly or effectively.

PSYCHINE is pronounced SI-KEEN.

Builds New Flesh and Tissue.

Rounds Out the Form, Restores the Healthful Glow to the Complexion, and Gives New Vigor and Elasticity to Every Movement of the Body.

Loss of flesh and weight are about the surest indications that the health is being undermined by disease and that the vigor of the body is wasting away. Ordinary medicines do not seem to benefit you, because they aim at tearing down the tissues instead of building them up, as does Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

By creating new, rich blood and nerve force and instilling new energy and vitality into every organ of the body this great food cure thoroughly overcomes weakness and disease.

The tired, languid feelings of spring, the spells of headache and dizziness, the annoying irregularities of the bodily organs disappear when this preparation is used, and instead of life being a burden it becomes a joy. Discouragement and despondency give way to new hope and confidence.

As a restorative for pale, weak, thin and exhausted men, women and children there is no treatment that can be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

You can best prove this by noting your increase in weight from week to week while using it.

GAINED 25 LBS.

Miss Annie Evans, 39 Gottingen St., Halifax, N.S., writes:—"About ten years ago I became very much run down in health. I could not sleep, was very nervous and so weak that I could hardly get around. Some months ago I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and persevered in the treatment, until to-day I am pleased to say that I am completely restored to health.

"I have gained over twenty-five pounds in weight, sleep well, feel strong and well, and fully believe that I owe my present good health to the use of this medicine."

LIPTON'S TEAS

Plot For The Story

By M. J. Phillips

...Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure...

It was an ideal June morning. A chorus of bird songs aroused Cartright at sunup, and, yawning, he walked to the window. From some prehistoric ancestor, who killed his food with a stone ax while the grass was still wet, Cartright had inherited a passion for tramping through the dew. He dressed quickly and started out for a brisk walk.

Cartright was a literary free lance who was slowly winning his way. He had awakened that morning with a feeling known to all who disfigure good white paper with pen or typewriter—the desire to write and joy in the power to write. A certain great magazine editor in a kindly letter had asked Cartright for a story. His request was the magic password that admitted one, clad in purple and fine linen, to the society of the truly elect of the literary world.

But inspiration refused to come at Cartright's bidding. With an instinctive grasp of the magazine's style he had sketched the principal characters of his story. There must be two—a man and a woman. The former must be fine and sincere and honorable, a gentleman in every respect, who had made a place in the world by his own efforts. The girl must be sweet and true, with softly curling hair and wide, frank, innocent blue eyes. The characters must be ideal companions, warm friends, but not lovers. Cruel circumstances and their own ideals of honor must send them through the world apart, even though their very souls, as if alone in the wilderness, cried each unto the other.

He could get no further. Plan as he would, Cartright could find no reason to separate the children of his brain. The characters became almost as real to him as living personages. A regret grew up within him at the necessity of parting them, but to preserve the value of the story separation was inevitable.

He had been mistaken in his feeling that morning that the plot was about to disclose itself, for after breakfast it still eluded him. He could not think effectively in his study. The free, wind swept porch and his easy chair and pipe were not the solaces and aids to thought he usually found them. In despair he seized a fishing rod and started for the river, a half mile away.

There, sprawled on a grassy bank, the noon sunshine filtering through the trees and dappling the velvety carpet about him, he set himself anew to his task. Situation after situation, plot on plot, passed through his brain, each to be rejected in turn as impracticable. At the end of an hour the obstinate characters were still together and happy in their companionship.

A log bridge for the accommodation of the rare pedestrians and the rarer vehicles crossed the stream a few yards from where he lay. Squirrels chattered in the trees, birds flitted overhead. Only a faint hum from the bustling little city reached him. It was an ideal spot.

A splash in the water and a little cry awakened Cartright from the reverie in which he had fallen. A girl was standing on the bridge. Her sailor hat had blown into the river and was floating lazily toward him. The fishing rod was brought into requisition, and a moment later, bowing, he was presenting the dripping hat to its owner.

She was the girl of his story personified. He had imagined his heroine with wavy hair curled softly about her temples, just as this young lady's did. She was very young, and in her wide blue eyes were the fearlessness of a child and the soul of a woman. Her lips were scarlet, and in the creamy cheeks the color came and went. In slight details perhaps she was different. Yet so quickly did his brain child merge with the charming personality before him that on the instant they became one. To Cartright thereafter she was the "girl of the story."

A single glance and she knew him for a gentleman. Soon they were seated side by side talking like old friends.

He discovered that her name was Ruth Broadhurst and that she was visiting at Banker Lawton's. Miss Broadhurst knew of John Cartright—had read some of his stories. The young man's character and achievements had been highly spoken of by the Lawtons, and although the irregularity of their meeting at first troubled her the lack of a formal introduction soon ceased to make itself felt.

That will ever be a golden afternoon in Cartright's memory. At times he read aloud from the book of poems with which Miss Broadhurst had planned to while away an hour alone by the river. More often they chatted of many things—plays, books, mutual acquaintances, themselves. And then long silences would fall—silence more eloquent than words—in which each seemed to read the other's unspoken thought. It was wonderful to the girl, this perfect sympathy and companionship with a man whom she had not seen until a few hours before. Two little clouds occasionally darkened Cartright's sunshine. He was plighted to another, and on Miss Broadhurst's slender, pink tipped third finger a splendid diamond flashed. He banished these thoughts whenever they came. "This one afternoon shall be ours," he said to himself.

Quite naturally he fell to talking of his story and the plot that would not come. "The man is an athlete, a splendid fellow in every way. Him I have modeled after Philip Lotridge, a friend of mine at college. He has won his way up from the ranks, has my hero, and he is worthy of any woman living, even the one my imagination has created for him. He has been abroad, and I've fitted him up with some of the experiences I had myself while reporting on a New York paper. But he is doomed to lose her. The Turks say, you know, 'He that has many horses hath no wives.' I've endowed him with money and graces of body and mind, but I cannot give him the girl he loves.

"And she, Miss Broadhurst, if I can picture her as I see her, should make me famous. I thought one so sweet and charming could not exist until I saw you, and you are her counterpart."

It was no idle compliment, no silly attempt at flirtation. Swiftly the girl searched Cartright's mind and found him sincere. "Thank you, Mr. Cartright," she said simply, yet she colored with pleasure.

"It may seem queer," he continued, "but there is a feeling, too strong to be overcome, that I must part them. I would give all I have could they but marry, yet they cannot. It is what I call my literary conscience. Often I know that my stories would sell better were I to change in some cases even a single paragraph, but I never do it."

His companion nodded. "I know the feeling. When I was a little girl my mother gave me the task of sweeping the parlor. I did not like it, and at first I did it hurriedly, leaving unswept the places I thought would not be discovered. When mother came to inspect the room her tone of mingled reproof and surprise filled me with shame when she said, 'And my Ruth did not sweep behind the door!' That was all, yet whenever I am tempted to shirk or do anything which is not right I think 'I must sweep behind the door.'"

Her naive simplicity delighted Cartright, and he led her to talk of her home town, her friends and her daily occupations. Yet there was never a word of the ring nor the man who had placed it upon her finger, and Cartright respected the fine delicacy of her nature.

Everything must come to an end, and this incomparable day was drawing to a close. With a start of surprise the girl noted the slanting sun. "I had no idea it was so late," she said. "How the time has flown."

Cartright helped her to her feet, every nerve thrilling at the touch of her little hand.

He held it between his own, and bent impetuously toward her. "Need we say goodby?" he said. "May I not call tonight?"

She raised her eyes to his. They were both glad and troubled at his words, yet within their depths was an appeal he could not mistake—an appeal to his chivalry. "It must be goodby," she said, and then, "I am to be married in September."

He dropped her hand. "And so am I," he replied gloomily. "I suppose after the 12th of September I must not even think of you any more."

"Wednesday, the 12th? Why, that is my wedding day."

"And mine."

Miss Broadhurst smiled as she turned away. "Mr. Cartright, there is the plot for your story."

"Need it be written?" he asked passionately, pleadingly. "That story is so sad; the saddest I have ever known."

The sweet lips were tremulous, but the eyes were brave and steady now. "It must be written," she said softly. "Your heroine was true and sweet. Help her to 'sweep behind the door,' to remain true to herself and her promise. And, oh, believe me, though they parted, those two in the story, she always remembered him, and," breathlessly, "was sorry, perhaps, that—that they were not to be together, nor even see each other again."

"And he—the man in the story—was more than sorry. He would have said much, yet honor forbade. She gave him a rose which he always kept. And this is the end of the story."

The girl unpinned a rose at her breast. She kissed it and handed it to Cartright, and went her way unseeingly, for her eyes were filled with tears. She turned once and looked back. He stood upon the spot where they had parted. The rose he held to his lips.

Art Criticism.

Through his half closed hand the man with the eyeglasses and the high forehead was studying a picture at the art store.

"I wonder what the title of this painting is," he said. "It is a magnificent work of—oh, yes; here is the name, written rather indistinctly at the bottom—'Following the Hero.' It represents, you perceive, a lot of cattle—Texas cattle, I should judge from their appearance. At their head is a splendid specimen of the breed, evidently the victor in many a hard fought battle on his native plains. Observe the grand sweep of his horns as he holds his head erect and marches along in the pride of his great strength. See the merely secondary and subordinate position allotted to what may be called the human element in the composition, the insignificant figure of the man in the background, presumably a hireling. The cattle pay no attention to him. They are 'Following the Hero,' the majestic leader in front of him, whose proud"—

"But, Mr. Guyfus," interposed one of the young women, "here is the name of the picture in the catalogue—'No. 227. Following the Herd.'"

"Er—so it is. Let us look at this charming bit of still life a little farther along."—Chicago Tribune.

A Yukon Exhibit.

The Yukon is becoming conscious of its attractions, and already appreciates the value of advertising. The Dawson News says: Yukon Territory is entitled to space in the Dominion grant at St. Louis for an exhibit. The idea to have an exhibit of Yukon Territory products at the World's Fair at St. Louis is believed by Elgin Schoff, one of the promoters, to be one of the best schemes ever evolved for the advertising of the Yukon, and he feels that the Dominion Government certainly will lend its aid.

"The Yukon, I estimate, can make a creditable showing with less than $50,000. Perhaps $15,000 would make a fine exhibit.

"The question of money for the Yukon Territory exhibit will be taken up with the Dominion Government soon. The Yukon Horticultural Society has delegated me to confer with Ottawa on the matter. I may go to Ottawa. At any rate, I shall press the matter, and hope for success.

"Many fine exhibits of grains, grasses, potatoes and fruits raised in the Yukon, specimens of gold from different creeks, woods, coal, mammoth and other prehistoric bones, Indian collections and the like will help to make the exhibit interesting."

Town Trees.

Public interest in tree planting increases as a result of the missionary work done by civic organizations. Information supplied for taking care of and preserving trees has shown o householders and property owners how they may invest little money in this way and derive lasting benefits of several kinds. It is unnecessary to illustrate these benefits. Every one who has seen a grove or a tree, or a tree-grit avenue, appreciates the advantages which are obtainable by adding the beauties of nature to the artificial charms of the town. A town without trees is dull and uninviting.

The Submarine Boat.

One of the earliest suggestions of the submarine was that of a British smuggler, Johnson, who invented a boat that was to travel under or above water. With this vessel he proposed to carry Napoleon from St. Helena, but the emperor died while the boat was under construction. The adherents of the emperor promised Johnson $200,000 on the day the boat was ready to start and an immense sum if it proved successful. Some years later Johnson built a boat with which he experimented in the Thames for the British admiralty. In this connection it may be mentioned that one of Napoleon's marshals, Massena, began life as a smuggler on a large scale, and Commodore Thurot of the French navy of that time obtained his knowledge of the British coasts while in the employ of a smuggler.

Glass Eyes.

The earliest notice of artificial eyes I am acquainted with occurs in a very rare work by the French surgeon Ambrose Pare, entitled "La Methode Curative des Playes et Fractures de la Teste Humaine," Paris, 1561. Pare gives a description and figures of artificial eyes to be worn in cases where the eyeball has given way and all the humors have escaped. They are to be segments of a hollow sphere, made of gold, coated with enamel painted in natural colors. With the exception of the gold, they are exactly like the eyes in use at the present time, which are made wholly of glass.—Notes and Queries.

Swimming Boards.

Sandwich swimming boards take their name from the fact that they are used in the Sandwich Islands, and not from their shape, as might be imagined. The contrivance is simply a large coffin shaped board, usually about five feet in length and from one to two feet in width. It is used especially for passing through the surf. In most cases the islands of the Sandwich group are of coral formation and surrounded by dangerous reefs, which make it extremely dangerous to land. By clinging to his swimming board, however, the native has the advantage of being able to use all his strength in propelling himself forward.

Inherited.

"What a cool and indifferent air Miss Frappay has! She acts just as if she didn't know that anybody was looking at her."

"Yes; she inherits that. Her mother used to bake pancakes in the window of a quick lunch restaurant."

A Man is just as old as he feels no matter how many years he has lived

Old Age is a relative term.

It is generally supposed that the body becomes weaker and more worn out as years go on, and while this is true, it is not this fact which makes a person old.

The real cause of "oldness" is lack of vigor and vitality, of exuberant joy in living, of spirit and courage.

These are the elements which set Old Age at defiance and make a man laugh at the thought of becoming decrepit and nerveless, shuffling and snuffling his existence from bed to hearthstone, and back from hearthstone to bed, until he totters into the grave.

This is not living—it is simply vegetating. And how many who are young in years may well envy many who are called "old" because they have not their vigor of body or enjoyment of life.

The secret of youth is not in some magic elixir, but in the right relation of the parts of the body to each other.

The normal working of the organs and nerves prevents the oncoming of abnormal conditions of disease, and a man may have life pulsating in every tissue and every blood-drop every moment while he is on earth.

ANTI-PILL WINS THE VICTORY.

It has been found that improperly digested food is the cause of nearly all diseases.

If a mass of half-digested food were put in a vessel and left alone, in less than ten hours it would ferment and become decomposed. The air around would become poisoned and intolerable.

This is exactly what happens when food is taken into the stomach and not properly digested or dissolved. The Gastric Juice (which is to dissolve it), from some cause or other, may be insufficient or weak, and the result shows in different kinds of disorders developing, according to the temperament or previous condition of the person.

Thus Biliousness, Constipation, Liver and Kidney troubles, to say nothing of the various Nerve complaints, are directly due to this unnatural condition of the stomach.

Anti-Pill corrects all this, promoting a healthy secretion of Gastric Juice, and thus attacks the Ridge-Pole of disease.

Use Anti-Pill for Deranged Appetite, Fullness and Weight in the Stomach after eating, Dizziness, Headache, Easily tired, Fagged, Failing Strength, Sleeplessness, Gas in Stomach, Drowsiness and Mental Inactivity, Pain in Back, Hip and Loins, Back Ache, Heart Palpitation, Breath Heavy and Offensive, Urine loaded with Sediment, Biliousness, Dyspepsia and Constipation.

It Worked Like a Charm—James Dickinson, proprietor of the Savoy, leading hotel at Niagara Falls, Ont., says: "Anti-Pill is the best medicine that ever came my way. It gave me prompt relief from the worst kind of stomach trouble that has bothered me for a long time; frequently the attacks would be severe and prostrating. I have had no trouble since using Anti-Pill."

Nothing to Equal Anti-Pill—"Three years ago my lower parts were partially paralyzed, caused by a rock falling on the small of my back. Since then my bowels have not moved naturally. I tried everything that myself and the doctors could think of, from strychnine to all kinds of physics.

"I tried Anti-Pill, and wish to say that I have never had anything that equals them. They are easy and painless, and caused no bad symptoms in my case whatever."—MR. WILLIAM L. WELLS, Creighton, Mo.

WATER PURITY

Pure, hard water is the most important ingredient in ale.

Water used in Carling's Ale is taken from a series of springs with solid rock bottoms at depths of more than 1000 feet, and is conducted to a stone-paved reservoir.

Is entirely free from acid or alkaline and any kind of impurity.

Ask for Carling's Ale — accept no other, because no other is quite so good.

Toothsome Boiled Ham.

Soak ham weighing twelve or fourteen pounds over night. Next morning scrape off all dirt and wipe thoroughly dry. Make a paste of flour and water just stiff enough to roll nicely. Have it fully three-quarters of an inch thick and shape of underside of ham. Lay the ham on it. Have ready the upper crust and join around the sides, just as you would a pie crust.

Lay ham, with its paste shell, in baking pan and bake in moderate oven for four hours. If it bursts during baking time cover hole with piece of paste, having some in readiness. Make two hours, then turn it over to finish baking. Break the crust with a hatchet when done and take off the skin. This is fit for the table of a king, and you will never again boil a ham.

SATURDAY INTERVIEWS ON CHURCH UNION.

Mr. D. W. Dumble Strongly in Favour of the Movement.

All Division of the Church a Misfortune —Hinderance to Work Among the Heathen.

Each Saturday the Examiner publishes an interview on the question of Church Union, a subject which is claiming considerable attention just now from prominent ministers and laymen. To-day Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., gave his views on the subject to the Examiner, in an interview, in which he said:—

"Very early in the Christian church schism and dissension entered. Paul lamented it, and sought to correct it; and now looking back, we plainly see how pitiable were the efforts of ill-guided and wayward men to warp the truth into lines of their own narrow thought. The ways of men perished; the ways of God survived. Are there not to-day ways of men which hinder, because they tend to strangle charity, and to hinder the progress of the church?

"All division in the church is a misfortune. It comes, not of inherent quality in the religion, but from unhappy conditions in society, in the church, and from imperfect understanding or interpretation of the Word, or from imperfect judgment of men.

"'Tis true, some divisions in the church were the result of an effort to purge it from evil usages that had crept in, and were in truth a return to the church as Christ founded it. Yet even these made essentials of non-essentials.

"The larger knowledge and learning of the day, the truer apprehension of the nature and mind of God, as disclosed in the teaching, life and mind of the Master have combined to belittle in this day these non-essentials, which bulked so large in the past, and which, to some extent, were motes in the eye which hid the true God, and hid from each other the worth of those of other folds.

"The presentation of Christianity to the heathen by teachers not at one, but each zealous for his sect and its peculiarities, is a great hindrance and stumbling block—something the heathen is slow to understand.

"As the world was, 'tis well men were not content to abide in the church as it was, but as the world is 'tis well that men should aim at the broader charity and unity Christ desired. All that stands in the way of union is of Man; all that makes for union is of God—let God reign.

"I look for a church wide as God's mercy for the spread of religion pure and undefiled. I hope for union as the better way to accomplish the work committed to the church. It is better for the cultivation of charity, for economy of men and money, and for speeding that day 'when He shall see of the travail of His soul, and be satisfied.'

"The best judgment of men and the greatest charity is in the church, and it is childish to think that wise men, inspired by the Holy Spirit, cannot find a common ground of faith and a best solution of methods. Then uniting on doctrines and ways that are true and acceptable to all, the bond of truth shall make lasting union, and the smaller things that separated will sink into unimportance and impotence."

POLICE COURT DOINGS THIS MORNING.

Several Cases Came Before the Magistrate.

There were several cases disposed of at the police court this morning. Thos. Colon appeared on a charge of being drunk. He was real sorry for his misdeed and promised that he would never again appear in the police court on a similar charge. He was allowed to go, with a warning.

Thos. Stewart was charged with being a vagrant. He had spent the past week behind the bars, and was in a far more sober condition than when he last appeared in court. He said he had been employed at the Toronto Street Railway Power House, and had got on the drunk, and had come to Peterborough to sober up. The Magistrate said he had come to the wrong place to do the sober-up act, and that if he did not leave town at once he would deal severely with him. Stewart promised to telegraph for his fare and get out at once.

A wages case was settled out of court, and the complainant paid the costs, amounting to 85c.

The chief is still after the bicyclists who ride on the sidewalk, and two cases were up for the Magistrate's consideration this morning. Howard Goldy and Thomas Carson were each fined $2.00.

If you're feeling warm, drop in and have a "Hiawatha," "David Harum" or a "Crushed Fruit Sundae" at HOOPER'S.

WHAT'S HAPPENING AROUND THE DISTRICT.

Interesting Items and Live News of the Great Trent Valley Region.

TRENTON.

John Campeau, a sixteen-year-old Trenton lad, was very seriously burned on Sunday morning in a fire which destroyed the boarding house kept by Alex. Stevenson in that town. The other inmates made a hasty escape, most of them in their night clothes. Campeau was not able to make his escape and was carried out in a terribly burned condition. Although medical attention was given him promptly, there is no hope of saving his life. It is supposed the fire was caused by young Campeau himself, who had been smoking in bed and set fire to the bedclothes.

TWEED.

There have been numerous complaints during the past few days of very ungentlemanly conduct towards ladies on the main streets of Tweed, the offences taking place in the darkness of the early evening. The News has investigated some of the complaints and finds that the offences were not committed by residents of the town, but by strangers, and there is a very strong suspicion as to who the guilty parties are. The offences are of such a nature that the perpetrators cannot be brought to justice in the ordinary way as the victims are reluctant about having their names connected publicly in such affairs, but it may be well to remind the guilty ones that the people of Tweed will not put up with such conduct. A few years ago a party of young men came into the town and made themselves obnoxious by their rowdy conduct. It did not take the Tweed boys long to teach them a lesson which, in all probability, they have not yet forgotten. Such treatment may possibly be administered to those guilty of the recent offences should they be repeated.

One evening last week, John Green, a resident of Tweed, arrived in town from the west on the C.P.R. local. John had evidently been away from town for several days and was not aware of the fact that C.P.R. detectives were as thick here as fleas on a dog. He soon became engaged in conversation with one of them and told where he had come from and how easy it was for him to travel on freight trains even in the daytime. He informed his newly-made friend that he was going to Havelock on the first freight that came along. As soon as it came John boarded it and as he did so his friend placed him under arrest. John appeared before Magistrate Newton on Saturday and paid a fine and costs amounting to $5.75. He will be wiser, no doubt, in the future.

LAKEFIELD.

On Saturday morning last Mr. Allan Dunford had an exciting experience at the cement works. He was engaged in dumping cinders with a horse and cart, when the morning train came along. He did not notice the train until it was nearly up to the place where he was dumping, and the result was that the horse became frightened and backed upon the track. The engine struck the cart, knocking horse cart and driver over the cinder pile. The cart was badly broken, while the horse was severely bruised and shaken up. Mr. Dunford escaped with a few bruises.

YOUNG'S POINT.

On Wednesday evening last the four year old daughter of Mr. Joseph Richardson of Young's Point, met with a terrible accident. In the absence of its mother, the little girl was playing with matches, when her dress caught fire, and before the blaze could be extinguished she was very seriously burned on the face, arms and limbs. Medical aid was quickly summoned and everything was done to relieve the sufferings of the unfortunate child. Very little hopes are entertained of the girl's recovery.

WARKWORTH.

The railroad likely to pass through this village is causing great anxiety in Peterborough and villages east of that town; lest the new road should be made the main line, and the above places be left with a poor service. A Peterborough paper says the village of Havelock is about the largest interested and owes its existence to the fact that it is a dispatching and freight distributing point; and there will likely be something done in the nature of a protest before it is too late. Our opinion is that Peterborough and the villages east of that town might as well save their wind. If the C.P.R. find that there is a good thing in it for them along the proposed new road, we don't think Peterborough and the villages east of Peterborough will have very much influence to cause that company to sacrifice their own interest.—Journal.

LAKE ONTARIO.

Citizens visiting the water front of the town during the past week have noticed the unusual height of water in Lake Ontario. Not in many years has so high a level been obtained as already and it is still rising. June 1st is about the turning point, so that it may rise considerably yet. According to official records the level on Monday of last week was 24 inches above zero, and some twenty years ago 35.40 above zero was the record, so that there is still considerable leeway before the old time high water mark is reached. No inconvenience owing to the high water is yet reported. It is one of the mysteries of nature yet to be solved by science what are the causes of the extraordinary changes in the lake level, looking back over a long period in the history of the country surrounding this great body of water.—Oshawa Reformer.

HASTINGS.

On Thursday afternoon while the way-freight going east was at the station here a car of charcoal was discovered to be on fire and considerable excitement prevailed for about an hour. The car was taken to the tank where a large quantity of water was poured into it but apparently to no avail. After running it around the yard for several minutes, past the elevator and other cars, it was decided to call out the village fire brigade which was done. After half an hour's work with the engine the fire was subdued enough to allow the charcoal to be shovelled out of the car when it was finally extinguished. The wood-work of the car was nearly all destroyed and also a considerable quantity of charcoal. How the charcoal caught fire is a mystery but it is supposed to have been loaded before it was sufficiently prepared and a live coal was the cause.—Star.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

TAKING THE BULL by the horns is an expressive way of indicating the going straight to the point in business or other matters. It expresses the way in which the town council might well be active and alert, prompt and decisive in dealing, amongst other things, with the extension of George street south to the Agricultural grounds. There seems to be no reason for delay, while there is good reason for prompt action. The work of locating the street railway lines is beginning and it would be far better to have George street opened so that the track could be run straight down George street to the Agricultural Park. It is not probable that the Street Railway Company will want to wait the usual deliberate movement of deliberative bodies, before laying down their line.

The matter some time early in the year was referred to a committee which has failed, it appears, to even bring in a report, and at Thursday night's meeting this committee was instructed to get to work and bring in a report on which to base action. It appears that some persons owning property fronting upon the proposed extension, have expressed their willingness to give sufficient land to permit of widening the street, which they can well afford to do, for the opening of the street will add very largely to the value of their property. Other property owners are, it is said, disposed to take advantage of the occasion to extract a good round price. The course of the town need not be doubtful. The power to expropriate property might be used to the public advantage, and if property has to be purchased for the street widening it is not worth while to delay this action, by standing for a hundred or two dollars; the town will be abundantly recouped by the increased assessment which will result from the extension of the street. Park lots will be divided into building lots, buildings will be erected, and the assessment roll will call for a sufficiently increased levy of taxes to compensate for any expenditure, within reasonable limits, the town may be put to to procure the extension of George street.

WHY SHOULD IT TAKE a corporation so much longer to put through a deal, than a private individual? As suggested there should be no greater delay. With the greatest promptitude it will take some time to get the street opened and graded, and ready for the street railway company to begin operations upon. If George street is not speedily opened, the railway company will be delayed in reaching the Locks via George street. The franchise bylaw prevent the tracks from occupying Crescent street, which extends north along the lake to the foot of Lake street. If the street is not opened soon, the street railway will not be able to reach the Locks this summer.

ANY ACTION looking to the opening of necessary streets, such as George street and Cambridge street extension in the west part of the town, to connect with Dalton street, should not be delayed. Every day adds to the value of real estate, and the procuring of land for the purpose will of necessity be more expensive the longer it is postponed. Business caution is an admirable quality, but there are times when it can profitably be conjoined with business promptitude in dealing with civic matters.

SPEAKING OF civic delay, suggests two or three other matters which should have been attended to long ago. No provision has been made for protecting the public health through the medium of a plumbing bylaw. Of the hundreds of good, bad and indifferent bylaws now on the civic statute book, there is not one half as important as a plumbing bylaw, which the council should long ago have provided, and enforced. Then, when we get a bylaw, we want a plumbing inspector to see it properly enforced. The health, comfort and happiness of the people depend upon good plumbing, and this is impossible under a go-as-you-please system, with all the cheap material, and flabby work for which the false economy of owners, and the dishonesty of a workman, may be responsible. Plumbing is an important matter, for upon it depend the health and often the life of ourselves and families. It should be properly done—subject to the supervision of a competent inspector—in the beginning; for it is a serious matter to rip up a house, and release into living rooms a pest house of foul oders, to discover and remedy badly wiped joints, or haphazard connections, which regurgitate sewer gas—literally vomiting disease and death.

ELECTRIC WIRING also should be done subject to inspection. If wiring is not properly done, we are in a sense, living and sleeping over a volcano, which may break out the first thunderstorm this season. Midwinter lighting set fire to the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, through the careless placing of a telegraph wire, carrying a weak current, compared with that of an electric lighting or power wire. The great fire in Toronto is attributed to defective wiring. In Peterborough, where electricity is so generally and generously used, electric wiring should be subject to rigid inspection.

THE NEGLECT of Peterborough and civic authorities throughout the country, is responsible to no little extent for the increase in insurance rates. The insurance companies have been hard hit by recent numerous conflagrations, and if, as is stated, many large fires, such as the Iroquois Theatre horror, Chicago, the Toronto fire, etc., were due to the neglect to provide efficient safeguards in regard to electric wiring, then the insurance companies are not censurable, and the civic authorities responsible are to blame. It is no extravagant estimate to say that the increased cost of insurance this year in Peterborough would more than pay the salary of an inspector of electric wiring; and the increased doctors' and undertakers' bills, sure to result from bad plumbing, would in a year, more than pay the salary of a plumbing inspector.

SPEAKING OF FIRES, suggests the fact that our fire alarm system should receive prompt attention. It is asserted to be antiquated and ineffective, and bad as it is in this regard, it is made worse by being in bad order and unreliable. The fire alarm boxes are a delusion and a snare, and to take liberties with a figure of speech, a broken reed. In case of a fire it is impossible to promptly find the key, and in a search for the key valuable time is lost; and, in case of a fire, a few minutes, or sometimes a few seconds, make all the difference between what the amateur reporter calls an "incipient blaze," and an expensive conflagration. With a good and efficient fire brigade, and first class water pressure, from hydrants, both of those should be given a fair chance to do their work and not be neutralized and handicapped, by a fire alarm system whose only alarming quality is its inefficiency and uselessness.

OUR FIRE ALARM system should be at once reformed. We have enough obstacles to fire fighting apart from a useless alarm apparatus, in the shape of over-head telephone, telegraph and other wires—things which in Toronto's big blaze were responsible for tens of thousands of dollars of loss. Without pronouncing upon the merits of the system of the Machine Telephone Company, which is pronounced to be perfect in itself, one commendable feature of their application is the proposal to put wires underground in the business districts. It would seem to be worth while to grant the franchise, if only for the sake of the precedent of underground wiring, which would ultimately lead to the burying of all wires which now cumber our ways, prevent effective fire fighting and disfigure our streets with ghastly lines of hideous poles, standing as thickly as gravestones in an old London churchyard.

FRENCH SHORE DISPUTE

ENDED IN NEWFOUNDLAND BY NEW ANGLO-FRENCH TREATY.

Replaces Treaty of Utrecht, Observed for 200 Years, and Under Which Privilege France and Britain Were Brought to the Brink of War—Fishing Claims Are Given Up—France Receives Indemnity.

Other issues settled in the Anglo-French Treaty, arranged by Lord Lansdowne and M. Delcasse threatened no such immediate danger to the rupture of friendly relations between France and Britain as did the dispute over Newfoundland. Here was a smouldering firebrand which might at any moment within the last twenty years have involved the two nations in war, and until settled was a continual menace. It was a perpetual irritation. For fourteen years a modus vivendi between France and Newfoundland has preserved peace with the greatest difficulty. Its renewal became harder every year. Engrossed in the South African war, the British Colonial Office could not press for the arrangement of the quarrel, and only by the accommodating spirit of the Legislative Council of Newfoundland, the mutual forbearance of the British and French naval officers on the North Atlantic station and above all the moderation and conciliatory attitude shown by the British and French

MAP OF NEWFOUNDLAND.
Black dotted line shows limits of the French treaty shore.

Foreign Ministers, Lord Lansdowne and M. Delcasse, in conducting their negotiations, has the settlement at last been arrived at as part and parcel of the great Anglo-French Treaty recently signed.

It was then stated that France surrenders her sovereignty over the Newfoundland shore and receives an indemnity on two grounds: First, to compensate French individuals giving up property along the surrendered shore, and secondly, for the French Government's relinquishing of the sovereignty which it has practically enjoyed for just two hundred years. It is another tribute to the practical value of The Hague Tribunal that the assessment of this indemnity will be referred to its decision. While foregoing her exclusive fishing rights on the French shore, France nevertheless retains her right to fish. The Bait Bill of 1886 is modified so as to give Newfoundlanders the right to sell bait to the French fishermen. The indemnities to be paid are intended principally to compensate the owners and employes of the French establishments on the French shore in exchange for the abandoned fishing rights. Some minor details remain to be settled, such as the question whether the lobster canning establishments are covered by the general agreement. It was mentioned in a despatch from Paris that the Newfoundland Government does not wish the French fishermen to retain their right of catching their own bait off shore, but this is a minor detail and may easily be arranged subsequently without leading to any more serious or worse quarrelling than often occurs actually on the British coasts between native and foreign fishing boats.

France, of course, has no intention of giving up her right of dominion over the Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the south coast of Newfoundland, which are the headquarters of her codfishing fleet.

The island was first occupied by the French as a permanent possession in 1662. In 1703 it came into the possession of the English under the Treaty of Utrecht, and remained under the British flag until 1763, when it was ceded to France.

But notwithstanding heavy bounties from the Government the French fishery has been a failing industry.

Under the Treaty of Utrecht certain privileges have been tenaciously secured for this small body (some 750) of French fishermen. As early as 1634 France made an agreement with Charles I. for the privilege of fishing on part of the coast of Newfoundland upon payment of a royalty of five per cent. Charles II. was persuaded by the French King to remit the duty, and the encroachments of the French led to the formal complaint of William III. when he declared war against France. The Treaty of Utrecht, while it insured to England the possession of Newfoundland, in the thirteenth article provided that "it shall be allowed to the subjects of France to catch fish and dry them on land," upon a specified part of the coast. The Treaty of Versailles in 1783 went further, as a declaration attached to it pledged His Britannic Majesty to "take the most positive measures for preventing his subjects from interrupting in any manner, by their competition, the fishery of the French, and that he will for that purpose cause the fixed settlements which shall be formed there to be removed."

The French treaty shore, on which these privileges were thus secured, went round nearly half the island, extending from Cape St. John on the east coast to Cape Ray at the southwest corner by the north and west of the island. The French claimed to control the whole seaboard and to prevent any industrial operations calling for the occupancy of the strand within half a mile of tide-water. So strictly have the treaty privileges been observed that the Colonial Government had to abandon a proposed railway to Bay of Islands in 1876 because the French objected to a terminal there. The treaty has further acted as a barrier to the development of the rich mineral resources of the island, and valuable mine workings have been stopped on the coast because the French would not permit access to the shore. In pursuance of the treaty pledge British naval officers and seamen have had the unpleasant duty of moving sheds raised for mining purposes by Newfoundlanders to which the French objected.

There are three sections of the "French shore"—the northeast coast, the straight shore and the St. George's district. Altogether the fore shore over which the French fishing claims extended is about eight hundred miles in length. The resident population is some thirteen thousand, of whom all but fifty are born Newfoundlanders, scattered among 231 fishing hamlets of four to forty families, dependant upon their scanty take of fish during the short summer. The straight shore is but sparsely settled, and the people exist mainly on the salvage from ships wrecked while passing through the Straits of Belle Isle in the fogs. The St. George's district is the most fertile strip in the island, and its people have practically abandoned the fishery for farming and mining, but have found the French privileges hamper the promising development.

The present agreement is in accordance with the conclusions of the Royal Commissioners, Sir John Bramshon and Admiral Sir James Erskine, whose elaborate report was presented to the British Parliament in 1899. They were appointed by Mr. Chamberlain, who found this one of the most crying questions with which he had to deal at the Colonial Office.

CHARM OF MANNER.

It Is the Most to Be Desired of All Gifts to Women.

It is a curious fact that nothing plays a greater part in a woman's career than a charming manner, yet nothing is taught and cultivated less. To be gracious without being patronizing on the one hand or too gushing on the other, all this requires cultivation and is not attained in a day. That illusive attribute known as charm is still more difficult, if not impossible, to achieve. Is it not inborn and not to be acquired, strive we ever so hard?

Certain it is that this charm is the most to be desired of all the good gifts the fairy godmothers have to bestow. Beauty may fade and riches may fly away and health and youth be swallowed up by the years as they pass, but that charm will ever remain, more potent, more soul satisfying, than beauty and riches and even youth itself.

How often does not one see this exemplified in society by the popularity of some woman who apparently possesses little or nothing to justify such success and who nevertheless is courted and admired and of whom every one says, "Isn't she charming?"

You agree that she is and wonder why. Other women you know, better looking, younger, better dressed perhaps—though the really charming woman is never badly dressed—and yet they lack just something which attracts you in the other woman as it attracts others. What is it? you ask yourself, and you come to the conclusion it is something which, for want of a better name, you call "charm."

The Yeomanry Reduction.

The authorized establishment of the Imperial Yeomanry as a whole is 34,594, and the reduction announced will bring it down by nearly 7,000. By the last returns the enrolled strength of the entire force was 26,372.

English Cotton Decline.

Since the beginning of the cotton season in September last, the output of cotton goods in England has been reduced bt 750,000 bales.

Suppose you fell overboard and someone let down a rope just an inch short. What would you give for that extra inch? "FORCE" goes a little farther than any other food. It just does what others almost do.

FOLDING DOORS.

When They Are Unsightly Remove Them and Use Drapery.

Folding doors are sometimes unsightly and a blemish to an otherwise pretty room, and it costs a good deal to hide them with curtains of any pretensions.

However, they can be done away with and the vacant space decorated, as shown in the illustration. The doors are entirely removed and a deep molding fixed round the vacant space, bordering it, as it were. A wooden archway, much fretted and quite inexpensive to carry out, is placed across the top, and from the center depends the artistically careless, scarflike silk drapery, passed through three parts of the wooden carving. All the woodwork should be enameled either cream or ivory white and the drapery of plain or figured silk, bordered with silk ball fringe. This has a singularly light and dainty effect. This idea for disposing of folding doors is especially to be commended where the room space is small, and by it a much larger and prettier room can be obtained.

IN PLACE OF FOLDING DOORS.

ROSY, HEARTY CHILDREN.

If you want to keep your little ones rosy, hearty, and full of life give them Baby's Own Tablets the moment they show signs of being out of order in any way. This medicine cures all forms of stomach and bowel troubles, breaks up colds, prevents croup, destroys worms, allays teething irritation, and gives the little ones sound natural sleep. No child objects to taking the Tablets, and the mother has a guarantee that they contain no opiate or harmful drug. No other medicine for little ones gives this guarantee. Mrs. George Campbell, Killarney, Man., who has had much experience, says: — "I find Baby's Own Tablets a fine medicine for children. They are prompt in relieving little ills and gentle in their action." All medicine dealers sell these Tablets or you can get them by Mail at 25c a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

A Pleasant Voice.

A pleasant voice is surely something worth having, but how many girls seem to think so? They will spend hours over their clothes, complexion, carriage, hair and teeth and never give their voice a thought. Those other things should not of course be neglected, but if any one of them was wrong how quickly a girl would be to improve it, and why does she not think of what is equally important? An agreeable, cultivated voice can be acquired, just as a pleasant expression can, if you take a little care and trouble. Of course a few lessons in voice culture are a great help, but you can do it quite as well yourself if you persevere. The pitch of the voice is most important, and if this is high the work of lowering it should be the first thing to do. Soon the right pitch will become habitual, and the great point is gained.

How to Get Taller.

That little women can grow taller—even an inch in height by proper exercise—is the verdict of a physical teacher. If a woman is short and stout, to grow taller she must first reduce her flesh by dieting and thorough exercise. Walking is the best way of reducing. Then when she has reduced until she is in just the right proportion to her height she must endeavor to grow taller. This is the slowest and most tedious process. She must practice deep breathing and have regular exercises, such as hanging by her hands and always standing erect. Massage is excellent for keeping the body in good condition and when the desired height is once gained should be kept up regularly, just as are the exercise and deep breathing.

Slaves to Children.

Many kind, devoted, even self sacrificing, mothers find the result of their children's bringing up very unsatisfactory. Their complaint is that they have given up everything for their children, granted every wish and indulged every whim, and yet they have grown up to be anything but helps and blessings. There is just where the trouble lies. Let the children sacrifice something for the mother and father save their steps and help them all they can in little things. The old saying is that as the twig is bent so will it grow, and the first impressions made on children's minds remain through future years.

We Will Buy

A 50c. Bottle of Liquozone and Give it to You to Try.

Liquozone is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. It is the only way to end the cause of any germ disease. It is also a vitalizing tonic with which no other product can compare.

It is new in America, and millions who need it don't know of it. For that reason, we make this remarkable offer. We will buy the first bottle and give it to you if you need it. We will do this gladly to let the product itself show you what it can do.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone—the highest price ever paid for similar rights on any scientific discovery. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, in this country and others. We paid it because Liquozone does what all the skill in the world cannot do without it. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Not Medicine

Liquozone is the result of a process which, for more than 20 years, has been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. Its virtues are derived solely from gas, made in large part from the best oxygen producers. By a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time, these gases are made part of the liquid product.

The result is a product that does what oxygen does; and oxygen is the very source of vitality, the most essential element of life. The effects of Liquozone are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetable matter. That is why Liquozone kills every disease germ, and with a product which to the human body is life.

Germ Diseases

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.

GARNISHING DISHES.

Properly Done, It Adds a Charm to the Best of Food.

Any well cooked dish, however plain, can be made truly epicurean by the garnish applied.

Often, too, exactly the right dressing will be found under the hand, if the housekeeper has sufficient judgment to recognise its possibilities.

For a dish of lobster salad there are lobster claws, lobster coral, cress, and for all salads, radishes and beets cut into flowers, curled celery and celery tips, spirals of olives and fancy shaped wafers. Aspic jelly molded in fancy forms or cut in squares is used on cold meats with mounds of jelly, wreaths of parsley and of cress, shredded lettuce, lemons cut as flowers or as pigs, cucumbers, hard boiled eggs cut in fanciful shapes, etc. Fish is set off with strips of fried potatoes forming a nest, slices of lemon, cucumber, parsley, olives, green peppers or cress.

Tomatoes make a piquant addition in the case of salads and meats. For sweets there are many trimmings—for example, candied and maraschino cherries, candied fruits, currants, raisins, ginger and bonbons. White grapes or slices of orange or pineapple dipped in white of egg and powdered sugar are pretty for gelatins, rice or farina. Angelica, which comes in long strips and is easy to cut into different shapes, is a popular decoration.

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA

By Booth Tarkington.

She smiled unwillingly and turned her gray eyes upon him with troubled sunniness, and under the sweetness of her regard he set a watch upon his lips, though he knew it would not avail him long. He had driveled along respectably so far, he thought, but he had the sentimental longings of years, starved of expression, culminating in his heart. She continued to look at him wistfully, searchingly, gently. Then her eyes traveled over his big frame, from his shoes (a patch of moonlight fell on them; they were dusty; he drew them under the bench with a shudder) to his broad shoulders (he shook the stoop out of them). She stretched her small white hands toward him and looked at them in contrast and broke into the most delicious low laughter in the world. At this he knew the watch on his lips was worthless. It was a question of minutes till he should present himself to her eyes as a sentimental and susceptible imbecile. He knew it. He was in wild spirits.

"Could you realise that one of your dangers might be a shaking?" she cried. "Is your seriousness a lost art?" Her laughter ceased suddenly. "Ah, no! I understand Thiers said the French laugh always in order not to weep. I haven't lived here five years. I should laugh, too, if I were you."

"Look at the moon," he responded. "We Plattvillians own that with the best of metropolitans, and, for my part, I see more of it here. You do not appreciate us. We have large landscapes in the heart of the city, and what other capital has advantages like that? Next winter the railway station is to have a new stove for the waiting room. Heaven itself is one of our suburbs—it is so close that all one has to do is to die. You insist upon my being French, you see, and I know you are fond of nonsense. How did you happen to put 'The Walrus and the Carpenter' at the bottom of a page of Fisbee's notes?"

"Was it? How were you sure it was I?"

"In Carlow county!"

"He might have written it himself."

"Fisbee has never in his life read anything lighter than cuneiform inscriptions."

"Miss Briscoe"—

"She doesn't read Lewis Carroll, and it was not her hand. What made you write it on Fisbee's manuscript?"

"He was here this afternoon. I teased him a little about your heading in the Herald—'Business and the Cradle, the Altar and the Grave,' isn't it?—and he said it had always troubled him, but your predecessor had used it, and you thought it good. So do I. He asked me if I could think of anything that you might like better and put in place of it and I wrote 'The Time Has Come,' because it was the only thing I could think of that was as appropriate and as fetching as your headlines. He was perfectly dear about it. He was so serious. He said he feared it wouldn't be acceptable. I didn't notice that the paper he handed me to write on was part of his notes; nor did he, I think. Afterward he put it back in his pocket. It wasn't a message."

"I'm not so sure he did not notice. He is very wise. Do you know, I have the impression that the old fellow wanted me to meet you."

"How dear and good of him!" She spoke earnestly, and her face was suffused with a warm light. There was no doubt about her meaning what she said.

"It was," John answered unsteadily. "He knew how great was my need of a few minutes' companionableness with—with"—

"No," she interrputed. "I meant dear and good to me. I think he was thinking of me. It was for my sake he wanted us to meet."

It might have been hard to convince a woman if she had overheard this speech that Miss Sherwood's humility was not the calculated affectation of a coquette. Sometimes a man's unsuspicion is wiser, and Harkless knew that she was not flirting with him. In addition, he was not a fatuous man; he did not extend the implication of her words nearly so far as she would have had him.

"But I had met you," said he, "long ago."

"What!" she cried, and her eyes danced. "You actually remember?"

"Yes. Do you?" he answered. "I stood in Jones' field and heard you singing, and I remembered. It was a long time since I had heard you sing:

"I was a ruffler of Flanders
And fought for a florin's hire.
You were the dame of my captain
And sang to my heart's desire.

"But that is the balladist's notion. The truth is that you were a lady at the court of Clovis, and I was a heathen captive. I heard you sing a Christian hymn and asked for baptism."

She did not seem overpleased with his fancy, for, the surprise fading from her face, "Oh, that was the way you remembered," she said.

"Perhaps it was not that way alone. You won't despise me for being mawkish tonight?" he asked. "I haven't had the chance for so long."

The night air wrapped them warmly, and the balm of the little breezes that stirred the foliage around them was the smell of damask roses from the garden. The creek splashed over the pebbles at their feet, and a drowsy bird, half wakened by the moon, crooned languorously in the sycamores. The girl looked out at the sparkling water through downcast lashes. "Is it because it is so transient that beauty is pathetic," she said, "because we can never come back to it in quite the same way? I am a sentimental girl. If you are born so it is never entirely teased out of you, is it? Besides, tonight is all a dream. It isn't real, you know. You couldn't be mawkish."

Her tone was gentle as a caress, and it made him tingle to his finger tips. "How do you know?" he asked.

"I just know. Do you think I'm very bold and forward?" she said dreamily.

"It was your song I wanted to be sentimental about. I am like one 'who through long days of toil'—only that doesn't quite apply—'and nights devoid of ease,' but I can't claim that one doesn't sleep well here; it is Plattville's specialty—like one who "Still heard in his soul the music

Of wonderful melodies."

"Yes," she answered, "to come here and to do what you have done and to live this isolated village life that must be so desperately dry and dull for a man of your sort, and yet to have the kind of heart that makes wonderful melodies sing in itself—oh," she cried, "I say that is fine!"

"You do not understand," he returned sadly, wishing before her to be unmercifully just to himself. "I came here because I couldn't make a living anywhere else. And the 'wonderful melodies'—I have only known you one evening—and the melodies"— He rose to his feet and took a few steps toward the garden. "Come," he said, "let me take you back. Let us go before I"— He finished with a helpless laugh.

She stood by the bench, one hand resting on it. She stood all in the tremulant shadow. She moved one step toward him, and a single long sliver of light pierced the sycamores and fell upon her head. He gasped.

"What was it about the melodies?" she said.

"Nothing. I don't know how to thank you for this evening that you have given me. I—I suppose you are leaving tomorrow. No one ever stays here. I"—

"What about the melodies?"

He gave it up. "The moon makes people insane!" he cried.

"If that is true, then you need not be more afraid than I, because 'people' is plural. What were you saying about"—

"I had heard them—in my heart. When I heard your voice tonight I knew that it was you who sang them there, had been singing them for me always."

"So!" she cried gayly. "All that debate about a pretty speech!" Then, sinking before him in a courtesy, "I am beholden to you," she said. "Do you think no man ever made a little flattery for me before tonight?"

At the edge of the orchard, where they could keep an unseen watch on the garden and the bank of the creek, Judge Briscoe and Mr. Todd were ensconced under an apple tree, the former still armed with his shotgun. When the young people got up from their bench, the two men rose hastily, then sauntered slowly toward them. When they met Harkless shook each of them cordially by the hand without seeming to know it.

"We were coming to look for you," explained the judge. "William was afraid to go home alone—thought some one might take him for Mr. Harkless and shoot him before he got into town. Can you come out with Willetts in the morning, Harkless," he went on, "and go with the young ladies to see the parade? And Minnie wants you to stay to dinner and go to the show with them in the afternoon."

Harkless seized his hand and shook it and then laughed heartily as he accepted the invitation.

At the gate Miss Sherwood extended her hand to him and said politely, while mockery shone from her eyes: "Good night, Mr. Harkless. I do not leave tomorrow. I am very glad to have met you."

"We are going to keep her all summer, if we can," said Minnie, weaving her arm about her friend's waist. "You'll come in the morning?"

"Good night, Miss Sherwood," he returned hilariously. "It has been such a pleasure to meet you. Thank you so much for saving my life. It was very good of you, indeed. Yes; in the morning. Good night, good night." He shook hands with all of them, including Mr. Todd, who was going with him. He laughed all the way home, and William walked at his side in amazement.

The Herald building was a decrepit frame structure on Main street. It had once been a small warehouse and was now sadly in need of paint. Closely adjoining it, in a large, blank looking yard, stood a low brick cottage, over which the second story of the old warehouse leaned in an effect of tipsy affection that had reminded Harkless, when he first saw it, of an old Sunday school book woodcut of an inebriated parent under convoy of a devoted child. The title to these two buildings and the blank yard had been included in the purchase of the Herald, and the cottage was the editor's home.

There was a light burning upstairs in the Herald office. From the street a broad, tumbledown stairway ran up on the outside of the building to the second floor, and at the stairway railing John turned and shook his companion warmly by the hand.

"Good night, William," he said. "It was plucky of you to join in that muss tonight. I shan't forget it."

"I jest happened to come along," replied the other awkwardly. Then, with a portentous yawn, he asked, "Ain't ye goin' to bed?"

"No; Parker wouldn't allow it."

"Well," observed William, with another yawn, which threatened to expose the veritable soul of him, "I d'know how ye stand it. It's closte on 11 o'clock. Good night."

John went up the steps, singing alond—

"For tonight we'll merry, merry be,
For tonight we'll merry, merry be,"

and stopped on the sagging platform at the top of the stairs and gave the moon good night with a wave of the hand and friendly laughter. At this it suddenly struck him that he was twenty-nine years of age and that he had laughed a great deal that evening; laughed and laughed over things not in the least humorous, like an excited schoolboy making a first formal call; that he had shaken hands with Miss Briscoe when he left her as if he should never see her again; that he had taken Miss Sherwood's hand twice in one very temporary parting; that he had shaken the judge's hand five times and William's four.

"Idiot!" he cried. "What has happened to me?" Then he shook his fist at the moon and went in to work, he thought.

THE GIRL'S ROOM.

Where There's a Will There's a Way to Make It Beautiful.

No girl need spend a day in a room devoid of ornamentation. Almost anything that is a picture can be made attractive in the girl's room. A little taste, a bottle of paste (for which a cold boiled potato may sometimes be substituted), an old magazine and a few scraps of silk will do much toward making a room look pretty. A beautiful picture was made by clipping from a magazine a pretty colored picture, pasting it upon a bit of silk rescued from the "piece" bag and binding the edges with black paper. The silk was soiled, but the wrong side of it made quite as pretty a background as the right side would have done. Upon the door panels of this girl's room were pinned pictures and upon each window shade a copy of a masterpiece taken from a magazine.

One young woman, more ingenious than many of her sisters, found that her muslin window curtains were giving out in places. Over one of the rents, after she had caught it together with fine thread, she hung a dainty calendar, over another was suspended a college flag. Two or three dance programmes covered a third. "I can't have new ones," laughed the girl, "and where there's a will there's a way." The effect was really charming.

DRESS HINTS.

The fit of stockings is almost as important as that of shoes.

Cut steel buttons and buckles may be polished with powdered pumice stone slightly moistened and applied with a soft brush or cloth.

Gasoline put on stains on a white silk waist, followed by as much lump magnesia as the gasoline will take up, well rubbed in, will generally remove the stains.

A delightful scent sachet for perfuming personal linen is made of an ounce of lavender flowers and half a teaspoonful of powdered cloves. Put this mixture in little bags of muslin or soft silk.

White silk ties can be cleaned by rubbing them over with French chalk and holding them over the fire. The heat will cause the chalk to absorb the grease, after which the chalk can be shaken off.

When a woman is nervous her imagination gives fantastic and threatening shapes to the most familiar objects. By day she starts in fear at every sudden or unfamiliar sound. By night the furniture of her room takes on affrighting forms of ghost or goblin. You can't reason with the nerves. Neither logic nor love can quiet them. They must be nourished and then the outcry of the nerves will cease as naturally as a hungry child ceases to cry when fed.

For nervous women there is no better tonic and nervine than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures the diseases which produce nervousness in women, irregularity, debilitating drains, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite, and induces refreshing sleep.

"When I began taking your medicine I was not able to stand on my feet ten minutes at a time," writes Mrs. Hattie Borradaile, of 113 Spring Street, Nashville, Tenn. "Had falling of uterus, and kidney and liver disease, and was so weak and nervous I could not keep still. Would take nervous spells and almost die at times. I had several different doctors attending, but they could not do me any good. The last one I had said I would never get up again. Told him that I was taking your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and he said, 'Might just as well take that much water each day.' But I thought I would give the medicine a fair trial. Before I had finished the first two bottles I was able to get outside the house and walk around the yard. I kept on taking the medicines and they cured me."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

Could scarcely get up or down without help.

Had a severe pain in the small of the back.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Cured Mr. George Graves, Pitts Ferry, Ont., of a very bad case of kidney trouble

He tells about the cure in the following words: "I cannot recommend Doan's Kidney Pills too highly. I never took anything that did me so much good. I had a severe pain in the small of my back and could scarcely get up or down without help. I could hardly urinate, but when I did the pain was terrible. I was in the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, last winter and when I came out I was some better but not cured. It was then I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. Since taking them I have been completely cured and have not had any trouble with my kidneys since."

At last I heard of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, and thought to give it a trial, although having but little faith in its curative action. I was at once relieved and after using it but a short time almost entirely free from the disorder."

TO-DAYS MARKET.

Prices Remained About the Same—Prospects for Hay.

Despite the bad weather conditions, there was a fairly large market this morning. The rain kept many buyers as well as sellers away, but as one farmer put it, they were making money fast at home as a result of the shower, though they might be losing somewhat on the market through the scarcity of purchasers. It was the general opinion that the rain would benefit the farmers to a vast extent. Enquiry regarding the hay crop revealed the fact that it will be about the average, or a fairly good crop. The frost of this week had an effect on the timothy in some sections, but it will not be of a very serious nature; in other sections the effect of the frost was not visible. The clover crop is expected to be better than the timothy.

The market prices were not subject to any startling change from those of the previous week. A dozen of new laid eggs were worth 13c and 14c., while for a pair of chickens or a couple of hens the price requested was anywhere between 70c and $1. There were a few fat-looking turkeys selling at from $1.50 to $1.75 each. Butter per lb. was worth 18c. and 20c., and there was lots of it. Potatoes were worth from 90c to $1 per bag.

BUYING SUPPLIES OUT OF TOWN.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons Complain of Action of Council.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—We notice in the accounts presented at the meeting May 12th, one from John Leckie, Toronto, for $35.00 for net to use at fires. We offered to supply this very same net to the corporation at the same price, $35.00, delivered here, and we would have made a few dollars out of it, but it seemsthat our own council prefer to ignore merchants living in their own town, and who are paying taxes and helping to build up the town and prefer buying in Toronto. Rather a bad example for our City Fathers, and especially business men, to set the community at large. You often hear the merchants say "It is too bad to see people send or go to Toronto to buy their supplies" when some of these very same merchants are members of the town council, but they buy in Toronto. It seems to us these members' motto is "Don't do as I do, but do as I tellyou." We have a good town and we, as citizens, ought to uphold its good name, but we certainly think the council should set the good example and buy goods from their own merchants.

Thanking you, Mr Editor, for your valuable space, we remain

Respectfully Yours,
J. J. TURNER & SONS.

Peterborough, May 14th, 1904.

THE TULIPS IN VICTORIA PARK.

Brilliant Display of These Flowers is Generally Admired.

A sight which has during the past few days been the subject of much favourable comment and general admiration is the brilliant display of tulips in Victoria Park. The caretaker, Mr. Cooney, by his painstaking efforts has the park looking delightfully attractive, and its general appearance has been enhanced to a great degree by the beds of tulips which grace its centre. In previous years, as a rule each bed contained specimens of almost every variety of tulip colour, but this season the flowers have been arranged with more symmetry and along the path leading from Water street to the centre, are several beds each containing tulips of one distinct hue, the effect being very pleasing. The red and yellow show up quite brilliantly, while the effect of the other beds where flowers of different colours are artistically arranged is also an admirable one. Mr. Cooney deserves much credit for his skilful cultivation of these flowers, and for the splendid manner in which he carries out his duties.

LACROSSE.

Quite a crowd witnessed the Peterborough's practising last night. All seemed to be pleased with the speed and skill shown so early in the season.

Lacrosse will surely boom in Peterborough this season. All the old players intend to turn out and there seems to be lots of new blood.

The juniors are showing up well this year and will make some of the seniors hustle for a place on the senior team.

The Trent Valley teams are practising hard these days and reports indicate a "bumper" year in the league. Representatives from the different teams at the executive meeting yesterday stated that their teams were "up and doing." It wouldn't be a bad idea for the teams in town to arrange exhibition games with some of these teams.

Belland was out last night and hasn't forgotten how to handle the stick yet.

Eddie Howell is getting into shape. He is out every practice night and in the game to stay, and when he gets going this summer—look out for "doings."

About fifteen of the boys were out at Central Park last night and indulged in a good work. Howell, Morgan, Mein, Dillon, Dumble and several others were out, and showed up in good shape.

The Peterborough's would like to see more new blood out as well as the older, as a second team is to be organized which will give them a chance to show themselves.

How some of the youths of our town can stand aside and watch those participating in practice and games, and not "take the notion" is more than the "old heads" can understand. Wake up boys and take some exercise.

Morgan is showing up well this year. He still knows how to get the ball.

Mein is in the running this year, and has speed and skill to burn.

FOOTBALL.

The Quakers won their game from Harwood this afternoon by 2—0. All the goals were scored in the first half.

Bridgencrth played at Norwood this afternoon and Harwood and the Quakers had a game on the slippery grass at Nicholls Oval. The Midland League believes in the play rain or shine motto.

The Y.M.C.A. football team will practice Monday night at 6.45. All players are requested to turn out as some hard games are ahead. Arrangements are being made for a practice match next week.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Sports Committee in connection with the field day of sports on Victoria Day, met last evening and completed arrangements for the day. The events will be run off in the afternoon and in connection with the athletic programme, a lacrosse game will also be pulled off, in which the T.A.S. team and an outside twelve will participate. The committee in charge expect a bumper crowd, and the grand stand is being finished up to accommodate the crowd. It is also expected that the T.A.S. band will assist in the day's programme.

A WOMAN'S SYMPATHY.

Are you discouraged? Is your doctor's bill a heavy financial load? Is your pain a heavy physical burden? I know what these mean to delicate women—I have been discouraged, too, but learned how to cure myself. I want to relieve your burdens. Why not end the pain and stop the doctor's bill? I can do this for you and will if you will assist me.

All you need to do is to write for a free box of the remedy which has been placed in my hands to be given away. Perhaps this one box will cure you—it has done so for others. If so I shall be happy and you will be cured for $—the cost of a postage stamp. Your letters held confidentially. Write to-day for my free treatment. Mrs. F. D. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont. Orange Lily is recommended and sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warnock 345 George street. s-w

FOR WOMEN

Much That Every Woman Desires to Know

About Sanative Antiseptic Cleansing

And about the Care of the Skin, Scalp, Hair and Hands

Too much stress cannot be placed on the great value of Cuticura Soap. Ointment and Resolvent in the antiseptic cleansing of the mucous surfaces, and of the blood and circulating fluids, thus affording pure, sweet and economical local and constitutional treatment for weakening ulcerations, inflammations, itchings, irritations, relaxations, displacements, pains and irregularities peculiar to females. Hence the Cuticura remedies have a wonderful influence in restoring health, strength and beauty to weary women, who have been prematurely aged and invalided by these distressing ailments, as well as such sympathetic afflictions as anæmia, chlorosis, hysteria and nervousness.

Women from the very first have fully appreciated the purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy which have made the Cuticura remedies the standard humour remedies of the civilized world.

Millions of women use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for annoying irritations and ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

Cuticura Resolvent, Pills and Tea in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors.

JAPANESE MARCHING SLOWLY BUT FIRMLY

Jap Main Force is now Forty Miles From Liaoyang.

RUMORS OF HARD FIGHTING.

A Battle Said to Have Taken Place at Dalny—Others Reported to Have Occurred on the Road to Liaoyang—A Number of Skirmishes Reported by the Russian Generals.

Liaoyang, May 16.—The Japanese army in Southern Manchuria is marching slowly, evidently being desirous of remaining in close touch with the reserves. The movement is aimed partly at Haicheng, but chiefly at Liaoyang. The Japanese main force is only 40 miles from Liaoyang.

The Russian troops are in excellent health and spirits and anxious to do duty. The inspiring sounds of the Russian soldiers re-echo through Liaoyang the whole day, varied by the music of the bands of freshly arriving regiments.

Rumors of Hard Fighting.

London, May 16.—The telegraph and cable lines were kept busy Saturday with rumors. The capture of Port Arthur, where ten thousand men lost their lives, was a contribution by Paris; Newchwang sent word of fighting at Liaoyang and Shanhaikwan reported a battle at Sinyen, ending in the capture of the town and a Russian loss of fifteen hundred killed and wounded. None of these reports were confirmed. General Kuroki announced the occupation of Wangtiensien, and General Pflug its evacuation by the Japanese. The other official advices showed that the invading force were advancing and strengthening their positions in Manchuria, and were continuing their raiding operations on the Liaotung Peninsula. Japanese warships, according to a despatch from Che Foo, had bombarded Dalny in connection with a land assault. It was believed that the town had fallen.

Bandits Hired By Japanese.

Liaoyang, May 16.—Among seventeen prisoners taken by the Russian troops Saturday were two Japanese officers, who had escaped from the Russians. One of the bandits taken prisoner confessed that the bandits had been fired by the Japanese, whom they were supplying with information.

Again Cut Off Port Arthur.

Liaoyang, May 16.—The Russians, on May 11, apprehending that the presence of a Japanese squadron meant an attempt to capture Dalny, blew up the piers and quietly evacuated the place. Two thousand Japanese have re-occupied the road to Sanchilipu, again cutting off Port Arthur. A strong force is advancing against Polandien.

Dalny Garrison at Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—The garrison of Dalny, after destroying everything that would have facilitated a Japanese landing, joined the troops in Port Arthur. The train which Col. Spiridonoff rushed through to Port Arthur from Liaoyang on the 11th, when the railroad was temporarily open, took to Port Arthur a submarine boat in sections.

Advance Guard's in Contact.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—Lieut.-Gen. Sakharoff has sent the following report to the general staff, dated Liaoyang, May 14: "The enemy's advance guard on May 12 reached Touintsou, on the road between Fengwangcheng and Liaoyang. Our two sotnias of Cossacks retired towards the Village of Kantsaendiantig.

"A Japanese force of three battalions of infantry, ten guns and two squadrons of cavalry, from Zeludschthan, on the road to Miaotien Pass, was seen on May 11 in Tafanoon Valley. Since then there has been no news of the force, which leads to the conclusion that it has branched off westwards towards Haicheng.

"A detachment of the Japanese vanguard left Touintsou May 13 southward and was pursued by our Cossacks, who exchanged shots with the Japanese rear guard for half an hour, and having in the meantime discovered an ambush prepared by the Japanese, retired.

"Our scouts ascertained that a Japanese force of two regiments of infantry, eight guns and three squadrons of cavalry, had approached Lindiapoutse and Erttaoufan.

"Our line of patrols between Lanshanhouan and Samadze had a skirmish with Japanese bandits, in which three Cossacks and three horses were killes, three Cossacks slightly wounded and four missing."

Message From Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—The Emperor has received the following report from Viceroy Alexieff, dated May 14:

"I beg respectfully to communicate to Your Majesty a report from Rear-Admiral Witzoeff, on the state of affairs at Port Arthur from May 6 to 12. The report was brought by express runner from Dachichao station on the eve of the second interruption of communications by the enemy's squadron. It follows:

" 'The enemy's squadron, composed of ironclads, cruisers and torpedo boats, appeared off Port Arthur, May 5, and continues to blockade without undertaking active operations.

" 'The work of repairing the ironclads Czarevitch and Retvizan is proceeding with unabated energy and with every success.

" 'During the examination of the roadstead and fairway at the spot where the battleship Pobieda was damaged by a mine, we found one of the enemy's defence mines, which had been exploded by the force of the hurricane.' "

Russ Prisoners at Tokio.

Tokio, May 16.—Four hundred and fifty Russian prisoners, 16 of them officers, arrived at Matsuyala yesterday morning on the steamer Colombia. Nine officers and 286 men were wounded. All of the prisoners expressed great satisfaction at their unexpected kind treatment.

U.S. Cruiser at Che Foo.

Che Foo, May 16.—The United States cruiser New Orleans with Rear Admiral Stirling on board arrived yesterday from Shanghai. The orders were simply to come to Che Foo. Rear-Admiral Stirling said the reason for his coming and his future movements are unknown to him. In view of the previous order that no ships should come north of Shanghai, the movement of the New Orleans is considered significant here. One interpretation of the arrival of the cruiser is that the United States will insist upon the neutrality of Newchwang when the Russians evacuate that place. The New Orleans is too large to ascend the Liao River.

Treason in Paris.

London, May 16.—Despatches from Milan say that there is the highest authority for asserting that a grave case of high treason has been discovered in Paris. Most important military documents, it is said, have been sold to Germany. Surprising developments may be expected.

Antidote to Poisons.

It is a great thing to thoroughly understand what simple antidote to take if one is so unlucky as to swallow poison of any kind through mistake or otherwise. Sweet oil is to be found in nearly every house, however humble, and a half pint of it taken immediately is an effectual antidote to almost all poisons. Any one with a strong constitution should take a larger quantity of this simple remedy.

PASSING AWAY OF A PROMINENT CITIZEN.

Mr. George Stewart Dies at the Nicholls Hospital This Morning.

A Brief Sketch of an Honourable and Useful Life.

The numerous personal friends and the hundreds who knew him as a public man, will learn with deep regret of the death of Mr. George Stewart, County Treasurer, which took place at the Nicholls Hospital between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning. His last illness, which in its acute form, was of about ten days' duration, was in the nature of an abcess on the brain.

The deceased gentleman was a native of Otonabee, where he was born 68 years ago. He married a Miss Ryan, who died several years since. To this marriage were born, nine children all of whom survive.

Mr. Stewart was a gentleman of high character and well deserved the confidence of the public evidenced in his having been elected to serve his native township, and the county in the several capacities of councillor, Deputy Reeve, Reeve and Warden of the county. On the death of the late Mr. Pearse, Mr. Stewart was appointed County Treasurer, a position which he occupied at the time of his death. Mr. Stewart was a Liberal in politics and in religion a Presbyterian, a member and an elder of St. Paul's church. He was active in promoting good works, and was for many years superintendent of the Union Sunday School on the River Road, Otonabee. He was also an earnest advocate of temperance reform, and in every way deserving of the high esteem in which he was held in the community where he passed his days.

The funeral takes place from the family residence, Otonabee, on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

A PETERBOROUGH ARTIST ENTERS THE PARIS "SALON"

A Distinction Entitling Her to World-Wide Recognition as an Artist.

The gratifying intelligence has just been received in Peterborough, that the latest piece of sculpture executed by Miss Wallis, of Peterborough, now in the old world, has been accepted by the Paris Salon. Such an acceptance by the committee of the Salon represents the Hall-mark of sterling artistic achievement, and de facto places Miss Wallis in the ranks of the recognized artists of France, and, consequently, of the world. The Examiner begs to tender Miss Wallis its most cordial congratulations upon the great success she has achieved, which is not only gratifying to her numerous friends in Peterborough, but a high credit to herself, her former home, and to Canadians at large.

A LOCAL SIGN ARTIST SECURES CITY CONTRACTS.

Mr. Fred. Cook's Operations in Toronto and Hamilton.

Mr. Fred Cook, Peterborough's artistic sign writer, is not content with local territory, but has invaded Toronto, and has sent Mr. F. W. Joyce and a staff of men to that city to undertake a large contract for extensive sign advertising for the Gutta Percha Company and several other large manufacturing concerns in Toronto. The staff will also visit Hamilton and place in position an excellent electric sign flasher from the brush of Mr. Cook, whose fame is certainly spreading throughout the province.

14TH MIDLAND FIELD BATTERY ANNUAL CAMP

Will be at Cobourg Next Month—Recruiting to Commence To-morrow.

Saturday's militia orders, containing the dates of the annual training of the different regiments, includes that of the 14th Field Battery, which will go into camp for the usual period of twelve days at Cobourg, June 21st. Cobourg is the most popular camping ground with the battery and men and although the ranges will not allow shell practice, the record of the battery in the Deseronto competition last year leaves little to be desired in this particular part of the work. The battery took first place in the Canadian field-artillery firing competition, winning all four cups in addition to cash prizes, badges, etc., so that in its present efficient condition along with the assurance of a Cobourg camp it is expected it will be up to strength on June 21st. The Peterborough sections this year, owing to the increase in the establishment, will be expected to furnish seventy-five men and forty-five horses. From the interest already taken by the men in this year's camp Lieut. Ackerman does not anticipate having any difficulty in filling the left and centre sections, as many applications have already been received. Recruiting will commence at the battery rooms in the drill hall on Tuesday night the 17th inst., and each succeeding Tuesday night until the date of camp.

A PROGRESSIVE ADMINISTRATION.

Hon. Mr. Stratton on the Legislation of Last Season.

IMPORTANT RAILWAY ACTS

Liberal Faith in the Resources of the Province Contrasted With the Despondency of the Opposition.

Penetanguishene, May 13.—Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, with Mr. F. R. Heakes, Provincial Architect, visited Penetanguishene yesterday to look over the buildings of the late reformatory and arrange for the necessary alterations to convert the institution into an asylum for the insane, which it is expected will be completed by June 15. Mr. E. Davidson, M. P. P. for Centre Simcoe, took advantage of the occasion to entertain Mr. Stratton and about forty of his friends at dinner at the Canada House in the evening. Among those present were John Jamieson, Chairman; Rev. Dr. Campbell, Mr. McCrossin, Dr. Leatherdale, Mr. Breed; Mr. Hobson, Manager of the Bank of Hamilton at Midland; George Rapley of Orillia, G. H. Wright, George Robinson, W. H. Hewson, F. W. Jeffery, L. Gendie, F. Corbeau, David Belyea, F. R. Heakes, Rev. Father Laboreau, William LeCamp Lafontaine, William Lynn, John Robb, P. Payette, D. D. Davidson, J. B. Tudhope and D. Pratt of Midland.

MR STRATTON ON WORK OF SESSION

After dinner the toast of the "Ontario Government" was responded to by the Provincial Secretary, who, after explaining the nature of his visit to Penetanguishene and the changes to be made at the reformatory, briefly referred to the work of the recent session of the Legislature. It was, he said, one of the longest continuous sessions of the Assembly and was essentially a fighting session, although the fighting was placed by the Opposition on a rather low plane.

The Government had a narrow majority, and the Opposition professed to have great hopes that they would be able to compass its overthrow, but in this they were disappointed. It was very soon evident that the Liberals were loyally united in support of the Government policy. The Opposition, instead of advancing an alternative policy, endeavoured by petty tactics to catch snap votes with the hope of embarrassing the Government. There had been few sessions of the Ontario Legislature which had been more fruitful in momentous legislation, both in relation to the older parts of the Province and the opening up and development of the resources of the newer.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

With regard to railway construction, the session had been, said Mr. Stratton, the most important in the history of the Province. First and foremost was the Government's enterprise, the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, a work that made Ontario the pioneer in Provincial ownership and construction of railways. It had come under consideration specifically through the bill introduced by the Commissioner of Public Works for the extension of the line from New Liskeard to connect with the proposed Transcontinental Railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific. This was the natural result of railway construction into a new region, and it had been one of the factors in determining the application of the Government's policy of aiding the development of railways.

One of the immediate benefits of extending the line was that it would be in immediate demand for the transportation of construction materials for the Grand Trunk Pacific, thus affording an opportunity to the manufacturers and merchants of this Province of supplying them. This would be merely a forerunner of the advantages of traffic and profitable trade. This act also provided that the Crown may set apart and hold for sale to settlers town sites along the line of railway. When the extension was completed 16,000,000 acres would be thrown open to settlement, with all the benefits that accrued from new centres of population to the merchants and manufacturers of older Ontario. The appreciation in value of the Crown timber along the route of the railway would largely pay for the construction of the line. One of the most pleasing features of the Temiskaming Railway was that all the supplies purchased for it were of Canadian production, except the steel rails, which were bought in England, and the steel rails would have also been supplied by Canada but for the financial troubles at the "Soo."

AID TO ALGOMA CENTRAL.

The Bill to aid the completion of the Algoma Central Railway, was characterized by Mr. Stratton as the most momentous of the session. As a result of this aid the line would be completed, and as another result, incidental to the former, the immense industries at the Soo would resume operations, including the steel rail mills, which would be the only mills of their kind in Canada, unless in the meantime steel rail manufacture was begun in Nova Scotia.

It was not to be forgotten that the province did not advance or undertake to advance one dollar of money; the bill simply provided for the guarantee of the bonds of the railway to the amount of two million dollars for the term of two years, and upon security which was palpably ample.

They had vast resources in timber and minerals in the district served by the Algoma Central, and the advantages arising from its operation in the development of these resources could not be easily computed. In addition to $22,500,000 of direct security, the Government would hold collateral securities to a very considerable amount in the form of stock issued in connection with the reorganization of the "Soo" industries, first mortgage bonds and income bonds.

It was difficult to see in what way the Act could be regarded as anything but a safe, good and patriotic proposition.

TWO OTHER ENTERPRISES.

Mr. Stratton then referred to the two other railway enterprises which had been aided under conditions that added nothing to the financial burdens of the province. One of these, the James Bay Railway, was to extend from Toronto to Sudbury. The Act guaranteed the bonds of the road to the extent of $20,000 a mile for thirty years at three and a half per cent. A condition of the guarantee was that settlers were to have a one-cent per mile passenger rate in and out, and half ordinary rates on household goods.

A subsidy had been granted originally to the James Bay Railway, but, in consideration of the guarantee of the bonds, this was withdrawn nad transferred to another important development railway—a line to extend from Thunder Bay in the vicinity of Fort William and Port Arthur to connect with the Grand Trunk Pacific Transcontinental Line. The subsidy granted was $2,000 per mile (a revote) and 600 acres per mile. This line would in all probability be built before the main line of the G.T.P., and would give another means of conveying railway supplies and materials from western Ontario, besides aiding in the development of the region through which it passed.

Thus, at both the eastern and western extremities of the province, Ontario would have direct connection with the Northwest through the G. T.P., and centrally it would have direct connection with the Northwest by the James Bay Railway, which connected with the C.P.R. at Sudbury.

Ontario had contributed to the railways $10,000,000 in subsidies and the municipalities $10,000,000 more. Who would be willing to forego the advantages they represent or return to the conditions from which the railway rescued the people in districts through which they ran?

During the session the general interests of the province had not been neglected in any way, though of course great prominence was given the development policy of the Government. Ontario must keep to the front. It could not remain content with a narrow fringe of improved territory skirting the lake lines. The Liberal party and the Liberal Government had faith in the resources and the future of the country. He believed the Conservative party had the same faith, but its sentiments were not correctly represented in the House—Opposition members seemed to feel justified in taking a despondent view of Ontario's future and in disparaging its resources. He hoped they did not speak from their hearts, but that they had the saving mental reservation, that they subordinated their real feelings and beliefs to the exigencies of party demand.

There are two kinds of emulsions of cod liver oil—Scott's and all the others. Not one of the latter is as valuable as Scott's Emulsion and there's a reason for it. Only the purest ingredients enter our Emulsion and its quality never varies. That is why it helps when all others fail.

There's not much oil in the market now; it's scarce and high in price. But seal oil and other inferior oils are cheap and plentiful. That's why you can buy so many substitutes for Scott's Emulsion at a lower price.

We guarantee our Emulsion to be the best remedy for weak lungs, low vitality and wasting conditions. Who guarantees the others?

BRAZIL AND PERU CLASH.

Great Britain May Be Involved Through Brazil's Action.

Washington, D.C., May 16.—It is possible that Great Britain may become involved in the threatened clash between Brazil and Peru.

U. S. Minister Thompson cabled the State Department Saturday from Petropolis that the Brazilian officers on Friday stopped a British ship at Manaos while she was making her way up the Amazon River on the ground that she had aboard 260 cases ammunition destined for the Peruvian military forces in the upriver country, the possession of which is now a subject of dispute between Brazil and Peru.

As there has been no declaration of war it is expected that the British Government will enter a protest against the stoppage of the ship as illegal.

2,000 KHAMBAS MARCH.

Will Join the Thibetan Army at the Gyangtse Fort.

Gyangtse, Thibet, May 16.—The country in front of the mission is in a ferment. The Llamas are going from valley to valley preaching a holy war. Two thousand Khamba warriors are marching to join the army in the Gyangtse fort.

The bombardment of the camp continues. The Thibetans have found the range of every building in the camp, but the British are all well under cover and communications with the rear are still open to St. Johann.

struck 26 Miles of Ice.

Halifax, N.S., May 16.—The Norwegian steamer Verdande, Captain Olsen, from Newcastle, England, for Quebec, with a cargo of coal, arrived at North Sydney yesterday with three of her bow plates stove and her forepeak filled with water. While crossing the Grand Banks on May 10 the Verdande encountered heavy Arctic drift ice and had to steam through 26 miles of it. A survey has been ordered, and it is possible that the cargo will have to be discharged to effect temporary repairs.

Five Eaten By Cannibals.

Vancouver, B. C., May 16.—Mail advices on the Australian steamer Miowera yesterday are that five men were killed and eaten by cannibals of the Admiralty Islands in the South Sea. The British warship Condor was sent to the scene and set fire to the village where the cannibals lived. The Condor threatened to annihilate the village if the cannibals were not surrendered. This was done and the cannibals were shot.

Prisoners Broke Out—in Cheers.

Kingston, May 16.—It was reported that there was an attempt at mutiny in the penitentiary because the prisoners were dissatisfied with the food set before them. It seems, however, that all the prisoners did was to break out into a suppressed cheer while at dinner because of an extra good dinner that was on the tables.

Negro Lynched.

Augusta, Ga., May 16.—Charlie Cummings, a negro, 19 years old, was taken from jail at Appling, twenty miles from Augusta, early yesterday morning and lynched by a mob of masked men.

QUAKERS WON IN DOWN POUR OF RAIN.

Defeated Harwood by 2-0 on Saturday Afternoon

In a Midland League Match—Game was an Interesting Exhibition Bridge-north and Norwood Tied.

Amid a drizzling rain at Nicholls' Oval, on Saturday afternoon, the Quakers won their second victory in the Midland Football League this season, their opponents being the Harwood team, which was beaten by a score of 2—0. The rain affected the play very materially, the footing being very uncertain and treacherous and tumbles and slides were common occurrences. The ball was soon wet and heavy, rendering accurate kicking and footwork out of the question. "It kicks like a bundle of wet rags!" remarked Jimmy Doris after his toe had come in contact with the ball, and this was the sentiment of all the players. However, considering the very unfavourable atmospheric conditions, and the state of the grounds, the game was fairly fast and the style of football fully up to the average.

If the Quakers don't soon begin to get beaten, they will have the championship of the district won before anyone is aware of it. The team is playing good, consistent football, and the 11 which downs them will have to be pretty speedy. They put up a good exhibition on Saturday, the most noticeable defect in their play being a tendency on the part of the forwards to bunch too much towards the centre. This fact was also the case in last Wednesday's game, but will undoubtedly be remedied before the season is far advanced. A far more effective combination can be worked when the players hold to their positions. The defence is one of the strongest in the League, and was of the stonewall variety on Saturday. Belleghem was not called upon to shine, but he was never found wanting when required. Ben Simpson was the pick of the defence and he played a rattling good game, checking, blocking and kicking, in a disheartening manner—to his opponents. He was ably supported by Doris who was always in his place to do the right thing. P. Fitzgerald, at centre half is a dandy, and his playing on Saturday was of the best. Parnell, as cool as a cucumber in a rainstorm, and as tricky as a circus mule, was always in the game, and proved very useful to his team. He plays a heady game, making the best of every opportunity. M. Guerin at right half, gave his checks all kinds of trouble and played well throughout. There was little to choose between the forwards, each putting up a creditable game. Renton, was missed at right wing, though Moore, who replaced him, played splendidly, and fitted in well with C. Fitzgerald, who also did good work. J. Guerin made an effective centre, while Perdue and Brooks showed splendid form on the right wing. The Quakers play a gentlemanly game and are deserving of every support.

Harwood has a good team, and though beaten they were in no wise disgraced on Saturday. The team is well balanced and play a pretty game, the forwards at times playing a very effective combination. It is only justice to them to state that both goals scored scored against them were somewhat fluky, being long shots which McAllister foolishly played or tried to play with his foot instead of using his hands and the result was that he kicked clear over the ball on both occasions, and the feather glided peacefully into the goal. Donaldson was the most effective of the defence men, though he was inclined to be a wee bit too strenuous in his play at times. The visitors were somewhat disorganized owing to the failure of the regular goal-tender to show up.

The teams were:—

Harwood.	Quakers.
Goal.
McAllister	Belleghem
Backs.
Butters	Simpson
Pickering	Doris
Half-backs.
Payne	Parnell
Donaldson	P. Fitzgerald
Corkery	M. Guerin
Right Wings.
Harris	Moore
Eastwood	C. Fitzgerald
Centre.
Smart	J. Guerin
Left Wings.
Sorbey	Perdue
Young	Brooks
Goal Umpire
Goldey	Shortell

Mr. A. Noble gave general satisfaction as referee.

The game was called about 2.50 o'clock, and the first half was played in the rain, which very kindly ceased during the second period. After four minutes' play, C. Fitzgerald took a long shot which McAllister missed. A minute later, P. Fitzgerald repeated the performance and the Harwood goal keeper repeated his manoeuvre and the score was 2—0. Towards the close of the first half the visitors played in aggressive form, but they fell away in the second period which was chiefly in favour of the Quakers, though they failed to score. They had a chance in the first half to add another from a penalty kick, but Simpson's aim was wide.

GOAL KICKS.

Keep it up—Quakers.

The game was witnessed by about 75 spectators.

P. Fitzgerald played a great game at centre-half.

The Harwood bunch expect to turn the tables next Saturday.

No one was injured in the game and there were no stops.

The Quakers have not struck a team yet which has made them quake.

Ben Simpson was as firm as a church and his long punts were much in evidence.

The Quakers played three league matches in eight days, winning two and tieing the other. Not so bad, either.

It must have vexed those Harwood boys when Parnell dodged three of them in a row and took the leather along also.

Several of the champion Y.M.C.A. team were watching the game. They looked as though they were simply spoiling for the chance to lick some team.

Earthquake in Balkans on Easter Monday Unreported.

London, May 16.—A man who recently returned from Sofia writes to the newspapers giving a description of the results of a Balkan earthquake on Easter Monday, which has practically not been noticed by the press.

Two thousand houses were destroyed and 10,000 people made homeless in a fertile valley in which lies Jumabala, the scene of the disaster. The writer describes a ride through the villages a week after the seismic disturbance. Houses were levelled to the ground and there were huge cracks across the streets. Sulphurous streams of mud and water were ruining the crops.

The smashed arsenals of the Khan were crumbling to the ground, and the Government buildings littered the earth like rubbish heaps. Amid the tragic confusion the poor people, who were dazed and confused, were silent, but were striving to repair the damage to their homes, although this was almost hopeless, as they have little capital and meagre resources.

SPEAR 50 BANDITS

Chinese Bandits Attack Coal Mines Near Liaoyang.

DRIVEN BACK BY RUSSIANS

What St. Petersburg Authorities Fear Is the Policy of the Japs and Chinese in Collusion—Enemy Will Drive Russians Into Mongolia and Chinese Will Then Fall Upon Them.

Liaoyang, May 16.—The Chinese bandits are becoming bolder and are causing considerable trouble to the Russian outposts. A swarm of the bandits at noon, May 13, attacked the coal mines on the branch line east of Yantai Station, ten miles north of Liaoyang. The mines, which supply the whole railroad, were guarded by 200 riflemen and 100 Cossacks. In a fierce fight the Russians repelled the bandits and then charged them, the bandits fleeing to the hills and to three neighboring villages. The troops surrounded the villages and demanded the surrender of the bandits. The surrender was at first refused, but, fearing that the Russians would destroy their homes, the villagers finally revealed the hiding places of the fugitives. The bandits fought with the desperation of entrapped rats, and fifty of them were speared and killed. The Russians suffered no loss.

WHAT RUSSIA FEARS.

That Japs Will Drive Her Forces Into Mongolia and That Chinese Will Fall Upon Them.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—In view of the official despatches regarding the hostile attitude of the Chinese within and without the Russian sphere of influence, the authorities here do not conceal their apprehension as to the outlook, especially in the north of the Empire, for they purpose to call the attention of the celestial Government to the impending uprising in Tupadciatsi, in order that repressive measures may be instantly taken.

It is known and appreciated here that all the powers have made strong representations to Pekin in the interest of the preservation of the tranquility of the Empire, but it is stated that Major-General Pflug's despatch of May 14 shows the necessity for further impressing the celestial with the advisability of acting with a firm hand.

The authorities do not forget the Boxer revolt, which spread from Shantung, would have involved the entire Empire had it not been for the firmness of the southern viceroys. The military authorities in St. Petersburg claim to have information of a sensational character to the effect that the Chinese have tacitly agreed to co-operate with the Japanese operations against the Russians.

An Eastern Intrigue.

The Japanese propose, it is stated, to drive General Kuropatkin's forces into Mongolia, which would place the Russians in the positions of invaders of neutrality territory and enable reprisals by General Ma's army. This army, it is asserted, is kept in that region for that special object. Thus the slightest infringement of neutrality of China by Japan would be cleverly avoided and the Chinese troops, by not crossing the Manchurian frontier, could not be charged with a violation of pledges in respect to non-interference in military operations in Manchuria.

The opinion of an eminent strategist, with whom the Associated Press talked yesterday, is that the Japanese intend to attack not only Liaoyang, but all along the line, in an effort to drive Gen. Kuropatkin into Mongolia, where the Chinese are waiting for him.

Knowing these conditions, Gen. Kuropatkin, he said, would not be likely to make a serious resistance at Kaiping or Haicheng, but would withdraw to the north. This would enable the Japanese to march on Newchwang with little hindrance, and would permit their unopposed use of that point as a base from which men and supplies could be sent north without any violation of neutral zone west of the Liao River.

Rising Against Christians.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—Gen. Pflug reports under date of May 15: According to information from the frontier guards and missionaries, Topatesatse, twenty-five miles southwest of Huptchentsi, a Chinese rising against Russians and Christians is being prepared.

Praise From Dundonald.

Toronto, May 16.—The annual garrison parade took place here yesterday, and immense crowds watched the soldiers as they paraded through the streets. Of cavalry there were 13 officers and 219 men; artillery 3 officers, 47 men; Queen's Own Rifles, infantry, 667 strong; 48th Highlanders, 550 strong; Royal Grenadiers, 532 strong, and Army Medical Corps, 40 strong. Lord Dundonald said that the parade was very creditable, and he regretted that want of time prevented it being more minutely seen.

With 127 Gill Nets.

Port Stanley, May 16.—Capt. E. Dunn of the Dominion cruiser Petrel arrived here yesterday morning with one hundred and twenty-seven American gill nets, which he found set in Canadian waters, about five miles north of the boundary line and east of Pelee Island.

Artillery Officer Missing.

Kingston, May 16.—An artillery officer has disappeared. He has not been on duty for several days, and is absent without the necessary permission, a very serious offence. There are various conjectures as to his disappearance.

DIED IN MILLBROOK.

Mr. Archibald Wood an old Resident Passes Away.

The death occurred in Millbrook on Saturday evening of Mr. Archibald Wood, one of the oldest residents of that village. The deceased gentleman, who was 77 years of age, had been ailing for some weeks, and the end was not altogether unexpected. His death was the result of an attack of pneumonia.

The late Mr. Wood was prominently known throughout the district, being a partner in the well known banking firm of Wood & Kells. In his earlier days he carried on a general store business in Millbrook, in partnership with Mr. T. G. Kells, in which he was very successful.

The late Mr. Wood never identified himself in public life, but took a deep interest in the affairs of the community. He was a member of the Anglican church, and in politics he was a Liberal.

There are left to mourn his demise a wife and a family of three sons and four daughters. The sons are Messrs. W. T., and H. M., of Millbrook, and Mr. W. G. Wood, manager of the Bank of Toronto, at Oakville. Mr. John Wood of the Fifth Ward, is a brother of the deceased.

The funeral took place this afternoon, to the Cavan cemetery.

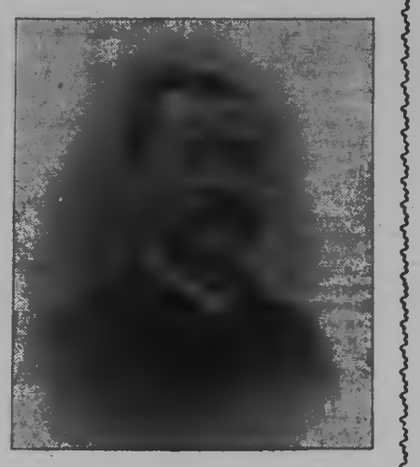
CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH FREE OF DEBT.

Congregation Raised Over $1080 Yesterday by Special Offering

Rev. D. O. Crossley of Bowmanville Preached Last Evening—A Service of Great Rejoicing—Very Liberal Response to the Appeal.

At Charlotte street church yesterday, a special effort was made to free the church from debt, which has been clinging to the church since it was built, thirty-two years ago. The congregation responded nobly to the appeal and contributed $1,084 for the cause, though only $800 was required to pay off the debt. Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Bowmanville, who, seven years ago started a plan for paying off the debt, was present yesterday to rejoice with the congregation and preached at the evening service.

For the first time in its history, the Charlotte street Methodist church was last evening freed from debt by the very liberal and hearty response by the congregation to a special effort to raise sufficient funds for this purpose. It was with the deepest feelings of gratitude and rejoicing that the large congregation arose last evening and sang with fervent zeal, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," after the announcement had been made that the debt was a thing of the past. The amount required to pay off the indebtedness was $800.00, and only three weeks ago a movement was inaugurated by the trustees to raise this amount, and it was certainly more than gratifying when the pastor announced that the sum raised was, to be exact, $1,084.95, removing the debt, and leaving a handsome balance, which will be devoted towards improving the church. The congregation is to be commended for their liberal giving and for the hearty response in regard to the undertaking, which was by no means an ordinary one.



REV. W. J. JOLLIFFE, B.C.L.,
Pastor of Charlotte Street Methodist Church

It is nearly seven years ago that Rev. D. O. Crossley suggested and was greatly instrumental in carrying out a plan, for the extinction of the church debt, which was at that time about $12,700. He asked that in the next six years the congregation raise $6,000 by subscription, and that the remaining sum should be paid from the pew rents, there to be no increase in salaries or further indebtedness incurred until the debt was entirely paid off. The plan was adopted, and by next January the church would have been free from debt. About three weeks ago, however, the energetic trustees determined to raise the remaining $800 by special effort, and free the church before the coming Conference and, as stated above, their efforts were crowned with glorious success, and to-day the Charlotte street church is rejoicing in its prosperity and thankful for the bountiful blessings received.

The services yesterday were of a bright and joyous nature, and although the result of the special offering was not known until the conclusion of the service, the congregation seemed to feel confident in the result, and were assured by the pastor that there would be every cause for rejoicing.

In the morning the pastor, Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, preached from the text "I will glorify the house of my glory." The choir sang with splendid effect, "He that dwelleth," while during the offertory Miss Belleghem and Mr. Breininger sang a duet in an effective manner.

The church was crowded at the evening service, when Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Bowmanville, a former pastor, preached a powerful sermon from the words, "For David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers." Acts 13, 36. The possibilities of life are confined to the limits of a single generation, and as far as we are concerned, they are confined to a few brief and fleeting years, were the preacher's opening remarks. This fact should startle us into activity, and show us that if we are to be anything, there is no time to waste, for time is valuable, and to waste it under the circumstances is a sin. David made preparations in his youth to make the best of life's opportunities, and his life was signally useful, because he reped the benefits of his early preparation. God said of David, that "he was a man after mine own heart," and, what God said of David as a man should be said of everyone of us as men; what was said of David's life should be said of ours. We should try and make our characters such as would meet the Divine approval, and our life as useful as was David's.

Life gives us opportunities to serve, continued Mr. Crossley, and if they are not used in service the result will not be gratifying to us. The greatest man is he who serves his generation best; we should not be satisfied to be but fair specimens of mankind, but our uttermost desire should be to serve our day and generation, and we should aim at the noblest and highest things. This is the correct idea of life, but we have been a long time in finding it out. How to bless and help our fellowman should be a thought constant in our mind, it is the intentional, not the accidental good, that will count when our opportunities are over. Reference was made by the speaker to a man's opportunities in the material, social and spiritual world, and in dealing with the latter he said that every man should set a Christian example, and have the highest ideals; the highest honour in life was to catch the attention of the world so that people would be so impressed by one's life and character that they would listen to one's speaking and hold such a one as an example of all that was loyal, true and Christian-like.

Many were satisfied with being simply carried along by the tendency of the age in which they live, as a chip of wood might be taken along by the current of the stream. Men with strong personality (and individuality and with the courage of their convictions were wanted to battle with adverse forces and stand for the right. If the world had reached a state of perfection and no reforms were needed, we might glide along in an indifferent fashion, but the world is far from this state and there are many fields for opportunity, and we must take a stand, not to be drifted by the current, but to strive to serve our generation. The world needed men solid for righteousness and steadfast in the work of the Lord.

If we are in advance of the preceding generation, it is because some one has thought out new and better ideas which gave a clear conception of life to us. We are a thinking people and each should have some thought which would benefit the world if put into practice. The way to elevate our lives is to grasp the right idea of life and hold on to it. We should elevate society by giving it a higher conception of life. The preacher referred to Mr. Carnegie making Booker Washington free to serve his generation and adding that he would rather be Booker Washington, even though his colour was black, who had done so much for his generation, than be as useless as some of the men about us every day. As Carnegie purchased this man's freedom, so God had purchased our freedom that we might serve our generation, and it was beautiful to realise this fact. The day would come when our opportunities would be over and we would have just the retrospect and the memory which, the speaker hoped, would be of a pleasant and sweet nature. Christ gave us a beautiful example in the words, "I am with you as One who serves," and we should all try to catch the significance of the text and strive to serve our generation.

After the sermon, the announcement of the suscription was made by the pastor, who briefly congratulated the congregation upon their liberality, stating that he had every confidence in them to raise the required amount, but hardly anticipated such a largeoffering and was naturally greatly delighted with the response. The congregation sang the Doxology after which Mr. Crossley added a few congratulatory remarks. He rejoiced that the old debt was dead and would never come to life again. He thought the walls of the church looked cleaner already and that the congregation would feel a load lifted from their shoulders. "I rejoice in the opportunity for service before you and pray that the Lord may direct you in the enlargement and extension of the church as the community will demand and that Charlotte street church may be a centre of a great spiritual influence."

Of the total sum raised, $990.75 was subscribed by the congregation; $50.75 was given by the members of the choir, $70.00 by the Epworth League, while the givings in the Sunday School yesterday amounted to $69.45, making a grand total of $1,085.95.

At the evening service, the choir sang "As Lord of Lords He Reigns," and during the offertory Mr. R. N. Jolliffe sang, "The Lost Chord."

HISTORY OF CHURCH.

The Charlotte street church was built in the year 1872, at which time it was a branch of the George street church, Rev. Chas. Fish and Rev. Samuel P. Rose being the ministers on the circuit. In the year 1883 the Toronto Conference of the Methodist church of Canada, met in Peterborough, in the month of June, and formed the church and congregation worshipping at the Charlotte street church into a separate and independent circuit, and a few years later the Charlotte street church was made a separate church. In 1883 Rev. Thos. Manning was appointed superintendent of the circuit. The first official Quarterly Board meeting was held on Aug. 15, 1883. In the year 1885 Rev. F. H. Wallace was appointed superintendent of the circuit, and he remained in charge until 1887, when he was succeeded by Rev. I. Tovell. In 1888, Rev. S. J. Shorey came to Charlotte street church, and remained until 1891, when Rev. Geo. Edwards assumed charge. He was followed in 1894 by Rev. J. J. Rae, by Rev. D. O. Crossley in 1897, and in 1902 Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, the present pastor, took charge. The church is now on a firm financial basis, and taking into consideration the spiritual vitality, and congregational unity prevailing, never were conditions more flourishing or prospects brighter.

During Rev. Mr. Edwards' time an addition of twenty feet was made to the front of the church, and the Sunday school, which was formerly at the rear of the church, was extended to Reid street.

The members of the present Official Board of the Charlotte street church are: Trustees, R. Neill, Dr. Morrison, J. Stevenson, J. R. Kidd; Stewards, J. C. Elliott, H. P. Kennedy, T. H. Goard, D. D. C. Dawe; Leaders, J. Batten, H. E. Hawley, J. I. Tovey, Mrs. S. D. Carver; Laymen, I. Richardson, J. Sutherland; Congregational Representatives, A. B. Cunningham, J. McCreary, J. Minorgan, J. Foster, W. P. Adamson, J. L. Hughes; Epworth League President, S. Armstrong.

The first Official Board meeting in connection with the church was in 1883, with Rev. T. Manning in the chair. The members of the Board were Messrs. G. A. Cox, J. Stevenson, W. A. Morrow, Stewards; J. T. Jeffers, Leader and Sunday school Superintendent; W. Cummings, Leader and Local Preacher; A. L. Davis, Society Representative.

This evening there will be a congregational meeting, when Rev. Mr. Crossley, of Bowmanville, Rev. J. J. Rae of Oshawa, and others, will speak and a financial statement of the church will be read. There will be a musical programme and a very enjoyable time is expected.

EXCITING RUNAWAY IN THE FIFTH WARD.

Mr. Jas. Crowley's Spirited Team did Some Damage.

This afternoon an exciting runaway occurred in Ward Five, when a spirited team of horses attached to a waggon became frightened in the Maple Leaf Hotel yards, and ran away. They dashed up Elizabeth street and after turning the corner to Stewart street, the waggon struck a tree and the contents, a load of chopped wood, was scattered over the road and the waggon badly damaged. The horses were stopped at this stage. The team belonged to Mr. James Crowley, of Otonabee.

ASSAULT CASE WAS DISMISSED

At Police Court This Morning More Bicycle Cases Dealt with.

There was a number of cases before the Magistrate at this morning's police court. The question of riding bicycles on the sidewalk is evidently still engrossing the attention of the police, as two more cases were dealt with this morning.

T. McBain was found guilty of mistaking the sidewalk for the road, and was fined $2. H. McCabe was charged with the same offense but the evidence in his case was not conclusive enough to warrant a conviction and the defendant was discharged with a warning not to appear again.

A case of assault was settled by the defendant paying the costs, which amounted to $3.40.

Andrew Hogg charged a man whose friends call him "Maude,' with assaulting him. The Police Magistrate asked defendant if it was a case of "come into the garden, Maude," but the defendant thought not. The complainant claimed that on Saturday night the defendant called him into Rountree's Hotel stables, and there threatened to punch him, and used some choice language and other things also. The defendant, he said, accused him of telling one Colon, that the defendant owned a horse which sold for $7; Hogg denied that he had said this, whereupon "Maude" shook his fist in the near vicinity of Hogg's nasal organ, and wanted to fight, but Hogg said, Nay. The latter claimed that the defendant followed him out to the street, still desiring a pugilistic encounter. Two witnesses for the defence, however, gave evidence directly contrary to that of the complainant. They saw the whole affair, and heard no threat of the defendant to punch Hogg's stomach, and saw the accused gesticulating with his hands, but not in a manner in keeping with the complainant's evidence. Colon was present in court and said that it was another man named Hogg who had made the remark about 'Maude's' horse and the latter was mistaken in accusing the defendant. So the whole affair was the result of two men having the same name. The Magistrate dismissed the case, though the complainant was sure that he could produce witnesses to upset the evidence of the witness for the defence. Mr. S. T. Medd was counsel for the defence.

A RUNAWAY ON ALYMER STREET.

Horse Became Unmanagable and Upset Buggy.

A runaway, which for a little while created a sensation, occurred yesterday morning on Aylmer street. Mr. Hugh Porter of Aylmer street, last week purchased a horse which was guaranteed to be quiet and have no bad tricks. Yesterday two young men living at Mr. Porter's hitched the animal up to a buggy with the intention of enjoying a drive. They had not proceeded far, however until the horse began to give evidence in a very practical way that he was not all that had been represented. He commenced kicking and soon became unmanageable. The occupants were thrown from the buggy, and the horse started on a mad run up Aylmer street. When he reached the point on Aylmer street where the railway crosses it the animal started up the track, and was stopped near Smith street, not, however, before the buggy had been badly wrecked. Fortunately the men were not seriously injured.

AN ACCIDENT.

Mr Jas. Navin Knocked Down and Injured on Saturday Afternoon.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Jas. Navin, an elderly gentleman, was knocked down by a farmer's rig on the corner of George and Simcoe streets. THE CANOE COMPANY SHOWS APPRECIATION

For the Excellent Services of the Fire Brigade.

This morning Mr. Thos. Rutherford, chief of the Fire Brigade, received from the Canadian Canoe Company an appreciative letter accompanied by a check for $15. The letter expresses the thanks of the Company for the services of the brigade on May 9th, when the carriage shop adjoining was gutted. But for the prompt and efficient work of the brigade the canoe factory would undoubtedly have been destroyed, and the firemen deserve the thanks not only of the Company but also of the citizens generally for their promptitude. That they thoroughly appreciate the kindness of the Canoe Company goes without saying.

THE WEBB CASE IN COURT OF APPEAL.

Judgment Reserved in the Appeal Heard Saturday.

In Toronto on Saturday in the Court of appeal before Chief Justice Moss, Judges Maclennon, Garrows and Maclaren, the case of Webb vs. C. G. E Company was heard. W. M. Douglas, K. C., for defendants, appealed from judgment of Osler, J.A., (2 O.W.R. 865) dated October 16, 1903, in favour of plaintiff for $700 upon the findings of the jury at trial in Peterborough. This trial, before Osler, J. A., was the second trial of the action, a former trial having been held before Meredith J., in October 1902. At the first trial a non-suit was directed, but on appeal to a Divisional Court such non-suit was set aside. An appeal was taken to the Court of Appeal from the order of the Divisional Court, and this appeal was dismissed with costs. The action was under the workmen's compensation act. The plaintiff alleged that he was working in a narrow trench, with a wall on one side and a line of rails on the other, in a building belonging to defendants. The line of rails passed through the building from west to east, and connected a building to the east with other buildings to the west, and the line of rails was used for the purpose of running truck loads of material from one building to the others. The plaintiff was working with his back to the door and about 15 feet from it, when a man who was working with him passed between him and the wall, and he leaned over with his arm on the track to steady himself. At this moment a heavy truck, laden with wire, pushed by four men, which had come through the door behind him without his knowledge, and without any warning to him, passed over his arm and injured it. The plaintiff alleged negligence of the superintendent who was in charge of transferring the wire. W. R. Riddell, K. C., and H. E. Rose, for plaintiffs, opposed appeal. Judgment reserved.

A COLONIAL CAREER

What British Board School Pupils Should Keep in Mind.

AN EMIGRATION SUGGESTION

The Animal Meat Trade of Great Britain—Every Effort Is Being Made to Remove Embargo on Importation of Canadian Cattle—Lyttelton and the Colonial Question—Reminder to Rosebery.

London, May 16.—(C. A. P.)—C. Kinloch Cooke advocates in The Morning Post a State-aided emigration system to Canada and Australia drawn up and considered by the authorities of the Motherland and her over-sea possessions. The children of the Board Schools should be taught to look forward to a colonial career, and this should be followed by a Government grant to take them out free and secure them employment on the other side.

Foreign Meat Trade.

London, May 16.—(C.A.P.)—Chairman Holland of the animal and meat trade section of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce states that 876,000 live animals were landed in the United Kingdom ports during 1903. There was imported from the colonies and foreign countries 748,810 tons of live and dead meat. Every effort is being made to remove the restrictions on the importation of Canadian cattle, but there is little chance at present of success.

The Colonial Question.

London, May 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Right Hon. Alfred Lyttelton, Secretary for the Colonies, was present at the Cambridge University banquet Saturday night, and replying to the toast of His Majesty's Government, said he did not think it wholly unhappy that Lord Beaconsfield's program that self-government for the colonies ought to have been accompanied by an Imperial tariff, a military code and a representative council in London had not been fully fulfilled. It was a great thing for the Empire that the colonies should now have perfect freedom to negotiate with the Motherland, and by the very fact of their freedom make that greater freedom which would ultimately come to be based more on consent than on assertion. The attempt at supremacy in the case of Russia afforded an example of the great danger to an Empire involved in attempting to rule too stiffly from a centre. Britain had adopted the opposite policy, and the greatest achievement of all would result from this liberty given to all parts of the Empire. Canada and Australia had given a great opportunity for this fusing process. Sir Frederick Borden had been united with the Imperial Defence Committee not as a witness or assessor, but as an actual member. This and quadrennial meetings of the colonial Prime Ministers were steps which had been cautiously made, but in which were the germs in embryo of greater things.

Three Who'll Meet Again.

London, May 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Daily Chronicle reminds Lord Rosebery that his remark at the farewell dinner to Lords Curzon and Minto, "Well done; when shall we three meet again," will be fulfilled.

Canada Rejects Few.

London, May 16.—(C. A. P.)—A Board of Trade memorandum shows that in 1903 the American authorities rejected 305 British emigrants and Canada nine, Canada also returning 168 foreigners who arrived there through Britain, on account of disease.

Marquis of Donegal Dead.

London, May 16.—George Augustus Hamilton Chichester, fifth Marquis of Donegal, is dead. He was born June 27, 1822.

The deceased peer succeeded to the title in 1889 and married in 1902 en troisieme noces, Violet Gertrude, daughter of Henry St. George Twining, of Halifax, N. S., he being then eighty years of age and his bride in her early twenties. A son, by courtesy the Earl of Belfast, was born in 1903, and now succeeds to the peerage. The Marquis' residences were Court House, Belfast, and Castle Chichester, Isle of Magee, County Antrim.

FATAL MINE MISHAP.

Driver Patton Jerked Off a Car at Coal Creek and Killed.

Fernie, B.C., May 14.—A fatal accident occurred in No. 2 Mine, Coal Creek, in which a driver named Wm. E. Patton met instantaneous death. Patton was on the front car, and when going down an incline in the tunnel the line became wrapped around his foot, jerking him from his seat. He fell in front of the car, breaking his neck and one leg. He was quite dead when picked up. Deceased came from Westville, Pictou County, N.S.

Capt. McGee's Tragic Death.

Ottawa, May 16.—James McGee, captain of the Rough Rider champion football team, and a stellar player on the Ottawa Hockey team, died in the Catholic General Hospital yesterday afternoon as the result of being thrown from a horse on Monday. He never recovered consciousness. He was out with a riding school class at the time of the accident. He was a son of J. G. McGee, clerk of the Privy Council, and a nephew of the late Hon. D'Arcy McGee. The death has cast a gloom over the city, as he was exceptionally popular.

Stubborn Skin Diseases.

Nothing is more discouraging than a case of eczema or salt rheum which refuses to heal. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment, however, you soon see that new skin is forming and the sore part is becoming smaller and smaller. The itching is entirely overcome after a few applications and you are given satisfactory evidence that a continuation of the treatment will bring a thorough cure.

GIRL TIRED OF LIFE.

Selected Rosedale Ravine, Toronto, As the Place of Death, and Used Carbolic Acid.

Toronto, May 16.—Lying dead from her own hand, a two-ounce bottle, one-third full of carbolic acid, by her side, the body of a young woman was found in the Rosedale Ravine yesterday afternoon. It was about 4.30, when Richard Noble, 218 Victoria street, and Isaac Johnstone, rear 10 Centre street, were walking along the ravine drive, when they made the discovery. The body was lying a few feet from the fence, under which she had evidently crawled, as there was an opening sufficiently large enough for her to pass through. The spot she selected to take her fatal potion is about midway between the Sherbourne street and Huntley street bridges. Noble and Johnstone notified the police, and Constables Follis and Scanlan took charge of the body, which Chief Coroner Johnston ordered removed to Millard's undertaking rooms.

Description of Dead Girl.

The body is that of a young woman 18 or 20 years of age. So far she has not been identified, nor is there any report to the police of any one missing that answers her description. She was dressed in a black serge skirt, heavy cotton corded shirtwaist, black satin ribbon around her neck, with a bow in front, heavy laced walking boots, black hat, grey cloth jacket, with check lining. Her hair was light brown, worn pompadour, and tied with a black ribbon. The shirtwaist was fastened with two flag pins. On one was the word "Toronto."

Her Chatelaine's Contents.

The bottle which contained the poison was of blue glass, with a glass stopped, with a label marked carbolic acid. Near her was a small black chatelaine bag, containing a farthing piece, two "good luck" tokens, an American cent, set in white metal, a receipted bill for 12 cents for "drug," an opera house seat coupon, dated Jan. 2, Saturday matinee, a program of the "Bonnie Briar Bush," and the business cards of Dr. Rowland O. Dickson, dentist, Carleton and Yonge streets, and Sebastian H. Barnett, baritone. There was no money nor letters.

It is not thought the body had been lying there long, as the clothing, while damp, was not thoroughly soaked. The mouth and lips were burned from the acid.

Coroner Johnstone had not decided last night whether he would hold an inquest or not.

Later.—The young woman is believed to be Norah Golden of Mount Forest.

GRAND BAY BURNING.

Village on the Saguenay, Que., May Be Wiped Out.

Chicoutimi, Que., May 16.—News was received here Saturday that a great fire is raging at Grand Bay, fifteen miles from here, on the Saguenay River. Price Bros. & Company's saw mill and the saw and flour mills owned by Mr. Petit, M. P.P., have been burned, also part of the village. The fire started at 7.80, and, there being a terrific wind at the time it is feared that the whole village will be burned. Telegraph and telephone communications have been interrupted and further news cannot be had.

King Peter May Abdicate.

London, May 16.—Writing from Belgrade, a correspondent draws a gloomy picture of the condition of King Peter and the country. He says political and social circles are under a cloud of apprehension as to Servia's future. The air is full of rumors of dissensions in the great Radical party, the resignation of the Cabinet, the eventual abdication of King Peter and the possible occupation of Belgrade by Austrian troops. The rumors of abdication are declared to be premature, but it cannot be denied that the King's health is not good.

CHAPTER V.

THE bright sun of circus day shone into Harkless' window, and he awoke to find himself smiling. For a little while he lay content, drowsily wondering why he smiled, only knowing that there was something new. It was thus as a boy he had wakened on birthday mornings or on Christmas or on the Fourth of July, drifting happily out of pleasant dreams into the consciousness of long awaited delights that had come true, yet lying only half awake in a cheerful borderland, leaving happiness undefined.

The morning breeze was fluttering at his window blind, a honeysuckle vine tapped lightly on the pane. Birds were trilling, warbling, whistling, and from the street came the rumbling of wagons, merry cries of greeting and the barking of dogs. What was it made him feel so young and strong and light hearted? The breeze brought him the smell of June roses, fresh and sweet with dew, and then he knew why he had come smiling from his dreams. He leaped out of bed and shouted loudly: "Zen! Hello, Xenophon!"

In answer an ancient, very black darky, his warped and wrinkled visage showing under his grizzled hair like charred paper in a fall of pine ashes, put his head in at the door and said: "Good mawn', suh. Yessuh. Hit's done pump'-full. Good mawn', suh."

A few moments later the colored man, seated on the front steps of the cottage, heard a mighty splashing within while the rafters rang with stentorian song:

"He promised to buy me a bonny blue ribbon,
He promised to buy me a bonny blue ribbon,
He promised to buy me a bonny blue ribbon,
To tie up my bonny brown hair.

"Oh, dear, what can the matter be?
Oh, dear, what can the matter be?
Oh, dear, what can the matter be?
Johnnie's so long at the fair!"

The listener's jaw dropped, and his mouth opened and stayed open. "Him!" he muttered faintly. "Singin'!"

"Well the old triangle knew the music of our tread; sang the editor.
How the peaceful Seminole would tremble in his bed!"

"I dunno huccome it," exclaimed the old man, "but, bless Gawd, de young man happy!" A thought struck him suddenly, and he scratched his head. "Maybe he goin' away," he said querulously. "What become of ole Zen?" The splashing ceased, but not the voice, which struck into a noble marching chorus.

"Oh, my Lawd," said the colored man, "I pray you listen at dat!"

"Soldiers marching up the street.
They keep the time;
They look sublime!
Hear them play 'Die Wacht am Rhein.'
They call it Schneider's band.
Tra la la, la la."

The length of Main street and all sides of the square resounded with the rattle of vehicles of every kind. Since earliest dawn they had been pouring into the village, a long procession, on every country road. The air was full of exhilaration; everybody was laughing and shouting and calling greetings, for Carlow county was turning out, and from far and near the country people came—nay, from over the county line; and clouds of dust arose from every thoroughfare and highway and swept into town to herald their coming.

Dibb Zane, the "sprinkling contractor," had been at work with the town water-cart since the morning stars were bright, but he might as well have watered the streets with his tears, which, indeed, when the farmers began to come in, bringing their cyclones of dust, he drew nigh unto after a burst of profanity as futile as his cart.

"Honey, hit bald luck sing 'fo' breakfus'."

"Tief wie das Meer soll deine Liebe sein," hummed the editor in the cottage. His song had taken on a reflective tone, as that of one who cons a problem or musically ponders which card to play. He was kneeling before an old trunk in his bedchamber. From one compartment he took a neatly folded pair of duck trousers and a light gray tweed coat, from another a straw hat with a ribbon of bright colors. He examined these musingly. They had lain in the trunk for a long time undisturbed. He shook the coat and brushed it. Then he laid the garments upon his bed and proceeded to shave himself carefully, after which he donned the white trousers, the gray coat and, rummaging in the trunk again, found a gay pink cravat, which he fastened about his tall collar (also a resurrection from the trunk) with a pearl pin. He took a long time to arrange his hair with a pair of brushes. When at last it suited him and his dressing was complete, he sallied forth to breakfast.

Xenophon stared after him as he went out of the gate whistling heartily. The old darky lifted his hands, palms outward.

"Lan' name, who dat?" he exclaimed aloud. "Who dat in dem panjingeries? He gone jine de circus!" His hands fell upon his knees, and he got to his feet rheumatically, shaking his head with foreboding. "Honey, honey, hit bald luck, bald luck sing 'fo' breakfus'. Trouble 'fo' de day be done. Trouble, honey, great trouble. Bald luck, bald luck!"

Along the square the passing of the editor in his cool equipments was a progress, and wide were the eyes and deep the gasps of astonishment caused by his festal appearance. Mr. Tibbs and his sister rushed from the post-office to stare after him.

"He looks just beautiful, Solomon," said Miss Tibbs.

Harkless usually ate his breakfast alone, as he was the latest riser in Plattville. There were days in the winter when he did not reach the hotel until 8 o'clock. This morning he found a bunch of white roses, still wet with dew and so fragrant that the whole room was fresh and sweet with their odor, prettily arranged in a bowl on the table, and at his plate the largest of all with a pin through the stem. He looked up smilingly and nodded at the red faced, red haired waitress who was waving a long fly brush over his head. "Thank you, Charmion," he said. "That's very pretty."

"That old Mr. Wimby was here," she answered, "and he left word for you to look out. The whole possetucky of Johnsons from the Crossroads passed his house this mornin', comin' this way, and he see Bob Skillett on the square when he got to town. He left them flowers. Mrs. Wimby sent 'em to ye. I didn't bring 'em."

"Thank you for arranging them."

She turned even redder than she always was and answered nothing, vigorously darting her brush at an imaginary fly on the cloth. After several minutes she said abruptly, "You're welcome."

There was a silence, finally broken by a long, gasping sigh. Astonished, he looked at the girl. Her eyes were set unfathomably upon his pink tie. The wand had dropped from her nerveless hand, and she stood rapt and immovable. She started violently from her trance. "Ain't ye goin' to finish yer coffee?" she asked, plying her instrument again, and, bending slightly, whispered, "Say, Eph Watts is over there behind ye."

At a table in a far corner of the room a large gentleman in a brown frock coat was quietly eating his breakfast and reading the Herald. He was of an ornate presence, though entirely neat. A sumptuous expanse of linen exhibited itself between the lapels of his low cut waistcoat, and an inch of bediamonded breastpin glittered there like an ice ledge on a snowy mountain side. He had a steady blue eye and a dissipated iron gray mustache. This personage was Mr. Ephraim Watts, who, following a calling more fashionable in the eighteenth century than in the latter decades of the nineteenth, had shaken the dust of Carlow from his feet some three years previously at the strong request of the authorities. The Herald had been particularly insistent upon his deportation. In the local phrase, Harkless had "run him out o' town." Perhaps it was because the Herald's opposition, as the editor had explained at the time, had been "merely moral and impersonal," and the editor had confessed to a liking for the unprofessional qualities of Mr. Watts, that there was but a slight embarrassment when the two gentlemen met today. His breakfast finished, Harkless went over to the other and extended his hand. Cynthia, the waitress, held her breath and clutched the back of a chair. However, Mr. Watts made no motion toward his well known hip pocket. Instead he rose, flushing slightly, and accepted the hand offered him.

"I'm glad to see you, Mr. Watts," said the journalist cordially. "And also, if you are running with the circus and calculate on doing business here today, I'll have you fired out of town before noon. How are you? You're looking extremely well."

"Mr. Harkless," answered Watts, "I cherish no hard feelings, and I never said but what you done exactly right when I left, three years ago. No, sir; I'm not here in a professional way at all, and I don't want to be molested. I've connected myself with an oil company, and I'm down here to look over the ground. It beats poker and fantan all hollow, though there ain't as many chances in favor of the dealer, and in oil it's the farmer that gets the rakeoff. I've come back, but in an enterprising spirit this time, to open up a new field and shed light and money in Carlow. They told me never to show my face here again, but if you say I stay I guess I can. I always was sure there was oil in the county, and I want to prove it for everybody's benefit. Is it all right?"

"My dear fellow," laughed the young man, shaking the gambler's hand again, "it is all right. I have always been sorry I had to act against you. Everything is all right. Stay and bore to Korea, if you like. Did ever you see such glorious weather?"

"I'll let you in on some shares," Watts called after him as he turned away. The other nodded in reply and was leaving the room when Cynthia detained him by a flourish of her fly brush. "Say," she said—she always called him "Say"—"you've forgot yer flower."

He came back and thanked her. "Will you pin it on for me, Charmion?"

"I don't know what call you got to speak to me out of my name," she responded, looking at the floor moodily.

"Why?" he asked, surprised.

"I don't see why you want to make fun of me."

"I beg your pardon, Cynthia," he said gravely. "I didn't mean to do that. I haven't been considerate. I didn't think you'd be displeased. I'm very sorry. Won't you pin it on my coat?"

Her face was lifted in grateful pleasure, and she began to pin the rose to his lapel. Her hands were large and red and trembled. She dropped the flower and, saying huskily, "I don't know as I could do it right," seized violently upon a pile of dishes and hurried from the room.

Harkless rescued the rose, pinned it on his coat himself, with the internal observation that the red haired waitress was the queerest creature in the village, and set forth upon his holiday.

Mr. Lige Willetts, a stalwart bachelor, the most eligible in Carlow, and a habitual devotee of Minnie Briscoe, was seated on the veranda when Harkless turned in at the gate of the brick house. "The ladies will be down right off," he said, greeting the editor's cool finery with a perceptible agitation and the editor himself with a friendly shake of the hand. "Mildy says to wait out here."

Deranged Nerves AND Weak Spells.

Mr. R. H. Sampson's, Sydney, N.S., Advice to all Sufferers from Nerve Trouble is

"GET A BOX OF MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS."

He says: "I have been ailing for about a year from deranged nerves, and very often weak spells would come over me and be so bad that I sometimes thought I would be unable to survive them. I have been treated by doctors and have taken numerous preparations but none of them helped me in the least. I finally got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before taking them I did not feel able to do any work, but now I can work as well as ever, thanks to one box of your pills. They have made a new man of me, and my advice to any person troubled as I was, is to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills."

The Dinner Pail

Of the American working man is generally well filled. In some cases it is too well filled. It contains too many kinds of food, and very often the food is of the wrong kind—hard to digest and containing little nutrition. As a consequence many a working man develops some form of stomach trouble which interferes with his health and reduces his working capacity.

Where there is indigestion or any other indication of disease of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition, the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will almost invariably produce a perfect and permanent cure.

Mr. Thomas A Swarts, of Sub Station C, Columbus, O., Box 193, writes: "I was taken with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. At last I had all the complaints at once, the more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so weakly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair and I got so thin I had given up to die, thinking that I could not be cured. Then one of my neighbors said, 'Take my advice and take Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles in about six weeks, I was weighed, and found I had gained twenty seven (27) pounds. I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE CHURCHES.

ST. LUKE'S.

The Mission Band intends holding its annual entertainment to-morrow evening in the Sunday school. The programme promises to be a very interesting one. Twelve girls will give a play entitled, "A Society for the Suppression of Scandal." Mr. Legg and others will also take part. A box sale will be held in connection with the entertainment. The boxes contain fancy work and other useful articles. The proceeds will be devoted to the missionary cause.

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

A very impressive baptismal service was held in the Park street Baptist church yesterday. The congregation crowded the church and school room. On Thursday next the Rev. C. J. Cameron, the Field Secretary of McMaster University, will give an illustrated lecture on Colleges and Missionary Enterprises in New Ontario, showing the natural resources of this northern region, the hardships of the settlers, as well as their bright prospects. One hundred and fifty limelight views will be shown by a powerful stereopticon. On Sunday next Trooper Brace, late of the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles, will preach and sing in his father's pulpit.

Baseball Season Opened Saturday With a Win for the Local Team—Other Items of Sport.

STARTED SEASON WITH A VICTORY.

Peterborough Baseball Team Defeated Toronto Pirates.

Five Innings of Fast Ball Played Saturday—Home Team won by 5-2

The baseball season of 1904, as far as the Peterborough team is concerned, opened Saturday afternoon, under rather depressing circumstances, as far as weather conditions were concerned, but if the future games can be guaged by the quality of baseball played in the opening game, the enthusiasts in Peterborough, and that there are many such was evidenced by the large number who, despite the downpour of rain attended Saturday's game, will see some of the fastest baseball in the history of the game here, this season. The game was announced to commence at 2.30, but at that hour, the rain, which had fallen almost continuously since day break, was still in evidence in unpleasant quantities, consequently since the sky gave promise of a cessation of hostilities, it was decided to postpone the starting time to four o'clock, at which hour both teams were on the field, and although rain still fell, the game commenced.

For so early in the season and in consideration of the weather conditions under which the game took place, the quality of ball was excellent and the 300 fans who remained through the five innings game were well satisfied with the article of ball dished up. Although the ground upon which it was played, might have justified the statement that it was a "sloppy" game, the exhibition given by the two nines was far from warranting that appellation. It was of the sharp, snappy kind, with enough hitting to make it interesting, and few errors in fielding. The Pirates, considered by many competent to judge, the fastest amateur baseball team in Toronto, made its first appearance here Saturday, and taking everything into consideration, they played a splendid game, although the team was not able to put up the quality of ball of which the local nine is capable, as was evidenced by the fact that Manager Whitcroft's aggregation won by 5—2.

Flaherty was the slab artist for the homsters, and he had everything on the calendar. In the five innings he struck out 8 men, and in the last three innings only 10 men faced him. In the last two innings he retired them in one, two, three order.

As is quite natural to suppose, the ball was wet by the rain which continued to fall during the progress of the game, and the work of the pitcher was made more than ordinarily difficult, but this fact did not have the effect of making Flaherty lose his control. During every stage of the game the opposing batters were completely at his mercy, and only in the first two innings did they succeed in bringing in runs. The visitors scored one each in the first and second, which represented their run-getting, while in the third the locals brought in three and put a "lead pipe cinch" on the game.

Manager Whitcroft has the satisfaction of knowing too that he practically won his game. In the second innings, when the score stood 2—0 against his team, three men on bases and one man out, he stepped to the plate, and the second ball delivered was sent over the left fielder's head, bringing in two runs, and, indirectly, a third.

The few errors made by the fielders might easily have been excused, when the condition of the ground and the ball was considered, and although the two runs credited to the visitors were secured by errors on the part of the home team, no one feels like finding any particular fault with the players.

Evans, who was on the plate for the Pirates, was found for five safe hits. He struck out four men and gave one charity. He pitched a fairly good game and was given good support.

THE GAME.

Nicholson was the first to bat for the visitors, and made a base hit over third, which Sheridan failed to connect with. He stole second, was advanced to third, and scored on a passed ball. The next three batters, however, Lamont, McMahon and Tolley fanned the air, and the side retired. In their half the locals almost scored. Sheridan, who faced the pitcher first, hit a low grounder and was thrown out at first. Graham got to first on balls and Simpson popped a fly to centre, which, however, advanced Graham to second. He stole third, and attempted to score on Cawthorne's grounder. The latter, however, was out at first and the side was retired with the score still 1—0.

In the second Flaherty gave two charities, and the visitors again brought in a run. Leake, who was first to bat, fanned the air, and Ward walked, stole second and reached third. Nichols who followed, failed to connect with Flaherty's shoots. Sutherland also got a charity, and with two out, and two men on bases, Evans rapped a difficult liner bringing in Ward. Nicholson retired the side with a fly to Sheridan.

In the second half the locals "did things." J. Pilling started the avalanche when he placed a nice hit to the right garden, on which he reached the initial bag, and stole second. Belleghem flew out, but T. Pilling who followed drove a hot liner at Lamont, who fumbled, and both Pillings were on the bases. Flaherty made a single and filled the bases, when Whitcroft made the play of the game. The second ball delivered by the delusive Evans be sent to the deep left field and brought in two runs. Sheridan, who was next to bat, fanned, and Flaherty scored on a wild pitch. Graham's strike out retired the side.

In the third innings neither team scored. Lamont flew out to Sheridan, while McMahon did the same to Simpson. Tolley singled, but the best Leake could do was to rap a grounder to Flaherty who threw the runner out at first, easily. In the second half the locals retired in one, two, three order, neither of the batters reaching the initial bag.

The fourth innings was prolific of no satisfactory results to the visitors. Ward and Sutherland struck out, while Nicholls drove a fly over second which Whitcroft handled easily.

The Peterborough team added one in their half of the fourth. Belleghem singled, T. Pilling struck out, as did Flaherty. Leake threw low to second, and Belleghem scored. The side was retired by Whitcroft's failure to connect with Evans' offerings.

The visitors in the fifth, at the end of which the game was called on account of the heavy rain, failed to score. Evans, Nicholson and Lamont essayed to do things for the visitors, but failed.

In the last half the locals again scored. Sheridan was out trying to reach first. Graham singled, stole second, and reached home on Simpson's single. Cawthorne rapped one at Lamont, who missed, and threw high to McMahon, allowing the batter to reach first. Pilling flew out closing the innings and the game.

BLOWN UP BY A RUSSIAN MINE.

Japanese Cruiser Miyako Destroyed in Kerr Bay.

RUSSIA'S RESISTANCE TO JAPS

Japanese Squadron Could Not Drive Russians from their Position on Sunday—Fights with Chinese Brigands—They Cause Russians a Deal of Trouble—Japs Vigorously Besieging Port Arthur.

London, May 17.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Morning Post, cabling under date of May 16, says that according to native reports from Port Arthur the Japanese are vigorously besieging the fortress night and day by land and sea, and that sixty Japanese warships and transports have been sighted in Blackney Bay, and that heavy firing has been heard in Kichau Bay.

BLOWN UP BY A RUSSIAN MINE.

Jap Cruiser Destroyed With Two Killed and 22 Wounded.

Tokio, May 17.—The Japanese despatch boat Miyako was destroyed in Kerr Bay by striking a submerged mine. Eight casualties are reported.

The Miyako was lost while assisting in the operations of clearing the Russian mines from Kerr Bay, northeast of Talienwan Bay, on which Port Dalny is situated. Admiral Kataka (commander of the third squadron), returned there Sunday with a detachment of his squadron, protecting two flotillas of torpedo boats, which had been detailed to complete sweeping the harbor by the removal of mines. Five mines were discovered and exploded, and the work was being suspended for the day when the Miyako struck an undiscovered mine, which exploded with tremendous force under her stern, on the port side, and inflicted immense damage on the hull. The Miyako sank in 22 minutes. Two sailors were killed, and 22 men were wounded. The rest of the crew were rescued.

Stubborn Resistance Offered.

Admiral Kataka reports that the Russians withdrew from Robinson Point (northeast of Kerr Bay, which adjoins Talienwan Bay), May 12, but they erected a temporary fort on a height northeast of Taku Mountain, where they mounted six guns and constructed protecting trenches. The vessels of Admiral Kataka's squadron shelled the Russians throughout Sunday, but the latter stubbornly retained their position.

The Japanese flotillas, while sweeping the bay, were exposed to the Russian fire all day, but continued their work uninjured.

The Miyako was a cruiser of 1,800 tons displacement, and was 314 feet long. Her armament consisted of two 4.7-inch quick-firing guns and ten 8-pounders.

50 Miles of Railway Blown Up.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—The Japanese evidently are determined that there shall not be any further rail communication between General Kuropatkin and Port Arthur. Official advices received yesterday by the general staff say the Japanese have destroyed fifty miles of the railroad north of Kinchou.

No resistance was made by the Russians, who are gradually abandoning it, on the Japanese approach. Col. Spiridoroff is seeking to render the railroad as useless as possible to the enemy by removing the switches and otherwise disabling it. The Russians are retiring because of the approach of the Japanese columns sent westward by General Kuroki immediately after the occupation of Fengwangcheng.

Experts who discussed the military situation yesterday expressed the opinion that General Kuropatkin will not remain at Liaoyang.

Japs Undecided Say Russians.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—The following despatch from Major-General Pflug, dated May 15, has been received at the War Ministery: According to information received up to May 13 the enemy's advance from Fengwangcheng towards Liaoyang is characterized by indecision. It is to be supposed that the objective of principal Japanese forces is a point beyond Haicheng or Haityoou (Kaichau), another important group of these forces is concentrating in the district northwest of Takushan. Several skirmishes have occurred with Chinese bandits, in which three Cossacks were killed and four are reported missing.

The general staff has received the following despatch from Lieut.-General Sakharoff (Gen. Kuropatkin's chief of staff), dated May 15:

"On May 14 I was informed that Chinese bandits had appeared in villages 16 kilometres west of Liaoyang, and I sent out detachments of riflemen, mounted and on foot and a company of infantry. No bandits were found in the villages, the inhabitants of which answered evasively. As the force was returning from the Village of Shantaidtza, 12 kilometres west of Liaoyang considerable numbers of bandits were discovered at a spot where they had been concealed by the villagers. The riflemen attacked the bandits, who occupied the outskirts of the village, from which they were dislodged. They left 20 dead and a number of rifles and many cartridges. Our loss was two soldiers killed and three wounded. The Japanese have reoccupied Kaoulndian Sian."

Russia Is Without News.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—Owing to the interruption of communication with Port Arthur, the Admiralty has no information of its own, either regarding the blowing up of the Japanese cruiser Miyavo on May 15 or the torpedoing and crippling of an armored Japanese cruiser in Talienwan Bay, May 10, by a naptha launch in command of a young Russian naval officer.

Two Crossing Victims.

Wingham, May 17.—Mr. Robert Casemore, a farmer of the second concession of Morris, and his wife were driving home from Wingham yesterday morning, and when crossing the railway track on the first line of Morris were struck by the freight train going to London. Mrs. Casemore was killed and her husband so badly injured that he cannot survive many hours.

Found Dead in Bed.

Rossland, B.C., May 17.—Ralph Harron, a well-known commercial traveler throughout the Pacific Northwest, was found dead at his rooms in the Kootenay Hotel yesterday afternoon. Heart disease is supposed to be the cause. Harron played baseball with Rossland team at Trail on Sunday and exerted himself greatly.

Loss of $10,000.

Winnipeg, Man., May 17.—Popineau Bros'. saw mill at St. George, near Fort Alexander, Man., was destroyed by fire last week; loss, $10,000; no insurance.

Hanging Gardens.

The hanging gardens of Babylon were terraces on columns. The gardens were 400 feet square and over 100 feet high. The ascent from terrace to terrace was by flight of marble steps, and on the highest was a large reservoir.

Mrs. Anderson, Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, who witnessed her signature to the following letter, praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen many cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit, who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it." — MRS. R. A. ANDERSON, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

No other medicine for women has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

INSIDIOUS SHAPES ALCOHOL TAKES.

Medical Preparations Rich in Alcohol

Results of a Government Analysis of "Medicine".

The following appears in the last issue of Saturday Night:

"The following percentages of alcohol in the "patent medicines" named are given by the Massachusetts State Board Analyst, in the published document No. 34:

	Per Cent. of Alcohol by volume
Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound	20.6
Paine's Celery Compound	21.
Dr. Williams' Vegetable Jaundice Bitters	18.5
Whiskol, "a non-intoxicating stimulant"	28.2
Colden's Liquid Beef Tonic, "recommended for treatment of alcohol habit"	26.5
Ayer's Sarsaparilla	26.2
Thayer's Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla	21.5
Hood's Sarsaparilla	18.8
Allen's Sarsaparilla	13.5
Dana's Sarsaparilla	13.5
Brown's Sarsaparilla	18.5
Peruna	28.5
Vinol, Wine of Cod-Liver Oil	18.8
Dr. Peters' Kuriko	14.
Carter's Physical Extract	22.
Hooker's Wigwam Tonic	20.7
Hoofland's German Tonic	29.9
Howe's Arabian Tonic, "not a rum drink"	13.2
Jackson's Golden Seal Tonic	19.6
Mensman's Peptonized Beef Tonic	16.5
Parker's Tonic, "purely vegetable"	41.6
Schenck's Seaweed Tonic, "entirely harmless"	19.5
Baxter's Mandrake Bitters	16.5
Baker's Stomach Bitters	42.6
Burdock Blood Bitters	25.2
Greene's Nervura	17.2
Hartshorn's Bitters	32.2
Hoofland's German Bitters, "entirely vegetable"	25.6
Hop Bitters	12.
Hostetter's Stomach Bitters	44.3
Kaufman's Sulphur Bitters, "contains no alcohol" (as a matter of fact it contains 20.5 per cent. of alcohol and no sulphur)	20.5
Puritana	22.
Richardson's Concentrated Sherry Wine Bitters	47.5
Warner's Safe Tonic Bitters	35.7
Faith Whitcomb's Nerve Bitters	20.3

"In connection with this list, think of beer, which contains only from 2 to 5 per cent. of alcohol, while some of these "bitters" contain ten times as much, making them stronger than whisky, far stronger than sherry or port, with claret and champagne away behind."

"Now these "patent" alcoholic stimulants—advertised by all the daily and nearly all of the religious papers—are taken by well-intentioned people who could not be induced to imbibe a spoonful of whisky on any account. The stuff is fed to children born and unborn, directly or indirectly, from a "medicine" bottle from which perhaps the enfeebled mother obtains her "tonic" or the complaining husband gets something to "strengthen his stomach."

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism.

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was very painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried; in fact she is never without it now, and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with. For sale by all druggists.

SUPREMACY OF LICENSE BOARDS

Cannot be Compelled to Issue Liquor Licenses.

Opinion of Chief Officer of the License Department—Quashing By-laws Does not Mean Restoring Licenses.

Should Justice Anglin quash the local option bylaw in Harwich Township, as he intimated his intention of doing, it is very probable that the question of the powers of license commissioners will be raised. Both Harwich and Blenheim come within the jurisdiction of the East Kent commissioners. In the case of Blenheim the board has refused to issue licenses, although the local option bylaw, which received a majority of the votes of the electors, was not given a third reading by the Town Council.

It is understood that two of the the commissioners are opposed to the issue of licenses, and that being the case the question arises, What will be the effect of Justice Anglin's decision to quash the bylaw?

"My own personal opinion," said Mr. Eudo Saunders, chief officer of the Ontario License Department, yesterday, "is that the commissioners are supreme. It is purely optional with them whether licenses are issued, and I believe that they are superior to any court in this matter. There is nothing in the act empowering the courts to issue a mandamus to compel the issue of licenses. There are dozens of townships in this Province in which no licenses are issued by the commissioners, although no local option bylaws have been passed, and their right to refuse licenses has never been questioned. The subject of the powers of the License Boards has never come before the courts. Justice Anglin may quash the local option bylaw, but that does not affect the right of the commissioners to issue no license in Harwich. A local option bylaw has only a negative effect. It is an instruction to the commissioners to prohibit the sale of liquor, and the defeat of such a bylaw does not by any means compel the boards to issue licenses."—Globe.

WARSAW.

Warsaw, May 14th.

Mr. Wm. Wasson, our thrifty mill owner, is receiving large quantities of Manitoba wheat.

The large number of logs in the yard are fast disappearing before the hum of the saw.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Joseph Cooper is in rather poor health, and trust he may soon be strong again.

Mr. Wm. Payne having sold his farm to his brother, intending to retire from labour, is, we understand, purchasing a property in Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Payne are among our best citizens and our community will be the poorer for their departure, they will, however, take with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

Indeed by death and change of place we are of late loosing a lot of our best people. Many regrets are expressed at the death of Mr. Warren Taylor. Two years ago Mr. Taylor had erected a beautiful residence in the village, and together with a sister, Mrs. Grant, had taken up residence here. Expressions of regret at his departure are heard on all sides among the large concourse of people who attended the funeral, but the sorrow was relieved to some extent by the consoling words spoken by his pastor, Rev. H. McQuade, who had been in daily attendance during this illness. The service throughout was both instructive and impressive.

Mrs. Mark Edwards was the subject of stroke of paralysis on Tuesday morning, one side being rendered helpless.

Some of our farmers will finish seeding this week.

In the account of the death of Mrs. Graystock and Mrs. Hamilton in last week's issue, the name of the clergyman officiating at the funeral should have read Rev. H. McQuade.

DWYRE'S CORNERS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The farmers in this vicinity are through with their seeding.

The rain which fell on Saturday and Sunday did considerable good to the timothy crop.

Quite a number of our villagers went to Peterborough on Thursday, expecting to view the first boat going over the lift lock. They were doomed to disappointment.

Mr. Richard Cavanagh and Mr. P. Allen have each purchased a new buggy from Mr. Fitzgerald, Peterborough.

Mr. Percy Allen spent Sunday as the guest of Miss Maggie Cavanagh.

On May 24th, no farmers need come to the village expecting to do shopping, as it is going to be strictly celebrated as in former years.

Mr. Andy Quinlan spent Sunday in Douro.

Miss Bridget Allen is now a resident of Peterborough.

Messrs. McNamara and Lowry of Peterborough are at present doing the brickwork at Mr. Jas. Collins' house. When completed it will be a handsome building.

A special meeting of the Football Club was held here on Saturday night in the town hall. Mr. Patrick Quinlan was elected chairman for the evening and Mr. Anvil Dwyre secretary. It was moved and seconded that the team practice every Saturday evening on the outskirts of the village and any team wishing to challenge them can do so by writing to the secretary.

Moved by Mr. John Smith, seconded by Mr. Thos. Cavanagh, that Jas. Herr be made captain. Mr. Herr gave an inspiring address and said he would do the best he could to bring victory to the team. Every one was delighted to see such a competent man in the field as captain. Next year the team intends joining the League, if it proves as successful as anticipated.

PETERBOROUGH MEN IN MAPLE CREEK.

Success of the Progressible Town in the West Contributed to by Local Men.

The first number of "The New West Era," an illustrated monthly publication devoted to the exploitation of the beauties and advantages of the Canadian North-west, published at Maple Creek, Assa., has been received at this office. The publication is a highly creditable one, from an artistic as well as a literary standpoint, and one which evidences the progressive spirit of the Canadian West.

From the "Era" it is learned that Peterborough is well represented in Maple Creek. The publication contains a well executed half-tone cut of Mr. John Dixon, formerly of Peterborough, now Mayor of the town, and in another part of the book the firm of Dixon Brothers is referred to as follows:—

"Dixon Bros. celebrate the twenty-first anniversary of their establishment as merchants in Maple Creek, this year. They were early on the ground as general merchants, and have ever kept pace with the growth of the town and always try to keep one step in advance. They expect to build a large addition to their handsome business block. Mr. John Dixon, the senior member of the firm, has also been postmaster since 1893, and is at present Mayor of Maple Creek. He is also a prominent Mason being a District Deputy Grand Master for this Territory, etc. There is no firm with a higher business integrity in the North-west than Dixon Bros., of Maple Creek."

NEW SUMMER RESORT IN PETERBOROUGH.

Fortescue Portmaster Praises Devil's Lake.

The Lindsay Post says: Mr. Austin J. Ford, postmaster at Fortescue, Cavendish township, about twelve miles east of Kinmount, was in town to-day, accompanied by his son, Almeric. Speaking of the severe winter, Mr. Ford said that many farmers in his district lost animals owing to the scarcity of feed. Mr. Ford's farm is located on the shores of White Lake, a body of water about 300 acres in extent; it is connected with Devil's Lake, which affords communication with Irondale, which is about four miles distant. The lake is a beautiful one and he hopes to see the district become a summer resort in the not distant future. Mr. Ford is an enthusiastic supporter of Hon. J. R. Stratton, who, he says, has earned the good will of every settler, Grit and Tory alike, by giving them excellent roads. As Mr. Ford has a bunch of eight sons, most of whom are of voting age, his good will counts for something.

ENNISMORE PRIEST PREACHED AT MARMORA

Eloquent Discourse by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick at Corner-stone Laying.

The corner stone of the new Roman Catholic church at Marmora, was laid on Sunday afternoon by Archbishop Gauthier, assisted by a number of priests from neighbouring parishes. The ceremony was a very impressive one, and was witnessed by a large gathering of people.

From the stone work already done one gets some idea of the fine structure this will be when completed.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick of Ennismore, preached the sermon from a passage in the Psalms. It was one of the ablest given in Marmora for many years. He spoke so clearly and distinctly that he was heard by every one in the audience.

From many passages in Scripture he showed the work of the church in the scheme of salvation, and its hold upon the affections of Catholics. Under his clear exposition one could see the glory of this great institution, its sacred offices, and living union with Christ. The sermon must have given inspiration to Catholics, and food for reflection to all of the great number in attendance.—Herald.

YOUNG'S POINT.

On Wednesday evening last, Lucy, the four year old daughter of Mr. Joseph Richson, of this place, met with a terrible accident. In the absence of her mother, who at the time of the accident was at a neighbour's, the little girl, with some other small children, went into the house. Finding out where the matches were kept, she lighted some and tried to put on a fire. Her dress however caught fire, and before the elder sister and the rest of the children could extinguish the blaze she was very seriously burned on the face, arms and limbs. Medical assistance was at once summoned and everything was done to relieve the sufferings of the little one. At present the little girl is somewhat better, but the doctor has but little hopes of her recovery.

There was also another accident in our village last week which might have proved fatal. Mr. Geo. Crossman, of Toronto, while working on the new steamer, Stony Lake, was struck on the back by the block and tackle while erecting the boiler. The pulley slipped, and struck him. Mr. Crossman was confined to the house for a few days, but is now able to be around again.

Mrs. W. H. Chamberlain of Peterborough is visiting friends here.

Mrs. J. E. Kearney has returned home after spending the past week with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. W. Brooks is spending a few days in Toronto.

The first drive of the season will arive here this week. It belongs to Mr. Alf. McDonald. Mr. P. McGrath has charge of it.

There has been considerable damage done to the wharves and verandahs of many of the cottages at Stony Lake, caused by the high water and force of the moving ice.

It is whispered around that one of our local sports accidentally got a cold bath here one day last week.

3 CLAUSES ADOPTED

Progress of the Transcontinental Railway Bill.

FOUR AMENDMENTS REJECTED

Supreme Court to Deal With the Halifax Fisheries Award of 1877—Immigration Returns For the Last Four Months —Sir Richard Cartwright's Grain Inspection Bill—Answers to Questions.

Ottawa, May 17.—In the House yesterday, Sir Richard Cartwright introduced a bill to amend the act respecting the inspection of grain. The object of the bill is to consolidate a number of amendments and to assimilate laws on the east and the west, which at present differ in some respects. The bill will be referred to a special sub-committee.

Mr. Borden asked if it had been decided to refer the Halifax fisheries award of 1877 to the Privy Council. Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that representatives of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island had asked for the reference and the Government had decided to grant their request. The form of the reference has not yet been decided upon.

The Minister of Militia stated in reply to E. F. Clarke that the municipality of Valleyfield has not paid over to the Government the sum fixed in settlement of its liability for the pay and maintenance of the troops called out on the occasion of the labor troubles in that municipality in October, 1900. Steps have been taken by the Government to collect the amount of the settlement.

In reply to Mr. Lefurgey, Sir William Mulock stated that tenders were called for the carrying of mails between Alberton and Kildare, P. E. I. Two tenders were received, one for $95 and the other for $94.95. The tender of $94.95 was accepted.

Mr. Ross of Ontario was informed that 86,666 emigrants arrived in Canada between Jan. 1 and May 1, 1904. During the fiscal year up to May 1, 19,527 homestead entries have been made or applied for.

Sir Richard Cartwright stated in reply to Mr. Clancy that sixteen seizures of binder twine have been made under the provisions of the General Inspection Act since Jan 1, 1902. In each case fines were imposed and collected.

Mr. Smith of Vancouver was informed that the Government has no information as to the proposed Imperial labor bureau to be established by the Salvation Army for the purpose of placing homeless and helpless children where they are needed in the colonies. There has been no communication between the Salvation Army and the Government with reference to the scheme. W. T. R. Preston had no authority for endorsing the scheme.

Transcontinental Railway.

The House then went once more into committee on the bill to amend the National Transcontinental Railway Act.

Mr. A. C. Bell continued the discussion, speaking in support of his amendment, that for every one share of Grand Trunk Pacific stock the Grand Trunk Railway Company receive the Government of Canada shall receive three shares.

Mr. Samuel Barker supported the amendment.

Hon. Mr. Sifton pointed out that the Grand Trunk Railway Company were tied to the proposition by becoming guarantors of the second mortgage bonds. They were therefore bound to see that it was successfuly carried out, otherwise they would lose the interest on the bonds. If the road was not profitable they would suffer. Large amounts of money for improvements and betterments would be needed from the very first. The G. T. P. having no credit in the money markets of the world, the Grand Trunk Railway Company would have to lend their credit to secure the money. There was not the danger of the project being financially endangered, as the C. P. R. scheme had been. The Government and the G.T.R. were both able to carry out their obligation. He did not believe there was any danger of western traffic going out via Portland. He was satisfied a line of railway would be constructed through Canada over which the traffic could be successfully and economically transported to a Canadian port. That was the main point of merit in connection with the enterprise now before them. It was not reasonable to think the G.T.R. Company were partners to a contract in which they would be largely financially interested, but which they would subvert to put the Grand Trunk Pacific Company into bankruptcy. The proposal now made was surely not seriously made. It meant a Government road in reality. The Grand Trunk Railway Company would say: "If you want three-quarters of the stock, you might as well take it all." It was not a business proposition. It would either be a Government line or a company line.

Mr. R. L. Borden maintained that the amendment was a business proposition.

United States Control.

Mr. W. F. Maclean said that as sure as the sun was shining American railway interests would control the Grand Trunk and C. P. R. in this country, as both stocks were listed on the American exchanges. We were adding one folly to another. Our millions were being sunk, and we would soon have the roads gobbled up by their American rivals. The Government's plan was improvident, unpatriotic, unnational, and against the public interest. Mr. Maclean commended, as a platform on which the Opposition could sweep the country, purchase of the Grand Trunk Railway stock now on the market, and thus controlling the new line.

After Colonel Sam Hughes had spoken in favor of the amendment, it was declared lost.

Clause three was then declared carried.

KENNEDY'S
MEAT MARKET.

Dr. Roche (Marquette) moved an amendment that the prairie section of the western division shall be commenced forthwith, and completed within four years from the passage of the act.

Early Completion Assured.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick pointed out that the construction of the entire western division at the earliest possible moment was absolutely necessary, not only in the interests of the people and of the Government, but of the company. While eight years had been fixed as the period within which the company may construct it, the anticipation of the Government was that the company will construct it at an earlier period than that. Although it was desired to have an eastern outlet, a western outlet to the Pacific Ocean was also wanted for the products of Manitoba and the Northwest. The immediate construction of the entire road could best be obtained by not adopting the amendment, as undoubtedly the object of the Grand Trunk Pacific was to reach as quickly as possible the rich farm lands of Manitoba and the Northwest. The company would put forward every effort to reach that point, and would not spend an idle hour until that was accomplished. When the company have reached that country they will have expended large sums of money upon construction, but they will not under the contract be entitled to the endorsation of their permanent bonds until the whole road is finished, so that all the money they have expended in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories will be practically lying idle until they have completed the whole road. Therefore it was inadvisable to insert in the contract the restriction contained in the amendment.

Hon. Mr. Haggart contended that the provision suggested by Dr. Roche was absolutely necessary in order to secure the prompt construction of the prairie section, and Dr. Sproule argued that the amendment would not hamper the Government, but would meet the wishes of the people of the west.

The debate was continued by Messrs. Maclean, Borden, Henderson, Oliver, and Ralph Smith, and shortly before 10 o'clock the amendment was declared lost.

5th and 6th Sections Passed.

The fourth section was allowed to stand, and the 5th and 6th section were passed.

On the section stating that the Government will not be bound by the contract until the Grand Trunk has guaranteed the second series bonds of the G.T.P., and take $25,000,000 of the common stock, Mr. Alcorn moved an amendment binding the Grand Trunk to abide by the terms of the contract as to route and rates, and to encourage traffic through Canadian channels and to Canadian ports. The amendment was voted down.

Mr. Clancy moved the next amendment, which declared that the Government shall at all times have the right to inspect the books and documents of the Grand Trunk in reference to matters arising under the contract. This was also rejected.

Mr. Rosamond got leave to introduce a bill to decrease the capital stock of the Ottawa Insurance Company, a move rendered necessary, he explained, by losses sustained in the Toronto fire. The House adjourned at 11.30 p.m.

PORT ARTHUR PANIC-STRICKEN.

Firebug Gives Notice of His Presence and Citizens Quake.

Port Arthur, May 17.—Despite the fact that special policemen have been sworn in, the firebug still keeps at his dastardly work, and yesterday citizens were greatly excited as the result of another attempt at incendiarism. The miscreant endeavored to set fire to an oil house situated at the rear of Benger's store, and only water dropping through the roof into paper saved Port Arthur from a heavy loss. The man shoved a large amount of paper under the roof and set fire to it. The paper was only partly burned, because of water from the roof. The town has been under special surveillance for the past few nights, a number of officers being added to the force. Every person out after 11 o'clock has been compelled to give a satisfactory account of himself or he is arrested. There is talk of forming a vigilance committee to assist the officers in their duty.

Drowned at Huntsville.

Huntsville, May 17.—Robert Swan, a young man employed as lumberman for the Muskoka Wood Manufacturing Company here, was drowned yesterday about 1 p.m., while going over logs to take up the slack in the boom. Ross Mantle, one of his fellow-workmen, got him out on a log, but the log rolling, they both fell in. Mantle had hard work to save himself, but Swan went to the bottom, and when taken out about ten minutes later, he was dead.

Newspaper Combine.

Ottawa, May 17.—William Martin Ringrose, proprietor of The Advocate, a Liberal weekly, published at Pembroke, has bought the building and plant of The Prembroke Observer from Thomas McKay, M.P., and will consolidate the two papers.

Barn Blown Over.

Ingersoll, May 17.—During the severe wind storm Friday afternoon, a large barn on the farm of Neil Murray, lot 7, con. 9, West Zorra, was blown over and wrecked. The barn had been recently raised, and was on a stone foundation.

Inspecting Penitentiary.

Kingston, May 17.—In accordance with the request of the warden, in view of the complaints from the guards and the resignations which have been taking place in the penitentiary, an inspection is in progress.

Comfort for Old People.

Much of the suffering of the aged is due to the kidney derangements which lead to backache, rheumatism lumbago and body pains. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills bring comfort to the old folks by keeping the kidneys healthy and active, and so eliminating from the body the poisonous waste matter which causes pains, aches and fatal disease.

Fell Three Storeys.

Kingston, May 17.—J. O'Gorman, head clerk in Gibson's Red Cross drug store, on King street, had a remarkable escape from death on Saturday night. He was carrying a box up in the third storey of the building and fell through the elevator opening. In his descent he struck against the floor of the second storey, the contact against which straightened him out, and he came down on his hands and knees instead of his head, and escaped with a dislocated wrist and a few bruises.

Curzon in London.

London, May 17.—Lord Curzon, the Viceroy of India, and Lady Curzon, arrived in London yesterday morning and had a great reception. Premier Balfour and the other ministers and many relatives and friends of Lord and Lady Curzon crowded the railroad station. Lord Curzon drove directly to Buckingham Palace, where he had an audience with King Edward. The Viceroy received a hearty welcome from the crowds along the route.

An Open Letter.

From the Chapin, S. C., News: Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhoea, and so severe were the pains that we called in a physician, who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand, gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. C. Bailey, Editor. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

EXPRESS REGRET AT PASTOR'S DEPARTURE.

Quarterly Board of the George Street Church Passes Resolution.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, B. A., has been a Highly Successful Pastor—The Church Has Made Rapid Strides.

Last night the Official Board of the George street Methodist church, held its last meeting for the church year, and a resolution, expressive of the Board's appreciation of the ministrations of Rev. J. P. Wilson, who in June completes his four year pastorate of the church, was passed. The discipline of the Methodist church allows ministers to remain only four years in one charge, and were it not for this fact the congregation of the George street church would not be content to allow Rev. Mr. Wilson to leave. During the four years in which he has been pastor, the church has been most successful, both materially and spiritually. The membership has largely increased, and every department of the church is in an exceedingly flourishing condition. The church debt has been very materially reduced, and a few years' more of the present successful ministration, would place the church free from all incumberance.

Rev. Mr. Wilson leaves about July 1st for Belleville, where he will take the pastorate of the Bridge street church, provided the change is sanctioned by the Stationing Committee of the Conference, which meets here in June. Mr. Wilson's successor will probably be Rev. Dr. Crowthers, who is at present in Belleville. The resolution passed at last night's meeting of the Quarterly Board, is as follows;

The Quarterly Board of the George street Methodist church, Peterborough, at this, the last quarterly meeting in the four years' pastorate of the Rev. J. P. Wilson, B. A., feel it a duty to give expression to their appreciation of their beloved pastor and of his pastoral services.

The board regrets that, under the law of the church the pastorate of Mr. Wilson cannot continue indefinitely. He has made himself respected and beloved. Eminently judicious, he stands the same to all; he has visited and comforted our sick and afflicted; all ministerial duties have been promptly and efficiently performed; his pulpit services have been most acceptable, instructive and heart reaching, so that at no time has there been a higher spiritual life than under his pastorate. We part in love and with regret and sincere wishes for his continued successful ministry, and for Mrs. Wilson and her family all prosperity and happiness.

MR. T. H. ADAMS GIVEN A LOCKET.

Staff of Employers of Golden Lion Make a Presentation.

Last night Mr. T. H. Adams, the proprietor of the new ladies' furnishing store was very pleasantly surprised by the employees of the Golden Lion store, of which Mr. Adams was, until recently, one of the proprietors. About 15 members of the staff waited upon Mr. Adams in his office last night, an Mr. Robt. H. Elliott on behalf of the staff, presented Mr. Adams with a very handsome gold locket, with his monogram raised on it, and on the opposite side the inscription, "Presented to Mr. T. H. Adams, by the employees of the Golden Lion." The locket is a very beautiful specimen of the goldsmith's art, and was supplied by Mr. A. Gibson.

In making the presentation, Mr. Elliott referred to the pleasing relations existing between Mr. Adams and the staff of the Golden Lion, every member of which, he said, wished him success in his new business enterprise.

Mr. Adams was totally surprised at this action on the part of the members of the staff, and expressed in a few words his thanks for the beautiful gift, and for the kindly wishes for his future success. He referred to the relations between them in the past, and said that it had always been a pleasure to be associated with them.

The affair was an exceedingly pleasing one and shows the cordiality existing between the two firms.

BETWEEN TWO AND THREE HUNDRED

Delegates will be in Attendance at Bay of Quinte Conference.

The Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist church meets this year in Peterborough. It is ten years since it last met here. The sessions will be held in the George street church, opening on Wednesday, June 1st, at 9.30 a.m., and continuing until Tuesday, June 7. Between 200 and 300 members are expected to be in attendance, at least part of the time. The Billeting Committee are now engaged in distributing billets among the local homes. They stuff lack provision for 80 ministers and laymen. It is the intention of the committee to publish the names of the hosts with their guests in the local papers and also in book form for distribution. As the list must be in the printers' hands by the end of this week, it is necessary that all who desire to assist in the entertainment of guests and have not yet signified their intention of doing so, should make it known at once to any of the local clergymen, or to B. Shortly, chairman, or J. Jeffries, secretary of the Committee.

CHEAP TELEPHONES LOOM IN SIGHT.

Draft Agreement Made for 10 Year's Franchise to a Local Company.

Chief Condition of Which is a Rate of $15. per Year for Resident and $20. for Business 'Phones—Underground Wires Also a Condition of Franchise.

A meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council was held last night, with all the members present except Aldermen Clinkscale and Hicks.

The principal business considered by the committee was the application of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company for a franchise of the streets of the town to erect the poles and string the wires necessary for the operation of the company's system of machine telephones. At the meeting of the council held on Thursday night, the company made a formal application and last night a conference was held between the members of the council and the officers of the company. The company was represented by Robert Neill, president, F. D. MacKay, manager and H. M. Ludwick, Toronto, secretary-treasurer. After considerable negotiating, an agreement was drawn up, which will be submitted to the council for ratification at a meeting to be held in the near future. The company, by the agreement, gets a ten year franchise of the streets of the town, upon which they may erect poles. The conditions of the agreement are that the company must have its system in operation inside of twelve months, and running in good order. The prices of 'phones for residences shall not exceed $15 per year, and for business 'phones $20, and a residence and a business 'phone contracted for by one person shall not cost more than $30 per year. The company also agrees to maintain the system in as modern a manner as in any place in Canada, and to keep it supplied with all the appliances used in any city in Canada in which the company operates. The company must keep the system in operation during the ten years life of the franchise and must not enter into combination or amalgamation with any other company in town.

Wires and cables must be placed underground on George street, from Murray to Charlotte streets; on Water street from Murray to Simcoe; Hunter, Simcoe and Charlotte, streets, from Water to Aylmer streets; and when requested to do do so, must place their wires underground on any other streets upon which any other company shall put its wires underground.

The company agrees to pay the town pole rental, when any other telephone company operating in Peterborough is charged rental for poles. All work on the streets shall be done under the direction of the Town Engineer, or such other officer as the council may appoint; and no trees shall be trimmed without the express permission of the council or officials. The company shall also indemnify the town against damages for any actions brought in by the operations of the company.

A meeting of the council will probably be held some evening during the week, in which the agreement drafted at last night's conference, will be submitted for formal ratification.

All the Aldermen present at last night's meeting were favourable to the granting of the franchise and it is not anticipated that there will be any hitch in the agreement passing the council.

A SUGGESTION

In Regard to Inspection of Granolithic Pavements.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As the season for making contracts for granolithic pavements is fairly upon us I wish to call the attention of the aldermen and the public to what, from my experience as a contractor, I consider an improvement. It seems to me that it is a waste of town money to employ an inspector at $3.00 per day to oversee the laying of pavements, especially when at the end of the work, however imperfect its character may be, neither the contractor nor the inspector is responsible. To my mind a better way and cheaper in the end, would be to bind the contractor by a strict contract, holding back a part of his money for at least a year, in order to see if the work will stand the test. Thus satisfactory work would be guaranteed to a reasonable extent and the cost of an inspector's salary saved. I have no personal interest in making this suggestion. I am not looking after any contracts to lay pavements in Peterborough nor have I any feeling against any particular inspector. I hope the aldermen will think the matter over and to the extent I have mentioned keep down our taxes, and at the same time secure just as good and reliable pavements.

Yours truly,
M. A. McNAMARA,

EPWORTH LEAGUE'S SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL.

George Street Young People Had Enjoyable Time Last Evening.

A very interesting social was held in the George street Sunday school room last evening under the auspices of the Epworth League. There was a good turn-out of members and a very enjoyable time was spent by all. By means of "marked down" tickets those present were paired off in the usual successful manner and the couples amused themselves by guessing conundrums. A programme, consisting of vocal solos by Miss G. Balfour, Mr. B. Turner, Mr Herb Mowat and recitations by Miss Alberta White, was rendered and highly appreciated. Mr. Garnet Galley occupied the chair in his usual efficient manner.

Pansies! Pansies!

2,000 pansies to be sold at once; also a fine lot of seedlings in boxes. Seasonable bedding-out plants ready for planting. Order early. Vases and hanging baskets called for, filled with suitable plants and delivered. Grand showing of fancy varieties of dahlias. Come personally or ring up 'phone 132. Jos. H. Cobb, Aylmer street greenhouses. Open till ten o'clock every night.

THIS MORNING'S FIRE AT THE HOSPITAL.

A Blaze at St. Joseph's was Quickly Extinguished.

Fire Confined to the Garret, and None of the Wards Affected—Prompt Work by the Firemen.

What might have proved a very destructive fire occurred shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, at the St. Josephs Hospital. When the alarm was sent in, a blaze had been discovered in the tank room on the top storey of the building. The flames spread slowly and crept up the walls to an opening in the ceiling and reached the garret above, where the firemen found work to do when they arrived. The firemen were prompt in answering the call and soon had their ladders in place and were working with a will. It was not necessary, however, to make use of the town hose as the hospital equipment was sufficient to stamp out the flames which was done soon after the arrival of the firemen. The firemen worked cautiously to prevent any unnecessary damage being done or inconvenience caused by the stream of water. The hall of the flat below the scene of the fire was damaged to some extent by the water, but the fire was kept confined to the garret and tank room and none of the wards were in the least affected. The patients were naturally somewhat alarmed when it was known that there was a fire in the building, but they were quickly assured that there was no danger of the flames spreading. The fire did not break through the roof.

The fire is said to have originated in a bundle of clothes, and was caused by spontaneous combustion.

The damage to the building is estimated to be about $500.00.

SAD DEATH OF FRANK DELAIRE.

Seventeen-Year-Old Son of Mr. John Delaire Called Away.

The announcement of the death of Frank Delaire, the 17 year old son of Mr. John Delaire, 460 Park street, which occurred this morning after an illness extending over a period of 5 months, will cause genuine regret among the many friends of the deceased's family. The young man had been suffering with a complication of diseases, and although he made a brave fight for life, he succumbed to the ravages of disease, and his death occurred this morning at his home.

He was a tool-maker in the employ of the Canadian General Electric Works, and was always industrious and steady. He was a general favourite with the men with whom his work brought him into contact.

The sympathy of the public is extended to the family of the deceased in their bereavement, which is made particularly sad because of the fact that this is the fourth death that has occurred in the family in the last five years.

The funeral will take place Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence.

SUCCESSFUL EVENT OF LAST EVENING

At the Charlotte Street Church in Connection with Debt Extinction.

Rev D. O. Crossley, Rev. J. J. Rae and Others Spoke—Pleasing Musical Programme—History of the Debt.

Last evening a congregational meeting in connection with the extinction of the debt on the Charlotte street church, was held in the School Room, which was crowded to the doors. The meeting was in every way a thoroughly interesting and enjoyable one, and a spirit of hearty thanksgiving was manifested by all present. A programme of speeches and music provided much pleasure, and the affair was in every way a great success, and in perfect keeping with the joyous festival.

After singing an opening hymn, Rev. Dr. Smith, a returned missionary, offered a short prayer, which was followed by a vocal solo, "Auld Robin Gray," by Mrs. C. B. McAllister. Mr. R. J. Kidd then presented the financial statement of the church as follows:—

Rev. J. G. Lewis, of the Mark street church, was the first speaker. He was compelled to say just what he would be expected to say, that he was greatly pleased to be present and see such a large audience, and the manifestation of such a spirit of rejoicing. On his own behalf, and on behalf of the congregation he represented, he congratulated the congregation upon the removal of the debt after many years of earnest endeavour. They had worked faithfully, and the hour of triumph should truly bring the spirit of rejoicing.

Rev. J. J. Rae of Oshawa, a former pastor, said it was easier for him to rejoice with those rejoicing than to weep with those in distress, yet he would be sorry if during his lifetime he had not learned to weep, for the fountain of tears and the fountain of joy were closely allied, and if there was a difference it was merely in the trend of the current. When we began to be men and women was when we began to do things which looked impossible, for by such efforts we bring into force our larger and better selves, and our lives become grander and nobler. This is what the Charlotte street church had done; it had accomplished that which at one time looked to be quite impossible. He congratulated the congregation upon their success in overcoming great obstacles, and congratulated every man, woman and child on their share in the great and glorious undertaking; he referred to those taking part in the special effort, and to the pastor in occupying the pastoral relation to the people, when the burden was finally lifted, and the last vestige of the great debt removed. He congratulated Mr. Crossley upon formulating such a successful plan for the extinction of the debt and for his earnest efforts to carry out his plan. Perfect harmony now existed, and the prospects were never so bright for the advancement of the cause of the church as at present. He congratulated the congregation upon the sweet sanity prevailing among them. He said it was never a pleasure to live until we had taken hold of life as a joy and delight, and that many were taking life too seriously. Mr. Rae believed he owed most to the men who had helped him to see the pleasant side of life, and that those who made life a pleasure and a joy to others did more real good than the best of preachers could do. Many are too serious; "they are never comfortable until they are uncomfortable, and never happy until they have made some one around them miserable," said Mr. Rae. The play spirit should be manifested more strongly. Christ said, "Come unto Me, ye weary and I will give you rest," and it should be a great joy for us to be permitted to take the weight off some human heart. Life ceases when we cease to be useful. No one could banish the delight of joy and gladness from the man who can say, "come unto me and I will give you rest." Mr. Rae at one time thought it was necessary to die to reach Heaven, but he now was of the opinion that Heaven could be found here on earth if we would but seek it. The speaker referred briefly to the question of money, which, he said, was a splendid thing if we had the ability to use it for the best purposes. In concluding he again congratulated the congregation, and hoped when he next visited Charlotte street church, it would be at the time of the laying of a corner stone for a new church.

Mr. F. Breiminger sang a solo entitled "When Father Laid the Carpet on the Stairs," and after a few remarks from the pastor in which he stated that Rev. J. P. Wilson had sent an expression of his regret at his necessary absence, and adding his congratulations to the congregation, Mr. R. N. Jolliffe sang "In Old Madrid."

Rev. D. O. Crossley of Bowmanville was the last speaker. He was pleased that the solemn obsequies in the funeral service of the old debt were not as solemn as is generally the case, but that they were happy obsequies and though the congregation had been intimately acquainted with the debt for many a year, they would part with it without shedding a single tear. We all owed a debt of gratitude to God and to our fellow men. The speaker liked to live with others and enjoy their associations and his associations with the people of Charlotte street church had always been of the most pleasant nature. Mr. Crossley rejoiced at the opportunity for enlarging the church to accommodate the many incoming people, and the congregation owed a place of worship to the incoming people to their section of the town. He had found out one secret in life that the best things come to mankind on earth by the proper co-operation with God in His purpose and plans concerning them. The world was made for man, and we should be in touch with Him who made the world for us and us for the world. Mr. Crossley was pleased that he was privileged to form a plan which had worked out so successfully though at first it seemed impossible to many, and he heartily rejoiced that the undertaking had been accomplished so speedily.

A vocal solo "The Sailor's Grave," by Mr. Walter Stocker, concluded a very delightful evening's entertainment.

BOUNTY FED STEEL

A Cargo From Dominion of Canada Subject for Comment.

FULL OF INTEREST TO BRITAIN

Glasgow Herald Says It Opens Up a Serious Question—Deplores the Fact that Scottish Iron-Masters Have Not Invested Their Capital in Canada Instead of in Spain and Algiers—Large Profits.

London, May 17.—(C.A.P.)—The Glasgow Herald declares that the combined cargo of steel and pig iron on its way from Nova Scotia to the Clyde is full of interest to Britain and America. The question of the open door in Canada for British finished products, if Canadian bounty-fed steel continues to be received, is bound to become a live one in the early future. The paper deplores the fact that the Scottish iron-masters have not diverted their capital long ago to the ironstone fields of Newfoundland and Eastern Canada, instead of the unsatisfactory fields of Spain and Algiers.

Tax on Food.

London, May 17.—(C.A.P.)—The free food Unionists, with the Duke of Devonshire presiding, unanimously decided to support Alex. Black, M.P.'s, motion, stating that protective taxation on food would be burdensome to the people and injurious to the Empire, and welcoming the declaration of certain ministers that the Government opposed such.

Profitable Canadian Business.

London, May 17.—(C.A.P.)—The report of the Trust and Loan Company of Canada for the six months ended March 31 shows the net profits to be £14,821.

Rushing to Canada.

London, May 17.—(C. A. P.)—Sixteen thousand emigrants have sailed for Canada since January, a thousand more than in 1903. Steamers sailing in the next few weeks are full up. General Booth's scheme of colonization is progressing, and some hundreds have been sent out, principally to Canada.

GOOD APPETITE NOT EVERYTHING.

You Must Digest Your Food as well as Eat It—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Ensure Perfect Digestion.

A good appetite may or may not mean that you are in good health. If you eat well and your food is digested your body will benefit from the heat and strength the food contains.

But many people who eat well have simply a false appetite caused by one of the varied forms of indigestion and Dyspepsia. These people need help. They need Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Take Mr. H. Bailey, of 206 Patrick street, Winnipeg, for example.

Mr. Bailey says:—

"I have gained in weight eight pounds since I began to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Before that no matter what I ate I never seemed to gain strength or put on weight."

If you would have health and energy be sure your Stomach is doing its full duty. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets ensure the Stomach doing its full work.

Found Dead.

Novar, May 17.—Daniel Stewart, an old resident of the district of Parry Sound, was found dead on the street here last night. Mr. Stewart had been engaged splitting wood for a resident of the town during the day, and was seen by several persons at work a short time before being found dead. Heart failure, no doubt, was the cause of his death, brought on by over-exertion.

Saw His Boy Drown.

Winnipeg, Man., May 17.—While Wm. Posthlewaite, wife and young son were driving into Brandon yesterday afternoon their horse slipped into a washout near First street bridge and all three were thrown into the water. Mr. Posthlewaite managed to save his wife, but while doing so the boy of nine years was drowned. The body has not been recovered.

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough." This remedy keeps the cough loose, lessens the severity and frequency of the coughing spells and counteracts any tendency towards pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

The Girl Identified.

Toronto, May 17.—The unhappy girl who gave up her life in the Rosedale Ravine during Sunday was identified yesterday by friends. They, however, desired that the name be withheld from publicity. It is understood, however, that her name is Monk, or Monck, and it is said that a recent marriage within her family proved distasteful to her.

Stabbed in the Back.

London, May 17.—James Harris, a young man employed at the London Bolt and Hinge Company, lies at his home in a very precarious condition as the result of a stab in the back. The perpetrator of the cowardly act is as yet unknown. The act was committed in a down-town hotel Saturday night, when Harris was asleep in a chair.

THE KING'S MAN.

Much Is Expected in St. Petersburg From New British Ambassador.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—Sir Charles Hardinge, the new British Ambassador to Russia, arrived in St. Petersburg at 2 o'clock yesterday. Because of the part the Ambassador is expected to play in carrying out King Edward's desire for closer relations between Great Britain and Russia, more than usual interest in his arrival was displayed in official and unofficial circles. The Government was extremely punctilious in the ceremonies imposed by international etiquette on the arrival of an Ambassador.

So soon as the Emperor returns to St. Petersburg Sir Charles Hardinge will present his credentials, and at the same time deliver a speech, which, it is expected, will reveal, guardedly, of course, the object of his mission. The authorities here attach considerable importance to the Ambassador's relations with King Edward. It will be regarded as being as much an expression of the views of His Majesty as one of the British Government.

In official and diplomatic circles it is generally known that the establishment of better relations between Russia and Great Britain is the object of Sir Charles Hardinge's mission. The specific purpose, however, are still veiled, despite the discreet enquiries made by foreign diplomats of their British colleagues here.

FAVOR ICE BREAKERS.

Government Will Hereafter Keep St. Lawrence River Channel Clear.

Montreal, May 17.—Commodore Spain of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, at a meeting held yesterday of the shipping interests and members of the Harbor Board, announced that the Government had decided to place two ice-breaking steamers on the St. Lawrence route between Quebec and Montreal. There will be one big steamer, which will keep the channel at Cape Rouge, the most dangerous spot in the channel, clear of ice during the entire winter, and a small steamer, which will be used between Sorel and Montreal.

Toronto Rhodes Scholarship.

Toronto, May 17.—Ernest Riddell Paterson, B.A., son of John A. Zaterson, K.C., 51 Walmer road, was awarded the Rhodes Scholarship at the special meeting of Toronto University Senate last night. Mr. Paterson was born Sept. 1, 1881, and was educated at Harbord Collegiate Institute, taking a scholarship there at the age of 16. At the University he took honors in classics, which is his favorite course of study, and which he intends to pursue at Oxford, whither he goes in the fall. He graduated in 1902, in which year he was editor of Varsity.

Judgment Reserved.

Toronto, May 17.—In the Court of Appeal Chief Justice Moss presiding the application on behalf of E. A. Dunlop, M.P.P., for North Renfrew, was heard yesterday. Mr. Dunlop wishes to have the Rev. J. A. Macdonald, managing editor of The Globe, committed for contempt of court, on account of an editorial published on May 6 entitled "A Celebrated Election Case." I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., appeared for the applicant, and A. B. Aylesworth for the defendant. Judgment upon the application was reserved. The argument lasted over three hours.

New Soo Company.

Philadelphai, May 17.—Announcement was made yesterday by the reorganizers of the Lake Superior Company that the following named men have consented to become directors in the new corporation: J. Tatnall Lea, Charles S. Hinchman and Francis B. Reeves of Philadelphia; John T. Terry, Charles E. Orvis and Dumont Clark, New York; George D. Terrel, Orange, N. J.; C. D. Warren, Toronto, Ont., and Thomas J. Drummond, Montreal, Que.

New Hope—New Courage.

Persons whose nerves are affected get blue and discouraged, are easily irritated and annoyed and learn to look on the dark side. The restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon shows its effect on the feelings. It gives new hope and courage, new energy and confidence. By creating nerve force it affords new vigour and vitality for both mind and body.

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA

By Booth Tarkington.

There was a faint rustling within the house, the swish of draperies on the stairs, a delicious whispering, when light feet descend, tapping, to hearts that beat an answer, the telegraphic message: "We come! We come! We are near! We are near!" Lige Willetts stared at Harkless. He had never thought the latter was good looking until he saw him step to the door to take Helen Sherwood's hand and say, in a strange, low, tense voice, "Good morning," as if he were announcing, at the least: "Every one in the world, except us two, died last night. It is a solemn thing, but I am very happy."

They walked, Minnie and Mr. Willetts, a little distance in front of the others. Harkless could not have told afterward whether they rode or walked or floated on an airship to the courthouse. All he knew distinctly was that a divinity in a pink shirt waist and a hat that was woven of gauzy cloud by mocking fairies to make him stoop hideously to see under it dwelt for the time on earth and was at his side, dazzling him in the morning sunshine. Last night the moon had lent her a silvery glamour. She had something of the ethereal whiteness of night dews in that watery light, a nymph to laugh from a sparkling fountain at the moon, or, as he thought, remembering her courtesy for his pretty speech, perhaps a little lady of King Louis' court wandering down the years from Fontainebleau and appearing to clumsy mortals sometimes of a summer night when the moon was in their heads.

But today she was of the daintiest color, a pretty girl whose gray eyes twinkled to his in gay companionship. He marked how the sunshine danced across the shadows of her fair hair and seemed itself to catch a luster rather than impart it, and the light of the June day drifted through the gauzy hat to her face, touching it with a delicate and tender flush that came and went like the vibrating pink of early dawn. She had the divinest straight nose, tip tilted a faint, alluring trifle, and a dimple cleft her chin, "the deadliest maelstrom in the world!" He thrilled through and through. He had been only vaguely conscious of the dimple in the night. It was not until he saw her by daylight that he really knew it was there.

The village hummed with life before them. They walked through shimmering airs, sweeter to breathe than nectar is to drink. She caught a butterfly basking on a jimson weed, and before she let it go held it out to him in her hand. It was a white butterfly. He asked which was the butterfly.

"Bravo!" she said, tossing the captive craft above their heads and watching

She fastened her rose in place of the white one.

the small sails catch the breeze. "And so you can make little flatteries in the morning too. It is another courtesy you should be having from me if it weren't for the dustiness of it. Wait till we come to the board walk."

She had some big pink roses at her waist.

Indicating these, he answered, "In the meantime, I know very well a lad that would be blithe to accept a pretty token of any lady's high esteem."

"But you have one already, a very beautiful one." She gave him a genial up and down glance from head to foot, half quizzical and half applauding, but so quick he scarcely saw it, and he was glad he had resurrected the straw hat with the youthful ribbon and his other festal vestures. "And a very becoming flower a white rose is," she continued, "though I am a bold girl to be blarneying with a young gentleman I met no longer ago than last night."

"But why shouldn't you blarney with a gentleman when you began by saving his life?"

"Especially when the gentleman had the politeness to gallop about the county with me tucked under his arm." She stood still and laughed softly, but consummately, and her eyes closed tight with the mirth of it. She had taken one of the roses from her waist, and as she stood holding it by the long stem its cool petals lightly pressed her lips.

"You may have it—in exchange," she said. He bent down to her, and she fastened her rose in place of the white one in his coat. She did not ask him, directly or indirectly, who had put the white one there for him. She knew by the way it was pinned that he had done it himself. "Who is it that every morning brings me these lovely flowers?" she burlesqued as he bent over her.

"Mr. Wimby," he returned. "I will point him out to you. You must see him and Mr. Bodeffer, who is the oldest inhabitant and the crossest of Carlow."

"Will you present them to me?"

"No; they might talk to you and take some of my time with you away from me."

Her eyes sparkled into his for the merest fraction of a second, and she laughed. Then she dropped his lapel, and they proceeded. She did not put the white rose in her belt, but carried it.

The square was heaving with a jostling, moving, good natured, happy and constantly increasing crowd that overflowed on Main street in both directions and whose good nature augmented in the ratio that its size increased. The streets were a kaleidoscope of many colors, and every window opening on Main street or the square was filled with eager faces. By 9 o'clock all the windows of the courthouse in the center of the square were occupied. Here most of the damsels congregated to enjoy the spectacle of the parade, and their swains attended, posted at colgns of less vantage behind the ladies. Some of the faces that peeped from the windows of the dark, old, shady courthouse were pretty, and some of them were not pretty, but nearly all of them were rosy cheeked, and all were pleasant to see because of the good cheer they kept.

Here and there, along the sidewalk below, a father worked his way through the throng, a licorice bedaubed cherub on one arm, his coat (borne with long enough) on the other, followed by a mother, with the other children hanging to her skirts and tagging exasperatingly behind, bolding red and blue toy balloons and delectable candy batons of spiral striped peppermint in tightly closed, sadly sticky fingers. A thousand cries rent the air—the strolling mountebanks and gypsying booth merchants, the peanut venders, the boys with palm leaf fans for sale, the candy sellers, the popcorn peddlers, the Italian with the toy balloons that float like a cluster of colored bubbles above the heads of the crowd and the balloons that wail like a baby; the red lemonade man, shouting in the shrill voice that reaches everywhere and endures forever: "Lemo'! Lemo'! Five a glass! Ice cole lemo'! Five cents, a nickel, a half a dime, the twentiethpotofadollah! Lemo'! Ice cole lemo'!" —all the vociferating harbingers of the circus crying their wares. Timid youths in shoes covered with dust through which the morning polish but dimly shone and unalterably hooked by the arm to blushing maidens bought recklessly of peanuts, of candy, of popcorn, of all known sweetmeats, perchance, and forced their way to the lemonade stands, and there, all shyly, silently sipped the crimson stained ambrosia. Everywhere the hawkers dinned, and everywhere was heard the plaintive squawk of the toy balloon.

In the courthouse yard, and so sinning in the very eye of the law, two swarthy, shifty looking gentlemen were operating with some greasy walnut shells and a pea what the fanciful or unsophisticated might have been pleased to call a game of chance, and the most intent spectator of the group around them was Mr. James Bardlock, the town marshal. He was simply and unofficially and earnestly interested. Thus the eye of the law may not be said to have winked upon the nefariousness now under its vision. It gazed with strong curiosity, an itch to dabble and, it must be admitted, a growing hope of profit, the game was so direct and the player so sure. Several countrymen had won small sums, and one, a charmingly rustic stranger, with a peculiar accent (he said that him and his goil should now have a smoot' elt time off his winninks, though the lady was not manifested) had pocketed $25 with no trouble at all. The two operators seemed depressed, declaring the luck against them and the Plattville people too brilliant at the game.

It was wonderful how the young couples worked their way arm in arm through the thickest crowds, never separating. Even at the lemonade stands they drank holding the glasses in their outer hands. Such are the sacrifices demanded by etiquette. But, observing the gracious outpouring of fortune upon the rare rustic just mentioned, a youth in a green tie disengaged his arm—for the first time in two hours—from that of a girl who looked upon him with fond, uncertain smiles and, conducting her to a corner of the yard, bade her remain there until he returned. He had to speak to Hartley Bowlder, he explained.

Then he plunged, red faced and excited, into the circle about the shell manipulators and offered to lay a wager.

"Hol' on there, Hen Fentriss," thickly objected a flushed young man beside him. "Iss my turn."

"I'm first, Hartley," returned the other. "You can hold yer hosses, I reckon."

"Plenty fer each and all, gents," interrupted one of the shell men. "Place yer spondulics on de little ball. W'ich is de nex' lucky gent to win our money? Gent bets four sixty-five he seen de little ball go under de middle shell. Up she comes! Dis time we wins. Plattville can't win every time. Who's de nex' lucky gent?"

Fentriss edged slowly out of the circle, abashed and with rapidly whitening cheeks. He paused for a moment outside, slowly realizing that all his money had gone in one wild, blind whirl—the money he had earned so hard and saved so hard to make a holiday for his sweetheart and himself. He stole one glance around the building to where a patient figure waited for him. Then he fled down a side alley and soon was out upon the country road, tramping soddenly homeward through the dust, his chin sunk in his breast and his hands clinched tight at his sides. Now and then he stopped and bitterly hurled a stone at a piping bird on the fence or gay bobwhite in the fields. At noon the patient figure was still waiting in the corner of the courthouse yard, meekly twisting a coral ring upon her finger.

But the flushed young man who had spoken thickly to her deserter drew an envied roll of bank bills from his pocket and began to bet with tipsy caution, while the circle about the gamblers watched with fervid interest, especially Mr. Bardlock, town marshal.

Escaped Through a Technicality.

"Did young Mr. Richun refer to the subject of love and marriage?" asked her confidential friend.

"No," said the Vassar girl. "If he had referred to it, I should not have let him get away. He only alluded to it."—Exchange.

Tortured with Pain.

Too Weak to Work.

ULCERS, BOILS AND PIMPLES ALL OVER HER BODY

Such was the condition of Mrs. Samuel Deitz, Zurich, Ont.

She happily found relief from her terrible suffering by using

Burdock Blood Bitters.

A remedy without a rival for the cure of all diseases and troubles arising from bad blood. A record extending over a quarter of a century and thousands of testimonials will prove this. Mrs. Deitz writes: "Too weak to work, tortured with the pain of ulcers, boils and pimples all over my body, especially on my face. I had almost made up my mind to give up trying to have them cured. I was ashamed to have any person come to see me, my face was in such a terrible state. I tried everything I could think of but got worse and worse. I was then led to try Burdock Blood Bitters and was surprised at the wonderful change the first bottle made. Altogether I took seven bottles and am now completely cured and am in perfect health again. I feel that B.B.B. saved my life."

"SILVER-PLATE THAT WEARS"

THE IMPOSSIBLE.

It is impossible to judge the quality of Silverware by its appearance. The reputation of the maker must be the guide.

THE ACTUAL.

THE CERTAIN.

If your Silverware is stamped with this trade mark you will have the best that is made in plate.

Just within her grasp is safety—but she does not see it; she is looking the wrong way. There's many a woman struggling in a sea of disease who is doing the same thing—looking the wrong way—snatching at medicinal straws when the life buoy, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is within her reach.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

So uniformly successful has Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription proven in all forms of Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, and Leucorrhœa, that, after over a third of a century's experience in curing the worst cases of these distressing and debilitating ailments, Dr. Pierce now feels fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in cash for any case of these diseases which he cannot cure.

IT STANDS ALONE.—The "Favorite Prescription" stands alone, as the one and only remedy for these distressingly common forms of weakness, possessed of such positively specific curative properties as to warrant its makers in proposing, and binding themselves to forfeit, as the proprietors of that wonderful remedy hereby do, to pay the sum of $500 in legal money of the United States, in any case of the above diseases in which after a fair and reasonable trial of our treatment, we fail to cure. No other medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments is backed by such a remarkable guarantee; no other medicine for woman's ills is possessed of the unparalleled curative properties that would warrant its manufacturers in making such an offer; no other remedy has such a record of cures on which to base such a remarkable offer.

Sunshine Furnace

Regulated Like a Watch.

The fire in the Sunshine Furnace can be regulated as accurately as a watch.

At night shake down the ashes, replenish the coal, allow time for the gas to burn off, close your drafts—that's all.

Then, in the morning slip into the hall, open the drafts, and in a few minutes you'll have a rapid, house-warming fire—no exasperating, freezing waits; no firing up, nor risk of the fire burning out during the night.

The Sunshine Furnace is a scientific heater and fuel-saver from top to bottom.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET.

The Fluctuations of the Leading Stocks

The Wall street market contained no special feature this morning. The opening was steady but prices fell somewhat in the first half hour's trading. The bears seemed timid however, and a reaction set in, carrying the market up fractionally. Towards noon, however, the market became very inactive and continued so in the early afternoon.

The following are the principal quotations on the New York stock market, as received by Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, Hunter street:

THE CHICAGO MARKET

The Chicago grain market continued its upward tendency to-day. In fact, it resembled an old-time bull market. May wheat, by one o'clock, advanced to 96 1-8 and the other options were correspondingly strong.

The following are the quotations from the Chicago wheat pit as received by Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, brokers, Hunter street.

Sales to noon 177,600

May 17—To McMillan and Maguire: Chicago.—Wheat opened firm and higher outside markets. Broomhall reports market steady and higher on American strength. There is small commission house buying. Local crowd afraid to sell.

Corn opened firm. Local crowd bullish influenced by steady market in wheat. Volume trade small and mostly by local pit traders.

Oats—very quiet, little pressure either way; Bartlett Frazier selling a little Sept. Pit element bullish influenced by liberal shipments yesterday.

Forecast—Mo, Minn Ia, Wis, Ills, Ind, Mich, and Mont, cloudy to-day and on Wednesday, probably showers. Dak, Kans, fair to-night and to-morrow warmer.

Wheat prices are higher than last night but trade is light.—Ware and Leland, sellers.

FOOTBALL.

The standing of the teams in the Midland Football League at the present time is:—

	Won	Lost	Tied
Quakers	2	0	1
Bridgenorth	1	0	1
Norwood	0	0	2
O. C. Wanderers	0	1	1
Keene	0	0	1
Caughnawaga	1	1	0
Harwood	0	2	0
Y. M. C. A.	0	0	0

Bowmanville, Deseronto, Locust Hill have played no games yet.

• • • •

The Y.M.C.A. football team had a good practice at the Oval last evening. Prospects for a strong eleven are very bright and that eam that beats the "Y's" will have to hustle some. Captain Morgan says he has a "bumper" bunch and they are getting into fine condition. A practice game will be played with Old Country Wanderers on Wednesday evening at the Driving Park, game to commence at 6.45 sharp.

• • • •

The "Y's" will practice to-night at the Oval.

• • • •

The following players of the Y.M.C.A., from whom the team to play the Wanderers to-morrow night will be chosen, are requested to be on hand at 6.45: — P. McFadden, E. Ford, F. Roberts, B. Cameron, Barry, A. Noble, E. E. Shortell, G. McDonald, R. Merrell, H. Lurdy, Nelson, Boyle, Sales and Morgan.

• • • •

The Quakers will play at Harwood on Saturday afternoon, and the team is preparing for a good hard game. The village footballers are reported to be strong on their own grounds, and the prospects are that an interesting struggle will take place. The Quakers will run an excursion by the "City of Peterborough," and expect a good crowd to accompany the team and cheer them on to victory. The boat will leave at 1.45 and will return in the evening. This will be a good opportunity to enjoy an outing and see how the Quakers handle themselves on an opponent's field.

LACROSSE.

The Peterboroughs had a work-out last night. Morgan, Dillon, Mein, McGrath, Meagher, McCoy, Dumble, Best, Parnell, Howell, Blute, Belland, Kearns, Dunford, Payne, and Long were out and indulged in a good practice.

• • • •

"Jimmie" Blute, of Campbellford, was out with the boys last night, and showed up in good form. "Jimmie" has been in some great games in his day and is an all round athlete.

• • • •

Practice will be held again this evening at Central Park, so let all interested be on hand at 6.15 sharp.

• • • •

The Peterboroughs will practice on the Murray street School Grounds on Wednesday and Friday evenings of this week, in anticipation of the game with Lindsay on the 24th.

• • • •

As there will be two teams playing on the 24th, as many players as possible should turn out, as one team will meet Lindsay here, while another team will be sent to Port Hope to play with the team of that town.

• • • •

The T.A.S. lacrosse players are asked to attend a meeting on Wednesday evening in order to elect a captain for the season, and transact other business in connection with the team.

BASEBALL.

St. Luke's Parish Magazine for May says of the baseball team:

"The Guild Baseball Team will practice on the common in front of Mrs. John Scott's every evening.

"We have the material, and with a little consistent practise our boys will give a good account of themselves.

"It is proposed that each team in the league will subscribe two dollars to be devoted to the purchase of a suitable trophy.

"Mr. Harry Neill will be the manager of the baseball team and should prove most efficient."

• • • •

The Britannia Baseball Club last night defeated the Wanderers of Union street by a score of 15 to 11. The Wanderers lined up as follows: E. Bradburn, p.; B. Billington, c.; D. Graham, 1b.; M. Bradburn, 2b.; C. Graham, 3b.

• • • •

Among the many amateur baseball teams in town, one of the best can be seen at practice almost every evening on Smith street, at the end of Downie street. Faithful practice combined with natural ability is producing a number of players who will yet make their mark in the baseball arena.

• • • •

A very exciting game of baseball was held on the Fair Grounds last evening when the Young Frontenacs defeated the Independants. Score —36 to 27. Wm. Stewart referee.

• • • •

It has been heard from several sources that the Victorias, who claim to be lying low, are confident that they can defeat the Young Quakers by a large score, or as the Vics. say,—"Wipe them off their feet." Now, if the Victorias wish to try their luck against the Young Quakers, why don't they come out openly with a challenge. The Quakers will accept and play at any time and place convenient to both teams, but as far as being "wiped off their feet," the Victorias will have to work to do it.—Com.

• • • •

George street team will practice to-night at 6.30 on the Benson Avenue grounds.

• • • •

The Young Quakers will play an exhibition game with the Charlotte street Guild team this evening.

• • • •

Jersey City took the fourth straight game from Toronto yesterday.

• • • •

There will be a great contest at Lindsay a week from to-day, when Manager Whitcroft's star nine will bump up against the Lindsay Clippers.

• • • •

Charlotte street Guild had a fine practice last evening. Roddy and Pilling alternated in the box and showed splendid form while Thornton behind the bat handled himself well. The infield is also working into nice shape, and Capt. Pedlar should be able to pick a strong team from the material available.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Indications point to the fact that the different events on the programme of sports arranged by the T.A.S. for Victoria Day, will be hotly contested. The local athletes, it is said, will have opposition from out of town sprinters, and jumpers, who, it is claimed, will make an effort to clean the slate.

SPORTS IN GENERAL.

Peterborough will not lack for good genuine sporting events during the next few months. Besides the many local contests in various lines of sport and the many exhibition games which are certain to ensue with strong outside games, the following is the programme for the summer in the Midland Football, Midland Baseball, Kawartha Baseball, C.L.A. Lacrosse and Trent League Lacrosse:—

Midland Football.

May 21—Norwood at Wanderers.
June 4—Keene at Quakers.
There will also be games here in the semi-finals and possibly finals.

Midland Baseball.

June 11—With Bowmanville.
July 1—With Lindsay.
July 23—With Cobourg.
August 20—With Oshawa.
Sept. 17—With Port Hope.

Kawartha Baseball.

RUSSIANS SHOW NO SIGNS OF FIGHTING

Which Makes the Japs Practical Masters of Liaotung Peninsula.

A FORCE MARCHING ON KAIPING

No Russians at Newchwang, the Evacuation Now Being Com- on the Road to Liaoyang—Russians Said to Contemplate Making a Stand at Haicheng.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—Advices received by the general staff show that the Japanese are practically masters of all the southern and of the Liaotung Peninsula, save Port Arthur and the territory commanded by its guns. This result, so promptly brought about is due to the failure of the Russians to make opposition of any consequence to the Japanese advance.

A member of the general staff said to the Associated Press that the removal of the guns from the fortifications erected at Kinchau and the destruction of Port Dalny were primarily for the purpose of concentrating the entire Russian force at Port Arthur. The destruction of Dalny is complete, the breakwater and the buildings as well as the piers and docks have been blown up.

Advancing on Haicheng.

Mukden, May 18.—It was announced here yesterday that the main body of the Japanese force is advancing on Haicheng, about ten miles southeast of Newchwang and Kaipingkiachow, about thirty miles south of Newchwang, and that a smaller force is marching in the direction of Liaoyang. Important developments are probable.

JAPS MENACE MUKDEN.

Mikado's Soldiers Now Almost Within Striking Distance of the Russians.

Mukden, May 18.—The fighting line is steadily nearing Mukden, where Viceroy Alexieff's headquarters still remain. Little reliable information can be obtained by the newspaper correspondents, who are forbidden to proceed to the scene of operations and official information is withheld until advices are sent to St. Petersburg. It is now known, however, that the Japanese are almost within striking distance of the Russians, and that the forces protecting the Liaoyang are stretching eastward from the railroad along the Maotien mountain range.

The Japanese are advancing in three columns and were north of Siuyen and Fengwangcheng Monday evening. Two columns are reported to be working further to the northward, with the object of turning the Russian position and advancing upon Mukden. Numerous small engagements have been fought, but no decisive action has taken place. Port Arthur is now completely isolated by the Japanese expedition at Polandien. The Japanese are now operating in a rugged country, well suited to the Russian defence, but north of the Liaoyang to Mukden the country is a flat plain intersected by rivers.

NO RUSSIANS AT NEWCHWANG.

Nine Transports of Jap Soldiers Surprised Russians Into Sudden Action.

Newchwang, May 18.—The Russians were totally surprised Monday morning by the announcement that nine transports, convoyed by a squadron of Japanese ships, had suddenly appeared off Kaichau, twenty miles south of Yinkaw, and that 20,000 Japanese troops had already been landed. The disembarkation was completed Tuesday, and the Japanese force is expected here to-day.

Russians Will Stand at Haicheng.

This information accelerated the Russian evacuation, which was carried out in perfect order, and early Monday morning the gunboat Sivoutch was destroyed. The Associated Press correspondent professes to have received from the highest Russian authority information that the Russian forces will make a stand at Haicheng, and if defeated there will fall back on Liaoyang, where a determined resistance will be offered. Should they be again worsted, no stop will be made at Mukden, which the Japanese will be permitted to occupy. It is not believed the latter will advance into the interior until they have thoroughly established and secured their base of operations here.

Why Newchang Was Left.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—The complete withdrawal of the Russians from Newchwang is believed to have followed the strategic command of the port by the columns sent westward by Gen. Kuroki. The exact conditions under which the evacuation was brought about are not known here, as all the official despatches have been forwarded to the Emperor. The Foreign Office is not advised as to whom the administration of Newchwang will be handed over, but the authorities express confidence that the Russian commander arranged for the safety of the foreigners before his departure.

MESSAGE TO THE CZAR.

Reports That Japs Landed and Began Marching at Kaiping.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—Gen. Kuropatkin telegraphs to the Emperor, under date of May 16, as follows:

"On May 16 our Cossacks encountered a force of the enemy composed of one battalion of infantry, and two squadrons of cavalry belonging, apparently, to the Japanese guards' division near Kuandiansian and the fusilade lasted for an hour and a half. The fire of the Japanese infantry and cavalry was poor. We had one Cossack wounded, one horse killed and another wounded and two Cossacks missing.

"On May 15 the Japanese vanguard occupied Haihamentsa in the valley of the Plaiao River, Tsiangtao in the valley of the left branch of the same river Shifsiafutsu and Hitvouchen, in the valley of the Ai River and Kiandiansian.

"There were no Japanese at Siuyen on May 15.

"On May 14 and 15 the Japanese reconnaissances had not pushed beyond four and a half miles from the Station of Wafandian.

"On May 15 there was no advance of any considerable force of the enemy to the north of Polandion.

"No fresh report has been received regarding the Japanese raid on Kaichau."

"Towards noon 17 steamers approached Siungyuecheng and opened fire upon the town, while five vessels approached the shore.

"At 1.30 p.m. three large steamers appeared off the Cape, and at 3.20 p.m. the enemy landed at Huangtsiatung and commenced a march in the direction of Kaiping."

Continued Feints.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—General Sakharoff reports to the general staff, under yesterday's date, as follows:

"Gen. Samsonoff reports at 1.30 last night that the Japanese continued their efforts to feints at landing in the neighborhood of Siungyuecheng and Kaichau. Their vessels opened fire on the town of Siungyuecheng, on our scouts and on the coast.

"The Japanese squadron left after 5.30 o'clock proceeding southwest, and several of its vessels remained visible on the horizon until dusk."

One General Is Retired.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—It was announced last night that Lieut.-Gen. Zassalitch has been relieved of the command of the second Siberian army division and that Lieut.-Gen. Count Keller, former Governor of Ekaterinoslav, has been appointed to succeed him.

LEONIAOS HUBBARD HOME FOR BURIAL.

Body will Arrive at St. Johns Nfld. Today.

The Globe yesterday contained a despatch from St. John's Nfld., referring to the body of the late Leonidas Hubbard, jun., whose sad death was reported in these columns some months ago. The despatch says:—

"The sealing steamer Aurora will arrive here to-night or to-morrow from the Labrador coast, bringing the body of Leonidas Hubbard, jun., assistant editor of Outing, who perished in the interior of Labrador, last October, while on an exploring expedition. The Aurora also brings Hubbard's companions, Dillon Wallace, a lawyer, of New York, and Frank Elson, a halfbreed guide."

Relatives of the late Mr. Hubbard are now living in Peterborough, and will probably go to New York to attend the funeral. The body will be taken to Halifax after its arrival at St. Johns, and from the former city it will be sent to New York for burial.

The deceased was comparatively well known in this vicinity, and a number of relatives are still residents in this county.

A Complaint.

A resident of the south part of the town complained yesterday regarding the conduct of boys and young men at the Exhibition Grounds, during the past few Sundays. He stated that there have been baseball games both forenoon and afternoon, and that some of the language used was not of an elevating character, nor such as one hears at Sunday school. During the evenings the boys congregate in that vicinity again and carry on in a manner not pleasing to those who dwell in the near vicinity. This sort of thing has been going on for some weeks and is very annoying, to say the least, to those who are called upon to put up with it.

The Crowning Success

Wall Paper and Crockery

We have organized for a great Wall Paper and Crockery business, crowned with the addition of the Bankrupt Crockery Stock of G. M. Williamson & Son, of Kingston, which we bought at 50c. on the dollar. We propose that the sale be made mutually profitable by means of the regular Routley principle of supplying best qualities of goods at unparalelled prices. The transformation in last week's selling caused old patrons to stand amazed at the crowds which waited to be served. We have three extra hands on this week. We will give you a few prices to partly show the reason for this great rush:—

THE BRITISH PREFERENCE.

A Tory speaker has indicted the Liberals for levying a higher average rate of duty on British than on American products entering Canada. "In view of this fact," he asks, "what becomes of their boast that they have given British goods a preference?" And he adds, "It was not so under good old Tory rule."

The trade returns tell a different story about Tory rule. From 1869 to 1873 the average ad. val. rate of duty on all imports, free and dutiable from the United States ranged from 6 to 8 per cent., while the average on all imports from Britain varied between 10 and 13. From 1880 to 1896 the average rate on imports from the States was between 13 and 16 per cent., the rate on imports from Britain running from 19 to 22. Since 1897—that is under Liberal rule—the former has been from 13 to 14, the latter from 16 to 21. In 1903 it was about 16 3-4 per cent.

If the preference to British goods granted by the present administration is not a substantial and valuable preference, as this speaker would have us believe, what do the Tories mean by attacking it as an outrage on the Canadian woollen, cotton and other industries?

The reason why our average tariff rates on American goods are lower than on British goods, is because about one half our purchases from the United States being for the most part raw materials, are admitted free; whereas our imports from Britain consist mainly of manufactures and other dutiable goods. This state of things is bound to prevail under any Canadian tariff that discriminates between raw materials and finished articles. But it has nothing, good, bad or indifferent, to do with the question of tariff preference. The free and dutiable goods imported last year from Britain and and the United States were as follows:—

From Britain.

Free	$16,600,000
Dutiable	42,200,000
	$58,800,000

From the States.

Free	$60,000,000
Dutiable	68,000,000
	$128,000,000

The preference to British goods is 33 1-3 per cent., they are admitted at duties lower by that much than the duties imposed on similar goods coming from the United States, and other foreign countries. And yet, as said, owing to the large volume of free imports in the shape of raw materials brought from the States the average rate of duty on all imports thence is distinctly less than the average on imports from Britain. But where is the disloyalty; and how does that circumstance diminish the value of our preference to the British manufacturer and artisan? Does this Tory orator recommend that we should tax raw materials from the States in order to raise the average rate on all imports from that country to the level of the average rate on imports from Britain? And if we did so, how, pray, would that injury to ourselves redound to the advantage of Britain?

CLEANLINESS IN THE DAIRY.

The approach of the dairy season makes the subjoined newspaper clipping interesting reading for the farmers of Canada. It is from the Otago Daily Times, New Zealand, and was sent to us by a Dunedin correspondent:—

"London, Dec. 19. — On Thursday I had placed before me an illustration of how necessary it is in the manufacture of butter there should be the utmost cleanliness, particularly so with that produced in the colonies. While in conversation with a gentleman who occupies a prominent position in the butter market here, and through whose hands scores of thousands of boxes of colonial butter pass every season, he showed me a slab of butter some two inches in thickness, marked all over with brownish marks. These marks went right through the butter from side to side, and were caused by mould, which had its origin in the dirtiness of the dairy in which the butter had been made in Canada—for it was a piece of Canadian butter.

"The whole thing developed in the retailer's shop," said the authority with whom I was speaking, and he showed me the unsavoury looking lump. 'It was all right when we sold it; and it was all right when the retailer bought it. But the germ must have got there during the process of manufacture. Probably the dairy was an old wooden one, had been allowed to get dusty and dirty, and the wind blew the germs with the dust into the milk or churn. The result you see. We shall be heavy losers; so will be the shopkeeper, who, you may be sure, will not think so highly of Canadian butter in the future."

The London correspondent of the Times, adds that, on the testimony of the same dealer, the reputation of New Zealand butter stands exceedingly high. It is useless for Canadian butter makers to hope to compete with countries like Denmark and New Zealand unless they observe proper precautions as to absolute cleanliness. Any germs caught in the butter will develop and give the maker away. Unfortunately his carelessness injures the whole country as well as himself.

FIRE LOSSES FOR THREE MONTHS.

$23,623,000 Loss in April in United States and Canada.

The fire loss of the United States and Canada for the month of April, as compiled from the carefully kept records of the Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin, shows a total of $23,623,000. The following table gives a comparison of the losses for the first four months of the year, and the same period in 1903 and 1903:

	1904	1903	1902
January	$21,790,200	$13,166,350	$15,632,300
February	90,05,,000	16,090,800	21,0:0,500
March	11,202,150	9,907,650	12,056,600
April	23,623,000	14,549,000	13,898,600
	$146,635,350	$52,703,800	$61,194,500

Deducting the losses at Baltimore, Rochester and Toronto, the losses thus far this year by the ordinary fires would aggregate $60,966,350, or some eight million dollars more than the sum charged against the first four months of 1903. The large fires during the month of April were the following:

Toronto, Ont., general conflagration	$12,500,000
Montreal, 3 dry goods houses and other	232,000
West Tampa, Fla., cigar factories and dwellings	250,000
Wilkesbarre	225,000
Camden, N. J., talking machine factory	400,000
Midland, Ont., grain elevators	280,000
New York City, soap factory and other	230,000
Fernie, B. C., business part of town	450,000
Providence, R. I., furniture store	290,000

It will be seen from the above exhibit that the fire underwriters have suffered very severely during 1904. There appears to be a decided difference of opinion as to the system upon which an advance of rates should be made, and in fact some companies seem to quietly oppose such action altogether. Clearly, the fire underwriting outlook is not bright.

THE COLD SUMMER OF 1816.

Something About "Eighteen-Hundred and-Froze-to-Death".

The history books on meteorology all speak of the "cold summer of 1816," but some of us who were reared in New England—the severity of the cold of that year was greatest in that section — are able to remember that locally it was called "poverty year," for the reason that the crops proved a failure and the prices of provisions rose so high as to be almost prohibitive. Sometimes too it was called the year "eighteen hundred and froze to death." In New Hampshire there was frost and snow all the summer months. The cause of the snow was believed to be the sun spots, which were so large that for the first time in their history they could be seen without the aid of a telescope. They filled the minds of the ignorant people with fear. At Chester, N.H., on May 15th, land that had recently been ploughed froze hard to the depth of six inches. In the northern part of the state, it was much colder and snowdrifts hid the windows of the houses. In all parts of Maine the same weather conditions prevailed. In most counties of Massachusetts snow fell in June, and on the 8th of that month in Salem there was good sleighing. On June 18, at Montpelier, Vt., the snow was a foot deep. July was slightly warmer, though the thermometer did not on more than three occasions in that month indicate a temperature of much higher than 45 above. There was no snow in August, but not for the reason that it was not on several days cold enough. Vegetation did not revive. On Sept. 11 three inches of snow fell in Springfield, Mass. In Connecticut and Rhode Island, the summer was less inclement than in other parts of New England, but still it was too cold for the crops.

Over all Northern and Central New York was "poverty year," about as it was throughout New England. There was great destitution among the people the next Winter and Spring. The farmers in some instances were reduced to the last extremity. Many cattle died, while those that remained alive, were sold at extremely low prices because of the enormous cost of fodder. In Northern New Hampshire hay sold the next Spring as high as $180 a ton, its general price, however, being $35. The market price of corn was $2 a bushel; wheat, $2.50; rye, $2; oats, 90 cents; beans, $3; butter, 25 cents a lb.; (it commonly sold at 8 or 10 cents); cheese, 15 cents a lb. In Maine potatoes were 75 cents a bushel, the usual price being 40 cts. In Massachusetts pumpkin seeds were sold for $1 a lb., and other seeds proportionately.

The cold summer of 1816 was the anxious talk of the people of the entire country. What they had seen in New England or heard from that region caused them to think the climate had changed; and all the more they thought so when they learned that in Ohio it had snowed on May 22 and that on May 30 there had been frost as far south as Virginia. But there was not then, and there has not been since, a change. Only now and then, or once or twice in an undetermined number of years, the weather of Summer, as of Winter, attains to an extreme, but to quickly settle back to the normal.

SUGGESTION TO CHEESE DEALERS.

Scrupulous Regard for Honesty in Manufacture and Shipping Necessary.

In his report regarding the cheese cheese trade of 1903, Mr. A. W. Grindley, agent of the Department of Agriculture in Great Britain makes some suggestions that merit the attention of makers and exporters. He says: The cheese season of 1903 was a most successful one; there was a large increase in the quality and the steady improvement in the quality was so great that in spite of very heavy supplies the price realized on the whole were satisfactory. The mild, sweet palatable flavour, as distinguished from the heated and biting character so noticeable in former years, has created a large consumptive demand, which will have a tendency to do away with the disproportion in value between Canadian and English Cheddar.

The practice of shipping too new or "green" cannot be too emphatically condemned as it not only spoils the sale but hurts the reputation of Canadian cheese. The salesman, as well as the exporter is to blame for sending these immature cheese, and the patrons of factories should insist that their cheese should be held in the curing room until it is in such a condition as will give satisfaction to the British consumer.

COOL CURING OF CHEESE.

The difference in the quality of cheese held in the Government cool curing rooms was very noticeable, not only in quality, but in general appearance. This improvement is due to cool curing and "waxing" the cheese which also has the advantage of preventing a considerable percentage of shrinkage. During the season of 1902 when "waxed" cheese first appeared on the British market some of the grocers' associations objected, and even went so far as to demand an allowance in weights but it was soon proved that there was less shrinkage which, added to the improved quality and appearance of the cheese, quickly created a brisk demand for cheese coming from the Government curing stations, at an advance in price compared to cheese coming from the ordinary factories.

BOXING CHEESE

The percentage of broken boxes was not so high during 1903, although it still runs very high, ranging from 5 to 25 per cent. The falling off in breakage is due to:

1 Damp season which makes the boxes less brittle.

2 More care on the part of shipping companies in loading, stowing and discharging cargoes, this work being closely watched by the inspectors of your department.

3 The use of boxes of better quality. The latter point was very noticeable in cheese coming from the Government curing stations, the boxes being made of heavier material; the percentage of broken boxes did not run above two per cent., which proves that it is false economy to buy cheap boxes.

Care should be taken not to use green, unseasoned boxes as the cheese, particularly the top and bottom, may be damaged in quality from this cause alone.

SKIN BRAND ON CHEESE

Leading British importers of Canadian cheese are in favour of branding cheese indelibly with the month in which they are made. Some years ago September cheese became the favourites, but owing to the improvement in the quality of cheesemade during July and August, brought about by the system of "cool curing" introduced by the Department of Agriculture, the makes of other months have proved to be nearly as good in quality as Septembers.

It is claimed that unscrupulous dealers in Canada as well as in Great Britain quote Septembers at such low prices that the supposition is that they are the make of other months and any inferiority in quality is not discovered until after delivery is taken. If the month of make were branded on the cheese they would be sold on their merits, and speculators who bought cheap lines of July, August, October or November makes would be debarred from quoting them by cable or otherwise as "Septembers."

Comfort for Old People.

Much of the suffering of the aged is due to the kidney derangements which lead to backache, rheumatism lumbago and body pains. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills bring comfort to the old folks by keeping the kidneys healthy and active, and so eliminating from the body the poisonous waste matter which causes pains, aches and fatal disease.

A PIONEER OF THE PROVINCE.

The late Mrs. Wm. Shaw, Sister of Mrs. Henry Crosby.

Father was First Presbyterian Minister in Ontario—Died at the Age of 90 years.

The Toronto News of Friday contained the obituary of the late Mrs. William Shaw, who died in Whitby at the age of 90 years. The deceased lady was a sister of Mrs. Henry Crosby, of Peterborough, and an aunt of Mrs. John Crane. A sketch of the life of the late Mrs. Shaw accompanies the obituary, and some interesting facts relating to the early settlement of this province are given.

Mrs. Shaw whose maiden name was Mary Stockton Jenkins, was born in Oneida County, N.Y., in 1814. Her father was the Rev. William Jenkins, a Presbyterian clergyman, one of the first, if not the very first, ordained ministers of that faith to settle in this part of Ontario, as he did a few years later than the birth of the subject of this sketch taking up his residence at Richmond Hill. Mrs. Jenkins' maiden name was Mary Stockton. She was a granddaughter of Dr. Richard Stockton, who was one of the original signers of the Declaration of Independence. Amongst the interesting collection of family portraits are two photographs of Dr. Stockton, and his wife Mary, taken from the originals hanging in Independence Hall, by Mr. William Shaw, her eldest son. As a little girl her recollections were of the many trying experiences through which her father passed in his pioneer work as a preacher, extending as it did all through the Home District, as it was then called, in the primitive settlements from Hamilton on the west to Kingston on the east, and north as far as the Province was settled at that early date.

MARRIED FOR SIXTY YEARS.

Some sixty years ago she was married to William Shaw, a native of Toronto. General Brock acted as groomsman at the wedding. Shortly afterwards the newly married couple came to Whitby, or, as it was known at that time, Windsor Bay. Mr. Shaw opened up a furniture and undertaking business, but being a builder and carpenter, as well as a cabinet maker he soon took to the more congenial occupation of a contracting builder. Besides the very comfortable home which he built for himself, and where the old couple returned a few years ago to pass the evening of their lives, and which is next adjoining on Brock street, built the recently established works of the Farmers' Co-operative Harvesting Machine Company. There in a splendid monument to his skill in the grand home he built for the late Registrar of Ontario County, John Ham Perry. This magnificent residence, now best known as "The Castle," was intended by its ambitious owner to rival the "Trafalgar Castle," which was the home of the late Sheriff Reynolds, now the Ontario Ladies' College.

CANADA DREW THEM BACK.

About forty-six years ago Mr. and Mrs. Shaw removed to Missouri, where they lived till the breaking out of the Civil War, when they returned to Canada, settling in Aurora, whence the final move was made to Whitby.

The surviving members of the family are Mr. William Jenkins, of Madoc, a brother. Two sisters, Miss Hannah, of Madoc, and Mrs. Crosby, of Peterborough. The article is illustrated with a well executed half-tone cut of the deceased lady.

Lord Cecil's Characterization of the Protection Idea.

CLASP HANDS ACROSS OCEAN

Schoolmasters of England Discuss the Question of Closer Connection of the Empire—Suggestions By Sir Richard Jebb and Dr. Mahaffy—Death of Only White Man Who Could Throw a Boomerang.

London, May 18.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Cecil, speaking at a free trade meeting at Devonshire House, opposed the Chamberlain policy, urging that the people must not let the British Empire be used as the mere stage property of the squalid drama of protection. He should like to offer the colonies commissions in the army, the navy, the Indian and the civil consular service. By being allowed to serve the Empire the colonies would become centres of Imperial feeling, proceeding on the basis of working for the Empire, and not seeing how much profit could be got out of it.

Clasp Hands Across the Sea.

London, May 18.—(C. A. P.)—Sir Richard Jebb, M.P. for Cambridge University (Conservative), speaking at a conference of the Head Masters' League of the Empire, at Canada House, Lord Strathcona presiding, moved a resolution in favor of cooperation in education and the interchange of ideas between institutions at home and beyond the seas. As ties of Empire some 150 schools were already linked for the purpose by the League of Empire, and would be trained in sentiments and convictions in sympathy, kinship and common loyalty to the great Empire of which their several homes formed part.

Dr. Mahaffy argued for some kind of common study of history—some syllabus that would guide all teachers within the British Empire. Historical museums in the different schools of the Empire should be encouraged to enter into mutual exchange. He advocated the foundation of historical scholarships, which should be awarded to each colony in succession, and be held by all the recognized universities of the Empire and he appealed to the educated public of the Empire to carry out the scheme.

English Boomerang Thrower Dead.

London, May 18.—(C. A. P.)—The Hon. Harved Finch Hatton is dead of heart failure. He was one of the founders of the Imperial Federation League. He was the fourth son of the tenth Earl of Winchilsea, and was born in 1856. From 1895 to 1898 he sat in the Imperial Parliament as Conservative member for Newark, Notts. Perhaps his most notable title to fame was the fact that he was the only white man who ever could throw a boomerang like the black aborignies of Australia, where he was a squatter for a number of years.

Aberdeen's Daughter to Wed.

London, May 18.—(C.A.P.)—A marriage has been arranged and will shortly take place between Lady Marjorie Adeline Gordon, only surviving daughter of the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, and Capt. John Sinclair, member of Parliament for Forfarshire since 1897, and one of the Liberal whips. Lord Aberdeen was Governor-General of Canada from 1893 to 1898. Lady Marjorie was born in 1880.

To the Privy Council.

London, May 18.—(C.A.P.)—The London Gazette contains the appointment of Sir Henri Elzear Taschereau as a member of the Imperial Privy Council. Sir Louis was born in 1836, was appointed a judge of the Quebec Superior Court in 1871 and made a judge of the Supreme Court of Canada in 1878. He has been chief justice since 1902.

FOR ALLEGED MURDER.

Whitby Man Held Without Bail For Grand Jury at Boston.

Boston, May 18.—The two men, charged with the murder of Sergeant Jas. Wilson of the Watertown arsenal, in a south end saloon, Monday night, were held without bail for the grand jury in the Municipal Court yesterday. One of the men called himself Harry Ralph Willard of Whitby, Ont. The second defendant is William Mooray, 28, having no home. Both men deny all knowledge of the crime.

A Monument to Salisbury.

London, May 18.—The House of Commons yesterday voted an address to King Edward praying His Majesty to order the erection of a monument to the late Lord Salisbury in Westminster Abbey, and at public expense. The only dissentient voice came from the Irish benches, whence John Redmond, the Irish leader, opposed the motion though he did not go so far as to divide the House upon it. Mr. Redmond said the Nationalists could not associate themselves with the movement because Lord Salisbury had never been a friend of Ireland, had opposed all remedial legislation, and had characterized the Irish as "Hottentots," an expression which still rankled.

Body Found After 18 Months.

Ottawa, May 18.—On Nov. 18, 1902, just 18 months ago, Archibald Campbell, an employe of the Canada Atlantic Railway, disappeared. Monday a badly decomposed body was found floating in the Ottawa River; yesterday his wife identified it as the body of Archibald Campbell. The wife thinks he was murdered.

NEW STEAMER TO BE LAUNCHED MONDAY.

"Sovereign" Will Take to the Water and Commence Trips.

The steamer "Sovereign," now rapidly nearing completion at Point St. Charles, will be launched on Monday. The original intention of the company was to hold the ceremonies incidental to the translating of the new craft to her native element, on Thursday, but the builders advised a delay of a few days to enable the paint to become thoroughly dried. The new steamer is a flush deck vessel, measuring 70 feet over all, with 14 foot beam, and drawing about 4 feet 8 inchess of water. She will be driven by a fore and aft compound engine, built by the Bertram Engine Works, Toronto. There will be three decks, a main, promenade and a hurricane. Special attention has been paid to the cabin accommodation, which will be spacious and luxurious, and fitted up with complete and well arranged modern accessories.

During June the "Sovereign" will be open to accept excursion engagements, and commencing on July 1st she will be placed on regular daily service between Peterborough and all Rice Lake points, including Wedlock's, Jubilee, Gore's Landing, Harwood and Idyl Wild.

The boat will be captained by Mr. F. Copperthwaite, and the business arrangements will be in charge of Mr. C. J. Snyder.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—Divine service to-night at St. Luke's at eight.

—Owen Sound has begun the manufacture of cement tile.

—St. John's choir boys will practice to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock.

—Piano tuning promptly attended to. Satisfaction guaranteed. A. F. Hoover. 'Phone, 199.

—John Blodgett was fined $2 for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk in the fifth ward yesterday.

—There are twenty dog tag cases scheduled for Friday morning's police court, and the police have power to add to this number.

—The Japs promise a big naval demonstration before Port Arthur in a few days. But it won't be "in it" with Peterborough's naval demonstration in connection with turning the key in our Lift Lock.

—This is a red-letter day among the printers of the continent. The 40,000 members of the International Typographical Union to-day voted as to who would conduct their affairs for the coming twelve months.

—Dr. Wightman, dentist, is now occupying permanent offices in the Bank of Commerce Building, opposite the post office, first door to the right of the landing, Hunter street entrance. 6d115

—For fresh rhubarb, green onions, lettuce, asparagus, spy apples, bananas, oranges, lemons, groceries, etc., order from Jas. R. Bell's grocery, 161 Hunter street. Any quantity of good, sound potatoes. Telephone 455.

—If you have not the time nor inclination to passe partout those pictures, take them to the "Framery," 428 George street. The only store in town entirely devoted to pictures and picture framing.

—A meeting of the Sunday school teachers of St. Luke's church, will be held at the Rectory to-morrow evening at 7.30 sharp. Arrangements will be made for the summer excursion. All teachers and officers are urged to be present.

—On Friday evening Miss Jessie Birnie will give a health talk in the Y.W.C.A. rooms. A number of musical selections will be rendered. A good social evening will be spent, and there will be no admission fee. All young women are invited.

—There is a small regiment of young men in Peterborough, who if they are seeking another place of residence, will do well to steer clear of Port Arthur, where they arrest anyone seen on the street after 11 o'clock at night, who cannot give a satisfactory account of himself.

—The Belleville Daily Intelligencer boasts of a Saturday circulation of 1350. That may be a big thing in circulation for a place like Belleville, but Peterborough wouldn't be satisfied with anything like that. The Examiner has an every-day-in-the-week circulation of over 1700. But then, Peterborough is a first class town, while Belleville is a—city.

Mr. Frank Young, purser of the steamer "Majestic," was in town to-day. The new steamer for Stony Lake is being rushed along as fast as possible and will be ready in time for the opening of regular business, about the end of June. Mr. Young has arranged for a double trip up the lakes on the "Majestic," on Saturday, and Victoria Day, for the benefit of cottagers and the general public.

CHEESE BOARD'S FIRST MEETING

Highest Price for May Cheese was 7 3-16 Cents.

Number of Cheese Boarded was 2782—Buying was Brisk this Morning.

The first meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board for 1904 was held in the Town Council Chamber this morning. The buyers present were Messrs. Kerr, Fitzgerald, Cook, Whitton, Rollins, Wrighton, Brentenall, Noble.

The president was pleased to see such a large turnout at the first meeting. He was grieved, however, to be called upon to say that four members of the Board had passed away since the last meeting. Three of them, the late Messrs. Richard Crowe, Warren Taylor and Thos. Blezard were active members last year, while the late Geo. Stewart was a member the year before and for many years previous. The speaker referred in appreciative terms to the deceased members, each of whom was a prominent and valued member of the Board and one who was deeply interested in the affairs of the county. The president hoped that the season would be a successful one and that there would be no trouble such as was caused last year by the buyers refusing to pay the price offered for cheese at the Board meeting because of the price falling subsequently.

The following factories boarded, the total number of cheese being 2,782:—

Keene	130
Warminster	50
Shearer	75
Central Smith	124
North Smith	65
Villiers	60
Warsaw	60

Norwood	60
Fleetwood	103
Oak Leaf	25
Buckhorn	56
Brickley	50
Shamrock	65
Dartford	90
Percy	135
Killarney	74

The bidding was opened by Mr. Rollins who offered 6 1-2. Mr. Kerr bid 6 9-16; Mr. Rollins made it 6 5-8; Mr. Cook went 6 3-4; Mr. Whitton 6 13-16; Mr. Rollins 6 7-8; Mr. Fitzgerald 7; Mr. Brentenall 7 1-8, and Mr. Whitton 7 3-16, and at this figure the called Keene, Shearer, Villiers, Westwood, Melrose Abbey, Ormonde, Indian River, Percy, Dartford, Killarney, Norwood, Bensfort, all of which accepted.

Mr. Whitton started the bidding again at 7 1-8 which Mr. Kerr raised to 7 3-16, and called Central Smith, Myrtle, East Emily, Trewern, Lakefield, Pine Grove, Oak Leaf, Missing Link, Buckhorn, Warsaw, and Otonabee Union. All were agreeable.

Mr. Rollins at 7 3-16 took Warminster, North Smith, Maple Leaf, Young's Point, North Dummer, Stony Lake, Oakdale.

At 7 3-16 Mr. Whitton took Cavanville, Mount Pleasant, Fleetwood, Brickley, Lang, Fraserville, Daisy D., Shamrock.

The Board adjourned for three weeks.

MISSION BAND CONCERT A SUCCESS.

Interesting Evening Spent at St Lukes Last Night.

The entertainment of the Mission Band last night was supported by a large number of friends. The Sunday School hall was more than filled, and everyone pronounced the event a great success. Preceeding the programme, opportunity was given to view the outfit made by the members of the Band for the Indian girl. The tables, laden with candy and boxes containing fancy work and other useful articles, were patronized by a large crowd, and before the programme begun, everything was sold out. At about 8.30 the programme commenced. The Rector, as chairman, welcomed the friends, and spoke complimentarily of the work the Mission Band was doing. The following numbers made up the programme:—

Instrumental Duet, Misses Clara Adams and J. Quinn.
Song ..... Miss Georgie Long
Recitation ..... Miss Retta Gaskins
Instrumental solo, ... Miss Mabel Saeger
Vocal duet, Misses Edith Burnham and K. Philips.
Reading ..... Miss Browning
Song ..... Mr. Legg
Instrumental solo ... Miss K. Leary
Dialogue, "A Society for the Suppression of Scandal," by 12 girls.
Chorus.

The entertainment closed with the singing of the National Anthem. The proceeds amounted to about $40.00.

Mrs. Sawyer, Mrs. H. T. Adams and Mrs. Browning are the leaders of the Mission Band, to whose interest in the work the success is largely due.

THE WORST KIND.

After Piles have existed for a long time and passed through different stages, the suffering is intense—pain, ach ng, throbbing, tumors form, filled to bursting with black blood.

Symptoms indicating other troubles may appear to a thoroughly Pile-sick person.

This is when Hem-Roid, the only internal, the only absolute Pile cure, brings the results that has made its fame.

It will cure the most stubborn case in existence and bonded guarantee to that effect goes with each package.

It is to be had the drug store of James Lynch, 166 Hunter street, Peterborough. 3

BAND CONCERT ON VICTORIA DAY.

57th Regimental Band Will Give one in the Rink.

Those who heard the excellent concert given by the 57th Band a few weeks ago in the Opera House, will be glad to learn that arrangements have been made to give another concert on the evening of Victoria Day in the Brock street rink. A number of new selections are in course of preparation by the Band and will be rendered on that occasion, while the best of the music given at the last concert will be repeated. As is natural, on that occasion patriotic music will find an important place on the programme.

DEATH OF MRS. NAPOLEON LORD.

Young Women Dies Last Night Leaving Small Family.

A particularly sad death occurred last night, at her home, 115 Elm street, when Mrs. Napoleon Lord, after an illness of about two months, passed away, leaving two small children and a sorrowing husband to mourn her loss. The deceased has been ill about two months, during which time although she suffered great pain, she bore her trials patiently. She leaves a husband and two children, the eldest 2 years of age and the youngest two months and a half. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. John Cronin, 90 Elm street, and six sisters and one brother, Thomas, survive her.

The funeral will take place on Friday morning at nine o'clock from the family residence to St. Peter's cathedral, and the Roman Catholic cemetery, where interment will take place.

If you're feeling warm, drop in and have a "Hiawatha," "David Harum" or a "Crushed Fruit Sundae" at HOOPER'S.

REGIMENT PRACTICED TROOPING COLOURS.

Ceremony was Carried out Last Night as Rehearsal.

March Past was Held and was Well Executed—A Good Turn out.

Last night an interesting military spectacle took place at Central Park, when the 57th Regiment paraded for their regular weekly drill. In preparation for the ceremony of trooping the colours, which is to take place on May 24th, a mock presentation was made, and the regiment went through the exercise of trooping the colours.

Everything was carried out to the perfect satisfaction of those in charge, and the regiment is to be congratulated upon the proficiency shown. At the conclusion of the trooping, the march past was held, and this too, was well executed. As usual a large number of citizens witnessed the work of the regiment, and all were well pleased with the work done.

To-morrow night the regiment with both bands will hold the last march-out before the 24th. Both bands will turn out, and every member of the regiment is expected to be in the line. At the close of the drill last night the following orders were read:—

Headquarters, Peterborough.
May 17, 1904.

DISTRICT MEETING WAS HELD HERE

Methodist Churches of Peterborough District held Annual Meeting

At George St. Church Yesterday Several Resolutions Passed—Delegates to Conference Other Business.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough District of the Methodist church of the Bay of Quinte Conference, was held yesterday in the school room of the George street church. The delegates in attendance were: Peterborough, George street, Rev. J. P. Wilson, T. W. Robinson; Charlotte street, Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, J. L. Hughes; Mark street, Rev J. G. Lewis, M. Carton; Millbrook, Rev. H. B. Kenny, R. W. Clarke; Cavan, Rev. H. V. Mounteer, W. H. Staples; Cavan South, Rev. J. N. Clarry, R. Walsh; South Monaghan, Rev. N. D. Drew, W. Fisher; Lakefield, Rev. W. T. Leggott, L. Payne; Bridgenorth, Rev. J. W. Bunner, B. Manning; Warsaw, H. McQuade, J. B. Foster; Bethany, Rev. J. E. Robeson, Rev. E. Bowerman, W. H. Lowes, C. W. Weatherald; Pontypool, Rev. G. W. Mervin, E. Preston; Wesley and Chemong, Rev. G. F. Metzler, S. Harrison; Apsley, J. McCauley.

The morning session, for the clergy only, was opened at ten o'clock by singing and prayer by Rev. Dr. Small and Rev. Dr. Marvin. Rev. Mounteer and Mr. J. L. Hughes. Rev. J. P. Wilson, chairman of the district presided. Rev. J. N. Clarry was elected Journal Secretary, and Rev. Dr. Metzler, Statistical Secretary.

The probationers for the ministry recommended to be sent to College were Rev. Messrs. D. E. Johnston, C. S. Reddick and E. Bowerman.

Rev. T. W. Leggott and Mr. T. W. Robinson were elected with the chairman to visit missions on weak circuits.

The laymen to the annual conference in June were appointed as follows: George street, D. W. Dumble, T. W. Robinson; Charlotte street, J. L. Hughes, Mark street, J. M. Davey; Millbrook, R. W. Clarke; Cavan, W. H. Staples; Cavan South, R. Walsh; Baillieboro, P. Dawson, Lakefield, L. Payne; Selwyn, B. Manning; Warsaw, J. B. Foster; Bethany, T. W. Preston, J. W. Lowes, H. Preston; Hall's Bridge, S. Harrison.

Rev. W. J. Jolliffe was elected to represent the district on the Stationing Committee at the annual conference, with Rev. H. B. Kenny as reserve.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session opened at 1.30 o'clock, and when the roll was called it was found that all but three of the ministers and laymen were in attendance. The reports from the various circuits were read, showing a marked increase in spiritual life, and an increase in membership, after all deductions from deaths, removals, etc. of 25, and an increase in the missionary giving of $110.

A resolution re the Apsley Mission was passed as follows:—"That whereas our Apsley Mission is suffering from the want of an ordained minister be it resolved that this district meeting most earnestly request the Stationing Committee to send an ordained minister, otherwise the work there cannot be sustained in the interests of our church." The resolution was moved by Rev. W. J. Jolliffe and seconded by Rev. H. McQuade.

It was moved by Rev. J. G. Lewis, seconded by Mr. R. W. Clarke, —"That we recommend the Bay of Quinte conference to memorialize the Minister of Education of Ontario, in accordance with the resolution passed by the Provincial Sabbath School Convention in 1902, regarding the memorializing of the Minister of Education to take steps to make uniform lessons and Bible readings of authorized Scripture readings in the public and High Schools of Ontario." The resolution was carried.

The following resolution regarding the chairman of the district was moved by Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, and seconded by Mr. J. L. Hughes: "That whereas the time has almost arrived when our esteemed chairman, Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., must leave our District, be it resolved that we desire to express to him our high appreciation of his faithful services during his pastorate of four years. His uniform kindness and consideration for his brethren have endeared him to us and we pray that he may long be spared to serve the church he loves so well." The resolution was unanimously adopted.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again in the Charlotte street church in October.

AN ASSAULT CASE IN THE FIFTH WARD

A Young Married Man Brutally Handled by Relatives.

Rumours are in circulation in the fifth ward, regarding an assault case which, if the particulars are founded on facts, was an unwarranted proceedings, and certainly merits investigation.

It was said to be the result of dissension amongst relatives, and the affair culminated in the assault about one o'clock on Tuesday morning, in which a young married man was severely beaten by his father-in-law assisted by his son.

It is alleged that the victim of the assault was under the influence of liquor when the assault was committed, and the affair had reached such a stage that a neighbour who was awakened by the noise, entered the house and separated the combatants. It is said that the two men pounded their victim unmercifully, and that he presented a sorry spectacle when the neighbour appeared upon the scene. Several pools of blood dotted the floor, all pointing to the fact that the unfortunate man was handled severely. It is expected that the latter will have the matter ventilated in the courts, and, judging from the appearance of his face, the victim will have no difficulty in convincing the authorities that he has been roughly handled.

Y. M. C. A. APPOINTS NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

At a Special Meeting of the Directors Last Evening.

Mr. Percy K. Holmes of Springfield Training School the Choice—Comes Highly Recommended.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. was held last night to receive the report of the delegates to the Buffalo Convention, and to consider the question of the appointment of a physical director to take the place of Mr. Aplin who has recently left. The delegates reported in favour of Mr. Percy K. Holmes of the Springfield Training School. He is a Canadian by birth, 26 years of age, and is well spoken of by the staff of the Training School, and by his fellow students, a number of whom were met by the delegates at Buffalo. The Directors at their last meeting adopted a resolution that the Peterborough Association must have as good a man for the position as could be secured. There was a large attendance of Directors present and after fully discussing the matter it was determined to engage Mr. Holmes, his duties to commence on the 1st September, next. The salary which it is necessary to pay for a capable man is considerably in excess of what has been hitherto paid by the Association, but the feeling is strong amongst those interested in athletics that if a good man were secured, an additional membership could easily be obtained to make up for the increased expense. A telegram was at once sent to Mr. Holmes confirming his appointment, this being necessary because he has several offers from other places. With the great expansion of Y.M.C.A. work that is now going on the demand for trained physical directors is said to be greatly in excess of the supply.

Mr. Holmes is recommended as not only an efficient leader in the gymnasium, but also as an all round man who will render valuable aid to all the varied work of the Association. With this addition to its staff the Peterborough Association should go forward and do a far greater work than has ever been done before for the young men of the town.

MISSIONARY WOMEN IN ANNUAL CONVENTION.

W.M.S. of Peterborough District Will Meet Thursday.

The annual convention of the Methodist W.M.S., for the Peterborough District, will be held in the Mark street church on Thursday, May 19th, commencing at 10 a.m. There will be an afternoon session at 2 o'clock. There will be reports from Auxiliaries, interesting papers and discussions, and Miss Annie E. Wilson, Branch Mission Band Secretary will conduct a conference in her department.

The evening session will open at 7.30 o'clock. Rev. J. G. Lewis, pastor of the church, will preside. The speakers of the evening will be Miss Jessie Munro, late missionary in Japan, and Miss Nicholls, a missionary on furlough from India. The Mark street church choir will sing, and Mr. R. N. Jolliffe will contribute a solo. All interested in Missions are cordially invited to attend.

THE RAILWAY BILL

Amendments to Grand Trunk Pacific Contract Considered.

THE EMPLOYMENT OF CHINESE

An All-British Board of Directors Proposed—The Leases of the Eastern Section—Rates of Traffic Between Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Resolution Adopted.

Ottawa, May 18.—The railway bill occupied the entire day in the House yesterday, and nearly a dozen amendments proposed by Opposition members were disposed of. Most of them involved principles already thoroughly discussed, and in some cases the Government contented themselves with barely voicing their objection. Several of the propositions were received with favor, and further consideration was deferred. Mr. Fielding commended the principle of Mr. Bennett's amendment, that the leases for portions of the eastern section shall be subject to the approval of the Governor in Council. The Minister of Finance also commended the principle of Dr. Sproule's amendment for referring to arbitrators or to the Railway Commission disputes as to the apportionment of rates on traffic interchanged between the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railway, but thought it was covered by the general railway act. If it was found not to be so the railway act would have to be amended, giving the authority to the Railway Commission. The Minister of Justice commended a motion by Mr. Casgrain, that a majority of the directors of the railway company shall be British subjects, but thought it should be made applicable to all railways. A lively tilt occurred over an amendment by Mr. Earle, prohibiting the use of Chinese labor on the construction of the railway. The Government sympathized with the idea, but thought it should be made applicable to all railways, and not limited to Chinese, but rather to all foreigners. Mr. Earle was severely criticized by Mr. Macpherson and others for having himself been a large employer of Chinese labor in railway construction in British Columbia. It was announced semi-officially last night that the committee stage would be concluded to-day, and the debate on the third reading commence on Thursday, to be concluded next week.

A private bill to extend a certain patent of the Canadian General Electric Company, and others, was introduced by Mr. Grant.

Upon motion of Sir Wilfrid Laurier it was agreed to adjourn on Friday next until Wednesday, 25th inst.

Grand Trunk Pacific Amendments.

The bill amending the National Transcontinental Railway Act was then considered. Mr. Blain moved an amendment limiting the interest payable by the Government on the guarantee of bonds on the western section to the amount provided under the original contract. The amendment was, after discussion, lost.

Mr. Northrup moved an amendment providing that all the capital stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co. be transferred to the Government of Canada as security for the performance of the covenants entered into by the company until the discharge of the bonds. The amendment was lost.

Mr. W. H. Bennett moved an amendment providing that no lease of any portion of the eastern section to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway shall be concluded till such lease has been approved by the Governor-in-Council.

Mr. Fielding suggested that the amendment be allowed to stand. The clause stood over.

An amendment moved by Dr. Sproule provided that the Railway Commission as a board of arbitration should apportion the leasing of the Grand Trunk Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The amendment was lost.

Mr. Kemp moved an amendment providing that the rent paid by the G. T. P. for lease of the eastern section shall be equal to the amount which the Government pays as interest for the money used in the construction of the road. The amendment was lost.

Employment of Chinese.

Mr. Earle of Vancouver, moved an amendment declaring that no contractor or sub-contractor engaged on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway should employ Chinese labor.

After much pro and con Chinese debate, the amendment was voted down.

The next amendment was moved by E. Gus Porter of West Hastings. It sought to bind the Grand Trunk Company to see that the Grand Trunk Pacific carried out the contract. This amendment was also voted down.

Mr. Pringle moved to amend the contract by providing that during the term of the lease or while any of the Government guaranteed bonds are outstanding, the Grand Trunk shall not transfer any of the common stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific, except for cash at par value.

The amendment after some discussion was rejected.

A similar fate befel an amendment offered by Mr. Borden, providing for an immediate investigation by the commissioners of any complaint of the traffic not being to Canadian ports, the result of that investigation to be at once laid before Parliament, if sitting, or, if not, then within ten days of the opening of the following session.

Mr. Hsggart offered an amendment to make clear the right of the Government to foreclose in the event of the Grand Trunk Pacific being in default in the interest or the bonds guaranteed by the Grand Trunk. This amendment also was defeated.

Mr. Casgrain moved an amendment providing that the majority of the directors shall be British subjects.

Mr. Fitzpatrick promised to consider the amendment, although he preferred, he said, that such a clause should be put in the general railway act and made applicable to all railways.

Progress was then reported on the bill, and the Prime Minister moved his resolution to increase the number of commissioners from three to four. He explained that it had been decided to make the increase in order that there should be one commissioner representing Ontario, one representing Quebec, one from the Maritime Provinces and one from the West.

The resolution was reported, and the House rose at 10.45 p.m.

Scandal in Ottawa.

Ottawa, May 18.—The Police Commissioners commenced yesterday the investigation into charges made against Police Sergt. Hatton by Police Constable Hal Walters. Constable Walters accused Mr. Hatton of drinking liquor in bars and also in the station while in uniform, and accepting a present of a lady's coat from a prisoner who had been in the cells. Several witnesses were heard on both sides, and at 12.30 o'clock it was decided to adjourn the investigation until to-day, at 11 o'clock. Meantime Sergt. Hatton is suspended pending the result.

Shot His Sister.

Harriston, May 18.—Yesterday afternoon a sixteen-year-old son of Thomas Burton of Fulton's Mills, four miles from here, while fooling with a rifle, accidentally discharged the weapon and instantly killed his sister, Pearl, aged fourteen. The bullet entered her face and passed through her head.

Oppose Reciprocity.

Concord, N. H., May 18.—The Republican State convention here yesterday adopted a platform opposing reciprocal trade relations, which involves the exchange of competing commodities.

As a Purifier of the Blood

And Means of Enlivening the Action of Kidneys, Liver and Bowels There is no treatment so Effective as

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

People sometimes forget that there is no way in this world by which the blood can be purified except through the action of the liver and kidneys.

But since this is a fact which any physician will corroborate there is no preparation more satisfactory as a blood purifier than Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Acting directly on the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels, these pills increase the vigour and activity of these organs, thoroughly cleanse the system, purify the blood of poisonous impurities and set the digestive organs in perfect order.

There is no surer way of ridding the body of pains and aches and preventing the serious diseases that arise from impure blood than by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mrs. C. Nash, the well-known nurse, 391 King street, Ottawa, Ont., states:—"I consider Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills a splendid family medicine. I keep them on hand all the time and do not think I could do without them. I used to suffer a great deal from weak back, caused by deranged kidneys and at times had severe sick headaches, but this medicine always brings relief. I never knew it to fail. Several friends have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills on my recommendation with equally good results."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 10

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA

By Booth Tarkington.

From far up Main street came the cry "She's a-comin'! She's a-comin!" and this announcement of the parade proving only one of a dozen false alarms a thousand discussions took place over old fashioned silver timepieces as to when "she" was really due. Schofields' Henry was much appealed to as an arbiter in these discussions, from a sense of his having a good deal to do with time in a general sort of way, and thus Schofields' came to be reminded that it was getting on toward 10 o'clock, whereas, in the excitement of festival, he had not yet struck 9. This, rushing forthwith to do, he did, and, in the elation of the moment, seven or eight besides. Miss Helen Sherwood was looking down on the mass of shifting color from a second story window of the courthouse, and she had the pleasure of seeing Schofields' emerge on the steps beneath her when the bells had done and heard the cheers (led by Mr. Martin) with which the crowd greeted his appearance after the performance of his feat.

She turned beamingly to Harkless. "What a family it is!" she laughed. "Just one big, jolly family! I didn't know people could be like this until I came to Plattville."

"That is the word for it," he said, resting his hand on the casement beside her. "I used to think it was desolate, but that was long ago." He leaned from the window to look down. In his dark cheek was a glow the Carlow folks had never seen there, and somehow he seemed less thin and tired than usual; indeed, he did not seem tired at all, by far the contrary, and he carried himself upright, when he was not stooping to see under the hat, though not as if he thought about it. "I believe they are the best people I know," he went on. "Perhaps it is because they have been so kind to me; but they are kind to each other, too—kind, good people."

"I know," she said, nodding, "I know. There are fat women, women who rock and rock on piazzas by the sea, and they speak of country people as the 'lower classes.' How happy this big family is in not knowing it is the lower classes!"

"We haven't read Nordau down here," said John. "Old Tom Martin's favorite work is 'The Descent of Man,' and Miss Tibbs cares most for 'Lalla Rookh' and 'Beulah.' And why not?"

"It was a girl from Southeast Cottonbridge, Mass.," said Helen, "who heard I was from Indiana and asked me if I didn't 'hate to live so far away from things.'" There was a pause while she leaned out of the window with her face aside from him. Then she remarked carelessly, "I met her at Winter Harbor."

"Do you go to Winter Harbor?" he asked.

"We have gone there every summer until this one for years. Have you friends who go there?"

"I had once. There was a classmate of mine from Rouen"—

"What was his name? Perhaps I know him." She stole a glance at him and saw that his face had fallen into sad lines.

"He's forgotten me, I dare say. I haven't seen him for seven years, and that's a long time, you know, and he's 'out in the world,' where remembering is harder. Here in Plattville we don't forget."

"Were you ever at Winter Harbor?"

"I was once. I spent a very happy day there long ago, when you must have been a little girl. Were you there in"—

"Listen!" she cried. "The procession is coming. Look at the people!"

The parade had seized a psychological moment. There was a fanfare of trumpets in the east. Lines of people rushed for the streets, and as one looked down on the big straw hats and sunbonnets and many kinds of finer head apparel tossing forward they seemed like surf sweeping up the long beaches. She was coming at last. The boys whooped in the middle of the street. Some tossed their arms to heaven, others expressed their emotion by somersaults; those most deeply moved walked on their hands. In the distance one saw over the heads of the multitude tossing banners and the moving crests of triumphal cars, where "cohorts were shining in purple and gold."

There was another flourish of music. Then all the band gave sound, and, with the blare of brass and the crash of drums, the glory of the parade burst upon Plattville. Glory in the utmost! The impetus of the march time music, the flare of royal banners, the smiling of beautiful court ladies and great silken nobles, the swaying of howdahs on camel and elephant and the awesome shaking of the earth beneath the elephant's feet and his devastating eye (every one declared he looked the alarmed Mr. Bill Snoddy, stoutest citizen of the county, full in the face as he passed him, and Mr. Snoddy felt not at all reassured when Tom Martin severely hinted that it was with the threatening glance of a rival); then the badinage of the clown, creaking by in his donkey cart; the terrific recklessness of the spangled hero who was drawn along in a cage with two striped tigers—the delight of all this glittering pomp and pageantry needed even more than walking on your hands to express.

Last of all came the tooting calliope, followed by swarms of boys as it executed "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By, Jennie," with infinite gusto.

When it had gone Miss Sherwood's gaze relaxed—she had been looking on as eagerly as any child—and she turned to speak to Harkless and discovered that he was no longer in the room. Instead she found Minnie and Mr. Willetts, whom he had summoned from another window.

"He was called away," explained Lige. "He thought he'd be back before the parade was over and said you were enjoying it so much he didn't want to speak to you."

"Called away?"

Minnie laughed. "Oh, everybody sends for Mr. Harkless."

"It was a farmer name of Bowlder," added Mr. Willetts. "His son Hartley 's drinking again, and there ain't any one but Harkless can do anything with him. You let him tackle a sick man to nurse or a tipsy feller to handle, and I tell you," Mr. Willetts went on, with enthusiasm, "he is at home. It beats me, and lots of people don't think college does a man any good. Why, the way he cured old Fis"— Miss Briscoe interrupted him.

"See!" she cried, pointing out of the window. "Look out there! Something's happened!"

There was a swirl in the crowd below. Men were running around a corner of the courthouse, and the women and children were barking after. They went so fast and there were so many of them that immediately that whole portion of the yard became a pushing, tugging, squirming jam of people.

"It's on the other side," said Lige. "We can see from the hall window. Come quick before these other folks fill it up."

They followed him across the building and looked down on an agitated swarm of faces. Five men were standing on the entrance steps to the door below them, and the crowd was thickly massed beyond, leaving a little semicircle clear about the steps. Those behind struggled to get closer and leaped in the air to catch a glimpse of what was going on. Harkless stood alone on the top step, his hand resting on the shoulder of the pale and contrite and sobered Hartley. On the lowest step Jim Bardlock was standing with sheepishly hanging head and between him and Harkless the two gamblers of the walnut shells. The journalist held in his hand the implements of their profession.

"Yes; give up every cent," he said quietly. "You've taken $86 from this boy. Hand it over."

The men began to edge down closer to the crowd, giving little, swift, desperate, searching looks from left to right and right to left and moving nervously about like weasels in a trap.

"Close up, there," said Harkless. "Don't let them out."

"W'y can't we git no square treatment here?" one of the gamblers whined. But his eyes blazed with a rage that belied the plaintive passivity of his tone. "We ain't been runnin' no skin. W'y d'ye say we gotter give up our own money? You gotter prove it was a skin. We risked our money fair."

"Prove it! Come up here, Eph Watts. Friends"—the editor turned to the crowd, smiling—"friends, here's a man we ran out of town once because he knew too much about things of this sort. He's come back to us again, and he's here to stay. He'll give us an object lesson on the shell game."

"It's pretty simple," remarked Mr. Watts. "The best way is to pick up the ball with your second finger and the back part of your thumb, as you pretend to lay the shell down over it—this way." He illustrated and showed several methods of manipulation with professional sang froid, and as he made plain the vulgar swindle by which many had been duped that morning there arose an angry and threatening murmur.

"You all see," said Harkless, raising his voice, "what a simple cheat it is—an old, wornout one. Yet a lot of you lost your own money on it and then stood by, staring like idiots, and let Hartley Bowlder lose $86, and not one of you lifted a hand. How hard did you work for what these two cheap crooks took from you? Ah," he cried, "it is because you were greedy that they robbed you so easily! You know it's true. It's when you want to get something for nothing that the 'confidence men' steal the money you sweat for and make you the laughingstock of the country. And you, Jim Bardlock, town marshal; you, who confess that you 'went in the game 60 cents' worth' yourself"— His face was wrathful and stern as he raised his accusing hand and leveled it at the unhappy municipal.

The town marshal smiled uneasily and deprecatingly about him and, seeing only angry, frowning brows, hearing only words of condemnation, passed his hand unsteadily over his fat mustache, shifted from one leg to the other and back again, looked up, looked down, and then, an amiable and pleasure loving man, beholding nothing but accusation and wrath in heaven and earth and wishing nothing more than to sink into the waters under the earth, but having no way of reaching them, and finding his troubles quite unbearable and himself unable to meet the manifold eye of man, he sought relief after the unsagacious fashion of a larger bird than he. His burly form underwent a series of convulsions not unlike sobs, and he shut his eyes tight and held them so, presenting a picture of misery unequaled in the memory of

"You, you, a man elected to"— any spectator. The editor's outstretched hand began to shake. "You," he tried to continue; "you, a man elected to"—

There came from the crowd the sound of a sad, high keyed voice drawling, "That's a nice vest Jim's got on, but it ain't hardly the feathers fitten for an ostrich, is it?"

Harkless broke into a ringing laugh and turned to the shell men. "Give up the boy's money. Hurry."

"Step down here and git it," said the one who had spoken.

There was a turbulent motion in the crowd, and a cry arose: "Run 'em out! Ride 'em on a rail! Tar and feathers! Run 'em out o' town!"

"I wouldn't dillydally long if I were you," said Harkless. A roll of bills was sullenly placed in his hand, which he counted and turned over to the elder Bowlder. One of the shell men clutched the editor's sleeve with his dirty hand.

"We hain't done wi' youse," he said hoarsely. "Don't belief it, not for a minute, see?"

The town marshal opened his eyes briskly and, placing a hand on each of the gamblers, said, "I do hereby arrest your said persons and declare you my prisoners."

The cry arose again louder: "Run 'em out! String 'em up! Hang 'em! Hang them!" And a forward rush was made.

"This way, Jim. Quick!" cried Harkless, bending down and jerking one of the gamblers half way up the steps. "Get through the hall to the other side and then run 'em to the lockup. No one will stop you that way. Watts and I will hold this door."

Bardlock hustled his prisoners through the doorway, and the crowd pushed up the steps, while Harkless struggled to keep the vestibule clear until Watts got the double doors closed. "Stand back, there!" he shouted. "It's all over. Don't be foolish. The law is good enough for us. Stand back, will you?" He was shoving vigorously with open hand and elbow, when a compact little group of men suddenly dashed up the steps together, and a heavy stick swung out over their heads. A straw hat with a gay ribbon sailed through the air. The editor's long arms went out swiftly from his body in several directions, the hands not open, but clinched and hard. The next instant he and Mr. Watts stood alone on the steps, and a man with a bleeding, blaspheming mouth dropped his stick and tried to lose himself in the crowd. Mr. Watts was returning something he had not used to his hip pocket.

"Prophets of Israel!" exclaimed William Todd ruefully. "It wasn't Eph Watts' pistol. Did you see Mr. Harkless? I was up on them steps when he begun. I don't believe he needs as much takin' care of as we think."

"Wasn't it one of them Crossroads devils that knocked his hat off?" asked Judd Bennett. "I thought I see Bob Skillett run up with a club."

Harkless threw open the doors behind him. The hall was empty. "You may come in now," he said. "This isn't my courthouse."

It's Impure Blood.

"What is it?" asks the mother as she notices the smooth skin of her child marred by a red or pimply eruption. It is impure blood, and the child needs at once to begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the best and surest remedy for impurity of the blood. It entirely eradicates the poisons which corrupt the blood and cause disease. It cures scrofula, boils, pimples, eczema, saltrheum and other eruptive diseases which are the direct result of impure blood. It enriches as well as purifies the blood.

"Dr. Pierce's medicine has not only benefited me greatly, but it has done wonders for my two sons," writes Mrs. M. Hartrick, of Demster, Oswego Co., N. Y. "Both had scrofula. I have lost two daughters in less than five years with consumption and scrofula. My eldest son was taken two or three years ago with hemorrhage from the lungs. It troubled him for over a year. He took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and has not had a hemorrhage in over a year. My younger son had scrofulous sores on his neck, had two lanced, but has not had any since he commenced to take your medicine."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Malt Purity

Ale brewed from malt alone possesses important dietic properties that are lacking in common ales.

Carling's Ale is brewed from the purest and most scientifically prepared malt, and contains more food and less alcohol than common ales.

That is why it is so regularly prescribed by family physicians for building up their patients.

No ale is equal to Carling's for medicinal purposes.

The Fluctuations of the Leading Stocks

The Wall Street Market was again rather quiet, the price fluctuations being confined to narrow limits, and the sales to noon amounting to only 87,700. The market opened stronger than last night's close, following London prices, which were about 3-8 up. The Erie issues showed some little strength as did also U. S. S., both common and preferred. M.O.P., which was 88 3-4 yesterday, to-day rallied to 90. The general tone of the market up until 2 o'clock was strong, though slow.

The following are the principal quotations on the New York stock market, as received by Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, Hunter street:

CHICAGO MARKET

The Chicago market was somewhat erratic this morning. The opening was about the same as last night's close. During the morning prices advanced to yesterday's high points. May wheat, in fact, was stronger, and by 2.30 o'clock had reached 96 7-8.

The following are the quotations from the Chicago wheat pit, as received by Messrs. McMillan & Maguire:—

To McMillan & Maguire: New York, May 18.—There can be little question that the great majority of our financial leaders are hoping for a rising market. A rising market for securities attended by active public buying would make it possible to provide the hundreds of millions of new capital required by our public companies. At present there seems to be very little buying of stocks for investment. There was a considerable amount last year, but these investments proved so unprofitable that it is very difficult to get public buying. When the public sees buying in the market of the right stamp there will probably be a return of public buying. It is difficult to see how public buying of securities can be encouraged when there is no financial leader who thinks well enough of the situation to put himself on record as confident of a rising market.—Stockholder.

To McMillan & Maguire: Chicago, May 18th, 1904.—Weather Map, light rains in Ia, Mo and Ohio Valley. Clear everywhere else. Temperatures higher everywhere. Map perfect for wheat, corn and oats.

St. Paul.—J. J. Hill has left for New York. It is believed that final report of Northern Securities will be given out there Saturday.

BUY SEPTEMBER WHEAT

We believe purchases of Sept. wheat below 80c will show ten points profit before the option expires. With existing conditions cash wheat is not likely to fall below 90c during 1904 and Sept. is cheap at present prices. We buy wheat in lots of 1 M bush. and upwards on three cent margins for Sept. or 5 for July.

LATEST SPORT

GOLF.

There will be a tea on Thursday afternoon, May 19th, at the golf links. A handicap match will be played and the members are requested to be there at half past three.

CRICKET

Mr. A. Hollingshead will present a cricket bat to the member of the Colts cricket team having the highest batting average during the season.

FOOTBALL.

To-night the Old Country Wanderers and Y. M. C. A. teams will play a practice game at the driving park.

• • • •

The games scheduled for next Saturday in the Midland League are Norwood at Wanderers and Quakers at Harwood.

• • • •

The Quakers expect a hard game in Harwood on Saturday. The Rice Lake bunch put up a strong argument here last week and on their own grounds will be a hard nasty proposition to deal with.

• • • •

The "Y" team should be in the park of condition when they run up against some team. They don't care what team it is, but they're dying to lick somebody.

• • • •

President Dr. Morgan, of the League, has appointed a committee to deal with the protest entered by the Wanderers on the goal scored in the Bridgenorth-Wanderers game, and the decision will be handed out Saturday night.

• • • •

A full practice of the Quakers football team will be held to-night at 6.45 at the Oval.

• • • •

Mr. A. Noble will referee the Quaker-Harwood game on Saturday.

• • • •

Last night an interesting game of football was played between the Business College and Collegiate Institute teams. The game resulted in a tie, 1—1.

The teams were:

Business College.—Goal, H. Quinn; backs, McCarrol, Donaldson; half backs, McCulloch, Hays, Bradly; forwards, Northey, Anglesy, Cundell, Sedgwick, Downie.

P. C. I.—Goal, O'Brien; backs, Golorex; Boucher; half backs, Condon, Nelson, Quinlan; forwards, Craig, Morrow, Kelly, McIlmoyle, Devlin.

LACROSSE.

The Peterboroughs had a good practice at Central Park on Wednesday. They will be going at a fast clip when they collide with Lindsay next Tuesday.

• • • •

The T. A. S. always did play good lacrosse and their team in the Trent Valley League promises to more than uphold the reputation of the society in this regard. The players will meet to-night to elect a captain.

• • • •

The Peterboroughs will practice to-night at the separate school grounds.

BASEBALL.

The T. A. S. is scheduled to play the Auburns here on Saturday in the opening game in the Kawartha League and Bobcaygeon is billed to clash with the Auburns here on Victoria day.

• • • •

The Kawartha League will open on Saturday with a game between the T. A. S. and Auburn teams at the oval. Both teams are playing good ball and the prospects for an interesting contest are excellent.

• • • •

In last night's Examiner an article appeared in which the Quakers accused the Victorias of flumking a game with them and also said that the Vics. had been saying considerable of what they could do, but that they had not made any effort to carry out their threats. Now, as a matter of fact, the Victorias have not organized for this season and do not intend doing so; but if the Quakers are spoiling for a game the Victorias will get together a team from last year's club and play them in the afternoon of May 24th. An early reply is requested.—Victorias.

"Snap shots" of Lindsay players:—"Stovepipe" Cinnamon is up to form and will receive the hot ones in good style this season. "Pony" Workman is doing great stunts at second and will be all the way. "Rancher" McGill is putting in daily practice and will cover first bag, as of old. "Cooper" Brooks is whooping it up at centre and is catching some staving hot ones. "Slipper" Menzies is covering lots of ground around third, and will make the pinch hit when needed. "Hookey" Perrin reports strong and having practiced every night. "Diamond" Marks is doing brilliant work and will be useful in out or in field. "Doony" Miller will be in evidence all week and will alternate between short and the slab. "Noody" Stalker may not be seen in the first game; he reports no practice. Messrs. Hooper, Drycott, "Newsy" Moynes, Thornburn and others will attend to practice all week. Teams will be chosen in a few days.—Post.

In a good, snappy game of baseball at the Paterson street grounds last evening the Charlotte street Guild team in their initial game of the season defeated the Young Quakers by a score of 4—0. Only four innings were played. The winners showed up in splendid form the fielders playing clean ball, while H. Roddy and Pilling on the slab were practically invincible. The quakers are a fast and well-balanced team and will make all junior aggregations hustle this summer. Quinlan pitched a fine game last evening and for two innings had his opponents guessing, but in the third and fourth, a few hits, aided by a couple of errors, gave the winners four runs. The return game will be played on Thursday.

The teams were: Charlotte street.—H. Roddy, p and rf; Thornton, c; Jolliffe, 1b; Pedlar, 2b; E. Roddy, 3b; McWilliams, ss; Carr, lf; Fuller, cf; J. Pilling, rf and p.

Quakers—Quinlan, p; Heaslip, c; Weller, 1b; Wilson, 2b; McMullen, 3b; Gilman, ss; Swanson, lf; Morphet, cf; Guerin, lf; Umpire, Mr. Webb.

Jersey City, in the Eastern League, with a win of 15 games and 1 lost, looks a little more like a winner than Montreal. They must take lessons in getting there from the enterprising Jersey "skeeter."

• • • •

Under the new baseball rules, the batter is not entitled to be given first base for a balk. Balks now only affect the base runner, and the only effect of a balk is to advance all base runners at the moment on bases. In the Eastern League, however, special instructions nullify this latter clause with regard to the runner on third base unless forced to score by others behind.

• • • •

A meeting of the executive of the Guild Baseball League will be held tomorrow night in the Y. M. C. A. at 8.30 o'clock.

• • • •

An interesting game is promised for Victoria Day in the morning, when the Young Quakers, one of the strongest junior teams in town will play the Young Athletes of Port Hope. The Quakers are a new team this season and are capable of putting up a fast article of ball.

• • • •

Toronto dropped the sixth straight game to Jersey City yesterday and, incidentally, Montreal lost also.

A call so call for the Wanderers was the game last night between that team and the London street aggregation, which resulted in a score of 9—0 in favour of the Wanderers. The London Streets lined up as follows: Porter, p; Jeffries, c; Dougherty, 1b; Jeffries, 2b; Nicholls, 3b. Referee L. Borradaile.

• • • •

The Midland Baseball League opens on Tuesday when Oshawa goes to Cobourg, Port Hope to Bowmanville and Peterborough to Lindsay.

• • • •

In the game to be played on the morning of Victoria Day between the Young Quakers of town and the Star Athletics of Port Hope, the line-up will be as follows:

Young Quakers—Quinlan, p; Heaslip, c; Conroy, 1b; Wilson, 2b; McMullen, 3b; Gilman, ss; Weller, rf; Morphet, cf; Swanston, lf.

Star Athletics—G. Miller, p; C. Miller, c; Edmunds, 1b; Bennett, 2b; Bradburn 3b; Chislett, ss; Wood, rf; Clarke, cf; Bice, lf.

MASS OF SORES

Awful Suffering of a Boy from an Itching Humour.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Not One Square Inch of Skin on His Whole Body Was Unaffected.

"My little son, a boy of five, broke out with an itching rash. Three doctors prescribed for him, but he kept getting worse until we could not dress him any more. They finally advised me to try a certain medical college, but its treatment did not do any good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura Remedies he was so bad that I had to cut his hair off and put the Cuticura Ointment on him on bandages, as it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one square inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heart-breaking. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura Ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth applications the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. I used the Cuticura Resolvent for his blood, and now I can say that he is entirely cured, and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day."

JAPANESE GO IN AND OUT AGAIN.

Drive Russians out of Newchwang and Then Re-Embark.

READY TO EVACUATE AGAIN.

Were Japanese Warships Shikishima and Asama Sunk, as Reported by the Russians?—Latter Persist That News is True, but Story not Believed at Che Foo—Japs Occupy Kuanddyasyan.

Paris, May 19.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Matin says that official advices have been received to the effect that the Japanese have occupied Newchwang.

Back in Newchwang.

London, May 19.—The Daily Telegraph's Newchwang correspondent, under date of May 18, says:

"After driving out 1,500 Russians and destroying the railways, the Japanese re-embarked from Kaichau, the combined fleet heading southward.

"The Russians re-entered Newchwang with 1,000 infantry and two batteries of artillery, but all preparations are made for another hasty evacuation."

Report Jap Disaster.

Che Foo, May 19.—Russian refugees who arrived here to-day on a junk from Port Dalny say that the Japanese bombarded Port Arthur last Monday.

Russian officers who were on Golden Hill declared, accprding to the refugees, that during the bombardment a Japanese battleship and a cruiser struck mines and sank.

The warships reported to have been sunk off Port Arthur are the battleships Shikishima and the armored cruiser Asama. The story is not believed here, but the Russians who brought the news insist that it is true.

SILENCED IN HALF A DAY.

Terrific Bombardment Against Shore Defences at Kaichau.

London, May 19.—The Daily Telegraph's Newchwang correspondent, cabling under date of May 17, says: "The Japanese with a large fleet of transports and warships appeared at Kaichau yesterday morning and opened a terrific bombardment against the shore defences, which were silenced by four o'clock in the afternoon, the Russians retreating to Tashichao. The Japanese troops landed and are to-day advancing rapidly, outflanking Tashichao and Newchwang."

Japs Used Submarines.

Paris, May 19.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Echo de Paris has been shown a letter from Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel (now in command of the military forces at Port Arthur) to a relative, recounting the loss of the battleship Petropavlovsk, in which is the following: "As the squadron approached the entrance to Port Arthur the battleship Pobieda was struck by a Whitehead torpedo discharged by a submarine boat. We saw the submarine for a few seconds, and I ordered that it be fired at, but the boat was not hit."

Another letter from Gen. Stoessel says he saw two submarine vessels in the roadstead on April 15.

Blowing Up Ships.

Chicago, May 19.—A special to The Daily News from Che Foo says: "The Daily News despatch boat Fawan, while passing Port Arthur about 10 a.m. yesterday, heard six heavy explosions. They appeared to proceed from the inner harbor and suggested the idea that the Russians were blowing up their ships and docks."

Near Newchwang.

Liaoyang, May 19.—The northern wing of the Japanese army, moving from Fengwangcheng, has occupied Kuandyasyan, 45 miles northeast of Fengwangcheng. A division of guards which was moving towards Siuyen has retired, temporarily at least, with the object, it is supposed, of covering and of co-operating with the southern troops against Newchwang and Haicheng.

Canadian Chaplain to Japan.

Toronto, May 19.—Six missionaries, one of whom is a Canadian, will go to the front with the Japanese troops in the capacity of chaplains. The news was received by the Methodist Mission Board of Toronto, and the committee, which met yesterday morning, decided in favor of Rev. Daniel Norman, B.A., B.D., an Aurora boy and a graduate of Victoria in the class of '96. He was born near Aurora and in 1894 he was ordained and volunteered for work in Japan.

To Cancel Charter.

Toronto, May 19.—Cancelling the charter of the Toronto Junction Recreation Club is the latest move of the Ontario Government to close it. There is one civil suit pending. In the suit the refusal of the president of the club, Frank Baby, to answer questions by which he might incriminate himself, and in which refusal was upheld by the Master-in-Ordinary, furnishes the grounds upon which Attorney-General Gibson has considered the advisability of recommending the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to revoke the club's charter.

Big Coal Deal.

Halifax, N.S., May 19.—H. M. Whitney, Boston, and B. N. Pearson, Halifax, who promoted the Dominion Coal Company and the Dominion Iron Company, have now obtained control of the Inverness mines, Port Hood and Chimney Corner, all big producers.

Liner Friesland Disabled.

Queenstown, May 19.—The steamer Aurania reports having passed the Belgian Line steamer Friesland, disabled, yesterday morning, off the coast of Waterford, Ireland. The Friesland signaled that her shaft had been broken. The weather is fine and a tug has been sent from Queenstown to assist the disabled ship into port. The Friesland sailed from Philadelphia for Liverpool on May 10.

Want Import Duty.

Vancouver, May 19.—The Board of Trade Tuesday night decided to support Victoria and Westminster Boards of Trade in the suggestion that a delegation should be sent to Ottawa to press upon the Government the need for the imposition of an import duty on lumber. The Board of Trade also passed a resolution urging on British Columbia members to have a clause inserted in the Grand Trunk Pacific bill that construction must be commenced simultaneously from the Pacific Coast.

Expects 200,000 Immigrants.

Montreal, May 19.—"It is not too much to say that before the season is over 200,000 immigrants will have entered Canada since last year," said John Hoolahan, Dominion immigration agent, yesterday morning. Monday morning more than 5,000 immigrants bound for the Canadian west have been handled through Montreal. Four hundred from the Sicilian passed through yesterday.

HIBERNIAN ASHORE

An Allan Line Steamer Likely to Prove Total Loss.

VESSEL IS FILLING RAPIDLY

Crew of Forty and Twenty-Two Cattlemen Escaped—Value of the Vessel Is Estimated at $350,000 and the Value of the Cargo, Principally Grain and Cattle, at $250,000.

St. John's, Nfld., May 19.—The Allan Line steamer Hibernian, which sailed from Montreal on May 14, and Quebec on May 15, for London, with cattle and a general cargo, and seven passengers, went ashore at midnight Tuesday, during a dense fog, at Stormy Point, a shoal near Cod Roy, thirty miles north of Cape Ray, at the entrance of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The vessel is listing and filling fast, and it is feared that she will become a total wreck.

The crew and passengers are safe.

Left to Aid.

Halifax, May 19.—The steamer Viking left for the scene of the wreck of the Hibernian at Cod Roy shortly before midnight yesterday. She was practically ready for sea, being fitted to go to Labrador on a trading expedition. No definite news is obtainable as to how the Hibernian went ashore, but it is supposed that she was driven there with the ice.

No Details.

Montreal, May 19.—Messrs. H. & A. Allan have received no details whatever except that the Hibernian is ashore. The cargo consisted of hay, 55,807 bushels of grain, 56 tons of cheese, 128 tons of hay (including cattle feed), 602 cattle, 175 standards of deals, 1,500 sacks of flour, 86 tons of sundries; in addition there was a considerable amount of lumber and tinned meats. There were 22 cattle men on board, 40 of a crew, but no passengers. The value of the vessel is estimated at $350,000 and the value of the cargo of the vessel, $250,000; total value of steamship and cargo, $600,000.

WRECKED IN DENSE FOG.

British Bark Helen Isabel and Sch. Pansy Total Losses.

St. John's, Nfld., May 19.—The British bark Helen Isabel, Capt. Laurier, laden with molasses, eighteen days out from Barbados for St. John's, was wrecked off Mistaken Point, near Cape Race, Tuesday, in a dense fog. The vessel will be a total loss. The crew escaped.

Sch. Pansy, Too.

The schooner Pansy, Capt. Christian, salt laden, is also ashore off Point Verde, in the same vicinity. She will be a total loss. All on board were saved.

ONTARIOS ADVANTAGES

In Ontario the people do not seem to have realized the importance of good roads, nor to have adequately appreciated the liberal assistance offered by the Ontario Government. The million dollars voted for county highways by the Ontario Legislature does not seem to have been desired, for comparatively few counties or municipalities have taken advantage of this material assistance to obtain good roads. The people of New York State appear to be more impressed with the importance of improved highways, for if they accept State aid they must do it upon conditions far less favourable than those upon which the farmers of Ontario can obtain financial aid. The people of the neighbouring State have to contribute to direct taxation to State funds from which aid to good roads is voted, but they must also pay taxes to raise municipal funds, which must be expended in equal amount to get the benefit of the State grant. On the other hand, in Ontario, the amount given by the Government is not raised by direct taxation, but is practically a clear gift. The State of New York has this year voted a million and a half dollars to help to build roads, and respecting this the Watertown Times says:—

"The amount of $1,500,000 for good roads will do a great deal of work this year. It is given by the state on the principle that Rockefeller makes his gifts, that the counties must give an equal amount —so every county is to raise as much money as they get from the state, and this appropriation for good roads, therefore, amounts to $3,000,000 altogether. Certainly the state should be willing to do as much as the county will do. They not only tax themselves for half the sum, but, of course, all the counties put together have to pay the amount for the other half in some way or other, for the state is a pauper, it has no money except what the people give it. So the people pay the full amount for the good roads. When we say the state pays half of it, we mean that it gives from indirect sources outside the localities largely benefitted. None of the cities or villages, which pay four-fifths of the taxes, get any of this good roads money, but they are more than willing to pay it, for they want these good roads running from the country into their centres—they want them to bring trade in, and they want them for their own pleasure in driving out. The real practical benefit comes to the farmer himself in furnishing a good highway on which to transport his products to the market."

The Times' statement that the "State is a pauper and has no money except what the people give it," does not, happily, apply to Ontario, and it serves to strongly emphasize the superior position in relation to taxation which the people of Ontario enjoy, and to emphasize the wisdom of the rule of the past generation which has contributed to the constitution of the difference. In New York, the money raised by the state for the good roads grant, or any other purpose, is raised by direct taxation, like municipal taxes in this province. The contrast in Ontario is great. In this province the tax collector's roll has no column for provincial taxes, for the assessors makes no assessment for provincial purposes. The provincial revenue, instead of being collected from the people, is largely derived from a careful management of our forest resources. And these have by virtue of wise administration and prudent management heretofore stood between the people and direct taxation, and not only that but they have been expended in such a way that by their distribution among the municipalities they have not only obviated direct taxation for provincial purposes, but they have very largely lessened the amount of municipal taxation. And our timber resources have been so well looked after and conserved that they will for years and years to come continue to yield a large revenue. There is no province, there is no state in the Union across the border in the same happy condition as Ontario in regard to taxation. Besides this is not the only benefit the province receives and has received from a long course of excellent Liberal Administration.

OUR HUGE BACK COUNTRY

The other day Governor Brady of Alaska, made a speech on that region at a dinner in New York, recalling the time when it was known as "Seward's ice-box." Seward bought Alaska from Russia for $7,500,000, and people said it was money thrown away. To-day the salmon canning industry alone yields a profit large enough to pay the interest on four times that sum. Gold mining last year yielded $38,000,000. Stock raising is being carried on with much success, and the fisheries, other than salmon, promise well. Rich deposits of steam coal have been found along the coast. Altogether, says Mr. Brady, Alaska, counting the value of her products and of the merchandise she consumes, is worth $75,000,000 a year to the rest of the United States, and she is only just making a start." Cheaper transportation is the one thing needful, and it will come as population grows.

Canadian "Tories" who are picturing the back country of Ontario and Quebec as a worthless desert, are making a mistake they will yet deplore. Fifty years ago, when the Grand Trunk proper was being built, some of the finest sections of Ontario, notably the Huron and Bruce country, were set down as irreclaimable wastes; and we all known how the Hudson Bay Company officials ridiculed the idea of wheat being grown for export in Manitoba. "Seward's ice-box" was only one instance among many of the folly of concluding that because a region is new, unopened and away to the north of civilization, it must necessarily be good for nothing. There is every reason to believe that the country between Winnipeg and Quebec, which the Grand Trunk Pacific will traverse, is rich in timber, minerals and water-power, and in addition, contains vast stretches of good farming land. Yet the "Tories" make it their business to deride the Liberals who say so, and will have it that it is nothing short of criminals to build a line there. Such is the "compelling power" of party politics that it turns men otherwise patriotic enough into enemies of their country!

Some one has said with truth that, at present, all that part of Canada north of the St. Lawrence, the Ottawa and Lake Superior, consists of little more than the roadbed of the Canadian Pacific Railway. If the enormous spaces to the north are, as the Conservatives say, no worth opening, the future of the Dominion is not bright. If on the other hand, they contain anything like the potential wealth which the G.T.P. surveyors profess to have found, the sooner they are brought within reach of a market, the better for all concerned, more particularly for the older provinces, which of late have been almost standing still.

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough." This remedy keeps the cough loose, lessens the severity and frequency of the coughing spells and counteracts any tendency towards pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

AMERICAN GIRL SUED FOR A HUG.

Man Says it Broke one of his Ribs—She was Affectionate

She Claims This and Says Man Knew it Very Well.

Lockport, May 18.—Walter Lorraine, of Riga, Monroe county, has brought an action against Marie Du Calm, of Niagara Falls, to recover damages. It is charged by Lorraine that Miss Du Calm hugged him so tightly as to break one of his ribs. Within a few days a motion will be made to transfer the place of trial from Monroe county to Niagara county, and according to the papers in action, as received, by the Union and Advertiser, of Rochester, the trial of the case will be entertaining.

It appears that last winter the plaintiff was visiting in Ottawa. While there he met the defendant, who was visiting an aunt in the Canadian city. Mutual subjects of interest drew the young people into an acquaintanceship that speedily developed into an attachment of a deeper nature. Lorraine overstayed his original time, and the young woman also found it more agreeable than she had anticipated in the province. The ice carnival was at its height, and the young people decided to go to Quebec to visit it, and also to secure a number of photographic views, both being ardent amateur photographers.

The visit was made and conversation was punctuated with the click of the kodak. Lorraine was to return home on the following day, and it was decided to develop the negatives that night. At the home of the defendant's aunt there had been fitted up a temporary dark room for the use of Miss Du Calm while she was visiting and the room was fitted with the regular ruby lamp. That's where the red rays enter into the case.

Several negatives had been developed, and one in particular appealed to the enthusiastic nature of the defendant. As she saw the image of the gay scenes which they had witnessed earlier in the day she was completely carried away. With a gurgling, "Oh, Walter, doesn't anything like that make you love nature, I'm just going to give you a big hug," she hurled herself at the plaintiff. As her arms encircled him there was a cracking sound, and Lorraine uttered a cry of pain.

Interest in the negatives terminated and the plaintiff was assisted into an adjoining room. His pallor alarmed the defendant, and she had a physician summoned. He decided that Lorraine had suffered a fracture of one of the ribs on the right side. Lorraine underwent the usual treatment, and under the pain incident to the knitting of the fractured bone his affection rapidly cooled.

Upon his return to Riga he talked the matter over with friends, and they urged the bringing of an action to recover for his injuries. The advice of his counsellors prevailed, and he wrote and suggested that the expense incurred in treatment of his injuries be paid for by the defendant. She refused to listen to any such proposition, and then the law was called in.

MORE EVIDENCE FROM MONTEAL

That Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cures Dropsy.

It is a Kidney Desease and is Cured by Curing the Kidneys—Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to Cure the Kidneys.

Montreal, Que., May 18.—(Special.)—Every day brings forth fresh proof that Dropsy is caused by diseased Kidneys and that the one sure way to cure it is to make the Kidneys strong and healthy by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Geo. Robertson, 392 St. James street, this city, is one of those who has proved this beyond the shadow of a doubt. Mr. Robertson says:—

"My feet were so much swollen from Dropsy that when I got out of bed in the mornings I could hardly put them on the floor. My arms used to swell at times so that it could not put on my coat.

"I had to be tapped to relieve me of the terrible pains.

"On the advice of a friend I began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and before I had used the second box I began to feel better. Seven boxes cured me completely."

Rheumatism, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, are some of the many forms of Kidney Disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure promptly and permanently.

EMPIRE DAY IN THE SCHOOLS.

The Minister of Education Makes a Suggestion.

The Department of Education has made the following announcement regarding Empire Day:—

"The Hon. R. aHrcourt has specially recommended for a place on the Empire Day exercises of the Public Schools and other educational institutions throughout the Province the patriotic song "The Colonials and the Flag," composed by Mrs. Keane for the Canadian S. African Memorial Fund and approved for use in the various educational institutions of the Province in March 1903. This song is under the approval of His Majesty the King, and under the special patronage and approval of His Excellency the Earl of Minto, Governor-General of Canada, and particularly inculcates the duty of maintaining the bond of the Empire."

HAVELOCK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Messrs. T. Dineen and P. Lancaster were in Peterborough on Friday attending the meeting of the executive of the T.V.L.L., and for the purpose of arranging the games.

Mr. H. T. Andrews spent Monday in Toronto. While there he purchased goal nets for the lacrosse team.

Mr. Hugh Maxwell of London, is spending a few days in town renewing old acquaintances.

A very enjoyable time was spent by a number of ladies and gentlemen at a party given by Mrs. Garrett at her home on Friday evening.

Mr. R. J. Graham had a surprise party the other night in the shape of a man mistaking the place and walking into his house in the middle of the night. Mr. Graham held the man, who seemed to be under the influence of liquor, until the policeman came. He was taken to Peterborough to stand trial.

Mr. Cap. Coon has been elected a policeman for the village.

Mr. R. Phillips is around again, although he still wears a few bandages on some of his burns.

The Bell Telephone Co. has made an improvement in their central office here at Donike's drug store, by placing in a talking cabinet.

The junior lacrosse team has accepted the challenge of the Madoc juniors to meet at the latter place on May 24. It is expected the juniors will put up a good fight.

The golf enthusiasts are hard at work pounding the ball over the hills in the neighbourhood.

Now that the 15th of May has passed it is expected that the sanitary inspector will make his rounds to see that everything is clean and tidy on the streets and in the back yards. It is hoped that he will not be over lenient, for a few places are a disgrace to the village, and for the cleanliness and welfare of the place the parties concerned should be made to thoroughly clean up.

There is at present a good deal of talk about a proposed new park and pleasure grounds. The proposed plan is as follows: The race track is to be made around what is now known as the frog pond just back of the present grounds, to be one half mile round, and extending from back of the school house down to the east end of the present park. The frog pond will be drained, then dredged out and a gravel bottom put in, and a miniature lake made extending from back of the school down to the east end of the pond. Two bridges will be built, one at the upper end of the pond and one at the creek which runs out of it. It is proposed to have the park lighted by electric light. If this goes through, which it likely will if the gentleman who owns the land will sell at a reasonable price, it will make one of the finest and prettiest parks between Toronto and Montreal.

Now that the town is booming what is the matter with a post office that will meet the requirements of the town? The one we have is altogether too small for the population and as the same little place has been doing service for the past eight or nine years; something ought to be done in the line of a new post office or the one that we have made larger.

A sad event took place on Tuesday in the death of one of our oldest citizens, Mr. Jas. Wiseman, who passed away at an early hour. Mr. Wiseman first come to Havelock in the winter of 1885 and started in the lumber business, and built a mill on the site of where the house now now stands. After doing business for a number of years the mill was burned down. He then erected another at the east end of the town, at the south side of the railway track. After running for a couple of years it also was burned. He then built again, but after a few years it was destroyed by fire. Mr. Wiseman then went out of the lumber business, and took an agency for the sale of agricultural implements. The deceased had an attack of muscular rheumatism about the first of February, although he has not been in the best of health for a year or so before this. He leaves a widow, a daughter and three sons to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place from the family residence on Thursday, May 19th.

On Tuesday evening the boys had the best lacrosse turn out of the season. The juniors lined up against the seniors, and there certainly was a lively time. The game ended a tie, although the juniors had a couple of more players on the field. They show up well for practically all new stick handlers.

Mr. H. Schemmerhorn and family have moved to Campbellford.

Fell Into Boiling Water.

St. Catharines, May 19.—Ina, the little daughter of Charles Winger, met with a painful accident on Monday. She was playing in the kitchen and accidentally fell into a tub of boiling water, scalding both arms and body from her knees to her waist. She is now doing as nicely as can be expected.

THE RAILWAY BILL

Reported From the Committee and the Third Reading On.

SOME AMENDMENTS PASSED

Bill Will Likely Be Passed Its Third Reading on Thursday Next—The Opposition Criticises Mr. Emmerson's Absence From the House—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Puts Effectual Quietus to the Complaint.

Ottawa, May 19.—The second stage in the great battle over the Transcontinental Railway bill ended last night when that important measure was reported "with certain amendments," as the Chairman expressed it in Parliamentary form. That there was not more amendments was not the Opposition's fault, for they have presented them with unceasing enterprise since the bill went to committee on April 27, until the local statisticians have lost count. Several of the principles they have suggested from time to time have been accepted, and with amendments from the Government side the measure has been appreciably strengthened. The discussion yesterday was noteworthy for a "dead set" by the Opposition upon Hon. Mr. Emmerson, the new Minister of Railways, for not having taken part in the discussion on the bill. They alleged that it was a sign that he was out of harmony with his colleagues upon it. Sir Wilfrid Laurier effectually disposed of this by saying that if Mr. Emmerson were of that view he would have followed the example of his predecessor and have resigned.

Directors to Be British Subjects.

The Premier made the announcement that a bill would be introduced this session requiring that a majority of the directors of all railways in Canada should be British subjects The Minister of Justice announced that an amendment would be introduced to the general railway act, giving the Railway Commission power to regulate the apportionment of the rates on traffic interchanged between the G.T.P. and the G.T.R. The Government amendments for simultaneous construction at four points and for the appointment of four commissioners instead of three for the eastern section were adopted after debate. The last stage of the bill, the debate on the third reading, will be entered upon to-day, and it is understood will be completed on Thursday next.

Official Cars.

Replying to Mr. Tolton, Mr. Emmerson made a statement respecting the number and use of official or private cars. Three additional cars had been acquired or built by the Government since 1896. Two of those took the place of other cars, one of which was put out of action, and the other had been taken by the General Traffic Manager of the Intercolonial. The third was built for the royal party who visited Canada in 1901. In connection with the Government railway system, as well as other railway systems there are a number of official cars which are used chiefly for official purposes, but are occasionally placed at the disposal of distinguished visitors to whom it is deemed proper to extend courtesies. Ministers of the Crown occasionally make use of these cars, but in no case does such use involve any additional charge on the treasury, a Minister using one of the cars for other than official purposes paying all expenses in connection therewith. If further information were required the hon. gentleman should make a motion.

Hon. Mr. Hyman, in answer to Mr. Bennett, stated that the Department of Public Works had on file a report as to the value of the Collingwood dry dock. No bonus had been paid yet, but an application for one had been received. The report made by Mr. Louis Coste valued it at $500,000.

The Prime Minister told Mr. Casgrain that no line of steamers has been established between Canada and France under the terms of the contract laid upon the table of the House last session. It was claimed one steamer made a trip in the month of April, but the Government had no information as to whom it belonged or who chartered it. This trip was claimed to have been made between St. Malo and Halifax via St. Pierre and Miquelon. After the contract had been entered into with the Government and Mr. Columbier, notification was received of the transfer of the contract to one Carbonneau, then a resident of Paris. Carbonneau is now indirectly in communication with the Government of Canada, through what purports to be an assignment from him to a company called Les Transports Canadienne, Limited. There is no direct communication with Carbonneau. No claims have been made by Mr. Carbonneau for any of the subsidy voted last session, and the Government have nothing to decide in connection with any such claim. No part of the subsidy had been paid to anyone.

Sir Frederick Borden, replying to Mr. E. F. Clarke, stated that Lieut.-Col. Roy had been instructed on March 22 to effect a settlement with the least possible delay with the municipality of Valleyfield as to their share of the cost of calling out the troops in connection with labor troubles there in October, 1900.

Railway Accommodation.

Before the orders of the day were called, Mr. Talbot complained that there was no train leaving Montreal on the Intercolonial on Saturday evening. He thought there should be one for the accommodation of the many people going east.

Mr. George Taylor again complained of the lack of train connections between the G.T.R. and C.P.R. at Brockville.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson replied that the Railway Department had no power in the matter. Such matters had been relegated to the Railway Commission.

Sir William Mulock said the Government could not compel the railways to change their time tables. The people would have to depend on the good-will of the railways. There certainly seemed no inclination on the part of the two railways to make connection there

Transcontinental Railway Bill

The House went again into committee on the National Transcontinental Railway Bill.

Mr. Casgrain asked what conclusion the Government had come to respecting his amendment that a majority of the directors, of whom the president shall be one, of the G. T. P. shall be British subjects.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that the conclusion come to was that they must amend the General Railway Act to make it applicable to all railways in Canada.

After further discussion Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that a bill would be introduced this session making the provision applicable to all railways in Canada.

The amendment was then declared lost.

Taking Over Branch Lines.

Mr. J. R. Lavell moved the amendment that when the Government took over the branch lines which the company elected not to retain, they may take over such other branch lines as they desired or deemed necessary.

Mr. Fitzpatrick replied and the amendment was declared lost.

Appointment of Rates.

Mr. Borden submitted his amendment that disputes over the proper apportionment of the rates over the G.T.P. and G.T.R. on interchanged traffic should be referred to arbitrators or the Railway Commission.

Mr. Fitzpatrick announced the Government's intention to amend the General Railway Act to make it abundantly clear that they could be dealt with by the Railway Commission. The amendment was then declared lost.

The Minister of Justice submitted a re-draft of Mr. Bennett's amendment, providing the leases for portions of the eastern section shall be submitted to the Governor-in-Council and approved, and copies of the leases deposited with the Secretary of State.

"There is no difference in substance from the amendment moved by my hon. friend from East Simcoe," said Mr. Borden, "and with his consent I will say we accept it."

Mr. Borden's next amendment provided that complaints under sections 41 to 45 of the agreement shall be investigated by the Railway Commission, who shall report.

Mr. Fitzpatrick undertook to submit an amendment to the Railway Act, giving the Railway Commission power to report, but Mr. Borden pressed for a vote, and the amendment was declared lost.

A minor amendment moved by the Minister of Justice, was adopted, declaring that on the day the lease was signed the G.T.R. Company had authority to raise the money necessary for the $5,000,0000 guarantee.

Mr. Borden next moved that should the Government determine to operate the eastern section, they shall be entitled to a running power for fifty years over the western division or any portion thereof, or any of the branch lines from the eastern division, which they may deem it expedient to operate. This was also declared lost.

Simultaneous Construction.

Mr. Fitzpatrick moved an amendment to the effect that construction work shall be begun as nearly as possible simultaneously west from Moncton, east and west from Quebec, east and west from North Bay Junction and east from Winnipeg with the object of having the whole line completed at the same time as nearly as possible.

Mr. J. B. Morin moved an amendment to the amendment to the effect that the National Transcontinental be built southerly from Levis, through the Counties of Dorchester on to Moncton.

The amendment to the amendment was voted down after which Mr. Fitzpatrick's amendment carried.

DEFENDANTS PAID $6,000 INTO COURT.

Explanation in the Bogue-American Cereal Company Case.

In the account yesterday in an evening paper of the Bogue-American Cereal Company case, the paper omitted to state the fact that after action was commenced by Mr. Bogue against the American Cereal Company for balance claimed by him on contract to erect the elevator, and for extra work done by him in the erection of the company's mill, boiler house, etc., the American Cereal Company paid into court the sum of six thousand dollars, but Mr. Bogue declined to accept such sum, claiming that a larger amount still is due him under the two contracts in question. In the two or three accounts published of this action by some curious omissions the fact that the company paid into court the sum of $6,000 to satisfy Mr. Bogue's claim, has been overlooked, and in all future references to this case this important fact should be borne in mind.

Messrs. Hall & Hayes are acting for Mr. Bogue and Messrs. Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr & Stevenson for the defendants.

GEORGE STREET ORGANIST RESIGNS.

Mrs. Mowat to Sever Connection With the Choir.

Mrs. T. J. Mowat, who for over two years has most acceptably filled the position of organist of the George street church, has placed her resignation in the hands of the Trustee Board. During the time which Mrs. Mowat has filled this position, she has done so with the utmost satisfaction, and the choir has made satisfactory advancement, consequently the members will regret the severing of these pleasant associations.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—There was no Police Court this morning.

—The Board of Works meets this evening.

—Charlotte street choir will practice this evening.

—Concrete is growing into use for foundations for dwellings.

—The street sprinkling contractors have a holiday these pluvious times.

—The Board of Works will hold a meeting to-night in the Clerk's office.

—Engineer Hay is staking out grounds for new granolithic pavements.

—Piano tuning promptly attended to. Satisfaction guaranteed. A. F. Hoover. 'Phone, 199.

—St. Andrew's choir practice to-night at 8 o'clock. All members are requested to be present.

—A meeting of the South African Veterans is called for Saturday evening at 7.30 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A.

—Peterborough leads off with an independent telephone system. The experience of that city will be closely watched.—Toronto News.

—At the teachers' meeting in George street to-morrow night, G. W. Mulligan will direct the thought on the lesson. All Bible students are invited.

—Dr. Wightman, dentist, is now occupying permanent offices in the Bank of Commerce Building, opposite the post office, first door to the right of the landing, Hunter street entrance. 6d115

—The friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wills will be grieved to learn of the death of their little girl, Derina I. Wills, which sad event occurred this morning. The deceased was two years of age.

—For fresh rhubarb, green onions, lettuce, asparagus, spy apples, bananas, oranges, lemons, groceries, etc., order from Jas. R. Bell's grocery, 161 Hunter street. Any quantity of good, sound potatoes. Telephone 455.

—If you have not the time nor inclination to passe-partout those pictures, take them to the "Framery," 428 George street. The only store in town entirely devoted to pictures and picture framing.

—The Peterborough Daughters of England will be eleven years of age to-morrow. The girls will have some friends in to tea in the evening. The friends will doubtless include some of the boys, or the girls would not be girls.

—A lover of nature to-day remarked upon the unusual number of robins apparent this spring. There would be more of our beautiful song birds about if the number of scamps of boys with their deadly catapults were less.

—Some towns are thankful for small favours. Stratford (city) boasts through a despatch to the Toronto papers of an addition to its fire service of six new hydrants. Peterborough quietly installs 25 new hydrants without turning a hair or making a star chamber matter of it.

—The regular weekly meeting of the Union will be held on Friday evening in the Y.M.C.A., when Miss D. Langford and Rev. Dr. Torrance will have charge of the lesson for Sunday, May 22nd. A most cordial invitation is extended to all Sunday School workers to attend the meetings of the Primary and Junior Union.

—The Board of Works in drawing up sewer contracts should stipulate that the contractor should leave the street in a little better condition than is usually done, even if the cost is a little added to. The town has eventually to stand the expense of bringing the streets where sewers have been laid into a useable condition.

Trip to Stony Lake.

IMPROVEMENTS IN FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Twenty-five Additional Hydrants to be Provided.

Giving Increased Efficiency to the Department and Protection to the Town—Business Portion Well Provided for.

The recent serious conflagrations that have occurred in Toronto and other cities in Canada and the United States have had the effect of drawing public attention to the inefficiencies of the fire equipments and fire-fighting facilities of the towns and cities, and in most cases, the investigations following have shown that some improvements were necessary to bring the protection up to a satisfactory standard.

It is gratifying to Peterborough citizens, however, to know that even before the severe fires taught other cities the dearly bought lesson, the Council here had already made provision to provide extra protection. An arrangement was entered into with the Peterborough Water Commissioners by which the latter was to place 25 additional hydrants throughout the town at points to be designated by the Council, and the pleasing feature is that these 25 additional hydrants were to cost the town practically nothing. This bargain was one, which the excellent financial condition of the Water Works Department made possible, without in any appreciable extent impairing the revenue of that department, and at the same time very materially increasing the efficiency of the fire-fighting service. A number of these hydrants have been placed in the business district, where, of course, the greatest danger from fire exists; the corners of Hunter, Simcoe and Charlotte streets with George, each being given a large four-way hydrant, which in addition to the hydrants already installed on George street in the centre of these blocks, will provide ample protection.

A considerable proportion of these new hydrants, too, have been distributed through the residential sections, where it was thought that there existed a need for a more ample supply of water.

In addition to the 25 new hydrants, for which the town pays practically nothing, a number of others will be placed, some of them on new mains which will be laid this year. It will thus be seen that in so far as the quantity of hydrants is concerned, the town is well protected.

It is probable, too, that in the near future a proposition will be made looking to the increased efficiency of the other departments of the fire department. What is conceded by all to be a pressing necessity, is a new engine. The one at present belonging to the department is of very doubtful quality, as was evidenced by the fact that on a recent occasion when an effort was made to generate steam, it was found that the flues leaked so badly that such a course was impossible.

As has been pointed out in these columns before, the present alarm system is defective and should be replaced by a more modern system. With these improvements Peterborough's fire service should be all that can be desired for a town of its size.

OBITUARY.

Death of a Two Year Old Daughter of Albert Wills.

The death occurred last night at 138 Park street, of Drina Isabell Wills, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. Albert Wills. The child had been ill only a short time. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery.

SILVER MEDAL FOR ELOCUTIONISTS.

A Contest to be Held To-morrow Night.

An elocutionary silver medal contest will take place to-morrow night in St. Andrew's church school room, under the auspices of the local Council of the Royal Templars of Temperance. This is a part of the campaign of temperance education inaugurated by the Society, and it has proved most successful in the past. This will be the first contest of the kind to be held in Peterborough, although a number have been held in other places throughout the Dominion, and in every case the result has been satisfactory. There are seven elocutionists competing for the silver medal, and the selections used by the contestants are all on temperance themes. By the regulations governing the contest, when seven silver medals have been won in one town, these silver medalists may compete for a gold medal, and seven gold medalists may compete for a diamond medal. In only one city in Canada has the latter been held, and that honour goes to Winnipeg, where a short time ago a diamond medal contest was held. To-morrow night's contest will be the first of the series to be held here and will doubtless be of considerable interest. In addition to the elocutionary contest a musical programme will be rendered. It is expected that Mr. J. A. Austin, of Toronto, the Grand Councillor of the R. T. of T. will be present.

Illustrated Lecture.

A treat is in store for Thursday evening at the Park street Baptist church. One hundred and fifty lime light views will be shown, projected by a powerful stereopticon. There will be many scenes from College life, portraits of professors and students, pictures of McMaster University, including class rooms, libraries, evangelistic bands, graduates, etc. A tour will also be taken through Ontario, showing the natural resources of the northern region, the hardships of the settlers, the trials of the missionary, and the bright prospects for development.

ACCIDENT AT LOCKS, SCOW STRUCK PIER

A Scow Load of Lumber Wrecked Yesterday Afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock, considerable excitement was caused at the locks by the wrecking of a scow load of lumber. The Water Lily was towing one of Calcutt's scows, containing a load of lumber for the Peterborough Canoe Company, and when approaching the locks, where the current is very strong, the scow became unmanageable, and as there was no glance booms to keep it in place, swung against a pier on the east side of the river. The scow was smashed into two sections, one of which floated down the river along with about three-quarters of the lumber, which was dumped into the water. The scow was almost a total wreck, though much of the lumber may be recovered. There will be considerable loss. The glance booms were displaced during the winter and had not been fully repaired. The lumber was being brought from Hale's Bridge by Mr. H. Breckenridge.

If you're feeling warm, drop in and have a "Hiawatha," "David Harum" or a "Crushed Fruit Sundae" at HOOPER'S.

LAYMEN'S VIEW OF CHURCH UNION.

Mr. J. H. Burnham in an Interview on This Question.

Non-Union a Serious Stumbling Block to Those Outside the Church—Should Men Divide on the Way to Heaven?

The question of church union is receiving attention not only from the clergymen of the different churches, but also from the laity. Mr. J. H. Burnham in an interview with the Examiner said to-day:—

Why you should ask my opinion on this important question I am at a loss to say, but I suppose it is only one of those amenities of life to which one must defer. It has always seemed to me that those who reject the idea of union must do so by reason of religious pride. To those outside the Church, that is to say nominally outside it, non-union must be a serious stumbling-block. But, as Bacon says, if a man will contemplate the works of God, he soon acquires a contempt for those of men. There is something so Brobdignagian about them. And must we suppose that the Lord of all finds it to His greater glory that men should divide on the way to Heaven, lest some taint of Arminianism, Calvanism or the like should work disaster in the great Hereafter? But do not put me down as presuming really to give an opinion.

LATEST NEWS OF SPORT.

Y.M.C.A. and Wanderers Play Practice Game—Baseball, Lacrosse and Football News.

Y. M. C. A. DEFEATED THE WANDERERS

In an Exhibition Game of Football Last Evening.

Score was 2-0—Grounds in Poor Shape for Fast Work—Winners Played in Fine Form.

After several long weeks of earnest practice, and a lengthy period of longing to meet some football team, good, bad or indifferent, the Y.M.C.A. team, last year's Midland League champions met a good team and succeeded in defeating the Old Country Wanderers in an exhibition game, at the Peterborough Turf Club's grounds, by a score of 2-0.

The game, considering the bad condition of the grounds, was a good exhibition, both elevens showing up in good form. The "Y" boys created a very favourable impression and will be dangerous opponents when they get going in the semi-finals. They had the best of the play throughout last evening, the forwards working well together and handling the ball accurately, while the defence was very strong, feeding the forwards well and checking and kicking with telling effect. McFadden in goal, had practically nothing to do owing to the steady work of the back division. The champions, while not as strong as last year, have a well-balanced aggregation and the team which puts them out should be in the vicinity when the finals goom up.

The winners all played good football during the one half hour's duration of the contest. McFadden, as stated above, had an easy time, while Morgan and Roberts at full back were never found wanting, and took care of everything that came their way. The half back line played in splendid fashion and gave all kinds of trouble to the opposing forwards. Noble at centre was always effective, while Cameron and Scriver on the wings were always in the way—of the Wanderers. The latter was unfortunately injured during the contest, and was replaced by Linden, who did good work. The former showed some neat combination and shot well. McDonald was fast and sure at centre. Shortell and Boyle at right wing were always in their place and kept the opposing defence busy with their dangerous rushes. Merrell and Nelson on left wing were a speedy couple and played a very effective game from start to finish.

The Wanderers, who were minus the services of their goal tender, Butler, played good football, but the forwards were up against a hard proposition in the O.C.W.'s defence. The back division of the Wanderers, was as usual, their strongest feature, and the winners had to work for each goal they secured. Whitlaw, Hawkins and Smailes were prominent for the losers. The Wanderers were lighter than the winners but were fast and tricky, and were always in the contest.

The first goal was scored after three minutes play and was the result of a neat shot by Nelson. The Y.M.C.A. scored again in five minutes but an offside was claimed, and the score disallowed. The play for a time was very even, and was chiefly in the centre of the field, but in about eight minutes time, McDonald, Shortell and Merrell worked in a rush, and a score resulted. Upon resuming play Smailes was injured by a body check and time was called owing to darkness.

The teams were:—

Y.M.C.A.		Wanderers.
	Goal.
McFadden		Beveridge
	Backs.
Morgan		Whitlaw
Roberts		Smailes
	Half backs.
Linden		Bryans
Scriver		Hawkins
Noble		Head
Cameron
	Forwards.
Shortell		Johnston
Boyle		Stamper
McDonald		Lyons
Merrell		Strange
Nelson		Greatrox

FOR THE ONTARIO CHAMPIONSHIP

Brownies and Hamilton Basket-Ball Teams to Meet.

The Junior Championship of the Province in Basketball is now claimed by two different teams, and it is probable that these teams may meet in the near future to decide which has the best right to the title. The Brownies, of Peterborough, claim the championship, and their claim will be defended against all comers. The Hamilton team also makes a similar claim, and it is likely that next week on Thursday or Friday the Hamilton team will be in Peterborough to play the Brownies for the disputed championship. The Hamilton team has a good record, as is shown by the subjoined list of games:

At Home.
Hamilton 21,	Toronto West End 14.
Hamilton 10,	Hamilton Collegiate Institute 6.
Hamilton 54,	Berlin 7.
Hamilton 24,	Toronto West End 22.
Away From Home.
Hamilton 7,	Toronto West End 12.
Hamilton 16,	Berlin 15.
Hamilton 18,	Toronto Central 10.
Hamilton 25,	Brantford 17.
Hamilton 29,	H.C.I. 23
Hamilton 13,	Toronto West End 15.
Hamilton 24,	H.C.I. 14

The Brownies also have a record of wins which entitle them to a place in the running for the Ontario championship, and when these two teams meet the game will be well worth seeing. Manager Whitecroft, of the Brownies, is making arrangements for the game, which will likely be pulled off next week.

BASEBALL.

There will be a full practice of the Peterboroughs to-night, and the following players are asked to be on hand:—J. Pilling, Flaherty, Cawthorne, Simpson, Graham, Sheridan, Wareham, T. Pilling, Belleghem, Earls, Miller, McDonald. Practice will also be held to-morrow night, and on Saturday afternoon a game will be played with one of the Toronto teams, arrangements for which are now in progress.

• • • • •

Manager Whitecroft yesterday signed Ernest Belleghem, last year's backstop on the Excelsior team, who will figure on the Peterborough team this year, though in what capacity it has not yet been decided. Belleghem is a valuable man, and his presence on the team will be a source of strength to it. He was elected Vice-President of the Kawartha League, and was one of the leading spirits in its organization, but he has decided that the place for him is with the senior team. He was out to practice last night, and will be found on the regular team.

• • • • •

George street Guild team will practice to-night at 6.30 sharp.

• • • •

The Executive of the Guild League will meet to-night at 8.30 in the Y. M. C. A.

• • • •

It rained at Toronto yesterday so Jersey City could not beat the Torontos for the seventh straight time.

• • • •

The Globe says:—The Pirates B. B.C. have nothing but praise for the very hospitable way in which they wre treated while in Peterborough last Saturday. Manager Whitecroft of the Peterborough team and Mr. Chris. Graham, of the Oriental Hotel spared nothing in order to give their visitors a good time. Although defeated by a score of 5 to 8, the Pirates intend visiting Peterborough again later in the season.

• • • •

Flaherty will do the twirling at Lindsay in the opening of the Midland Baseball League. Lindsay people are making boasts that they will put Peterborough "in the soup."

• • • •

The Young Quakers and the Charlotte street Guild team will play the return game on the P. A. A. A. grounds this evening weather permitting.

• • • •

It is reported that Earls will join the Auburn team this year. He would be a valuable addition to the Peterborough team if he would turn out with the boys at practice.

After several weeks' negotiations Manager Whitcroft has signed a

BURIAL OF STANLEY.

Remains of Explorer Interred in Churchyard of Pirbright.

London, May 18.—The remains of Sir Henry M. Stanley (who died May 10), were buried yesterday in the church yard of the old Surrey village of Pirbright.

Prior to the burial the British nation and the United States, in the persons of Ambassador Choate and Consul-General Evans, paid honor to the departed African explorer with an impressive funeral service held in Westminster Abbey.

"Bula matari" meaning "the rock breaker," as the coffin plate, testified, Stanley was known by the African natives, was taken in an open hearse to the Abbey. The route was lined by crowds of people. The pallbearers included a grandson of Livingstone, Arthur Mountenay Jephson, Stanley's former lieutenant, and the Duke of Abercorn.

Lady Stanley headed the procession of mourners that passed through the cloisters. With her was young Denzil Stanley, the deceased's adopted son, and Livingstone's daughter. As the coffin was borne past the tomb of Livingstone within the Abbey the little band stopped and for a few minutes there was a pathetic pause.

The service was fully choral. Both King Edward and the King of the Belgians were represented.

An Open Letter.

From the Chapin, S. C., News: Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhoea, and so severe were the pains that we called in a physician, who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand, gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. C. Bailey, Editor. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

BIG TAX ON HOTELS.

Attorney-General Campbell Will Recommend High License in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, May 18.—Attorney-General Campbell, in an interview, says: "I intend to recommend that a high license system be adopted in this province, and that the fee for licenses for hotels in all cities and towns with five thousand inhabitants and over be increased to $1,000. The object of this is to enlist the interest of the licenses in strict enforcement of the license laws, and the elimination of illicit and illegal traffic. In addition we shall carry out the enforcement of the present law to the best of our ability. A high license will improve the class of hotels, and keep down new applicants."

Legislature Upheld.

Ottawa, May 18.—In the Railway Commission yesterday a judgment possessing general interest, as indicating the policy which the commission may be expected to follow, was that upon the application of the municipality of Ste. Cunegonde, Que., for the opening of Dominion street over the tracks of the G.T.R. The application was dismissed with costs, the principal reason being that the Provincial Legislature had passed certain limitations and restrictions on such crossings at that point, and out of deference to the Legislature, which the commissioners assumed had the support of the people in that legislation, permission was refused.

Strike Over at Falls.

Niagara Falls, May 18.—The striking rock drillers and engineers of the Power Development Works have won a complete victory over Dawson & Illey, one of the principal contracting firms. Monday night an agreement was signed, whereby the firm agrees to an increase of pay amounting to five cents per hour to the rock drillers, drillers' helpers and steam engineers, and of two and a half cents per hour to the channel drillers. The agreement went into force yesterday, and continues for a year. The firm has also agreed to take back all the strikers, and that the works shall hereafter be strictly union.

New Hope—New Courage.

Persons whose nerves are affected get blue and discouraged, are easily irritated and annoyed and learn to look on the dark side. The restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon shows its effect on the feelings. It gives new hope and courage, new energy and confidence. By creating nerve force it affords new vigour and vitality for both mind and body.

Immigrants Held For Disease.

Halifax, N.S., May 18.—The steamers Barcelona and Numidian arrived yesterday, the former from Hamburg and the latter from Liverpool. Between them they landed 1,322 passengers, mostly foreigners, and all bound for the Canadian West. They went through the usual medical examination here and 65 were detained as showing symptoms of trachoma. This is a record number for this port, if not for Canada.

ALLEGED MURDERER WILLARD.

Gave Whitby, Ont., As His Home, But Whitby Repudiates Him.

Boston, May 19.—In the preliminary examination before Judge Wentworth yesterday William Morey, residence unknown, and Harold Ralph Willard of Whitby, Ont., who shot Sergeant James Wilson, an attache of the Watertown arsenal, were charged with murder in the first degree.

Willard is about 20 years of age, and when first arrested gave his name as Harry R. Holbrook, and said that he lived in Brocton, Mass., but Tuesday gave his name as Harold Ralph Willard of Whitby, Ont., Canada.

Formerly of Whitby.

Whitby, May 19.—Twenty-five or thirty years ago a carpenter named Holbrook lived in Whitby. He had two boys. The family moved to the States after a few months' residence here, and no one now remembers the boy's names nor where they went to. No Harold Ralph Willard is known here.

SIZING UP FRUIT CROP.

Correspondents in Fruit Belt Report That Many Will Yield Only Half the Usual Crop.

Toronto, May 18.—Correspondents in the fruit belt report on the prospects for the year's crops. The reports received indicate that there has been considerable damage wrought by the hard winter and the late opening of spring.

Throughout the western section of the province, in the Counties of Essex and Kent, as well as in the Niagara district, there will probably be not more than half a crop of some fruits, while other buds are almost entirely destroyed. The reports agree that about 50 per cent. of the peach trees were killed, and many growers are cutting the dead wood down and burning it. Plum buds suffered by the continued cold weather, and in some localities the high percentage of 75 of the European varieties has been destroyed. Pears promise a good crop and apples will be a fair yield, although probably not as good as last year, when there was an unprecedented crop.

As to the grapes there will be a decrease in the production. Fruit growers have not in the past found grape growing very profitable, owing to the low prices realized, and many of them are cutting out whatever vines they have left and putting in more productive crops. In the western section of the province especially is this the case. There will hardly be enough grapes there for home consumption. The earliest crop, that is strawberries, will not be profitable, judging from reports received from the Oakville and other strawberry growing districts. The plants were pretty well ruined by the great depth of snow. However, many of the other small late fruits will yield a fair average crop.

The frost played havoc with the young orchard trees, and Essex County reports that fully one-third of the trees under four years old have been killed by mice. When the winter is very hard the mice are driven to attack the bark of trees, especially apple and cherry, for food. They bore under the snow on the ground and make their nests close to a particularly luscious tree, which they destroy by gnawing a strip of the bark all the way around the tree. This is sure death to the tree. These little pests have been particularly active during the past winter, owing to the snow covering the ground.

Fire in a Hospital.

Peterboro, May 18.—About eight o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in St. Joseph's Hospital here on the upper floor, occupied by 50 patients. The fire was said to be due to spontaneous combustion, originating in the tank room. The brigade was soon on hand and confined the fire to the north floor. The damage, chiefly caused by water, is about $500.

Balaklava Hero Dead.

New York, May 18.—John Kennedy, a prominent contractor of Brooklyn, one of the survivors of the famous charge at Balaklava, is dead from pneumonia.

Odors of Cities.

A European writer has discovered that each city has its own peculiar odor. Paris is pervaded by a faint odor of charcoal. London smells of soot. The aroma of garlic greets the new arrival at Calais. Moscow has a perfume of its own, cranberries of peculiar pungency. St. Petersburg suggests old leather boots.

Baby Eczema and Skin Diseases

Which Torture Children are Soon Entirely Cured by the Use of

Dr. Chases Ointment

Especially during the teething period, children are subject to eczema, scald head and various forms of skin disease, which cause the keenest suffering to themselves, as well as anxiety to their parents.

There is no treatment so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment and as eczema always tends to become chronic and last forty ears, prompt cure is of the utmost importance.

Mr. C. Wiley, who is employed as cooper by the Kennedy & Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema on my little girl some few years ago, and soon brought about a thorough an dpermanent cure. She had suffered for consideruble time, and, though we tried a great many remedies, Dr. Chase's Ointment was the only preparation to prove effective. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Ointment, as it certainly effected a prompt and permanent cure in this case."

Any mother who once becomes acquainted with the merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment would not think of being without it in the house. Where there is a baby or small children it is of daily value as a means of curing skin irritations and eruptions, chafing and all sorts of burns and sores.

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 12

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA

By Booth Tarkington.

CHAPTER VI.

THEY walked slowly back along the pike toward the brick house. He was stooping very much as they walked. He wanted to be told that he could look at her for a thousand years. The small face was rarely and exquisitely modeled, but perhaps just now the salient characteristic of her beauty (for the salient characteristic seemed to be a different thing at different times) was the coloring, a delicate glow under the white skin, a glow that bewitched him in its seeming to reflect the rich benediction of the noonday sun that blazed overhead.

Once he had thought the way to the Briscoe homestead rather a long walk, but now the distance sped malignantly. Strolled they never so slow, it was less than a "young bird's flutter from a wood." With her acquiescence he rolled a cigarette, and she began to hum lightly the air of a song, a song of ineffably gentle, slow movement.

That, and a reference of the morning and perhaps the smell of his tobacco mingling with the fragrance of her roses, awoke again the old reminiscence of the night before. A clearly outlined picture rose before him—the high green slopes and cool cliff walls of the coast of Maine and the sharp little estuary waves he lazily watched through half closed lids while the pale smoke of his cigarette blew out under the rail of a waxen deck where he lay cushioned. And again a woman pelted his face with handfuls of rose petals and cried: "Up, lad, and at 'em! Yonder is Winter Harbor!" Again he sat in the oak raftered casino, breathless with pleasure, and heard a young girl sing the "Angel's Serenade," a young girl who looked so bravely unconscious of the big, hushed crowd that listened, looked so pure and bright and gentle and good, that he had spoken of her as "Sir Galahad's little sister." He had been much taken with this child, but he had not thought of her from that time to this, he supposed. He had almost forgotten her. No! Her face suddenly stood out to his view as though he saw her with his physical eye, a sweet and vivacious child's face, with light brown hair and gray eyes and a short upper lip like a curled rose leaf. And the voice—

He stopped short. "You are Tom Meredith's little cousin."

"The great Harkless," she answered and stretched out her hand to him.

"I remember you."

"Isn't it time?"

"Ah, but I never forgot you!" he cried. "I thought I had. I didn't know who it was I was remembering. I thought it was fancy, and it was memory. I never forgot your voice, singing, and I remembered your face, too, though I thought I didn't." He drew a deep breath. "That was why"—

"Tom has not forgotten you," she said as he paused.

"Would you mind shaking hands once more?" he asked.

She gave him her hand again. "With all my heart. Why?"

"I'm making a record of it; that's all. Thank you."

"They called me 'Sir Galahad's little sister' all one summer because the great John Harkless called me that. You danced with me in the evening."

"Did I?"

"Ah," she said, shaking her head, "you were too busy being in love with pretty Mrs. Van Skuyt to remember a waltz with only me! I was allowed to meet you as a reward for singing my very best, and you—you bowed with the indulgence of a grandfather and asked me to dance."

"Like a grandfather! How young I was then! How time changes us!"

"I'm afraid my conversation did not make a great impression upon you," she continued.

"But it did. I am remembering very fast. If you will wait a moment I will tell you some of the things you said."

The girl laughed merrily. Whenever she laughed he realized that it was becoming terribly difficult not to tell her how adorable she was. "I wouldn't risk it if I were you," she warned him, "because I didn't speak to you at all. I shut my lips tight and trembled all over every bit of the time I was dancing with you. I did not sleep that night, and I was unhappy, wondering what the great Harkless would think of me. I knew he thought me unutterably stupid because I couldn't talk to him. I wanted to send him word that I knew I had bored him. I couldn't endure that he shouldn't know that I knew I had. But he was not thinking of me in any way. He had gone to sea again in his white boat, the ungrateful pirate, cruising with Mrs. Van Skuyt."

"How time does change us!" said John. "You are wrong, though. I did think of you. I have al"—

"Yes," she interrupted, tossing her head in airy travesty of the stage coquette, "you think so—I mean, you say so—now. Away with you and your blarneying!"

And so they went through the warm noontide, and little he cared for the heat that wilted the fat mullein leaves and made the barefoot boy who passed by skip gingerly through the burning dust with anguished mouth and watery eye. Little he knew of the katydid that suddenly whirred its mills of shrilliness in the maple tree and sounded so hot, hot, hot; or that other that railed at the country quiet from the dim, cool shade around the brick house, or even the rain crow that sat on the fence and swore to them in the face of a sunny sky that they should see rain ere the day were done. Little the young man recked of what he ate at Judge Briscoe's good noon dinner—chicken wing and young roast ear, hot rolls as light as the hum of a summer cloudlet, and honey and milk and apple butter flavored like spices of Arabia and fragrant, flaky cherry pie and cool, rich, yellow cream. Lige Willetts was a lover, yet he said he asked no better than to just go on eating that cherry pie till a sweet death overtook him; but railroad sandwiches and restaurant chops might have been set before Harkless for all the difference it would have made to him.

At no other time is a man's feeling of companionship with a woman so strong as when he sits at table with her, not at a "decorated" and becatered and bewaitered table, but at a homely, appetizing, wholesome, home table like old Judge Briscoe's. The very essence of the thing is domesticity, and the implication is utter confidence and liking. There are few greater dangers for a bachelor. An insinuating imp perches on his shoulder and, softly tickling the bachelor's ear with the feathers of an arrow shaft, whispers: "Pretty gay, isn't it, eh? Rather pleasant to have that girl sitting there, don't you think? Enjoy having her notice your butter plate was empty? Think it exhilarating to hand her those rolls? Looks nice, doesn't she? Says 'Thank you' rather prettily? Makes your lonely breakfast seem mighty dull, doesn't it? How would you like to have her pour your coffee for you tomorrow, my boy? How would it seem to have such pleasant company all the rest of your life? Pretty cheerful, eh? It's my conviction that your one need in life is to pick her up in your arms and run away with her, not anywhere in particular, but just run and run and run away!"

After dinner they went out to the veranda, and the gentlemen smoked. The judge set his chair down on the ground, tilted back in it with his feet on the steps and blew a wavery, domed city up in the air. He called it solid comfort. He liked to sit out from under the porch roof, he said. He wanted to see more of the sky. The others moved their chairs down to join in the celestial vision. A feathery thin cloud or two had been fanned across it, but save for these there was nothing but glorious and tender brilliant blue. It seemed so clear and close one marveled the little church spire in the distance did not pierce it. Yet at the same time the eye ascended miles and miles into warm, shimmering ether. Far away two buzzards swung slowly at anchor halfway to the sun.

"O bright, translucent, cerulean hue,
Let my wide wings drift on in you,"

Harkless quoted, pointing them out to Helen.

"You seem to get a good deal of fun out of this kind of weather," observed Lige as he wiped his brow and shifted his chair into the shade.

"I expect you don't get such skies as this up in Rouen," said the judge, looking at the girl from between his lazily half closed eyelids.

"It's the same Indiana sky, I think," she answered.

"I guess maybe in the city you don't see as much of it or think as much about it, then. Yes, they're the Indiana skies," the old man went on.

"Skies as blue
As the eyes of children when they smile at you.

"There aren't any others anywhere that ever seemed much like them to me. They've been company for me all my life. I don't think there are any others half as beautiful, and I know there aren't any as sociable. They were always so." He sighed gently, and Miss Sherwood fancied his wife must have found the Indiana skies as lovely as he had in the days of long ago. "Seems to me they are the softest and bluest and kindest in the world."

"I think they are," said Helen, "and they are more beautiful than the Italian skies, though I doubt if many of us Hoosiers realize it, and certainly no one else does."

The old man leaned over and patted her hand. Harkless gasped. "'Us Hoosiers!'" chuckled the judge. "You're a great Hoosier, young lady! How much of your life have you spent in the state? 'Us Hoosiers!'"

"But I'm going to be a good one," she answered gayly, "and if I'm good enough when I grow up maybe I'll be a great one."

The buckboard had been brought around, and the four young people climbed in, Harkless driving. Before they started the judge, standing on the horse block in front of the gate, leaned over and patted Miss Sherwood's hand again. Harkless gathered up the reins.

"You'll make a great Hoosier, all right," said the old man, beaming upon the girl. "You needn't worry about that, I guess, my dear."

When he said "my dear," Harkless spoke to the horses.

"Wait," said the judge, still holding the little hand. "You'll make a great Hoosier some day; don't fret. You're already a very beautiful one." Then he bent his white head and kissed her gallantly.

"Good afternoon, judge," said John. The whip cracked, and the buckboard dashed off in a cloud of dust.

"Every once in awhile, Harkless," the old fellow called after them, "you must remember to look at the team."

The enormous white tent was filled with a hazy, yellow light, the warm, dusty, mellow light that thrills the rejoicing heart because it is found nowhere else in the world except in the tents of a circus, the canvas filtered sunshine and sawdust atmosphere of show day.

Here swayed a myriad of palm leaf fans; here paraded blushing youth and rosy maiden more relentlessly arm in arm than ever; here crept the octogenarian, Mr. Bodeffer, shaking on cane and the shoulder of posterity; here waddled Mr. Snoddy, who had hurried through the animal tent for fear of meeting the elephant; here marched sturdy yeomen and stout wives; here came William Todd and his true love, the good William hushed with the embarrassments of love, but looking out warily with the white of his eye for Mr. Martin and determined not to sit within a hundred yards of him; here rolled in the orbit of habit the town bacchanal, Mr. Wilkerson, who politely answered in kind all the uncouth roarings and guttural ejaculations of jungle and fen that came from the animal tent—in brief, here came with lightest heart the population of Carlow and part of Amo.

Could Not Sleep At Night.

Was All Run Down.

Had No Appetite.

FOOD WOULD NOT DIGEST.

Mrs. I. W. Warner, Riverdale, N.S., is glad there is such a remedy as

Burdock Blood Bitters.

IT CURED HER AND WILL CURE YOU.

She says: "I wish to add my testimony to the many others who have spoken so highly as to the unfailing virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters. I was all run down, had no appetite, lost all ambition, could not sleep much and had terrible headache and backache, and my food did not digest properly. I saw B.B.B. advertised, so concluded to give it a trial, thinking if it did so good it could do no harm. But after using one bottle I began to feel better, and by the time I had used three bottles I was feeling like a new person. I am so glad there is such a remedy provided for suffering humanity, and cannot praise it enough for I think there is no medicine like it on the market."

The 8 Hour Day

Which the working man has fought for and succeeded in obtaining is something the wife has no share in. Her day begins before his and ends long after it, as a rule, and many a night her rest is broken by the baby's fretfulness. The healthiest woman must wear out under such a strain. What can be expected then of those women who are weakened by womanly diseases?

Women who are weak, worn-out and run-down will find new life and new strength in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"I suffered with female weakness about eight years—tried several doctors but derived no benefit until I began using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. John Green, of Danville, Boyle Co., Ky. "This medicine was recommended to me by other patients. I have taken six bottles and I feel like another person."

Refuse all substitutes.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

and will quickly eradicate all trace of scalp bacteria, which is the cause of hair falling, dandruff and baldness. NO SCALP CAN BE HEALTHY AND NO HAIR CAN BE BEAUTIFUL WHEN CONTAMINATED WITH THESE DISEASE-BREEDING CREATURES. They undermine the hair and devour all the nutriment or life-sap of the scalp, without which the scalp dries up and peels off, forming dandruff and causing the loss of hair. SEVEN SUTHERLAND SISTERS HAIR GROWER AND SCALP CLEANER ARE THE ONLY REMEDIES IN THE WORLD THAT WILL DESTROY THESE GERMS. They penetrate the scalp thoroughly, carrying with them all the necessary properties to quickly regenerate all the impoverished parts. They rebuild the lost tissues of the scalp and renew the growth of the hair in every case. A few applications will make the hair fairly sparkle with new life and vigor. They make healthy hair grow twice to three times as fast as it does normally.

Sunshine Furnace

Flues Easily Cleaned

Cleaning out the flues of most furnaces is so difficult and complicated that only an expert can do it, and experts' services usually come high.

The flues in the Sunshine Furnace can be cleaned from two different clean-out doors and from the feed-door, so that there is no part of the flues which is not easily reached.

A special brush for this purpose is always supplied, and the operation is so simple that a boy can perform it.

The whole Sunshine Furnace construction is on the same plan of simplicity.

Sold by all enterprising dealers. Write for booklet.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OPENED THIS MORNING.

Women's Missionary Societies of Peterborough Branch in Session

At Mark Street Methodist Church—The Delegates Present—To day's Programme.

The annual convention of the Peterborough Branch of the Women's Missionary Society, in connection with the Methodist church, was opened in the Mark street church this morning. Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour, district organizer, was in the chair. The delegates present were: George street church, Mrs. Pentland; Mrs. Sherin, Mrs. Carlyle; George street Mission Band, Miss Aggie Davis; Charlotte street church, Mrs. Moore, Mrs.(Rev.) Adam; Mark street church, Mrs. Munroe, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Record, Mrs. Gamble, Mrs. Speer, Miss Hamilton; Bridgenorth, Miss Udy, Mrs. Bunner, Mrs. Mann; Lakefield, Mrs. Sherin, Miss Sherin, Mrs. Deannard, Mrs. (Rev.) Leggott, Miss Edwards; Millbrook, Mrs. Walsh; Warsaw, Mrs. Meacham, Miss Wasson, Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Foster, Miss Matthews, Mrs. P. Payne, Mrs. S. R. Payne, Miss Lukey; Fairmount, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Staples, Mrs. Seaton.

The meeting opened with devotional exercises led by Mrs. A. R. Campbell, after which the reports of the different societies were read as follows: George street, Mrs. Pentland; George street Mission Band, Miss Davis; Charlotte street, Mrs. Moore; Mark street, Mrs. Munroe; Millbrook, Mrs. Walsh; Warsaw, Mrs. Foster; Bridgenorth, Miss Mann; Fairmount, Mrs. Walsh; Lakefield, Mrs. Sherin; Lakefield Mission Band, Miss Edwards. Each society was shown to be in a flourishing condition and a general increase in membership was reported.

A thoughtful and carefully prepared paper on "The call for Prayer," was read by Mrs. Payne of Warsaw.

This afternoon session opened with a consecration service led by Mrs. (Dr.) Meacham. A paper of much interest on "Our Home and Foreign Work," was read by Mrs. (Rev.) Adam. A round table conference was led by Miss Annie C. Wilson, Branch Mission Band Corresponding Secretary. A pleasing solo was rendered by Miss Udy, after which Mrs. Hughes read a paper on "The Educational Work of the Women's Missionary Society."

A very interesting programme of addresses and music will be given this evening.

REPORTS SHOWED YEAR OF PROGRESS.

Annual Meeting of Park Street Baptist Church.

Delegates to Association Meeting in Belleville Appointed—The Finances in Good Condition.

The adjourned annual business meeting of the Park street Baptist church, was held last night. The meeting was adjourned from last Thursday. The pastor, Rev. A. H. Brace, occupied the chair, and the church was well represented, the younger members manifesting a great interest in the business.

The Church Clerk's report showed an increase of 52 in the membership of the church.

The weekly offerings, as per the secretary's figures showed the finances to be in a satisfactory condition and a much larger number contributing by the envelope system.

The Building Fund Treasurer told of great encouragement. A new lot of fifty feet, with a frontage on Stewart and another on Park street, had been secured, and every dollar paid, with a nice balance on hand for future operations.

Reports came in from the Sunday school, Mission Band, Dorcas Society, Mission Circle and the B. Y. P. U., representing a decided advance in all departments.

The officers, including Deacon W. C. Barrie, whose term had expired, were re-elected. Organist, trustees and Finance Committee were re-elected, with two exceptions: Mr. R. F. Buntin was elected to the Finance Committee and Mr. John Reed appointed as Church Treasurer.

Three new ushers were also appointed.

The annual roll call of the church with the presentation of the offerings was fixed for the second week in June.

Delegates were appointed for the Association of Baptist churches to be held in Belleville on June 21 to 23. The appointments made by the Circle and Bands were approved. It was decided that the church's collections for missions should be taken monthly in coloured envelopes, to be divided among the varied enterprises of the denomination on a basis to be decided by the church.

Refreshments were served by the ladie during the evening. The outlook for the future is full of promise.

A victory for the Quakers to-morrow will be a big stride for the team towards the championship of their district. They are already beginning to feel their (Quaker) oats.

• • • •

The Quaker Football Club has been obliged to modify the arrangements for the excursion to be run to Harwood on Saturday. The conditions of the water at the locks makes it impossible to use the "City of Peterborough," consequently the "Water Lily" will carry the excursion, which will leave from the wharf below the locks. Carriages will convey passengers to and from the boat at the same price as the boat ticket, all ticket-holders being carried free. The team representing the Quakers will be a strong one and they expect a good game with Harwood. Mr. Art. Noble will referee.

LACROSSE.

The lacrosse season will open in Peterborough on Victoria Day with a game between Lindsay and the Peterborough team in the afternoon, in connection with the Field Day of Sports arranged by the T.A.S. These teams are both playing Intermediate C.L.A. this year, and a game in which they are participants should prove interesting. This will be the first opportunity of seeing the reconstructed Peterborough team in a game, and doubtless there are many who will welcome the chance to see the opening of the season in the great summer game in Peterborough.

• • • •

The Victoria Day match will be played on the Murray street grounds.

• • • •

The game here on Tuesday between the Lindsay and Peterborough teams should be a strong holiday attraction. Both these teams are entered in District No. 5, of the Intermediate C.L.A. series and the line-up of each will be strong. The lacrosse enthusiasts may be somewhat surprised when they see what a speedy twelve can be picked from the material in town and one of the strongest teams that has ever represented Peterborough will be placed on the green this summer.

• • • •

The T. A. S. has its first game in the Trent Valley League on June 4th with the Ontarios of Port Hope on the home grounds. It will be a warm struggle as the Port Hopers have a strong team.

• • • •

Dick Boyle, P. Connors and James Anglesyc will figure on the T. A. S. team this year, and with Fred Derocher, James O'Brien, Ed Mahoney, F. McGrath and many others who are going to turn out, will make a strong bunch to pick from.

• • • •

The thanks of the officers of the T. A. S. club is extended to Mr. A. W. Cressman, for his generous gift of seven handsome lacrosse pins bearing the club colours and initials, T. A. S.

• • • •

According to the Post, the Lindsay team is practising hard for their game with the locals on the T. A. S. grounds on Victoria Day. The game will be played in connection with the field day of sports.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The committee in charge of the field day of sports for Victoria Day has completed all arrangements and a good day's sport is assured. A number of the events will be run off before the game, between the quarters, and after the game. The T.A.S. committee will insist on the spectators keeping to the grand stand during the afternoon.

WRESTLING.

Harry Parker, the "little demon" wrestler, who is taking on all comers at the Star Theatre, Toronto, this week, agreeing to throw them in 15 minutes, or forfeit $25, encountered a snag in Artie Edmunds, the ex-115 and 125 lbs. Canadian Amateur champion, the other night. Edmunds lasted the bout and collected the cash. The bout was decidedly interesting. The veteran Parker, who had about 20 lbs. the better of the argument, played with Edmunds for the first five minutes, only to find when he settled down to real work, that he had wasted too much time. Several times he had Edmunds in dangerous positions but the local lad either bridged or rolled out of the way.

The last three minutes were full of incident. Parker threw Edmunds about the mat like a ball, but Edmunds always alighted in a safe position, and although bleeding from the rough work stuck the limit. Parker asked for another chance with Edmunds, and Artie promptly accepted.

"You have improved wonderfully in a year," was Parker's parting word of praise for his youthful opponent.

ales to noon 93,000

To McMillan & Maguire: New York, May 19th, 190—Yesterday's apathy following the early improvement in the market has discouraged traders who were disposed to operate for a moderate turn on the long side and sentiment last night was again bearish. The principal argument against the market is the continued exports of gold, but as the $56,-350,000 already shipped or taken for shipment, covers the full amount of the Panama payment and part of the new Japanese loan, an early halt to the export movement is not unlikely. An advance in money rates would weaken sterling exchange and check gold shipments; some further engagements for shipment to-morrow and Tuesday are likely to be announced to-day. Manipulation on the United States realty stocks may be expected in connection with the re-organizing plan which may be announced before the close of the week. The manipulation in Con. Gas promises to carry that stock higher. Talk of unsatisfactory trade conditions has checked buying of steel preferred, but it is not a good sale at ruling prices. —Town Topics.

A CHANCE

For Everyone to Get Their Goods and Their Money Back.

Working people especially whom I have tried to please by keeping open my store after working hours, will be sorry that I have been compelled by the jealousy of my opposition, who denounced me to the authorities, to close my store at 7 o'clock, although other stores have been open for years without any complaint. But I am now prepared to give my customers a benefit that has never been given before in the Dominion

COMMENCING SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14th, UNTIL JANUARY 1st, 1904, I WILL RETURN THE WHOLE OF THE MONEY EACH CUSTOMER SPENT ON A CERTAIN DAY,

Which will be announced in the Daily Examiner. From January 1st to 15th every customer will be supplied with a dated coupon which must be presented at the store at the date advertised for returning the money. Everyone has a chance to get his or her money back.

Although I am giving this great benefit my prices will continue to be away below all my competitors. I have received, this week, —

THIRTY-ONE KILLED IN RAILWAY WRECK.

Terrible Results of a Head-on Collision on the Big Four.

Freight and Work Trains in the Smash—Wreck is Piled 30 Feet High on the Track—Only Four of Crew of Work Train Now Living and Two of these are Seriously Hurt—Twenty-One Bodies Taken Out.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 20.—Thirty-one men were killed and at least thirty injured in a head-on collision between a freight and a work train on the Big Four, between Mackinaw and Fremont. The bodies of 26 victims have been taken from the wreck, which is piled 30 feet high on the track. Five bodies yet remain pinned under the huge pile of broken timber, twisted and distorted iron and steel.

All the dead and most of the injured were members of the work train, the crews of both engines jumping in time to save their lives. The collision occurred in a deep cut, at the beginning of a sharp curve, neither train being visible to the crew of the other until they were within fifty feet of each other. The engineers set the brakes, sounded the whistle and leaped from their cabs, the two trains striking with such force that the sound was heard for miles.

A second after the collision the boiler of the work train engine exploded, throwing heavy iron bars and splinters of wood 200 feet.

Conductor John W. Judge of Indianapolis, who had charge of the freight train, received orders at Urbana to wait at Mackinaw for the work train, which was due there at 2.40 p.m. Instead of doing this he failed to stop. The engineer of the work train, George Becker, had also received orders to pass the freight at Mackinaw, and was on the way to that station.

After working two hours the remains of 26 men were taken out. One of the last bodies recovered was that of William Bailey of Mackinaw, who had been lifted 30 feet into the air and held in place by two rails, which had been pushed up between the engine and the tender of the work train.

The injured were taken to the two cabooses of the relief trains, where temporary hospitals were improvised and their wounds taken care of. The dead will lie on the bank all night, or until the arrival of the coroner in the morning. The dead are residents of neighboring towns, and the scenes about the wreck last evening were beyond description. Wives and children of men who were missing thronged around, asking if their husbands or fathers had been killed. Out of 35 men who constituted the crew of the work train, only four are living, and two of these are seriously injured.

KILLED AT BURKETON.

James Hudson, Teamster, of Hayden, Struck by a Train.

Bowmanville, Nov. 20.—James Hudson of Hayden, a teamster employed on the new Bobcaygeon and Burketon Railway, was instantly killed at the C.P.R. crossing at Burketon early yesterday morning. He was driving a team of horses across the track to water them when the train came along and struck him. He was about 66 years of age and leaves a wife and family.

Died From Horse's Kick.

Barrie, Nov. 20.—As a result of a horse's kick Leon Proctor, second son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Proctor, died yesterday morning. The accident occurred on the 11th inst. While the young man was grooming a horse the animal kicked him in the abdomen, inflicting internal injuries. Deceased was very popular and his death is very generally and deeply regretted. He was born in Richmond Hill and was in his 20th year.

Tired of Life.

Galt, Nov. 20.—William Hayhurst, aged 54, a native of Birmingham, Eng., employed as hostler at the Market Hotel here, was found dead in his bedroom yesterday morning, asphyxiated by escaping gas. It is believed to be a case of suicide, as Hayhurst remarked to several persons recently that he was tired of life and wished to die. Deceased, who had no relatives in this country, so far as known, was an old British soldier, having served in South Africa in 1882 and was the recipient of a pension.

Fell Fifty Feet.

Windsor, Nov. 20.—George Wardle of Chatham plunged 50 feet and struck the ground with dreadful force yesterday morning, yet, strange to say, not a bone in his body was fractured. While at work the scaffold upon which he was standing collapsed and Wardle fell. It is feared that the patient sustained internal injuries.

Doctor Broke Shoulder Blade.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Dr. Nansen of Whitby arrived at the General Hospital yesterday, suffering from a broken shoulder blade. While going his rounds in Whitby, at a good rate, his buggy upset, and he was thrown some distance, striking his shoulder on the frozen ground. He was immediately placed on the train and brought to Toronto. He is doing very nicely.

Torpedo Destroyer Sinks Smack.

Devonport, Eng., Nov. 20.—The torpedo destroyer Falcon collided in the Channel during the night with a fishing smack, which sunk, and all hands aboard drowned. The Falcon's bows were smashed and one of her crew killed.

Ashore in Snowstorm.

Owen Sound, Nov. 19.—The steamer Windsor of the Algoma Navigation Co., bound down from the Soo, ran ashore at Squaw Point early yesterday morning during the blinding snowstorm. It commenced snowing some time after midnight and snow fell to a depth of eight inches. Two of the crew came ashore in a boat and walked to the town and secured the tug Agnes, which attempted to pull the Windsor off, but failed. The passengers were transferred to the tug and brought to town.

Insulted King Edward.

London, Nov. 20.—King Edward, for the second time in his brief reign, has been robbed by a clerk in the office of the paymaster of the household. On this occasion cheques amounting to $2,500 were illegally drawn and cashed by Frank Lanham, who, yesterday, at Bow street police court, confessed and was committed for trial at the Old Bailey.

A WARM WELCOME.

Italy's King and Queen the Guests of the Lord Mayor of London—Doings of the Day.

London, Nov. 20.—The welcome of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena of Italy to London as the guests of the Lord Mayor and Corporation yesterday, was of a remarkably cordial character From the moment of their arrival at Paddington Station, the royal procession passed beneath one long canopy of bright colors and triumphal arches, and masses of people gave Their Majesties a splendid reception.

Proceeding through Hyde Park, the King and Queen reached the Italian Embassy, where was stationed a guard of honor of Garibaldian veterans. Entering the Embassy, Their Majesties held a reception and received addresses from the Italian colony.

The scene at the Guild Hall was very brilliant. The Lord Mayor, Sir James T. Ritchie, met the guests at the entrance of the historic city hall, and conducted them to the library, where the Corporation's address was presented in a gold casket. The banquet was then served. After the Lord Mayor had toasted King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena, His Majesty replied to the Lord Mayor, thanking him in behalf of himself and the Queen for the splendid hospitality extended to them and for the address of welcome. The Italian King and Queen left the Guild Hall amid a fanfare from the city trumpeters and the cheers of the public crowded throughfares without. Their Majesties took a train from Paddington for Windsor.

At the convocation of Oxford University yesterday morning the degree of doctor of civil law was by diploma conferred on King Victor Emmanuel.

Shortly after the return to Windsor of the royal personages and their suites the Italian Foreign Minister, Signor Tittoni, had a conference with Lord Lansdowne, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs, and later was granted an audience by King Edward.

The British and Italian Sovereigns dined together last night in the oak-room of the castle.

After the dinner Their Majesties were present at the performance of "David Garrick" in the Waterloo Chamber by Charles Wyndham and his company, given under royal command.

King Edward and King Victor Emmanuel last night conferred decorations on some of the members of their respective suites.

CANADIAN MAIL CONTRACT.

Allans Have No Official Notification of the Award Yet.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—No official intimation has reached the Allans at Montreal of the award of the Canadian mail contract. The Allan Line Company sent in two tenders, one for an eighteen-knot service for freight and passengers, and second for a twelve-knot service for passengers and very little freight. It is not known which of these two has been accepted, but particulars may be looked for to-day.

Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1903.

THE EXPLANATION IS EASY.

Some United States papers are given to generalizing too rashly on Canadian sentiment from single incidents. The vigorous Canadian objections to the Alaska award have been seized upon by some organs as an evidence that Canadians were leaning towards annexation. The Hamilton Times says, the absurdity of such a conclusion based on Canadian objections to being robbed of territory by the United States does not appear to have crossed the minds of those one-idea editors. Another class of journals build a theory that Canada is very hostile in feeling toward the United States because a United States flag was hissed in a Montreal theatre.

Of course the two theories are irreconcilable; as a matter of fact they are both wrong. The plain fact is that there was never in Canada so little dissatisfaction with our condition, never so confident a hope in our country's future; and never was it so hard to find a Canadian who would be willing to put our lot to that of the republic to the south. There is no annexation party in Canada; an annexationist would be a rare curiosity. We are too busy building up Canada, and too well satisfied with our success in the work to think about change in our status.

And it is not true that there is "intense hostility" toward the United States, as has been alleged. True, our people feel that United States politicians have in the past treated us rather churlishly; and they haven't forgotten the taunts and threats that we would be frozen into abandoning our national aspirations and forced to "beg" for admission into the republic. Nor do they think that the United States exhibited any marked degree of generosity in the Alaska matter. But they're not worrying or harbouring malice; they have confidence in Canada, and they know that a manly, independent course will in the end win even Uncle Sam's respect. Moreover, the Yankee as an individual is a pretty decent chap, although, as a politician he is not always governed by ethical rules which Canadians respect, and we have hopes for his politico-moral reformation yet.

But the flag-hissing is easily accounted for. There are plays which are historically false and which are a gross libel on the people whom the playwright sought to caricature, and which skilfully misrepresent their principles and conduct, yet which are assured of the hearty applause of a certain class of the United States people. But when the manager of such plays has the bad taste and effrontery to attempt to present such plays before the people intended to be slandered and lampooned by them, he must not be surprised if some of those people show their resentment. Canadians are no "dumb, driven cattle," and conscientious Yankees respect them for indignantly resenting insults of that kind. Imagine what would happen to a company that would in a United States town put on a play glorifying Benedict Arnold and presenting George Washington as a traitor and a drunken butcher of women and children! He would deserve more than hisses—and he would get all he deserved!

CANADIAN NICKEL.

The Bruce Mines in western Ontario, are reported as sold to the Canadian Copper Company. The Chicago Mining World of October 24th, says that the sale has been made to the International Nickel Company, which is the Canadian Copper Co. reorganized, and a Chas. M. Schwab property. The price paid was $600,000.

The Bruce property has been one of the best known mines of the west for over half a century, and was brought for its value as a flux in the smelting operations of the International Company in its new furnaces at Sudbury. The mines have been idle for a year or so, be for which date for a short time they were operated by Lord Douglas of Hawick, for an English syndicate. Before that time they were idle for over twenty years. In their early days the mines produced more than $8,000,000 in copper, and were at one time the largest mines operated on this continent by British capital.

C. M. Schwab brought up the International Company from Rockfeller in the hope of cornering the world's supply of nickel. The company is now completing at Sudbury additions consisting of four new furnaces, to cost over $1,000,000. During the past year, says the Chicago World, a party has been secretly buying up all nickel properties and mines in the Sudbury region that have been available, and large sums have been spent. Nobody seems to know or to be able to guess who the party is, but it is supposed that developments of the greatest interest to the world, so far as the nickel industry and armour plate making are concerned, are about to be made, or, indeed, have been made.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Stratton, says the Globe, has invited the newspapers, which have been hinting that the purchase of Gamey's stock was prompted by R'm, to put their charge definitely and he will give them an opportunity to establish their accusation in the courts. A "thorough purge" has occurred in the campaign of slander, although one paper arises to say that the question is not a material one. Will some of the cocksure and responsible journals oblige the Provincial Secretary? Don't be bashful.

Not Afraid to Endorse It.

People have learned to have confidence in Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for every form of piles and they do not hesitate to endorse it at every opportunity. As a result Dr. Chase's Ointment is probably recommended by more persons than any preparation on the market today. There is no guesswork about its effects—relief is prompt and cure certain.

HOME DUTIES

Women seem to listen to every call of duty except the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. How much harder the daily tasks become when some derangement of the female organs makes every movement painful, and keeps the nervous system unstrung? Irritability takes the place of happiness and amiability; and weakness and suffering takes the place of health and strength. As long as they can drag themselves around, women continue to work and perform their household duties. They have been led to believe that suffering is necessary because they are women! What a mistake! Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will banish pain and restore happiness. Don't resort to strong stimulants or narcotics when this great strengthening, healing remedy for women is always within reach.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

For Proof Read the Symptoms, Suffering and Cure Recited in the Following Letters:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pains. Menses would occur every other day. For about five weeks I was so that I could not stand on my feet from weakness. I also had severe pains in limbs, my head at times seemed as though it would burst. I was completely played out; could not sleep. My kidneys were also affected. I could not begin to explain all I suffered. Your medicine completely cured me, and I cannot tell you how thankful I am to have my strength back. I can work at anything.

"Your medicine is certainly wonderful, and I am not afraid to tell anyone of its merits. It it a great thing in our home. I wish to have this letter published so that anyone suffering may read it, and use your Vegetable Compound and be benefited."—MISS LIZZIE MOHR, 1136 Durfor St., Philadelphia, Pa.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last Summer I was very miserable. I suffered with falling of the womb, headache, a bad discharge, aching of limbs and very painful menstruation; would be confined to my bed from three to five days every month.

"My husband got me three bottles of your Vegetable Compound. I had been taking doctor's medicine nearly two years and never got any help, and before I had taken half a bottle of your medicine I felt some relief. My head and back felt better, and I could go to bed and sleep, which I could not before taking your medicine. After I had taken the three bottles and used the Sanative Wash, I was well and strong and felt like a new woman.

"Last September I became pregnant and again took your medicine, and got along nicely during pregnancy and got up from my confinement sooner and felt better than I ever did before. I have a nice baby boy. He is well and strong, the healthiest of my children, and it is all owing to your Vegetable Compound. I cannot find words with which to thank you. Your medicine is surely the best medicine in the world."—MRS. MARTHA JACOBS, care C.C. Holbrook, Johnson, Vt.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice has restored to health more than 500,000 women. Why don't you try it, my sick sisters?

MATTERS MILITARY

BY VEDETTE.

The non-commissioned officers class of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, it will be noticed, by reports published in the Examiner, been begun this year, and at present consists of from eighteen to twenty men. So far three meetings, which take place every Wednesday evening in the drill shed, have been held and the class, under the direction of Sergt-Major Brittain, has been put through some preliminary work. Men wishing to join the class, which is very beneficial, and only occupies one and a half hours each week, must join at once as the entry list will soon be closed.

The loss of Captain MacPherson will be severely felt by both officers, noncoms and men of the 57th. Although somewhat of a hard company commander he was universally liked, and it is not probable that the regiment will have the good fortune of having such another smart young officer for at least some time to come. It is rumored that Lieut Glover intends to resign his commission, but the report is yet unconfirmed.

The cheque for the pay of the Guard of Honour which was called out to receive the Governor-General, when he passed through Peterborough last summer, has now been received, and the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the guard are requested to call at the office of the pay master, No. 418 Water street, where they will receive their money.

The absence of Lieut. E. O. Bradburn of the 56th Battery, Field Artillery, will be a distinct loss to the local company as well as to the entire battery, Mr. Bradburn having been connected with the regiment for a number of years. It will be pleasant news to military men to know that Mr. Bradburn, who is at present on the Canadian North-west is getting on exceedingly well.

A militia order says that, with a view to placing the administration of the department of militia and defence upon a more satisfactory basis, it has been decided to transfer the custody, care and issue of arms, clothing, equipment and military stores of all descriptions from the civil to the military branch, and to establish a military corps to be known as the "Ordnance Stores Corps." The command of the Ordnance Stores Corps will be exercised by a director-general of ordnance, who shall hold the rank of colonel.

To be first-class stations—Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec.

To be second-class stations—London, St. John, Halifax.

To be third-class stations—Victoria, Winnipeg and Charlottetown.

The uniform will be that of the army ordnance corps in the imperial service.

General Baden-Powell was the guest of the Anglo-Saxon Club in London, England, a few days back. He was presented with a casket and an escritoire, made in New Zealand. Replying, the general said that in South Africa all the colonials were good but the New Zealanders showed all the rest the way. It will be noticed that the much respected general did not specify whether the New Zealanders showed the way to the rear or to the front, certainly not the latter, because the Canadians did that.

A London, England, despatch says: "The chamberlain rifle carrier, a device making unnecessary the shortening of the rifle barrel, will be drawn to the attention of the Canadian Government at the end of November."

Sir Percy Girouard who recently in London, England, received the freedom of the Ironmongers' Guild, is the first soldier and colonial to be the recipient of that honour. The casket which contained the scroll of the freedom is miniature replica in wrought iron from an old mantlement box of the company.

An instrument which is destined to play an important part in the warfare of the future is the hyposcope which enables a marksman to fire with accurate aim without exposing himself to the fire of the enemy. The device was invented by Mr. Wm. Toulton, of Brighton, England. Mr. Toulton first conceived the idea of such an instrument after the battle of Colenso in the Boer war, during which it is stated that not a single boer was to be seen, and it occurred to Mr. Toulton that a combination of reflectors might be arranged which would enable the British soldier to remain entirely concealed when in action. The rough model which he constructed as a result of these deliberations immediately elicited favourable comments on all sides and it was not long before he received an order for a number of these instruments from the British War Office. These instruments were employed with good results during the remainder of the war, their use at Mafeking having received particular mention.

The hyposcope is adapted to be secured to the stock of the rifle near the breech. It consists of a series of mirrors mounted in a tube of inverted L shape; the shorter arm lies across the barrel of the rifle, while the longer arm hangs down at one side. The first mirror reflects the light coming in along the barrel of the rifle to a second mirror at the elbow of the instrument, which directs the rays downward to a mirror at the lower end of the tube, and thence it passes out at right angles to the eye. Thus on looking in at the eye piece one can see the sights of his rifle, and take accurate aim while holding the gun above his head. The entire instrument is very compact and light weighing about a pound. It is provided with a holster in which it may be placed to prevent it from sustaining any injury when not in use. The parts however, are not liable to be easily injured. In case a mirror is broken a new one can readily be slipped into the old frame.

The advantage of this instrument in actual warfare will be apparent to all. Only the muzzles of the rifles are exposed to the enemy, and the soldiers are entirely concealed in the trenches. But aside from its advantages as a means of protection, the device will be found to greatly increase the effectiveness of the firing. It is stated that during the Boer war only one cartridge out of seven thousand was effective, which only goes to show how nervous a man is under fire, for in such work would not be tolerated in target practice. The fear of being shot while taking aim makes the soldier fire hurriedly and at random; with the hyposcope attached to his rifle my fears will be overtained, and the soldier may fire deliberately and with perfect aim. The same instrument has also been designed for use on Maxim guns, on which it will be particularly useful, judging by experiences in the Boer war, for these guns were always the centre of a concentrated fire.

Monday Col. Montizambert's leave of absence expired and his tenure of office as D.O.C. of military district No. 3 and 4 came to an end. The gallant colonel has had thirty-five years service in the Canadian militia, and few officers have had a more successful career, or whose departure from office created such profound regret. Col. Montizambert leaves office simply because he has reached the age limit.

Owing to the delimitation of the Alaska boundary made by the tribunal which recently sat in London, the North-west Mounted Police may have to abandon two of their posts in the Dalton trail, the one at Wells, where the Chilkat and Klimoni Rivers join and the other at camp Pleasant where Glacier River and Kluhni River meet. The Alaska tribunal decision gives the United States twenty miles more of territory north west of Chilcat Pass than that enjoyed under the provisional boundary. Pleasant Camp, the more northerly of the two posts, is a beautiful location and the buildings erected by the police were of a substantial and comfortable type.

The Question of Baldness.

This is a vital question with hundreds of men who are bald or partially so. How to overcome the disfigurement lent by baldness is a simple matter when you consider the perfection of modern art in the making of Wigs and Toupees. The visit of Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto to Peterborough on Wednesday, Nov. 25th, when he will be at the Oriental Hotel, renders it possible for any who wish to consult him to do so at his private apartments retained at the Oriental Hotel for this purpose. Demonstration given to show the perfect naturalness of his Wigs and Toupees. Do not miss this opportunity. Remember the days and address.

REVISE THE TARIFF.

Resolutions Passed By Executive of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—The executive of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association met yesterday and passed these two resolutions, which form the keynote of their policy:

"We favor an immediate revision of our present Canadian customs tariff and the adoption,

"First, of a general tariff, framed to meet Canadian conditions, based in principle, upon and approximative to that now in force in the United States, a tariff that shall protect Canadian industries and pursuits as efficiently as the tariff of the United States protects the industries of that country.

"Second, we favor a policy of reciprocal preferential trade within the British Empire, whereby, through readjustment of their respective fiscal systems, the United Kingdom and her colonies will each grant to the products of the other a substantial preference as against the products of foreign countries."

ELECT PRESIDENT BY DIRECT VOTE.

Favored by A. F. of L.—Would Also Exclude All Asiatic Immigrants.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 20.—A resolution favoring the election by direct vote of the people of the President, Vice-President, members of the Cabinet and the United States Senators, Supreme Court judges and attorneys-general of the several States of the Union, was adopted yesterday by the convention of the American Federation of Labor.

The convention adopted resolutions calling for the extension of the Chinese Exclusion Act to Japanese, Coreans and other Asiatics, and that the measure continue in force in the insular possessions. A bill embodying these resolutions will be presented to Congress.

Would Convene High Jointer.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Representative Williams, (Mississippi) introduced a resolution yesterday declaring:

"That the House of Representatives would view with pleasure and heartily endorse initiative steps taken by the President of the United States towards convening the Joint High Commission appointed by Great Britain, the Dominion of Canada and the United States for the purpose of considering freer and more amicable trade relations between the United States and the Dominion of Canada."

Will Build at Ottawa.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—The International Harvester Company has had plans prepared for the construction of a number of structures to serve as offices, salesrooms and warehouses in various cities throughout the Northwest. Among those on which immediate work is ordered is a two-story structure, 60x60 feet, at Ottawa, Ont., to cost $12,000.

STRANGE STATEMENT

Great Britain is Accused by a French Deputy.

SAYS SHE IS MISCHIEF MAKER

Policy of Great Britain Is, He Says, to Try to Raise Issues Between the United States, France and Germany, to the End of Increasing Rapprochement of Britain and Russia.

Paris, Nov. 20.—In the presence of a crowded chamber Deputy Deschanel (Republican), former President of the Chamber, began yesterday afternoon the discussion of the Foreign Office budget. He expressed the view that it was the policy of Great Britain to create issues between the United States, Germany and France, which must aid in the rapprochement of Great Britain and Russia.

M. Deschanel said France had no intention to make war upon Morocco. France wished neither military adventures nor the partition of Morocco, and she had no desire to conquer Siam. There existed no question that could not be settled by diplomacy or arbitration. The Deputy further declared that those who were responsible for armed peace were those who refused to discuss the proposition for disarmament. It would be a crime, he added, to raise issues between Great Britain and France. The relations between France and Italy were most friendly, but the alliance with Russia must be the corner-stone of French policy.

A MAN CAN'T WORK

When He is Suffering With Piles.

He Can't Eat, Can't Sleep, Can't get Comfort any way but one—Pyramid Pile Cure Will Cure Him, Give Relief at once Never Known to Fail.

Just a little pain may so distract a man's mind that it will cost him hundreds of dollars. Life is a battle. To succeed one needs all his energies and all his brain force to apply to the question at hand Even a corn will make him irritable, cross, angry—and an angry man seldom succeeds. The trifling pain of a corn is a pleasant feeling beside the agonizing ache of piles. That is a pain which seems to pervade the whole body. It communicates itself to all the parts near the seat of the trouble, and brings on a heavy, dragging feeling in the perineum. Those who have never so suffered do not know what it means. It racks the nerves, prevents sleep, prevents concentrated thought, and makes a man lose flesh as fast as he would with a virulent fever.

And yet piles are looked upon as a little thing. They are neglected —allowed to run on from month to month and year to year By and by comes a dangerous surgical operation. Maybe it cures—maybe it kills.

There is only one sure, safe and quick cure for piles. It is the Pyramid Pile Cure. It is a recent discovery, and its properties are such that it eases, soothes and heals the inflamed parts, reduces the inflammation at once, and with continued treatment removes all swelling and all trace of the disease. It puts the membranes in a healthy, active condition and cures completely and permanently.

From Samuel Victor, Detroit, Mich. "I have not written you sooner because the first box of the Pyramid Pile Cure I used helped me so much I wanted to wait until I was completely cured, and so it was after using three boxes of your Pyramid Pile Cure, I am entirely cured of the terrible disease from which I have suffered for six months, and now I am using Pyramid Pile Pills, which help me very much."

From B. H. Palmer, Windsor, Cal. "I have been troubled for fifteen years with piles, and have tried different salves and ointments, but never came across anything like your Pyramid Pile Cure. I used two 50 cent boxes three months ago, and they have made a complete cure, and I am recommending them to everyone I know to be afflicted. Thanks for the cure."

From Thomas A. Nixon, 854 North Bambrey street, Philadelphia. "It is now time that I should let you know that I am cured of bleeding piles. If you only knew how I have suffered from them for the last nine years in pain. Last April I went to the drug-store, and bought a 50 cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure, and I found at last a good cure. I had spent dollars trying to get cured of my piles; all others have failed to cure me, and now I am happy to have a good sleep and be able to work also."

Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists generally. If yours doesn't keep it he will get it for you if you ask him. Book on the cause and cure of piles sent free. Address Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich

Died From His Injuries.

ANXIOUS ABOUT STR. ERIN.

Left for Soo Last Week—Last Seen Tuesday, With Machinery Disabled and Laboring in Sea's Trough.

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 20.—The steamer Erin, owned by J. & T. Conlon of Thorold, which left Fort William on Thursday last, has not reached the Soo, and much anxiety is felt for her safety. She was reported seen by the steamer Samuel Mitchell on Tuesday with her machinery disabled and laboring in the trough of the sea. She asked for assistance, but the Samuel Mitchell could not give it.

Capt. John Sullivan of Toronto left here last night with the tug Ainsworth to look for the Erin, upon which his brother is captain.

The Erin's consort, the Dunforth, is safe in harbor on the north shore.

Capt. Patrick Sullivan of St. Catharines is in command of the Erin. He is one of the best-known and most popular skippers on fresh water and has been with the Conlons for many years. He has several daughters in a convent in Toronto.

Ocean Liner Overdue.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—The Canadian Inland and Ocean Navigation Line steamship, Toronto, which sailed from Rotterdam on Oct. 31, and from Newcastle on Nov. 3, for Montreal, has not yet been reported. She passed Dunnet Head, Scotland, on Nov. 4, and signalled "Delayed owing to steering gear being disabled."

CANADIAN WOOD PULP.

Reversal of a Recent Decision and Practice in the United States.

New York, Nov. 20.—The Board of Classification of the United States General Appraisers yesterday announced another decision regarding wood pulp from Canada. Some time ago the board decided that a countervailing duty must be put on wood pulp, imported from the Province of Quebec, under the provision in paragraph 393 of the tariff of an additional duty, when the country or dependency of origin imposes an export duty. In such a case the countervailing duty is to be equal to the export duty.

It was held in the previous duty that a license imposed by Quebec on wood cut for pulp on public land was equivalent to an export duty. In the present case the pulp, which is mechanically ground, came from the Province of Nova Scotia The collector at New Haven assessed a duty of 25 cents for each cord of pulp wood used, under instructions from the United States Treasury Department. The importer, William Bangs, protested, and his protest is now sustained. It was shown that the pulp was made from wood grown on land owned by private persons and not on lands leased from the Government, and also that neither the Dominion of Canada nor the Province of Nova Scotia imposes any rate, tax, assessment or other charge upon the pulp.

Cape Colony Election.

Cape Town, Nov. 20.—The Synod of the Dutch Reformed Church has resolved to lodge a protest with the Government on the subject of martial law grievances. Nearly all the speeches were the most violent of any recorded since the war. The Rev. A. J. Steytler said that the Synod was the best representative of the Afrikander nation, for in Parliament they had to mix water with their wine. All kinds of grievances were related, such as the locking up of elders and the using of churches as forts. One speaker said that the commandants had trodden them under foot, another that thousands of his sisters had been burdened. The discussion at times was so heated that the Moderator had to intervene.

Newmarket Inquest.

Newmarket, Nov. 20.—The funeral of the victims of the boiler explosion will be held to-day, and will be attended by the fellow-employes of the unfortunate men. The injured are reported to be progressing favorably. Coroner Greenwood yesterday morning empannelled a jury, who viewed the remains, and then adjourned to meet again next Thursday evening. The cause of the explosion is still a mystery.

Premier in Good Health.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier spent yesterday in Montreal and received a large number of callers. Last night he was tendered a reception by the Montreal Reform Club, and several hundred Liberals paid their respects to the Premier. He will return to Ottawa to-day. The Premier is greatly improved in health.

Reciprocity Opposed.

Boston, Nov. 20.—The doctrine of reciprocity was opposed in the report of Colonel Albert Clarke, the secretary, at the annual meeting of the Home Market Club, the Republican protectionist organization, here yesterday.

Dynamite in Burning Store.

Kalaska, Mich., Nov. 20.—Three men were killed and one probably fatally injured early yesterday by an explosion of dynamite in a burning store at Sharon a village of 25 persons, 16 miles from here.

HOSTILE TREATMENT

Why Meet It Out to Canada for the Good of the Empire?

ASQUITH'S STRAIGHT QUERY

Canada Sends to Great Britain More Bounty-Fed Steel Than Either the United States or Germany — Mr. Thos. Shaw, M.P., Says This Country Will Be a Formidable Rival of the Mother Country.

London, Nov. 20.—(C. A. P.)—Sir Henry Asquith, speaking at Seven Oaks Wednesday night, said: "The Unionists, united, sing the chorus "Blessed is the word "Retaliation," some with full-throated conviction, others like Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, half-hearted, and with a tremulous quaver. Retaliation is put forward as a sticking plaster to reunite the fragments of a shattered party. Canada at present sent this country more bounty-fed iron than either the United States or Germany. Was Premier Balfour's system of retaliation for the good of the Empire to be applied by singling out Canada for hostile treatment?"

Bounty Fed Steel.

At a meeting yesterday of the Wolverhampton Chamber of Commerce, Theo. Shaw, Liberal, M.P., for Stafford, said that by far the greatest portion of the iron and steel imported into Britain was bounty-fed in Canada, and in years to come Canada would be a more formidable rival of this country then the United States.

Help British Farmers.

The War Office and Admiralty express a willingness to help the British farmer to dispose of his produce if he has a supply of what is needed.

Legal Pocket Picking.

Sir J. Brunner, speaking at Middlewich yesterday, said that protection meant legalized pocket-picking and the absolute power of monopolies over working men.

Francis H. Clergue, promoter of the Sault Ste. Marie enterprise in Canada, said last night that the negotiations for the resumption of the works with British capital were not yet completed, but that an announcement would be forthcoming on Tuesday.

Unfair to Farmers.

At a meeting of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Agricultural Society a member said that the importation of grain and meat from the colonies while the colonies shirked their due share of defence expenses was grossly unfair to the home agriculturists.

Why Ignore Canadians.

Truth asks why London smart society runs after American and South African women and ignores Canadians and Australians. It says London will become a colony of Americans, and the ladies of the British Empire League should find a remedy for the grievance.

England Eats Too Much.

The editor of The Express, contributing an article on the popular question: "Are We Eating Too Much?" declares that of course we do He says the motor car will not run on skim-milk and he finds the best result obtained by the omission of bread and butchers' meat.

The Foremost Statesman.

Mr. Laur, the distinguished French economist, says he considers Mr Chamberlain the foremost statesman of the times, and compares him to a morning bellman, awakening a slumbering country. Like Napoleon and Bismarck, he has no scruples. When his projects become law, America would fire off a few squibs and leave Germany to fight the battle.

Time Will Tell.

The Standard, referring to Mr Chamberlain's referendum statement, says: "He cannot seriously suppose that we will adopt it. Time will facilitate the progress of his fiscal campaign. The British constitution, imperfect as it is, cannot be revolutionized, as is the case when we are asked to throw all our economic system into the melting pot."

Trade With East Coast

Charles Wilson, M.P., at a meeting of the Hull Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, said that if had been stated that if they carried on trade with the United States they might also with Canada, but there practical knowledge came in. There were the drawbacks of Hull's geographical position, the dangers of navigation of the St. Lawrence and the want of outward cargo. It was, Mr. Wilson held, utterly impossible that trade with Canada could ever be carried on from the east coast.

Protestants Protest.

The Council of the Imperial Protestant Federations have passed a resolution protesting against any effort being made by His Majesty's Government toward establishing diplomatic relations with the Vatican. The Council says they desire to point out that the holding of such a commission to the See of Rome is distinctly forbidden by the laws of the realm, and that an overwhelming majority of His Majesty's subjects in the United Kingdom and the colonies is utterly opposed to any attempt being made to restore diplomatic relations with the Pope of Rome.

ALL SAINTS' ANNUAL HARVEST DINNER

Was a Great Success as was the Entertainment Which Followed.

An Excellent Programme was Provided – Speeches by Rev. Mr. Potter and Rev. Mr. Bastow.

The annual Harvest Dinner and entertainment given by the Ladies of All Saint's Church last night in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, was attended by an exceptionally large number of persons notwithstanding other counter attractions. The dinner, which began at 5.30 o'clock and continued until 8 o'clock, was excellent in point of both quality and quantity, while the fact that the concert was thoroughly enjoyed was evidenced in the hearty approval of each selection.

The programme opened with a piano solo by Miss Ida Mulholland, which was well played. The audience demanded an encore which was graciously responded to. Miss Mary Rush, next gave a vocal solo, accompanied by her sister, Miss Lillian Rush. The selection received its deserving encore. One of the chief attractions of the evening was the singing of the All Saint's quartette, who gave two numbers: "Stars of the Summer Night," and "Junita," both of which were encored.

Rev. J. G. Potter gave an interesting address. After expressing his pleasure at having the opportunity in speaking on this occasion, the speaker dwelt on the enjoyment of others company. Continuing Rev. Mr. Potter said we should all adapt ourselves to the church's work, and try to make the house of worship an attraction to all. Good music in church, he said, had on more than one occasion attracted persons who were not regular attendants. They had there got some of the Gospel seed which might not otherwise have fallen to them. In conclusion he said the church where there was no discord, but where there was unity in purpose and security in action, there would the most success be achieved; thus it was the duty of all of us to harmonize the church as much as possible.

Mr. Potter's address was followed by a vocal solo by Mr. Jos. Legg, which was encored. After Mr. Legg had responded, Mr. Rogers gave a delightful cornet solo, which in turn was followed by a vocal selection by Mr. Berkley.

Rev. Mr. Bastow next addressed the meeting in a few words, congratulating the committee and the church generally on the success of the evening.

Mr. J. Browne followed with a vocal solo, which was received with loud applause.

After a few words from Rev. W. L. Armitage the entertainment closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The coffee used at the supper was Chase & Sanborn's brand, supplied by Messrs. E. F. Mason & Co.

PROF. HUTTON AND HERODOTUS

An Intensely Interesting Lecture at the Y. M. C. A. Hall To-night.

The public is again remined of the lecture to be given to-night by Prof. Hutton, Principal of Toronto University and Professor of History, upon the subject of the "Wit and Wisdom of Herodotus." The lecture, which is given in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, under the auspices of the public-spirited C. D. A. Club, will be very well worth hearing—both the subject and the lecturer being intensely attractive. Herodotus Yclept, "The Father of History," as many of us knew to our sorrow in our school days and with delight after mature judgment ripened our appreciation of of his pre-eminence as a story teller such as he was to a greater extent than the ordinary historian. Though he flourished about 2,350 years ago, yet Prof. Hutton in his intensely interesting way, makes his wit and wisdom sparkle in a most fascinating way. Thus over the interval of twenty-four centuries two great minds collaborate to furnish an hour of intense intellectual enjoyment to-night. Miss Georgia Donnistoun and Miss Lillian Moore will assist in the programme which opens at 8 o'clock promptly. The public is cordially invited to be present.

HEAVY DOCKET AT POLICE COURT.

Number of Criminal Cases Tried This Morning Before Police Magistrate Dumble.

The members of the Police Department are working over-time these days. An unusually large-sized docket was on this morning. Barney Burton and Fred VanNorman were charged with having stolen a large assortment of fancy articles, of varying degrees of usefulness, from Mr. Cobb, while the latter was away in the woods hunting. After considerable evidence had been taken the police magistrate reserved judgment until to-morrow.

James Hayes was up on two charges of stealing, one of having taken a bottle of whiskey from Alex. Elliott's warehouse, and the other of having participated in the Cobb robbery. On these two charges he was acquitted, but was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison on a charge of vagrancy.

John Richardson, on a charge of having received stolen goods, knowing them to be such, was given until Saturday to await the decision of the Magistrate.

A young man was up on a charge of vagrancy, but the evidence did not sustain the charge and the case was dismissed.

Allen Payne and William Wasson were charged with having done damage to the Government dam at Indian River, about the 15th or 16th of October, by removing stop-logs. The case was adjourned until Friday, Nov. 27th.

The facts in connection with the case are: Mr. Payne and Mr. Wasson are owners of mills on the Indian River, and not having had sufficient water with which to operate their mills, asked as they claim, repeatedly, the caretaker of the dam at the head of the river, to allow them the quantity of water to which they were entitled. This request not having been granted, and the mills being idle for some time because of no water they took out the stoplogs themselves, which they claim they had a perfect right to do.

LADIES AUXILIARY CONCERT A SUCCESS.

Favorite Artists Visit Peterborough and Delight Large Audience.

Owen Smiley, Harold Jarvis and Miss Alice Dean in Music and Story – A Musical Treat.

Never has a better pleased audience left the opera house than that with which the Jarvis-Smiley-Dean Company was greeted last night, and had they not been pleased, their ideas of what constituted an enjoyable entertainment would have been extremely erratic. The hall was well filled with the most critical audience it would be possible to find in Peterborough and the enthusiastic applause with which each number of each of the artists was received, showed unmistakably that they well sustained their reputation. The members of the ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., under whose auspices the concert was held, are to be congratulated upon its success, and deserve commendation for their enterprise in bringing to the town such accomplished artists as those who appeared in the opera house last night.

The concert was a distinct treat, particularly so in a musical sense, which was, of course, the dominant feature.

Harold Jarvis, who is described as a tenor, but the description would be more nearly correct were he said to possess a high baritone voice, is not by any means a stranger to Peterborough audiences, but it is safe to say that never has his reception here been more cordial than it was last night. He was recalled after every number, in fact it seemed that his listeners could not hear him often enough. His voice has lost none of the clear rich tone which first made this young artist a favourite wherever he appeared, in fact, it was remarked by many that he never sang as well as he did last night. His first number, "Rejoice in the Lord," was sung with a very pleasing interpretation of the composer's spirit, and to the lighter encore, "The Stein Song," he gave an expression which was entirely new, and showed that he was not afraid to depart from the older ideas of shading and expression, and gave the selection a new touch of brightness. "Boys will be Boys," from the opera, "Mr Pickwick," was the next number by Mr. Jarvis, to which an encore was demanded, and graciously responded to. He next sang "The Bay of Biscay," the recall number being the sacred solo, "Face to Face," the rendition of which was greeted with thunderous applause. His last number, "Sing Me to Sleep," with violin obligato by Miss Dean, was a sweet winning song, and rendered with a feeling and sympathetic expression which made it an additional pleasure to listen to it. To this number he again responded with an encore.

Owen Smiley, also, was a favourite with Peterborough audiences previous to his appearance last night, and his reception therefore was all the more enthusiastic. It was evident that time had dealt kindly with the Grosmith of Canada, and his humour was just as fresh and spontaneous as it was when on his former visits he delighted those who were fortunate enough to hear him. His humour is not of the laboured kind, and the wit seems to be a part of himself. At every appearance his reception was of the most enthusiastic character, and every selection he gave increased the admiration of the audience for him. In his first number, Tennyson's, "The Northern Farmer," he faithfully portrayed the characteristics of the Yorkshire farmer, who advised his son Samuel to marry for "property" instead of love. He was encored in this, of course, as he was to every number he gave. An original ventriloquial sketch, "A Midsummer Pantomime," was his next selection, and one in which the audience was kept in roars of laughter. He was called upon twice for recall numbers, after this sketch, and responded with Irish stories, for which the audience seemed to show a special liking. A musical sketch, "Discord with a Sharp," was his last number, also an original selection, and one which appeared to meet with distinct approval.

Miss Alice Dean, the violinist, was before a Peterborough audience for the first time, and on any future occasion when she may choose to reappear she may be assured of an audience which will be in perfect sympathy with her. Added to her accomplishment as a musician she has an engaging stage appearance which gave additional charm to her playing. She is a violinist of more than usual ability, playing with good expression, and, particularly in the soft passages, a sweet rich tone. Her numbers included Tan Have's "Allegro Brilliant," Intermetzo from the Cavalleria Rusticana," Mazurka de Concert," by Musin.

Mr. W. Spencer Jones acted as accompanist for the evening, his playing being of a superior order.

Toronto, Nov. 20th. —. Albert H. Whitsell appeared in to-day's police to answer to a charge of obtaining $155 by fraud from Emily Patte, to whom he was engaged. Whitsell was convicted of a similar charge in Napanee lately. He was remanded until Monday.

MORNING FIRE IN ASHBURNHAM.

Residence of Mr. William Woods Considerably Damaged.

This morning at eight o'clock, a fire broke out in the dwelling house on Concession street, occupied by Mr. William Woods. In a short time the roof was badly burned. The furniture and other contents of the house were saved by being carried out hurriedly on to the street. The fire brigade did good service in saving the house from destruction. The house is owned by Mrs. W. Wand and was insured. Fortunately for the occupants, Mr. J. T. O'Connell real estate agent, arrived early on the scene and in a short time succeeded in securing another house for the family.

THE BACKERS OF KNOX WANTED WAGER MONEY.

But Judge Weller Made Plaintiff pay Costs.

In the it Against Dr. Bradd and the Ontario Bank Concluding Evidence Will be Published To-morrow.

More than usual interest was manifested in the action of Knox of Orillia, against Dr. Bradd and the Ontario Bank for money deposited upon a foot-race between complainant and Dave Belland. The case was tried in the Division Court by His Honour Judge Weller. Mr. Geo. Hatton appearing for the defendants, and Mr. Gunn, of Orillia, for Knox, the complainant.

The plaintiff claimed the sum of $200 being money paid over to and held by the said defendants under agreement bearing date on or about the 25th September, 1903, and belonging to the plaintiff.

The following is a summary of the evidence:

George N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, was the first witness called and on being sworn, said that he was acquainted with Messrs. Rountree and Brooks. He was present at the Knox-Belland foot-race which took place in October. Mr. Robt. Howden and himself acted as judges, while Mr. Rountree officiated as referee. Before the race, witness met Mr. Rountree who said he was going to referee it and added that there was a side bet up of $100 a side. He did not say anything regarding the probable outcome of the race. After the race was made and before it was run witness met Mr. Brooks to whom he said that he thought Knox could beat Belland. Brooks, he said, remarked that that fact did not count, as Rountree was referee and he himself was stakeholder, adding that he would hold in in his own hand any money that he might have on the foot-race. Witness then rejoined that it was not a square thing to do. When the race had been run, witness as one of the judges was thoroughly satisfied that Knox was the winner by eight yards. He was surprised to hear the decision of the referee, but did not protest.

John Crane, manager of the Ontario Bank, Peterborough, was the next to be called. He did not know of the presence in his bank of a document concerning $200 deposited there to abide the decision of the race. If such a deposit had been made the books would show it.

Arthur Rountree was the third witness sworn and stated that he was appointed to referee the race in question, shortly after the race was made. He had no knowledge of any agreement existing between Knox and Bradd relating to any money. The race, he said, was not run under the auspices of the Turf Club although the gate receipts went to the credit of that organization. Witness on taking in the situation after the race, declared all bets off. He had no money on the race either for himself or anybody else. He declared all bets off on being asked for a decision by the starter, a man named Gill. As to the judges, witness only recognized them as men who held the tape line.

J. M. Brooks was next sworn. He admitted being present at the race, in which however he was not financially interested. He acted as stakeholder. The race he said was arranged by Messrs. Knox and Bradd, but he drew up the agreement in writing. It concerned a $100 sidebet. The agreement he gave to Harry Rush, teller in the Ontario Bank, and deposited it to the credit of Mr. Rountree, to remain there for the decision of the referee. Witness said he had no idea as to what would be the latter's verdict, and moreover did not at that time know whether Rountree would officiate as such. Beyond the fact that he was stake-holder, he was not associated with the race. When on the grounds, he, witness, found an Orillia man in the stand, preparing to take the money. He put him out and took that place himself in order that he might protect the people. In conclusion witness denied the statements made about himself by Mr. Graham.

Addressing His Honour before leaving, the witness said that he was there to protect the public. Belland had been running 100 yards all summer in 9 4-5, 10, and 10 1-4 seconds, and when he had been beaten by 7 yards in 11 seconds he knew the race was not a square one.

The case was then adjourned for dinner until 2 o'clock.

Shortly before four o'clock the case was concluded, Knox, the plaintiff, having to pay the costs.

AN INVENTOR IN THE COURTS.

Mr. G. L. Gowland Seeking to Obtain His Rights.

The Case one in Which Local men are Interested His Honour Advised Engaging Counsel.

An interesting local legal case is being tried before Judge Winchester in Toronto, the case being that of Mr. George L. Gowland, an inventor, who is seeking to conduct a dispute over a patent which he is seeking to protect. The Toronto News says of it:

The case is in connection with an electric meter invented by Mr. Gowland, the patent of which is said to be very valuable. He interested Jas. H. McClellan, Arthur J. McClellan, F. V. and Robert E. Clisdill, in his production, and they secured patents in a dozen foreign countries, in which varying interests were held by the parties. Mr. Gowland held about a third interest. A dispute arose between the parties, and it was agreed that the Toronto General Trusts Co. should hold the patents and act as trustees. The Portugal patent is said to be expiring, and the company to-day asked the inventor to turn over the original patent in order that the provisions of the Portuguese law as to renewal of patents may be met.

When Mr. Gowland was heard he declared the action of the Toronto parties had prevented the consummation of a big deal in Montreal. The Gowland, Limited, which had been formed to handle the Canadian patent, he said, was a mythical company, without any stock or a dollar in the treasury. He paid all the debts himself. The foreign patents were simply franchises granted him by other countries. None of them would expire for five years.

His honour wanted to see the original patent, but Mr. Gowland said he could not produce it for a day at least, although it was somewhere in Toronto stowed away safely. He was willing to let the Trusts Company have it if they would assume all a vendor's liability, and be responsible to him. This, His Honour observed, no company in the world would consent to do.

"Their idea of a patent is selling it, and getting money for it," asserted Mr. Gowland, referring to the other side. "There are other things vital to me as an inventor. The Trusts Company are not responsible for preventing an infringement of patents, but I am. The other parties have a majority of shares in the patents and might sell them for $500."

His Honour pointed out that he had signed the agreement to turn over the patents to the Trust Company.

"I never read that document," said Mr. Gowland.

"I read it ot you," hotly declared Mr. E. T. Malone, K.C., the Trust Company's solicitor. 'And you took it away to show to your lawyer."

"I never had a lawyer in my life," was the reply.

"You have had the document three months and never read it."

The court then intimated that Mr. Gowland had so much at stake he should certainly employ counsel.

Prices OF THREE WEEKS AGO Split to Splinters

CAUSE OF SHUT DOWN IS NOT YET KNOWN.

Still Mystery in the Closing of Cordova Gold Mine.

Contrary to expectation, the arrival of the English mail this week did not furnish the hoped for information in regard to the closing of the Cordova Gold Mines, and the Havelock Standard says:—

"No reason is yet forthcoming for the closing of the Cordova Mines, as the result of a cable message from the head office of the Company, at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. Whether the mines are to be closed permanently or temporarily, and if the latter, for how long, no one at the mines knows, and nothing definite will be known until after the arrival of English mail this week."

FRONTIER TOWNS TAKING ACTION.

Different Municipalities Have Appointed Their Representatives to Interview C. P. R.

The Cobourg Post says that the movement to secure C. P. R. connection with the frontier towns, is progressing and it is probable that this week an appointment will be made for a conference with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy at an early date. The different municipalities have displayed considerable activity in the matter, and have appointed representatives to join the deputation to visit Montreal. Oshawa has selected Mayor Fowke and Councillor Edmonson; Bowmanville will send Mayor James and two others, Port Hope will be represented by Mayor White, Councillors Giddy and Purser, and Messrs. H. B. Barrett, J. F. Clarke, and R. R. Mulholland. Reeve J. E. Diamond, Town Clerk E. C. West, and Councillors Owen and Cassan have been appointed by Campbellford to represent the village; Mayor Floyd and Councillor D. E. Ewing will represent Cobourg. Several other places have yet to be heard from, and as all the delegates are known, Mayor Floyd will ask Sir Thomas Shaughnessy to set a date on which he will be able to receive the deputation.

A PRETTY WEDDING IN CAVENDISH.

Miss Blanch Westlake Becomes Bride of Mr. Wm. Haines.

A very pretty home wedding was that celebrated at the residence of Mr. John Westlake, Cavendish, on Wednesday, when his daughter, Miss Blanche Fanny Westlake, was united in marriage to Mr. William Haines of Cavendish, son of Mr. Stephen Haines. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. L. Armitage, in the presence of a large number of the friends of the happy couple, the home being tastefully decorated for the occasion. The bride was very prettily attired in white organdie, trimmed with silk ribbon and Valenciennes lace, and wore the customary bridal veil and orange blossoms, carrying a beautiful bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid, who was Miss Edith Westlake, sister of the bride, looked very pretty in a dress of white organdie trimmed with pink ribbon, and carried pink carnations. Mr. Fred L. Roy of Peterborough, supported the groom.

After the ceremony an enjoyable wedding breakfast was served to the numerous guests. The bride was the recipient of a large number of very handsome and costly presents, among which was a beautiful carving set from the members of the Lake Kechecum Hunting Club, to whom the bride and her parents had shown many favours in their annual hunting trips. The young couple will reside in Midland.

WHY HE LEFT HER.

Wife of Central Prison Inmate Has Another Husband.

Kingston, Nov. 19.—The disconsolate wife of Burton Hyland, arrested the day after his marriage for cattle stealing and sent to Central Prison for 18 months, is accused of being a bigamist. David Wilson, Wolfe Island, says he married her on July 25, 1901, but left her three days after because she refused to leave her parents to reside at his home. Rev. Isaac Whetley, a Methodist minister, issues a statement that he married the couple.

THE FEAR OF HUMBUG

Prevents Many People From Trying a Good Medicine.

Stomach troubles are so common and in most cases so obstinate to cure that people are apt to look with suspicion on any remedy claiming to be a radical, permanent cure for dyspepsia and indigestion. Many such pride themselves on their acuteness in never being humbugged, especially in medicines.

This fear of being humbugged can be carried too far, so far, in fact, that many people suffer for years with weak digestion rather than risk a little time and money in faithfully testing the claims made of a preparation so reliable and universally used as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Now Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are vastly different in one important respect from ordinary proprietary medicines for the reason that they are not a secret patent medicine, no secret is made of their ingredients, but analysis shows them to contain the natural digestive ferments, pure aseptic pepsin, the digestive acids, Golden Seal, bismuth, hydrastis and nux. They are not cathartic, neither do they act powerfully on any organ but they, cure indigestion on the common sense plan of digesting the food eaten thoroughly before it has time to ferment, sour and cause the mischief. This is the only secret of their success.

Cathartic pills never have and never can cure indigestion and stomach troubles, because they act entirely on the bowels, whereas the whole trouble is really in the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets taken after meals, digest the food. That is all there is to it. Food not digested or half digested is poison, as it creates gas, acidity, headaches, palpitation of the heart, loss of flesh, and appetite, and many other troubles, which are often called by some other name.

They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package.

THE STATE BANQUET

Kingly Speeches Made by British and Italian Monarchs.

A SCENE OF MAGNIFICENCE.

Elaborate State Function in St. George's Hall, a Magnificent Norman Gallery of Windsor Castle — King Edward's Heartfelt Expression of Britain's Policy of Peace and Enlightenment.

London, Nov. 19.—St. George's Hall, magnificent Norman gallery of Windsor Castle, in which many foreign sovereigns have been entertained, was the scene last night of a state banquet, the first elaborate function marking the royal welcome of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena of Italy. The function was in every way as brilliant as any witnessed in the famous hall on past great occasions. There were 160 guests, including the royal hosts and their guests, prominent statesmen from Great Britain and Italy, ambassadors from three continents and representatives of the army and navy.

The guests were seated at a long table on which the famous service of gold plate and the masses of flowers formed a brilliant avenue of color and of sparkling light reflected from an incomparable display of jewels. The guests were first received in the grand reception room by King Edward and Queen Alexandra and King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena. At 8.45 the guests entered the banquet hall. King Edward with Queen Helena leading and King Victor Emmanuel with Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales with the Princess Victoria, the Duke of Connaught with the Duchess of Argyle, Ambassador Choate with the Duchess of Connaught, following in the order named.

Others of great political importance were the Russian Ambassador, Count Benckendorff, Prince Alexander of Battenburg, the French Ambassador, M. Cambon; Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, Prince Alexander of Teck, the Spanish Ambassador, the Duc de Mandas, the Turkish Ambassador, Stefanaki Musurus Bey, the German Ambassador, Count Wolff Metternich, Lord Londonderry, Lord Melbourne, Lord Lansdowne, Lord Rosebery, Lord Milner, W. St. John Brodrick, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Arnold Forster and Joseph Chamberlain. The British Premier, A. J. Balfour, was absent on account of indisposition.

King's Speech.

In proposing a toast to their Italian Majesties, King Edward said:

"Sire, it has given Queen Alexandra and myself great pleasure to receive you here as our guests in this old, historic castle. History repeats itself. I remember as if it were but yesterday that your illustrious grandfather, 48 years ago, came here as the guest of my beloved mother and lamented father. At that time we were at war and our armies fought together. Thank God, we now are at peace and the aim of our countries is to maintain and to work together in the path of progress and enlightenment. I have not forgotten the kind and cordial reception given me some months ago in Rome on the part of your Majesties and the Italian people, and I feel sure that to-morrow when you pass through the streets of London you will meet with a reception most gratifying to yourselves and one which will give expression to the hearty feeling of friendship which my people evince towards you and your country. Let me now drink to the health of your Majesties. Again thanking you for staying with us, I wish your Majesties, your family and your country all prosperity and happiness."

Italy's King Replies.

King Victor Emmanuel replied in English, saying:

"The memories to which your Majesty refers live in my heart and in the hearts of all Italians since the historic and eventful period which led Italy to unity and which tendered to England, always greater and more powerful, the feelings of sympathy and friendship which now unite the two peoples. For my people these feelings have continued to increase and they constitute a tradition for my Government. They are important factors in Italian policy, which, like the policy of your Majesty's Government, is one of peace and civilization. I thank your Majesty for your cordial welcome of me and my Queen in this historic castle, where everything breathes of the glory of your ancestors and brings before me the image of the great and regretted Victoria. I drink the health of your Majesty, your Queen and the Royal Family."

At the conclusion of the banquet the royal personages and their guests adjourned to the state drawing-room, where a Viennese orchestra played selections.

Yesterday morning King Victor Emmanuel and King Edward shot pheasants in the great park at Windsor, while Queen Helena and Queen Alexandra visited Queen Victoria's tomb at Frogmore, on which Queen Helena deposited a wreath.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—About 250 head of butchers' cattle, 50 calves and 700 sheep and lambs were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. Trade was dull, but prices of cattle have an upward look. A good heifer was sold at 4¼c per pound, none of the other sales being at over 4c, but the quality was only middling. Common cattle sold at from 2¼c to over 3¼c per pound. About 40 lean cows, held over from yesterday's market, were offered again to-day, but with poor prospects of selling, as the canners have all they want at present. Some of the grass-fed calves were better than usual, and sold up to $16, or at the rate of 4c per pound. Ordinary calves sold at from 2¼c to 3½c per pound. Sheep sell at from 2¾c to 3¼c, and lambs at from 4c to a little over 4¼c per pound. Fat hogs have an upward tendency, good lots selling at from 5¼c to 5¾c per pound.

Japs Are More Bellicose.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 20.—A despatch from Port Arthur notes a return of the bellicose tone of the Japanese press, says Japan's agents appear to have met with some success in China, reiterates the report that the Chinese Viceroys and Governors have been instructed to collect funds and troops with all haste, because of the possibility of a rupture of diplomatic relations with Russia, and adds that some of the Viceroys have been ordered to take precautionary measures for the protection of the coast, "so as to avoid the mistakes of past years."

41st. Officers Resign.

Brockville, Nov. 20.—Lieut.-Colonel Hodgins, D.O.C., has completed his inspection of the Forty-first Regiment. It has proven, he says, an unique experience for him. The regiment was found in a state of extreme disorganization, and he severely reprimanded the officers and intimated that their resignations were in order. The result is that every officer has sent in his resignation except Lieut.-Col. Sparham, whose term expires this year. The D.O.C. will endeavor to reorganize the regiment.

A Very Good Rule.

It is well known that the majority of human ills arise from constipation of the bowels and on this account many people make it a rule to see that the bowels move once every day. If you are subject to constipation you can be cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. These Pills not only make the bowels active, but by their action on the liver ensure a regular flow of bile, nature's own cathartic and so remove the cause of serious disease.

Office of DR. McKERCHER, Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist. Calls day or night promptly attended to. Horse and Cattle medicine always in stock.

There is an old saying about the folly of locking the stable after the horse is stolen, and from this may be taken a lesson in reference to the treatment of croup and colds.

Children Have Croup,

Bronchitis, Coughs and Colds, and if there is at hand such a remedy as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to be given at the first indication of trouble, you can be positively sure of preventing serious results.

Especially people who are living at a distance from doctors and drug stores are running a terrible risk when they do not keep at hand effective treatment for the ills which are sure to attack some members of the family during cold seasons.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is, we believe, the most satisfactory home treatment for ailments of this nature which can possibly be obtained.

Though wonderfully thorough and far-reaching in its effects on the whole system, it is pleasant to the taste, not injurious in any way, and equally effective for the use of old and young.

Some people who are otherwise very particular do not seem to realize the importance of using only the best treatment for coughs and colds, but accept whatever the dealer sees fit to give them. Be sure you get Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and the results will be eminently satisfactory.

Mr. J. R. Robinson, 37 Bishop Street, Toronto, says: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine absolutely cured two of my children of croup. Both my wife and myself have utmost confidence in it. This remedy is no stranger in our home, having frequently been used before with the greatest success."

Mr. F. W. Bond, 20 Macdonald Street, Barrie, Ont., says: "Having tried your medicine, my faith is very high in its powers of curing cough and croup. My little girl has been subject to the croup for a long time, and I found nothing to cure it until I gave Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. I cannot speak too highly of it."

Mr. W. Stafford, 88 Brussels Street, St. John, N.B., states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for coughs and colds, and do not think there is a better remedy known than this. It seems to go directly to the diseased parts and brings relief at once. I have such faith in this remedy and Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, that we always keep both these preparations in the house."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

Is sold by all dealers at the advertised price, 25 cents a bottle; family size, three times as much, 60 cents. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author, are on every bottle of his remedies.

MARRYING A TITLE

By Frank Leslie Bowen

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Gerald Elkins was seriously disturbed over his mother's cold blooded purpose to secure a titled son-in-law. He loved his sparkling, vivacious, warm hearted sister, and his soul was in revolt at the idea of forcing her to make a loveless marriage.

He was still pondering over the question in the lobby of the Breslau hotel when inspiration came to him in the person of Tom Carrington, a former college chum.

After the first greetings Gerald dragged his friend into a quiet corner and immediately began to unfold his brilliant scheme.

"Tom, old man, you are still single and heart free, aren't you?"

The other nodded in mild surprise.

"Good! I didn't know but that you had met your fate during the three years you've spent in England. Do you know, the sight of you put a queer idea into my head. You remember my little sister, Elnore? You saw her once about six years ago. She was only a little girl of fifteen then, but I remember you said you thought her deucedly pretty."

The other's brown eyes kindled at the recollection.

"Well, of course she is a young lady now and, if I do say it, one of the loveliest girls that you'll meet in many a day's travel. Most unfortunately, mother has determined to marry Elnore off to some duffer with a title, and she's badgering the life out of the poor girl about it. So far Elnore has turned down all the lords, counts, et cetera, for, though she says she is willing to marry one provided she loves him, she draws the line at the half baked specimens of nobility that the mater has sprung on her. I want you to come to the rescue, Tom. Go in and win the little sister yourself and save her from the titled fortune hunters. You'll fall in love with her, I'll wager my head. My plan is to introduce you to mother and Elnore as an English nobleman whom I met a couple of years ago in England. I remember you once told me your father was an Englishman and distantly related to the Earl of Weldon. That's what made me think of the plan. Of course, having only seen you once for a few minutes years ago, Elnore won't remember you. Join our party for the next two months while we are doing Germany and Austria. What do you think of it?"

"For heaven's sake, Elkins, are you serious?" the other gasped.

"Never more so in my life."

"But your sister! You are not considering whether she will like me or not. Then think of the position it would put me in. She would despise me when she discovered what a trick I had played on her."

"Oh, she'll like you all right, and you can tell her the truth when you propose. You need not care what the others think so long as dad and I are satisfied, and I can vouch for the governor's views. At any rate, as long as you are in the party mother won't be inflicting any more of these fossilized and impecunious nobles on the poor girl."

There was a peculiar twinkle in Carrington's eyes, and he gazed meditatively at the opposite wall a full minute before answering.

"I'll do it," he said briefly as he swung around. "You may introduce me as Lord Carnleigh, the courtesy title of the heir apparent of the Earl of Weldon."

Tom Carrington was tall and broad shouldered, with polished manners of a man of the world. Mrs. Elkins was in a flutter of ecstasy that evening as her son presented to her "my Lord Carnleigh, heir apparent of the Earl of Weldon, Castle Weldon, Sussex, England, a gentleman whom I met two years ago in England," the last statement, at least, being a literal truth.

Elnore's face bore a look of doubting surprise as her eyes first rested on the clear cut features of "my lord," and the latter's quick glance caught it. It worried him a bit, but he soon forgot it in blissful enjoyment of her society.

"By George!" he exclaimed as he paced up and down his own room later in the evening. "Gerald was not a bit too partial in his praise of her. She's the handsomest, brightest, most adorable little girl I've ever met. I'm not sorry I entered into his plot now. I'll carry it through and win her if I can."

Carrington's courtship of Elnore during the next few weeks was of the most industrious and persistent character. Gerald smiled contentedly as he watched the couple so absorbed in themselves, so oblivious to externals. Mamma Elkins, too, was complacent.

True, "Lord Carnleigh" found no easy victim to his noble charms.

"She's a girl of the most distractingly variable moods," he declared in half despair one day to Gerald. "I believe she likes me. At times I almost think I've won her, she is so sweet and gracious to me, and then just as I am getting my courage up to the proposal pitch she'll suddenly turn cool as an iceberg."

Taking consolation from Gerald's wise commonplace, "That's a woman's way, my lord," he kept up the siege most valiantly. Finally one day his eager eye saw a signal of distress in her mantling checks and drooping eyes. Then he boldly demanded a capitulation.

When she whispered, "I love you, Tom," he took her in his arms and shamefacedly acknowledged the deceit he had practiced upon her and Mrs. Elkins.

Mischievous dimples danced about the corners of her sweet mouth as she raised her head from his shoulder.

"Tom Carrington," she cried gleefully and to his great consternation, "I knew who you were the moment I saw you there in Breslau! A schoolgirl of fifteen never forgets a young man she meets, particularly if he is a—a—well rather good looking fellow. I knew you were not 'Lord Carnleigh.' I don't believe I should have learned to like you so well if you had been. I have grown prejudiced against titles since I have been in Europe. Of course, I forgive you, you bad, deceitful fellow but I can't say what mamma will do."

"Mamma" did just what Tom anticipated when he told her of his love for her daughter and bravely confessed that he had been guilty of an atrocious hoax in passing as Lord Carnleigh. Apologies availed him naught. Even when Gerald broke in and attempted to assume responsibility for the whole affair and to explain that Carrington was rich and really connected with a noble English family, Mrs. Elkins' wrath was not abated one jot. In a storm of passion she ordered the young man to leave her apartments and never again to intrude his presence on her or her daughter.

There was a conference that evening between Gerald and Tom at another Berlin hotel, with the result that the next morning, long before the hour of Mrs. Elkins' awakening, Elnore stole out of her room. She was dressed for traveling. Gerald and Carrington met her in the lobby, and all three entered a waiting cab.

Two hours later Mrs. Elkins' French maid brought a large square envelope to her bedside. On both envelope and paper was the Weldon crest. Her astonished eyes read the following lines:

My Dear Madam—I humbly beseech your pardon for defying your commands, but I have obeyed the dictates of my heart, and this morning at 6:30 o'clock, in the presence of your son and my private secretary, Mr. Holcomb, at the Fourth Lutheran church, your daughter and I were married.

We start at once on our wedding trip, and after a few weeks in Italy and France we shall proceed directly to Castle Weldon, England, my country seat.

The countess sends her love and a most earnest plea for forgiveness, in which I heartily join. She also was deceived, basely deceived, and did not learn the truth until she saw my signature on the marriage register. You see, I was not Lord Carnleigh, but the Earl of Weldon, my father, who died more than a year ago, having unexpectedly succeeded to the title only a few weeks before his death.

I need not add, I am sure, how very great pleasure we take in extending an invitation to you, your husband and to my dear friend, Gerald, to pay us a long visit at Castle Weldon after June 1. With deepest regards. WELDON.

IN OLD AGE the question of health becomes mainly a question of nutrition. If the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are kept in a healthful condition there will be a well-nourished body, and little liability to disorders of the liver, bowels or such other disorders as may result from innutrition and lack of exercise.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and also diseases of other organs which are caused by the diseased condition of the stomach. By enabling the perfect nutrition of the body it increases the vital power and promotes a vigorous old age.

"I was a sufferer from chronic diarrhea for five years," writes Mrs. Mary A. Aaron, of Rolla, Phelps Co., Mo. "I tried different remedies, which would give me relief for a short time only. My trouble would return as bad as ever. I consulted you in July, 1900, and by your advice commenced using Dr. Pierce's remedies. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' three vials of the 'Pellets,' and some of the 'Extract of Smart-Weed,' as you advised. I have not had any return of my trouble since using your medicines. Am now seventy-one years old and I never had anything to relieve me so quick. I think Dr. Pierce's medicines the greatest on earth. Should I ever have any return of my trouble shall use your medicine. My thanks to you for your advice and thanks to Almighty God for restoring me to health through your hands."

TWO BOXES OF

MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Cured Mrs. Edmond Brown, Inwood, Ont., when she had almost given up hope of ever getting well again.

She writes: "I was so run down that I was not able to do my work, was short of breath, had a sour stomach every night and could scarcely eat. My heart palpitated, I had faint and dizzy spells and felt weak and nervous all the time. My husband got me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills but I told him it was no use, that I had given up hope of ever being cured. He however persuaded me to take them and before I had used half the box I began to feel better. Two boxes made a new woman of me and I have been well and have been able to do my work ever since."

Disraeli's Loves.

In his young days Disraeli fell under the spell of the "gorgeous Lady Blessington," to whom he wrote letters breathing something more than friendship. For example, in 1834:

I was so sorry to leave London without being a moment alone with you; but, although I came to the opera the last night on purpose, fate was against us. I did not reach this place until Sunday, very ill indeed from the pangs of parting. Indeed I feel as desolate as a ghost, and I do not think that I ever shall be able to settle to anything again. It is a great shame, when people are happy together, that they should be ever separated, but it seems the great object of all human legislation that people should never be happy together.

"Dyspepsia," he writes a few months later, "always makes me wish for a civil war. In the meantime I amuse myself by county politics." Four years afterward "dearest Lady Blessington" had become "my dear lady," but the friendship lasted after his marriage "with my dear Mary Anne, who I am sure will be delighted by finding herself under a roof that has proved to me at all times so hospitable and devoted."—Meynell's Biography of Disraeli.

She Did Not Drop.

"Delia!"

"Yes, ma'am."

"I am very tired, and I am going to lie down for an hour."

"Yes, ma'am."

"If I should happen to drop off call me at 5 o'clock."

"Yes, ma'am."

So my lady lies down, folds her hands, closes her eyes and is soon in the land of dreams. She is awakened by the clock striking 6 and calls indignantly:

"Delia!"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Why didn't you call me at 5 o'clock as I ordered?"

"Shure, ma'am, ye tould me to call ye if ye dropped off. I looked in on ye at 5, and ye hadn't dropped off at all. Ye was lyin' in the bed in the same place sound asleep."

Saved by a Ring.

Lady Catherine Wyndham, daughter of the Duke of Somerset, wife of Mr. William Wyndham and mother of the first Earl of Egremont, died, as was supposed, at Orchard Wyndhams, the family seat in Somersetshire, and was buried in a vault beneath the Church of St. Decuman's, near Watchet. The sexton went down into the vault at night, opened the coffin and endeavored to force a ring off her finger. Lady Catherine awoke from her trance, got up and lighted herself home with a lantern which the sexton had left behind in the vault when he fled in terror. A few months afterward she presented her husband with twins, one of whom became Sir Charles Wyndham and Earl of Egremont.

SEYMOUR GOURLAY, M.P.

The Fiery Fighter From Nova Scotia Closed the Recent Session With Final Jab at His Ancient Enemy.

Seymour Gourlay, M.P., was in at the death. The fiery fighter from Nova Scotia made the last speech of the Parliamentary session, and was able to have a final jab at his ancient enemy, Uncle Sam. Gourlay of Colchester, is a unique figure in the politics of Canada. He is first a Canadian, and then a Britisher, but owing to the conduct of Lord Alverstone, his British proclivities have suffered diminution. Gourlay, it will be remembered, was the gentleman who told the House that he was ready to take his wife and family into the trenches to fight the Yankees. Gourlay it was who valiantly protested against our being handed over to the United States in sections. Gourlay has now but one object in life, and that is to further the cause of Canadian independence. He will preach the new evangel at all times and will hold up before his auditors the horrible prospect of annexation if we do not insist on doing it ourselves.

Gourlay, however, has other claims to greatness. He is certainly the most remarkably dressed man in the House of Commons. This summer it was his habit to appear in frock coat, white flannel trousers and yachting cap. That was a combination fit to scare any tailor into conniption fits. But Gourlay is not the kind of man to worry about sartorial details. He desires to be clothed, and anything that clothes him will do sufficiently well. Some day, no doubt, that frock coat will come up the walk of Parliament enclosing the manly torso of the statesman from Colchester, while bicycle knickerbockers will indue his legs. Nobody, it may be remarked, will be astonished any more than anybody would wonder at anything Gourlay might say. As for his sartorial eccentricities, Hon. George E. Foster was almost as bad in his way. It was the custom of the then Minister of Finance to turn up at the House of Commons with white trousers and black morning coat, with black derby hat. This was a combination that impelled a jealous Liberal to remark that the Minister of Finance was so industrious that he forgot to dress as his salary permitted him to do.—Toronto News.

Turkish Coffee.

The Turkish way of making coffee produces a very different result from that to which we are accustomed. A small conical saucepan, holding about two tablespoonfuls of water, is used. The fresh roasted berry is pounded, not ground, and about a dessertspoonful is put into the minute boiler, which is then nearly filled with water and thrust among the embers. A few seconds suffice to bring it to a boil, and the decoction, grounds and all, is poured out into a small cup, which fits into a brass socket like the cup of an acorn.

The Turks seem to drink this decoction boiling hot, grounds and all. They take it plain. Sugar and cream would no doubt be thought to spoil it.

In every but in Turkey these diminutive coffee boilers may be seen suspended by their long handles from the walls. The berry pounders are also at hand, and a cup of coffee takes but a few moments to produce.

Effect of Civilization.

The serious problem of the civilization of the red man sometimes develops an amusing side. Bobtail Coyote was sent to a government school from his reservation in the west clad in buckskin and speaking only his mother tongue.

He remained during the stipulated time, gradually becoming a white man to all intents and purposes. But no greater transformation was manifested when he returned to his people than that of his name, which had evolved from the savage Bobtail Coyote to that which appeared on his neatly engraved visiting card, Robert T. Wolf.

The following despatch has been received by Messrs McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street:

New York, Nov. 21.—Interest at opening centred on steel stocks, but general tone showed better developments. These had some good effect. New York street crowd was talking about putting out shoots again on advice, but an influential section of the traders was operating on long side. Strength in steel was directly due to dissolution of bond underwriting syndicate, but reduction in freight rates made by the railroads also helped. Keene & Morgan, brokers, appeared to be helping advance. American stocks in London were active and featureless with exception of S. P., Strong, and steel issues which made important advance. Copper stocks were inclined to sell off. Paris exchange on London showed some strength. Foreign houses expected to buy on balance, especially U.S.S. common and the preferred.

"THREE STARS" IN FAVOUR OF AMALGAMATION.

A Letter, on the Question of the Moment to Ashburnhamites.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In compliance with your kind invitation for letters to the Examiner in regard to the union of Ashburnham with the town, permit one who has resided and paid taxes in both municipalities to make a few remarks. The bogey of high taxation has been used to frighten the villagers. I doubt if taxes are any higher in the town than in the village. In comparison with public services rendered and accommodations provided, they are certainly lower in the town than in the village. But I believe it is not the question of taxes that accounts for the large-sized opposition to union that appears to prevail in the village. It is an old story. We all remember when the vote was taken on this question some years ago. Both municipalities voted in favour of the union and gave large majorities, Ashburnham especially. Through the culpable humbugging of Peterborough town council of that day, no definite action was taken, some councillors, who were opposed to union, claiming that "they had no basis to work upon!" The people of Ashburnham have never forgotten that little episode, and, I am afraid, have never forgiven it. But the villagers should remember that that council did not represent Peterborough citizens, the latter having voted very strongly in favour of union, which which would long ago have been an accomplished fact if the wishes of the people had been consulted. We have a mayor and council now who are public spirited, and above venting a little personal spite on any section of the town, or the proposed fifth ward. If the villagers look at this matter in the right light, free from prejudice, and with an eye to their own interests, they will vote in favour of union on the 26th inst. Whatever advantage it might be to the town to be connected with the village municipally, there is no question whatever that it would be a good thing for Ashburnham, and the residents of that burg should remember the old saw: "Don't cut off your nose to spite your face."

Yours truly,
THREE STARS

THE EXAMINER'S SPORTING NEWS.

RUGBY.

The Victorias of Toronto are getting ready for a good, stiff game with the Peterboroughs to-morrow. To-day's Globe says: "The Victorias will only put in light work at practice to-night, as the team is in the best possible shape for to-morrow's match against the fast Peterborough outfit, and feel fully confident of winning the game. The Vics were not able to secure grounds that are fenced in, so the club decided to play at Jesse Ketchum Park. The way the team intend defraying expenses is by selling badges at the gate to the crowd as they go in to see the match. The team that will represent the Victorias will be the same as that which played against the Wellesleys last Saturday, except that Yeaman will be played at quarter in place of on the wing line, and Henderson will replace him on the line." The local team, however, are working hard, and if the Victorias win, they will have no easy thing; in fact there is a pretty shrewd guess going the rounds that the visitors will come home victorious. Hal. Burnham will be on the line-up, and all know what that means.

There will be a good crowd accompanying the team from here, in the anticipation of seeing the best game of the season.

It should be remembered that the excursion tickets are good only going on the 7.12 train, although the excursionists may return on any regular train until Monday.

The following will represent the Peterboroughs in their game with the Victorias in Toronto to-morrow: Ford, Burnham, Lee, Capt. Crowley, Graham, Hurtubuise, Dillon, Craig, Meagher, Noble, Rickey, Cameron, Paschal and Deannard.

The above players are requested to be at a chalk talk on the signals from 7.30 to 8.00 this evening in the Y.M.C.A. The team leaves on the 7.10, C. P. R. and a large crowd will accompany them.

The fact that kicking had much to do do with the results in the West Point and Yale-Princeton games, says the Buffalo Express, has started the football sharps once more discussing the advisability of decreasing the number of points to be earned by a field goal or successful place kick. An eastern writer finds that football men at all the leading western universities are of the opinion that the rules should be changed so as to all three points, and not five, for a place or drop kick. They argue that a man should not be allowed to make as many points from these plays as an entire eleven working in unison.—Citizen.

The Rough Riders have withdrawn their protest against the game of last Saturday, and, as a consequence the All Saints and Riders now stand tied for the city championship. If the weather is favourable the game to decide the championship will, in all probability be played on Saturday, November 28th. Both these teams have played good football this season and from them some likely recruits will come for the senior team next year. Their relative positions now are not satisfactory to either team and it is hoped that the weather will permit the deciding game to be played.

HOCKEY.

Members of St. Peter's T. A. S. are reminded of the meeting this evening to organize the hockey team and discuss the prospects for the coming season. A large attendance is looked for.

The Lindsay Post, in sizing up the Hockey situation in that burg says: Secretary Menzies and Manager Parkin are working quietly, but at the same time are securing material for the senior team. We regret to say that Mr. Ketchum has decided to drop out of hockey this year. His services will be greatly missed, as we understand he is a first-class puck chaser, having figured on the lineup of the celebrated Aberdeens of Ottawa. The locals will be without the services of Callaghan, who has seen fit to cast in his lot with Midland, nevertheless we have some excellent material in our midst. Rifey of Midland, and Gross are now residing in town and, as a result, Lindsay should not suffer for goal-tenders. In Sylvester, Taylor and Parkin, the seniors will have a fast forward line. Cameron will likely figure on the defence and as a close checker and puck-lifter will be a powerful acquisition to the defence. The management have a couple of other men in view who, after some consistent practising will be stars on the defence line-up. Our hockey enthusiasts are waiting anxiously for cold weather. It's very likely the senior line-up will be strong enough to rank in the district along with Peterborough, Port Hope, Belleville and Cobourg.

The first hockey meeting of the season will be held to-night, when the T. A. S. Hockey Club will hold its annual meeting, to elect officers and arrange for the coming hockey season. The meeting will be called at eight o'clock, and all interested are especially asked to attend.

The letter published in yesterday's issue of this paper, written to Mr. E. S. Clarry, secretary of the Trent Valley Hockey League by the secretary of the Colborne Club is an indication of the fact that there will, in all probability, be a large number of teams entering this league this year, which will ensure even a more successful season than that of 1902-03.

SPRINTING.

The Examiner has received the following letter from Mr. D. Belland, replying to the challenge contained in a recent issue, signed by Mr. Knox, of Orillia:

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In response to the challenge of Mr. Knox in which he offers to run me 100 yards, I would like to say that I accept the challenge, the race to be run about the 8th of May, 1904, and in Smith's Falls or Toronto, for $1,000 a side, the money to be deposited at least two weeks before the date of the race. Mr. Knox very magnanimously offers me one yard of a handicap, but while I appreciate his considerate offer, I will not accept the yard, but will run him from the scratch, and if defeated will retire from the sprinting arena.

Yours truly,
D. BELLAND.

BASKET-BALL.

The scheduled games in the Y. M. C. A. League to-morrow night are between the Arrows and Harriers at 8 o'clock and the Alerts and Athletics, White, at 9 o'clock. Some change, however, may have to be made in this arrangement, as some of the players on these teams will probably be out of town. These games are becoming increasingly interesting, and the attendance in growing, about 100 being present last Saturday night.

The standing of the teams in the league is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Athletics, White	2	0
Arrows	2	0
Alerts	1	1
Harriers	1	0
Brownies	0	2
Athletics, Blue	0	2

DIPHTHERIA A SOURCE OF GRAVE DANGER.

Opening of Schools has increased at a Surprising Rate.

The Provincial Board of Health opened its quarterly meeting at Dr. P. H. Bryce's office on Wednesday afternoon. The principal business before the Board was the secretary's report, which dealt for the most part with the outbreak of diphtheria in Ontario. Dr. Bryce reported that the general health of the Province is good, but that since the opening of the schools the returns with regard to diphtheria have been increasing in a surprising and alarming manner. Returns from October 1 to date show that there have been 464 cases of diphtheria and 54 deaths in 52 municipalities of the Province. The general public has become alarmed in centres whre it is most rife, with the result that preventive measures have been taken, with good results. Of the four chief cities of the Province, London is the most backward in dealing with contagious disease. Up to the present time it has had no isolation hospital, but owing to the fact that 94 cases have been reported there within the past few weeks the Board has become alarmed and tents for the treatment of contagious disease have been placed on the general hospital grounds. Hamilton has now special quarters for the treatment of contagious diseases. Ottawa has established a hospital and a system whereby every case is taken charge of, with what Dr. Bryce described as marvelous results, both in prevention and in a diminished death rate. In Toronto sixty per cent. of the cases are treated in the Isolation Hospital, and about forty per cent. at home. In the smaller places the obstacles to the prevention of diphtheria and other contagious diseases are ignorance and the reluctance of attending physicians to report cases. The most flagrant instance mentioned by Dr. Bryce is at Chesley, where the failure of the attending physician to report diphtheria in a family engaged in the distribution of milk resulted in 23 cases in 13 days. Diphtheria and scarlet fever are most easily communicated during the school term, because of the mingling of large bodies of children together, some of whom may be infected.

With regard to scarlet fever, which was epidemic in certain sections a few months ago, conditions are greatly improved. Smallpox is also greatly decreased, although the coming of winter has brought forth a serious outbreak near Tweed.

Apropos of this the public would be interested in knowing what is being done in Peterborough in the way of providing treatment and isolation for contagious diseases. Isolation is the essence of prevention and it is very important that provision, therefor, should be made. The town authorities are negotiating with the authorities of the two hospitals as to the admission of patients with contagious diseases and also negotiating for the purchase of a property as a site for an isolation hospital. The general hospitals can only accommodate a limited number of patients, and in case of an outbreak an isolation tent will have to be depended upon. It is to be hoped that no epidemic will come, but it is the part of wisdom, not to speak of the human aspect of the matter, to be fully prepared to cope with it if it should unhappily arrive. In contagious diseases it is beginnings that can and should be dealt with promptly. Thus, as experience has shown, a great deal of trouble, suffering and even fatal results may be avoided.

SEND MATTER IN EARLY.

The Examiner has a suggestion to make which, it hopes, those interested will act upon. The time of year has come when darkness arrives early, and, in an effort to facilitate the work of the Examiner's staff of news boys in getting subscribers' papers to their doors if possible before dark, and thus lessening the danger of papers going astray, The Examiner asks that all persons supplying items of news for these columns, send paragraphs in before noon, otherwise the publication of such matter cannot be promised the same day. This note is addressed particularly to clergymen who supply notices of church services and meetings, and the Examiner feels that they will sympathize with it in the effort to assist the dozens of news boys in its employ to get their work accomplished before dark, and place the papers in subscribers' hands in good time. The idea is not correct that all that is necessary to do to have an article appear in the paper is to thrust the manuscript into the typesetting machine and rush it into the forms. It has to be edited, set, proof read, corrected and put into the forms, which all takes time, and if those who wish their matter to appear would exercise a natural consideration for the news boys it would be highly appreciated

A HNNTING REMINISCENCE.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir, — The little anecdote in your paper of the hunter that left his rifle behind him, reminds me of a hunter's song that I heard many years ago, the chorus of which was in the following words:

With a Ha Ho Tantivy, Tantivy, Tantivy,
This day a stag must die, this day a stag must die.

Some Moralising on the Lakefield Rat Episode.

The Toronto News, commenting on thrilling tale in the last issue of the Lakefield News, says:

The proverb that "rats forsake a sinking ship" must needs be revised, so as to read, "rats invade the spring-bottom trousers." An incident in our own prosperous Ontario town of Lakefield, gives the reason for the change. Young gentlemen who adhere to the old fashioned cut of nether garments may rejoice in the belief that the swelling terminations make their feet look small, but they should beware of wearing the garments in buildings frequented by the rodents. The Lakefield News gives a highly dramatic account of the catastrophe, thoughtful suppressing names. Let it be reproduced ipsissima verba, as Hon. C. F. Foster would say:

"A thrilling event took place in a building on the east side of Queen street on Wednesday night, between twelve and one o'clock. A young man who had occasion to be working at this time of night, had been troubled with rats in the building, and on going into a room discovered two or three of the vermin running around on the floor. He started to clear the rats out of existence, but, in making a kick at one of them it jumped onto his foot, and crawled up his trouser leg. The rat had the best of the fight, and the young man commenced to yell for help. His yells and cries for assistance were so heartrending that they awakened an old gentleman living over the shop, who, thinking some person was being murdered, jumped out of bed, picked up a butcher knife and stick of wood, and hurried down stairs. Arriving on the scene he saw what was the trouble, and with the assistance of the knife, quickly despatched the rodent. The young man's nerves were unsettled for the balance of the night."

"The young man's nerves were unsettled for the balance of the night!" Anybody would have thought so. When a nocturnal worker is assailed by a vicious and insistent rat, it is enough to make it necessary for him to take a course in a sanitarium. It also shows the desirability of early hours. Had the young man been in bed, the harrowing incident would never have occurred. It may also be remarked that had the rat followed the same course, it would have been possible for the young man to toil uninterruptedly. It is a case for the casuists. It is simply a variant on the old assertion that if the worm had not been early the robin would never have captured him.

MORE JAPANESE TROOPS LANDED

At Takushan and Also on the Liaotung Peninsula

HAD SEVERAL BRISK ENCOUNTERS

Heavy Loss of Russians—300 in one Skirmish Near Ninchoo—Reported Retreat of Japanese Main Army Not Confirmed—Advance Guard Falls Back Twelve Miles before Cossacks.

London, May 21.—The Japanese legation yesterday received the following official despatch from Tokio: "A portion of one army commenced landing at Takushan, west of the mouth of the Yalu River, yesterday."

Russians Repulsed With Loss.

Tokio, May 21.—The following official statement was issued here yesterday:

"A section of infantry of the Liaotung forces went in the direction of Shanchusan to reconnoitre and met two sections of Russian infantry. The Russians were repulsed in thirty minutes. Our casualties were one officer and four men killed and one officer and eight men wounded. The Russian casualties were one officer and forty to fifty men killed. The landing of Japanese troops at Takushan began yesterday.

Landing Accomplished Speedily.

"Admiral Hosoya, commanding the third squadron, reports that with the third squadron, consisting of the Fuso, Hei Yen, Tsukushi, Sai Yen and other vessels, he protected the landing of troops at an unnamed place, probably Takushan, yesterday, bombarded the coast and landed a party of bluejackets, who occupied a point of land and raised the Japanese flag at 8 o'clock in the morning. The landing of troops immediately commenced, and was accomplished very quickly."

Russians Lost 900.

London, May 21.—The Japanese Legation here gave out yesterday the following despatch, received from Tokio:

"The enemy's forces participating in the fight near Kinchou (Liaotung Peninsula), May 16, consisted of the Fifth, Fourteenth and Sixteenth Sharpshooters (infantry), with eight quick-firing guns. They left on the field thirty dead officers and men. According to the prisoners, the enemy's casualties were over three hundred."

Japs Retreated 12 Miles.

St. Petersburg, May 21.—An official report has been received to the effect that Gen. Rennenkempff's Cossacks fell on the Japanese column advancing on Feng Wangcheng on Wednesday, and that the Japanese were compelled to retreat for a distance of twelve miles.

The Russians have evacuated Kaipin (or Kaichou) about thirty-five miles south of Newchwang without a fight.

Japs Head For Mukden.

Liaoyang, May 21.—Forty-five battalions of Japanese troops have been landed on the Liaotung Peninsula. In order to embarrass their advance the Russians have destroyed the railroad bridges.

The Japanese have retired to Fengwangcheng, though divisions are moving northward, their apparent destination being Mukden.

The excitement among the Chinese has been increasing during the last few days. The Chinese bandits are causing considerable trouble and are being energetically hunted by Cossacks.

The Eastern Chinese Railroad has increased its carrying capacity, and for some days past troops have been arriving quickly and in splendid condition.

Drowned From Yoshino and Hatsuse.

Tokio, May 21.—The loss of life incurred by the sinking of the cruiser Yoshino included Captain Sayeki, Commander Hirowateri, three first lieutenants, five second lieutenants, five midshipmen, a paymaster, surgeon, three engineers' cadets and eight boatswain mates. Of the crew the number of those lost is unknown.

Those who went down with the battleship Hatsuse when she foundered were Commander Tsukamoto, Commander Viscount Niro, Commander Arimori, five second lieutenants, five sub-engineers, two surgeons, six midshipmen, four cadet engineers and ten non-commissioned officers.

It is not known yet in this case how many of the men perished. The Hatsuse was surely sunk by coming in contact with a submerged mine and not by the attack of a submarine boat.

The report that the battleship Shikishima was damaged and the battleship Fuji sunk is denied here.

Port Arthur Free.

St. Petersburg, May 21.—Naval officers say that the channel to Port Arthur is free, despite the Japanese claims to the contrary, and that the Russian fleet may go out again within a fortnight. Second thoughts have caused the admiralty officials to discredit the report that the Japanese battleship Shikishima and Fuji have been destroyed.

Ship Was Destroyed.

Tokio, May 21.—A trustworthy report has been received at Imperial Headquarters that the Russian cruiser Bogatyr ran ashore outside Vladivostock in a heavy fog and was destroyed. This is the first ship of the Vladivostock squadron to be destroyed.

The report of the grounding of the cruiser Bogatyr came Thursday night from the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Echo de Paris, and was announced by the Russian admiralty yesterday.

A cable from Vladivostock yesterday made no allusion to the Bogatyr and reported all quiet there.

What Japan May Do.

Chicago, May 21.—A special to The Daily News says:

"Port Arthur is to be taken by storm the moment proper preparations have been completed. Siege guns have yet to be placed in position, and the land forces appointed for the assault have to be strengthened. The unexpected loss of two fine vessels has emphasized the insecurity of sea power and the authorities feel that no chances must be taken that would encourage Russia to send out the Baltic fleet counting on finding a harbor of refuge in Port Arthur.

"It is realized that the storming of the fortress will inevitably cost many lives, but it is said that the waters where the Japanese ships are forced to manoeuvre are becoming so dangerous because of floating mines that heroic measures are imperative. Under these circumstances it is thought that life will be economized by storming the stronghold and eliminating it and the adjacent waters from the area of actual conflict.

Another Jap Reverse.

St. Petersburg, May 21.—The following despatch from Gen. Kuropatkin to the Emperor, dated at Liaoyang, May 19, has been received here:

"A detachment of Cossacks engaged a detachment of the Japanese advance guard on May 18 north of Fengwangcheng, in a mountainous district. The fight began in the morning and lasted until 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

"The Japanese were successively dislodged from four positions, extending over fifteen miles.

RE-ORGANIZATION NOW IN SIGHT

Sugar Company Shareholders View the Proposal Favourably

Mr. J. Fowler will form a new Company —$50,000 of Stock to be Subscribed by Local Capitalists.

Last night about thirty shareholders of the Peterborough Sugar Company met in the Business College, the object of the meeting being to consider a proposition to be submitted by Mr. John Fowler, of Toronto. The plan as suggested by Mr. Fowler at last night's meeting, was substantially that outlined in yesterday's Examiner, and it is learned that the shareholders present were heartily in favour of the acceptance of the proposal. Mr. Fowler is representing a number of Toronto and Michigan capitalists and is familiar with the sugar industry. The proposition, as submitted by Mr. Fowler, is that if $50,000 is subscribed locally, he will undertake to complete the factory, and place it in operation by the fall of 1905. It is to be further agreed that the stock subscribed need not be paid until the factory is completed and the machinery on the ground.

To show their faith in the plan as outlined, the shareholders present present doubled their holdings of stock, and $7,500 was subscribed in a few minutes. This, with $4,000 of stock subscribed but not paid, makes $11,500 now provided for, leaving only $38,500 to be raised. It was believed that this amount could easily be secured, consequently, if the details can be arranged, the matter is practically settled.

Mr. Fowler is enthusiastic in his belief in the adaptability of Peterborough as a sugar manufacturing town, and said that the site is the best he ever saw. With 100 miles of shore line on the route of the canal, the factory could secure beets without difficulty.

Mr. Fowler proposes to form a new company under a new name, probably "The Trent Valley Sugar Company," and the new Board of Directors will consist of nine members, five in Peterborough, two in Toronto and two in Michigan.

A full meeting of the shareholders will likely be held in the near future, and the matter will be discussed by those who are financially interested in the matter.

OUR CIVIC HOLIDAY; SHALL DATE BE CHANGED?

Governor-General's Foot-guards Ottawa Raise Question.

The Opinion of the Public, Expressed Through Examiner Columns, is Invited.

The officers of the Fifty-Seventh Regiment have received a letter from the colonel commanding the Governor General's Foot Guards, Ottawa, proposing that that military organization visit Peterborough on the first Monday in August and the preceding Sunday, to join with the 57th Regiment in church parade on Sunday, and in trooping the colours, or some other form of military demonstration on Monday. The letter concludes with the intimation that unless the Monday mentioned is a civic holiday the proposal is off.

This raises the question as to the desirability of fixing the first Monday in August as our civic holiday, for there is no question of the desirability of a visit from this crack military organization.

Heretofore Peterborough's civic holiday has been observed on the third Thursday of August, a date fixed before the statute was passed making the first Monday in September, Labour Day. It is suggested that the date of our civic holiday be advanced, so that our public holidays may be separated by more regular intervals of time. Good Friday comes in late March or April. Victoria Day is May 24th, about, on an average, a month later. In a little over a month, Dominion Day comes, on July 1st. Civic Holiday may come a month and two thirds later, if it should fall as late as August 20th. Then ten days later comes Labour Day, the first Monday in September. By placing our civic holiday on the first Monday in August, our holiday dates from Good Friday to Labour Day would be separated by intervals of practically a month.

The military and civic authorities, before taking action in regard to the proposal of the Ottawa Foot Guards, would like to know the state of public feeling in regard to the matter. In order to elicit this, the Examiner opens its columns to short, concise, letters from citizens, who are invited to freely, frankly, and briefly—express their opinions on the subject.

Naturally organized food is a memory of the time before dyspepsia began

Strength, courage and endurance are the characteristics of the pioneers of any country. The reason for this is that naturally organized food was their regular diet. It was all they could get until advancing civilization arrived with all its unnatural foods and methods of eating, and introduced dyspepsia, weak muscles, defective teeth, mental debility, and inflammatory diseases.

Your brain, bone, muscle and flesh are built of the food you eat, and your health depends on whether the food you eat contains the nourishment for each of these elements in the proper proportions.

In

you get every element of which the body is composed. Its light, porous nature aids digestion by permitting the saliva and gastric juices to penetrate at once to every morsel; while in white flour bread each morsel forms a doughy mass and only the outer surface gets the effect of the digestive juices, the balance remaining in a fermented condition in the stomach.

Triscuit makes ideal toast—it is light, wholesome and crisp.

GIVE ONTARIO THE BENEFIT.

There is something reasonable in Mayor Urquhart of Toronto, demanding that construction work on the Toronto and James Bay Railway be begun at the Toronto end. With construction begun at Parry Sound, he argues that instead of Toronto furnishing supplies they will be brought in from Montreal over the Canada Atlantic. In the abstract we have no objection to Montreal furnishing any quantity of supplies. But it should be remembered that the people of the Province of Ontario have contributed to the James Bay Railway in the form of guaranteeing its bonds, and therefore this province should, other things being equal, have the lion's share of the benefits accruing from construction work. And while the demands of Mayor Urquhart may sound Torontonish to Hamilton ears, it does not seem unreasonable that the capital city of the province should be helped to furnish supplies for the railway.

Going for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place, but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use.

When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

SPECIAL FIRE PROTECTION.

The merchants of Toronto are seriously impressed with the gravity of the situation with regard to fires in the down town district, where the conflagration risk is the greatest. Not only have recent tremendous losses shown them the reality of this danger, but the heavy increase in insurance rates has proved that decisive action is needed to secure the business centres against future destruction. Some do not fail to recognize that it would be hardly fair to assess upon the whole city the cost of the special protection required for the crowded business area. It has been proposed by several merchants most interested that the city should instal a special system of fire mains before the streets are restored to their normal condition. The cost, it is suggested, might be borne by the city in the first place, and collected from the business concerns benefited by a special levy.

It is now an accepted dogma of the insurance companies that the congested business areas of cities require special treatment in order to secure adequate protection from fire. And they claim that even with such additional protection the danger is so much greater than in the less crowded districts that specially high insurance rates must be levied.

Why should not the same principle apply to protection from fire as to protection from losses by fire? In other words, why should the city at large be taxed for the special needs of a comparatively small district? Although the streets are common to all the people, if any extraordinary improvements are made, a considerable portion of the cost is assessed to the residents immediately benefited. If this principle is just as regards the streets, which are used by everybody, it could be applied with even greater propriety to a special fire protect service, such as high pressure, fire mains, etc., admittedly of purely local utility.

The underwriters insist that extraordinary safeguards are required in Montreal's congested district, and demand that the civic authorities spend vast sums for the protection of this area. The merchants doing business in the locality complain of the extra insurance rates they have to pay because extra protection is not provided. If these expensive appliances are really necessary to the safety of the congested areas, as the insurance experts declare they are, why should they not be installed by the city and the cost charged on the special percentage assessment plan to the property owners who would be immediately benefited by a reduction in insurance premiums? — Montreal Herald.

Struck By Lightning.

Cornwall, May 21.—During a thunderstorm Thursday afternoon lightning struck the house of Levi Fyckes, Cornwall Township, ripping the carpet off the floor and setting fire to the furniture in the parlor. The plaster walls were perforated, as if with a Gatling gun. Mr. Fyckes threw the burning furniture outdoors and extinguished the blaze.

FOR PREVENTION OF CONSUMPTION.

A Number of Public Spirited Citizens Aid the Enterprise.

The Good Work done by the Associations for the Prevention of Consumption—The Sanatorium Treatment.

Many of the most thoughtful and public-spirited men of the Dominion are numbered among the officers and members of the Canadian Association for the prevention of consumption and other forms of tuberculosis which held its fourth annual meeting in Ottawa on April 20th and 21st. Every thinking man and woman must be impressed with the necessity for united action to check the ravages of a disease which causes one death in every eight in this country, and gives rise to a vast amount of suffering and permanent ill-health. It is calculated that in Canada at the present moment between 30,000 and 40,000 persons are suffering from it, yet it is undoubtedly a preventable disease, and one that is curable in its earlier stages.

AROUSING THE PUBLIC

The report of the executive council pointed out that the operations of the association have combined with other influences to concentrate public attention in some degree upon consumption and to awaken a desire for information regarding the measures which should be taken to stay its ravages. The secretary, Rev. Dr. Moore, of Ottawa, during the year distributed by mail and otherwise, over 100,000 leaflets on "How to Prevent Consumption," "Rules for Consumptives," etc. Many lectures were also given, with the hearty co-operation and sympathy of medical health officers and other members of the medical profession; the mayors and members of municipal councils, the clergy of all denominations, and the proprietors of newspapers. As the president, Hon. Senator Edwards, pointed out, literature such as the association distributes, should be in every home, so that the people might be taught the simple means by which the scourge may be avoided.

While sanatoria were helpful in the case of those who had the disease, he believed that the great means of its prevention was in education.

INFECTION FROM ANIMALS

A phase of the question in which farmers are particularly interested, was discussed by Dr. Ravenal, an eminent United States authority, who is assistant medical director of the Henry Phipps Institute at Philadelphia, in an able address on "Animal Tuberculoses in Their Relation to Human Health." Dr. Ravenal detailed with exactness the advancement made in the study of consumption since Koch of Berlin made his famous discovery of the tubercule bacillus, and said that in the course of many years' experimenting he had not found any animals that were immune from tuberculosis. The lecturer vigorously combatted the opinion of Koch and others that there is an essential difference between human and bovine tuberculosis, and cited a large number of experiments in support of his view that these were practically identical. While admitting that the majority of cases of consumption were due to infection by inhalation, he claimed that a considerable percentage could be definitely traced to infection through the digestive tract by food, particularly milk and meat. The few figures available seemed to indicate that about 25 per cent of children's cases were due to the latter cause. He had no knowledge of any case of an adult becoming consumptive in this way. In conclusion, Dr. Ravenal urged that while it is important to educate the public, to build sanatoria, and to establish large institutes for the treatment of advanced cases the whole duty of prevention was not being done if the possibility of infection from animal sources were neglected. The speaker was most favourably received, and at the close of the lecture was accorded an unanimous vote of thanks on the motion of His Excellency, the Governor General, who has always taken a great interest in the work of the association.

FRESH AIR, LIGHT AND SUNSHINE.

The keynote of the convention was: "Live as much as possible in the open air." Fresh air, light and sunshine are most important preventives of consumption, and all rooms occupied by consumptives should be as well lighted and ventilated as possible. Living in "over-crowded, ill-ventilated, dark, dirty rooms; insufficient or bad food; dissipation; or anything which enfeebles the constitution and thus impairs its power of resistance, is likely to facilitate the invasion of the system by the germs. These are found in vast numbers in the dust particles of the dry spittle of the consumptive, and in the minute droplets sprayed into the atmosphere by the consumptive in coughing, consequently spitting about the streets or in buildings (churches, schools theatres, railway stations, etc.) is a dangerous as well as a filthy habit.

THE SANATORIUM TREATMENT

The ideal place for treating incipient cases of tubercular disease is in the municipal fresh air sanatorium, where the patients may enjoy the best of care, without being altogether removed from the watchfulness of their friends and family physicians. Every patient who is cured in the sanatorium becomes an apostle of the gospel of fresh air, hence these institutions serve as object lessons of the greatest value. It is for this reason mainly that the Nova Scotia Government has just erected a Sanatorium at Kentville with a capacity for 18 patients. In the whole Dominion there are only four other institutions devoted to the treatment of consumption. Three of these are under private control and management, and one is the property of the National Sanatorium Association of Ontario. The total accommodation in all of these, with that in hospitals to which consumptives are admitted, probably does not exceed two hundred beds. We are indeed poorly equipped for the fight, since the sufferers are so vast in number and so widedistributed as to require a home for consumptives in nearly every county. Only the hearty co-operation of the Dominion and Provincial Governments with the municipal councils seems likely to afford a satisfactory solution of the problem of dealing with what should no longer be the "great white plague."

THE POPE'S DOCTOR

An Interesting Sketch of a Famous Character.

How He Differs from his Canadian Colleagues—An Example Worthy of Being Followed.

Dr. Lapponi, the famous physician to the Vatican, whose name has recently come so greatly to the front on account of his unremitting attention to His Holiness the late Pope, Leo XIII., and the high esteem with which he is regarded by the present Pope, His Holiness Pius X., is a man of commanding genius. But he is something more than that. He is more than a mere man of science. He is a man of original and independent mind. He stands out among medical men of all nations, themselves the flower of the world's intellect, by reason of his fine independent personality. He has had differences with his fellow scientists. But no one has ever disputed for an instant the remarkable nature of the professional attainments of the unflinching integrity of his personal character. He is afraid of no man. But he has a higher courage still. He is not afraid of the bugbear of professional etiquette which frightens even some of the greatest doctors.

As an example of this may be mentioned one very interesting respect in which he has differed from the medical men of this country. The latter are trammelled by medical etiquette. No one disputes their scientific skill or their unselfish devotion to their work. But they are limited in their labours by one remarkable scruple. They will prescribe and experiment with drugs of all kinds sanctioned by the Pharmacopoeia or newly introduced; but where a medical discovery, even when it is the life-work of a regular practising physician, is recommended to the general public by a manufacturer, professional etiquette steps in and frightens them. No matter how overwhelming the evidence of what such a discovery, when sold as a proprietary medicine, has accomplished, they look coldly upon it and will rarely admit that they have used it with success. It would be "unprofessional" to do so! Dr. Lapponi is troubled by no such scruples. For instance the numerous remarkable cures which have been proved by newspaper reports, independently investigated, to have been accomplished by the medicine sold in Canada under the name of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, must be well known to all Canadian doctors. They have been published far and wide. There can be no doubt of their accuracy. The names and addresses of the men and women cured are freely published. Their statements have been investigated by some of the most important newspapers in this country and abroad. No one has ever attempted to dispute the facts. But Canadian doctors have never cared to admit publicly that they have availed themselves of this discovery. Dr. Lapponi, however, has availed himself of Dr. Williams' discovery, and has, in his own fearless way, had no hesitation in making the fact publicly known. The following letter, with his signature, freely avows the facts and endorses the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with an authority no one will venture to question.

TRANSLATION.

"I certify that I have tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in four cases of the simple anaemi of development. After a few weeks of treatment, the result came fully up to my expectations. For that reason I shall not fail in the future to extend the use of this laudable preparation, not only in the treatment of other morbid forms of the category of anaemia or chlorosis, but also in cases of neurasthenia and the like.

(Signed) Dr. Giuseppe Lapponi,
Via dei Gracchi 332, Rome.

The "simple anaemia of development" referred to by Dr. Lapponi is of course that tired, languid condition of young girls whose development to womanhood is tardy, and whose health, at the period of that development, is so often imperilled. His opinion of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at that time is of the highest scientific authority, and it confirms the many published cases in which anaemia and other diseases of the blood as well as the nervous diseases referred to by Dr. Lapponi, have been cured by these pills, which, it need hardly be mentioned, owe their efficacy to their power of making new blood, and thus acting directly on the digestive and nervous system.

In all cases of anaemia, threatened consumption, decline, indigestion, kidney disease and all affection of the nerves, as St. Vitus' dance, paralysis and locomotor ataxia, they are commended to the confidence of the public, and now that they have received the emphatic endorsement of so high a professional authority as Dr. Lapponi, the trusted physician of the Vatican, they will be accepted by the medical and scientific world at their true value.

One Striker Killed.

Callao, Peru, May 21.—When the striking dock employes were going toward the dock Thursday, the police interfered and attempted to disperse them. The police arrested one of the strikers, and his comrades made an effort to rescue him. A fight ensued, in which the police fire over forty shots, which were answered by a shower of stones. One of the strikers was killed and seven were wounded. The police arrested the members of the board of directors of the strikers' union.

Gibraltar, May 21.—A British torpedo boat, No. 38, sailed yesterday for Tangier, in connection with the kidnapping of an American citizen named Perdicaris, and his step-son, Cromwell Varley, a British subject, by armed Arabs headed by Raisuli, the notorious brigand chief.

Freight Sheds Burned.

St. Catharines, May 21.—Fire of supposed incendiary origin, at one o'clock yesterday morning, completely destroyed the freight sheds and cotents at the station of the Welland division of the Grand Trunk railway on Geneva street. The loss will probably be $50,000.

British Engineers' Triumph.

London, May 21.—The selection by the Egyptain Government of the firm of Sir William Arrol and Company, for the construction of three bridges across the Nile near Cairo, at a cost of about £200,000, is a triumph for British engineering.

SOME HAPPENINGS IN THE NORTHERN TOWN.

Personal Mention and Other Items of Interest at Lakefield.

Mr. R. C. Strickland has been good enough to offer his lawn and bowls for the use of the young men of the village. This is a privilege which is much appreciated by those who enjoy this splendid sport.

Canoeing promises to be unusually popular with the citizens of Lakefield this season, and great preparations are being made by those who enjoy the unsurpassed scenery of the Ketchewanooka.

The wall papering business is now at its height, and the ladies in our village are delighted with the pretty designs and the reasonable prices of the paper shown this season by our merchants.

Two of our young men had a narrow escape from a wetting on Tuesday evening last. While out paddling in a canoe one young man tried to change his position, with the usual result—the canoe rolled and took in about four inches of water. They got to shore without any further mishap, but resolved that to change positions in a canoe it is necessary to land.

Dr. R. A. Fraser took in the dance held in the Simcoe street hall, Peterborough, on Friday evening.

Mr. J. H. Sherin is spending a couple of weeks at the St. Louis exposition.

Mr. E. W. Cox of Peterborough, was in the village on Tuesday.

Mr. Thompson of the Dickson Co., is putting down tracks in their new piling grounds, and at present a large gang of men is employed at the work. The former unsightly pile of sawdust has been used to level the ground and the general appearance of that part of the village has been much improved.

On Friday afternoon the village play the Grove cricket club a return game on the school grounds.

High Constable George Cochrane was in the village on Tuesday.

Mr. Frank Shill, of Oshawa, formerly of Bromley, Kent, Eng., has been employed by Mr. Jas. Shadgett, Lakefield's popular painter.

Mr. Tilley, of the Bell Telephone Co., has a gang of men repairing the local telephone lines, also putting in several new 'phones.

Mr. Green, of the Canadian General Electric Co., Peterborough, was in the village on Sunday.

Comfort for Old People.

Much of the suffering of the aged is due to the kidney derangements which lead to backache, rheumatism lumbago and body pains. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills bring comfort to the old folks by keeping the kidneys healthy and active, and so eliminating from the body the poisonous waste matter which causes pains, aches and fatal disease.

Ald. Best presented the following report of the Board of Works:—

Your Board of Works begs leave to report as follows:

1. We recommend that the Board of Health be advised that there is no prospect of a sewer being completed in Ward No. 5 this year.

2. With reference to the application of the Bell Telephone Co. to place three poles on Westcott street we recommend that they be requested to file a plan, and that if it is approved of bythe Town Engineer they be permitted to place the poles, subject to the Town Engineer's approval.

3. We recommend that the applications of James Lynch and the Y. M. C. A. for permission to place illuminated signs in front of their premises be granted subject to the approval of the Town Engineer and subject to the condition that they shall be removed at any time the council desires them to be removed.

4. We recommend that the application of Fred W. Bates to have a driveway into his premises repaired be referred to the street commissioner with instructions to repair it if it is proper to do so.

5. We have examined the petition from T. J. Wilson and others for the construction of a granolithic sidewalk as a local improvement on the west side of Stewart street from McDonel street to Murray street and found it sufficiently signed, with the exception that proofs should be furnished that T. J. Wilson is an owner of property there, and upon this proof being furnished we recommend that the petition be granted.

6. We examined a petition from T. A. Kennedy and others for the construction of a granolithic sidewalk as a local improvement on the north side of Antrim street from George street to Water street, and from F. J. Jameson and others for the construction of a granolithic sidewalk as a local improvement on the east side of Harvey street from McDonen street to London street and found them sufficiently signed and recommend that they be granted.

7. With reference to the application of the Otonabee Power Co. for permission to place 12 poles on the west side of Rubidge street between Sherbrooke and Rink streets, 4 poles on Aylmer street between London and Dublin streets, and one pole on Stewart street between Simcoe and Hunter streets, we recommend that they be asked to file a plan showing the location of the poles and if the location is approved of by the Town Engineer we recommend that the permission be granted subject to the approval of the Franchise Committee.

8. We have examined the petition of Pl. B. Doupe and others for the construction of a granolithic sidewalk as a local improvement on the south side of Antrim street from George street west to the track of the Grand Trunk Railway and found it sufficiently signed and recommend that it be granted subject to the owners of the property expressing approval of the plans for the sidewalk by signing them.

LEGAL COMMITTEE

Ald. McWilliams presented the report of the Legal Committee, as follows:—

Your Legal Committee begs leave to report and recommend that the sidewalk on Brock street between George and Chambers streets which was removed last year, be replaced.

Ald. Adams asked, referring to Clause 1, of the above report, what action the council had taken on the outfall sewer scheme for the Fifth Ward. The town had committed itself to the proposal, and he thought some action should have been taken before this.

Ald. McWilliams expressed his opinion that the council was legally bound to replace the sidewalk, which was constructed at the request of the Brock street residents.

Ald. Morrison thought that a test case might be made of this matter. If the sidewalk was replaced the town would likely be involved in a suit with the Toronto Savings and Loan Company.

Ald. McWilliams, again referring to the report, said that he did not wish to be understood as being in opposition to the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, but he thought that the town was legally bound to replace the walk. The owners of the store properties should certainly be considered, but the residents had paid for the sidewalk, and they should be fairly dealt with.

Ald. Johnston asked whether the Toronto Savings and Loan Company had been given permission from the town to take up the sidewalk, and Ald. McWilliams explained that it was apparently a misunderstanding.

Ald. Adams thought that it would be cheaper to build the sidewalk than to engage in a lawsuit.

The report was referred back to the committee.

Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that a bylaw authorizing the execution of an agreeemnt with the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, Limited, be read a first time.

Colonel Edwards asked that the agreement be read before the bylaw was considered.

In reply to this Ald. Best asked what interest the Bell Telephone Company had in the agreement with the Canadian Machine Telephone Company?

The agreement was, however, read in full. The bylaw provides that within twelve months the company shall instal in the town its system of machine telephones. The conditions of the bylaw are identical with those published in the Examiner of May 17th.

Colonel Edwards, after the reading of the bylaw, addressed the council, and said that the matter was a very important one. While the Bell Telephone Company was not asking a monopoly, it was interested in knowing what was being done in the telephone business. The company had been for years furnishing the town with an efficient service in Peterborough. The town had an experience some years ago with a competitive system of telephones, which had not proven satisfactory. The telephone business was one which could be more satisfactorily conducted by one company in a town than by competing concerns. If the privilege which the Bell Telephone Company had been given by the town in the past had been thought by the town to be worth more than was being paid, the council might have pointed it out to the company. He thought the matter should be carefully considered and it might be found that the conditions of the agreement would prejudicially affect the interests of the Bell Company. He thought that the question should not be rushed through without due deliberation on the part of the council. It was only a few hours ago that he had been instructed to watch this matter on behalf of the Bell Company, and he asked that in view of the fact that the company had been carrying out the telephone business in the town satisfactorily for a number of years no action be taken on the matter at this meeting.

On motion of Ald. Best, Mr. F. D. MacKay addressed the council, and said that since Col. Edwards had raised no legal objection it was unnecessary for his company's solicitor to address the council. The application made by his company had been considered fully by the council, and the points raised by Col. Edwards had been discussed. Col. Edwards in his remarks, said that the efficiency of a telephone service depended upon a monopoly. The speaker thought that Col. Edwards was not conversant with the business or he would not have made the statement. The service in Peterborough while the Ontario Telephone Company was in the field, was, he thought, better than it had been before, or since. The new company depended on the merits of the system to establish a patronage, and if the company was unable to provide a satisfactory system, it would go out of business, and the company alone would be the losers. To show that the business men of Peterborough had faith in the company, Mr. MacKay stated that he had in his possession the signatures of the representative business men who had contracted for the new telephone. He could see no reasonable cause for delay, and it was important from the standpoint of the company that the matter be not delayed. He believed that the ratepayers would find no fault with the council for taking immediate action.

The Mayor remarked that the Bell Telephone Company now enjoyed no rights given by the council, and any other they enjoyed were over the heads of the council. The Bell Telephone Company had enjoyed a franchise of the town for a period of years. This franchise had expired, and as far as his recollection went, he had no knowledge of an application for its renewal.

Ald. Morrison, correcting the Mayor, said that the company at the request of the committee made an offer to the council for a five year franchise, which the committee had not thought liberal enough.

The Mayor continuing, said he would not be in favour of giving a five year exclusive franchise to the Bell or any other company. He believed that the service given by the company before the amalgamation of the two local companies, was much better than it had been since. He had tried to guage public opinion on this matter and he had yet to find one who opposed it except those who were financially interested.

One of the principal features of the new agreement was that the company had agreed to place its wires underground, which was an end much to be desired, and he could see no reason why action should be deferred.

Colonel Edwards, again addressing the council, said that the company had applied to the council for a renewal of the franchise, and no reply had been received to this application.

Ald. McWilliams reminded the council that the application of the new company had been before the citizens for about ten days, and no opposition had been heard before this meeting.

Ald. Edgcumbe stated that he thought the matter should be deferred until the public could be given an opportunity of learning the terms.

The bylaw passed, however, Ald. Edgcumbe alone opposing it.

Ald. Morrison moved the first reading of a bylaw extending the time for the completion of the electric railway in the town of Peterborough to Sept. 1st, which was given its second reading, the final passing of the bylaw now being deferred until Mr. Stuart is communicated with, and his assurance given that his check will not be released.

The Mayor and Solicitor were authorized to confer with Ormond & Walsh with respect to their suit against the town.

The council then adjourned.

Complaints of These Two Were Greatly Exaggerated.

THE AUDIENCE WAS STARTLED

Prof. Rutherford of Montreal Speaks of the Marvels of Radium to a Distinguished London Audience—Its Effect on Life on the Earth—Royal Institute Hears a Startling Theory.

London, May 21.—(C. A. P.)—Recently there appeared in The Chronicle's cable despatch a paragraph stating that twelve disgusted Londoners were returning to England. It turns out that the dozen have dwindled to two individuals, named Saunders and Lee, who both declared to Mr. Preston's representative at Liverpool that the stories regarding their complaints have been greatly exaggerated.

A Startling Theory.

London, May 21.—(C. A. P.)—Professor Rutherford of Montreal startled a distinguished audience at the Royal Institute with the theory that, owing to the heat caused by radium, the earth may be inhabitable many millions of years. It further upsets all accepted theories of the duration of life, since a millionth portion of radium only exhausts itself in fifty million years.

"Peruna has my hearty endorsement. There is no medicine I know of which can compare with it. I contracted a severe cold several years ago, which from neglect developed into urinary trouble, and threatened Bright's disease. As one of my friends was cured of Bright's disease through the use of Peruna I thought I would try it also, and used it faithfully for three and one-half months, when my health was perfect once more. I have never had any trouble since, and therefore think it is but just to give it unlimited praise."—O. Fred Lindstrom.

Catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining of the kidneys, also called "Bright's disease," maybe either acute or chronic. The acute form produces symptoms of such prominence that the serious nature of the disease is at once suspected, but the chronic variety may come on so gradually and insidiously that its presence is not suspected until after it has fastened itself thoroughly upon its victim.

At the appearance of the first symptom Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once at the very root of the disease.

A COMPETITION IN TELEPHONE SERVICE.

American Machine Telephone Company Gets 10 Year Franchise.

THE BELL COMPANY ASKS DELAY.

Bylaw Passed With One Dissenting Voice—Terms of the Agreement—Other Business of the Council.

Two rival telephone companies were represented at last night's special meeting of the Council, and both pressed their respective claims upon the members comprising the Council Board. The lengthy discussion which ensued was precipitated by the report of the Committee of the Whole Council, a clause of which recommended the Council to grant the Canadian Machine Telephone Company a 10 years' franchise of the streets of the town for the purpose of erecting poles and other equipment necessary for the carrying on of their business. The Bell Telephone Company was represented at the meeting by Messrs. A. T. Smith, of Toronto, District Superintendent; F. W. Dean, local manager, and E. B. Edwards, solicitor for the Company, while the Canadian Machine Telephone Company was represented by R. Neill, President, F. D. Mackay, manager, and D. O'Connell, solicitor. The Bell Company did not directly oppose the granting of the franchise, but asked that the matter be deferred until the Company might be given an opportunity of conferring with the Council. Col. Edwards, who presented the matter on behalf of the Company, represented that the Bell Company had been giving the town an efficient telephone service for a number of years, and he thought that before a competing company was given a franchise the older concern should be given an opportunity of making arrangements for a renewal of its franchise. Until last Fall the Bell Company enjoyed an exclusive franchise on the streets for telephone wires and equipment, and at the request of the Franchise Committee, an offer was submitted of $400 per year for an extension of the franchise for five years. This offer, the committee thought too low, and as a result a renewal was not granted.

The Council then received the application of the new company, in which the offer was made to supply 'phones to residences for $15 per year and to business places for $20, and a business and residence to one subscriber at $30. It is also agreed that in certain prescribed business sections the wires shall be placed under ground. The Company also agrees to furnish anyone with a telephone who applies for it, at the rates quoted above. On these conditions the franchise was granted at last night's meeting. All present supporting the bylaw except Ald. Edgcumbe, who, while he wished to be understood as not being in opposition to the granting of the franchise, thought the matter should be left until a later date when the people would have more time to consider the matter, and understand the terms. It was considered, however, that the matter had been pretty thoroughly explained, and it was believed that the proposition was one which appealed favourably to the people, consequently the bylaw passed on the following division:

Yeas—Ald. Johnston, Morrison, Mason, Hicks, Adams, Clinkscale, Batten, McWilliams, Best.

Nay—Ald. Edgcumbe.

Ald. Rush was out of the chamber when the vote was taken.

At a special meeting of the Council held last night there were present: Mayor Roger, Ald. Johnston, Morrison, Edgcumbe, Rush, Mason, Hicks, Adams, Clinkscale, Batten, McWilliams, Best.

The minutes of the last meeting were taken as read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were read and dealt with as indicated:—

From J. A. Ash, asking the Council what action was being taken with respect to his application for sewer connection.—Board of Works.

From Messrs. Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr & Stevenson, on behalf of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, asking for an extension of time for the opening of the street railway for two months, or until Sept. 1st. The Company has ordered new cars and motors which cannot be delivered until August.—Received.

From E. H. D. Hall, stating that he had been served with notice of trial in case of Ormond & Walsh vs. Peterborough, and that the case would come up on June 9th.—Received.

From S. R. Armstrong, secretary of the Water Commissioners, advising that any water works stop-cocks or equipment interfered with in sewer or sidewalk construction would be charged to the town.—Board of Works.

From the Geo. Matthews Company, asking that the town engineer be instructed to act with the Company in striking out the boundaries of the new street being given to the town in lieu of Wolfe street.—Received.

From R. P. Watt, County Clerk, enclosing a copy of the minutes of a joint meeting of representatives from the Victoria and Peterborough Counties held at Pigeon Creek Bridge on May 12th. The Committee decided to repair the Pigeon Creek bridge as well as the Lancaster bridge.

From A. H. Webb, applying for post on as sidewalk inspector.—Board of Works.

From J. J. Turner & Sons, with reference to the item of $35.00 for fire net purchased in Toronto. The letter was published in full in the Examiner at the time it was written.—Received.

From J. H. McClellan, being a copy of the presentment of the Grand Jury, presented at the recent sitting of the Court here.—Received.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

The following report of the Committee of the Whole was presented by Ald. McWilliams:—

Your Committee of the Whole Council begs leave to report as follows:

1. Your Committee considered the application of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company for a franchise of the use of the streets for the construction necessary to operate their system in Peterborough and approved of a draft agreement which will be submitted to you with a bylaw to authorize the execution of it.

2. We recommend that steps be taken to carry out the closing of Wolfe street in accordance with the recommendation of the report of the Board of Works adopted by the Council on March 7th last and that the required notice be given, the council to consider the matter at a meeting on June 6th next.

Before the report was adopted, the first clause was discussed. The Bell Telephone Company was represented by A. T. Smith, Toronto, F. W. Dean, local manager, and E. B. Edwards.

Col. E. B. Edwards informed the Council that he had been asked to look into the matter of the telephone franchise, but had been unable to obtain any information. The Bell Company was naturally interested in the application of the Company, and appeared, not necessarily as opponents of the proposal. The Company had been given an exclusive franchise of the streets, for which it had paid such a sum asked by the town as had been thought reasonable, and it was willing to continue such an arrangement.

Ald. McWilliams addressing the Council, said that if the Bell Telephone Company had an objection to raise should be on the general principle. The report was adopted as read, the Mayor objecting to the second clause of the report, on the ground that the town was not getting an equivalent. He believed that it would not be in the interests of the town to give the streets asked for unless one equally wide was given.

Ald. Adams concurred in this opinion.

Ald. McWilliams explained that at the present time all the town could really utilize, of Wolfe street was about 40 feet, since the C.P.R. occupied over 20 feet by a siding. The width of the street as proposed would be 45 feet at the George street end and 55 feet at the wharf.

Ald. Hicks did not think that it would be good policy to narrow the street. He thought that a narrow street at the C.P.R. tracks might prove dangerous.

The Mayor said that he was in favour of giving the Matthews Company the street asked for, but thought that a street 66 feet wide should be received.

Ald. McWilliams presented the following report, which was adopted:

Your Committee of the Whole begs leave to report and recommend that in pursuance of the arrangement made with the Water Commissioners for 35 additional hydrants on existing mains, the Council order the hydrants to be placed at the points recommended by the chief of the Fire brigade and Town Engineer as follows:

4 George street (four way) at corners of Charlotte, Simcoe, Hunter and Brock.
3 on Aylmer street at corners of Rink, Wolfe and Sherbrooke
1 on Stewart street at corners of Hunter and Murray.
2 on Bethune street at corners of Dalhousie and Wolfe.
2 on Downie street at corners of McDonel and Hunter.
1 on Simcoe street at the Gas Works.
1 on Lake street at corner of Bethune.
1 on Perry street 260 feet east of Aylmer.
1 on Gilmour street near west boundary.
1 on McDonel street between George and Aylmer.
1 on Dennistoun avenue at corner of Inverlea.
2 on Elizabeth street between Lake and Mark.
1 on Stewart street between Douro and Elizabeth.
1 on King street west side of creek
1 on Rubidge street at corner of Kirk.
1 on Homewood avenue at corner of Mercer.

The report was adopted.

Ald. Edgcumbe referred to a promise made by the Council two years ago to extend the water works up Rogers avenue to the Dixon Park. Nothing has been done as yet, and he would like to know what was being done in the matter. He was considerably interested in that part of the town, and he thought it a pity that the many well-built houses there should not be given fire protection.

The Mayor explained that the matter had been discussed in last year's council, and said that the town had agreed to take two hydrants and to this extent help out the residents there. He thought the matter now rested with the residents themselves.

Ald. Johnston referring to the letter of Mr. Ash, said the matter should be looked into, as there was evidently some trouble. Ald. Best stated that it was largely a matter of veracity between the two parties.

THE DICKSON COMPANY'S NEW SUITE OF OFFICES

At 163 Hunter Street to be Occupied on Monday.

Will Better Serve Company's Interests and Those of Their Many Patrons.

On Monday morning the Dickson Company will transfer their office staff from their present offices on London street to their new office rooms at 163 Hunter street. They will occupy the premises formerly made use of as a boot and shoe store by Mr. Murty. The apartments have been thoroughly overhauled and fitted up in a most modern manner. The walls have been calcimined; the metallic ceilings are of an ornate design, and the furnishings of an extensive and complete nature. The General Manager's office has been carpeted and provided with every office convenience. Two telephones have been installed. The staff will occupy these offices for the first time on Monday morning.

In this connection it will be of interest to note the various places which the offices of the company have occupied in the more than half a century's existence of the industry, and doubtless many of the older citizens will recollect the places, though they are now occupied by other buildings and devoted to other purposes. In the earlier days when the late Samuel Dickson was the head and front of the enterprise, the offices were in his residence, on Murray street, on the site of the residence occupied by Mr. J. C. Shook, the present general manager of the company. After his tragic death, which took place in the latter part of April, 1870, the offices were transferred to the boot and shoe establishment then conducted by the late manager, Mr. T. G. Haslitt, the site of which was on the west side of George street, near Nugent's drug store, and when the shop at a later date was removed nearly opposite, about where the store of H. LeBrun., or the Port Hope Knitting Works are situated, the offices followed. Later the offices on London street, overlooking the mills and raceway, were built, and there they have remained till to-day, but on Monday the place will know them no more, for they will be removed to the central and commodious new offices mentioned above. This will be a great convenience to the public at large, and will greatly facilitate the transaction of business.

PROGRAMME FOR VICTORIA DAY.

Military Orders Issued this Morning Given Details.

The Entertainment Provided for Lord Dundonald—A Drive in the Afternoon—Banquet in the Evening.

The military programme for Victoria Day has now been practically arranged, and it is likely that Lord Dundonald, who will be the guest of the 57th Regt. for the day will participate in the exercises incidental to the trooping of the colours in the morning at the Oval. In the afternoon he will be driven around the town and will view the many beauty spots of Peterborough. It is believed that in the evening he will call at the concert to be given in the rink by the 57th band and will afterwards be banquetted by the officers of the regiment.

The following military orders were issued this morning:

Headquarters, Peterborough.
May 21st, 1904.

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

No. 1 The regiment will parade with both bands at the drill hall on Monday, May 23rd at 7.45 p. m.

No. 2. On Tuesday, May 24th, at 9.15 a. m., the regiment with both bands and stretcher bearer section will parade at the drill hall in review order—tunics, helmets and bail bags. The regiment will leave the drill hall at 9.30 a. m. for Nicholls' oval for the purpose of receiving the General Officer Commanding and for trooping the colours.

No 3. All non-commissioned officers and men will appear on parade properly dressed, with brasses, buttons and clothing clean, boots blackened and hair trimmed.

No. 4 By the courtesy of Capt. Ackerman the left section of the 14th Field Battery will furnish a police squad to patrol the saluting base of the parade grounds. This squad will report at the drill hall at 9.15 a. m., Tuesday, May 24th.

By order,
D. WALKER.
Capt. and Adjutant.

FOR ALL CHILDREN

Baby's Own Tablets is a medicine good for all children from the feeblest infant, whose life seems to hang by a thread to the sturdy boy whose digestive apparatus occasionally gets out of order. The Tablets instantly relieve and promptly cure all stomach and bowel troubles and all the minor ailments of little ones. Thousands of mothers have proved the truth of these statements, among them Mrs. Robert Morton, Deerwood, Man., who says: "Baby's Own Tablets have helped my baby more than anything I ever gave him. I can conscientiously recommend the Tablets to all mothers." We give you a solemn assurance that the Tablets do not contain one particle of opiate or harmful drug. They do good—they never can do harm, and all children take them as readily as candy. Sold by medicine dealers or sent post paid at 25 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LORD DUNDONALD AND THE BAND CONCERT.

Official Obligations Demand the Attendance of Himself and Staff.

Col. Buchan, Divisional Officer of the Third Military District, was in town yesterday and informed the Commanding Officer of the 57th Regiment, that Lord Dundonald, doubtless in deference to the demands of his official position, was reluctantly compelled to withdraw his patronage from any other concert on Victoria Day, as it was his intention to attend with his staff, the concert of the Fifty-Seventh Band in the skating rink, on the night of Victoria Day.

"GRAND PATRIOTIC CONCERT" under the distinguished patronage of Lord Dundonald, in the Opera House, on Victoria Day. Artists:—Miss Alice Dean, Violiniste; Clarence Glass, Boy Soprano; Miss Helen Davies Miss Florence Miller, Alf. E. Young and Sidney Glass. This will not only give the music-loving people a great treat, but will also give them an opportunity of attending a high-class coucert under such distinguished patronage. Plan and seats on sale at Ormond & Walsh's. 1d

ON THE ROCKS

WHAT would you think of a captain who attempted to navigate his vessel with a broken rudder? He would soon be on the rocks, would he not? Well, every man and woman who is suffering from kidney trouble without taking the proper means of curing this dangerous malady is attempting to ride safely over the rocks and shoals of everyday life with a broken rudder. It is impossible to keep off the rocks of rheumatism, dropsy, backache, sleeplessness, sick headache, bad breath, lack of ambition, lack of courage, dyspepsia, blood poisoning, weak heart, failing memory, irritable temper, sallow complexion, and a hundred and one other troublesome and dangerous ailments if the kidneys are allowed to remain out of order.

Bu-Ju, The Kidney Pill, is absolutely guaranteed to cure disordered kidneys, and thus eradicate all the troubles that arise from them. There is no use in treating the symptoms. The root of the evil, your kidney trouble, must be cured, and Bu-Ju is guaranteed to cure it.

Toronto, Sept. 8, 1903.

Claflin Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.

Gentlemen:—I have bought and taken three boxes of your Bu-Ju Pills and I found them as represented. I can recommend them to any person who has kidney trouble. I received great relief as soon as I commenced taking them.

Yours truly.

A HERO AT A FIRE.

A Moving Tale That Carries With It Its Own Moral.

They were talking on that inexhaustible subject, the Toronto fire, says The Toronto Star.

"Some people wonder," said the short man, "that more goods were not saved out of the burning buildings. Why, man alive, they'd have knocked you down with an axe if you'd tried to save anything out of one of them stores."

"Why?" enquired the lean man. "And who'd have knocked you down with an axe?"

"The owners—that's who. As to why they'd have done it, the answer's in one word—insurance. Say, did I ever tell you about the time that I was a hero and covered myself with blisters and glory at a fire? Well, I never felt so good in all my life. I just felt dead sure that I was doing something pretty fine. It was in a country village, and a widow's house was on fire. First, I got on the roof with some other fellows, and tried to keep the fire off by hurling pails of water on the shingles—men passed pails up ladders, and myself and another fellow hurled water where it would do the most good. To keep from falling off, we threw away our boots, and worked in our sock feet. Slipping on hot cinders burnt holes in my socks, and we got badly burnt on the hands and face, but it was no good. The house caught fire, and then, with two other chaps, I sailed in saving goods from inside. We simply risked our lives at that work—carrying out chairs, tables, pictures dishes, anything we could get hold of, I remember we had a lot of trouble with a box stove—but at last, as the roof collapsed, we stood across the road, black with smoke, covered with burns, our clothes ruined, and scarcely able to stand after our hard work, but feeling proud of what we had done for that poor widow. Well, just then through the advancing crowd came the widow, crying because she was homeless, and she saw that pile of furniture. In the glare from that burning house she could see it all and we could see her. She just quit crying there and then, and gave us a regular tongue thrashing—wanted to know why I could never mind my own business, but kept poking my nose into other people's affairs. She said the stuff we had carried out was no good, but that the insurance company would value it at about five hundred dollars, and do her out of the money. She said if we had a spark of honesty in us we'd go and throw the stuff back in again, and jump in after it. Say, I was mad clean through, and I tell you what since then I wouldn't save a man from drowning unless he asked me to."

MISUNDERSTANDINGS.

Keep Them Out of the Home and Away From Friendships.

If love is to flourish between two people they must each be slow to take offense and not only willing, but glad, to pardon at the first and faintest sign of penitence; still more, to overlook entirely the sin which has been a blunder and an accident. Life and love are in great part the art of bearing with other people's shortcomings.

Every offender, whatever the offense, is in the eyes of the law entitled to a fair trial, and no one should be condemned unheard. The exercise of a modicum of common sense and justice would nip most quarrels, whether between lovers or others, in the bud. Some one has wisely said that scarcely a novel was ever written which could have run to the end if the hero and heroine had been fully frank with one another. Most dissensions are founded upon misunderstandings.

Much may be forgiven to those who love much by those who return such affection. Nor is it sufficient to forgive without forgetting the offense. The slate should be wiped clean and the transgression be as though it had never been.

SUIT OF AN EX-CONVICT

JOHN KELLY SUING THE GOVERNMENT FOR BROKEN ARMS.

Injuries for Which He Seeks Damages Were Received in the Kingston Penitentiary Laundry—Kelly Talks of His Eleven Years' Life Within Prison Walls and of the Treatment Accorded Prisoners by the Officials.

A man who for more than eleven years had worn a convict's garb and has been known only by number, passing into a prominent K. C.'s office on his release and inducing him to take up his cause and issue a writ for damages against the Government is an unusual episode in the annals of Canadian law, says a Kingston despatch to The Toronto World. But such is the case. The charge to be made shortly on behalf of John Kelly is "culpable negligence," by which his two arms were broken during his term in Kingston Penitentiary. The delay in issuing the writ is to enable further evidence to be secured, and the man who for so long a time has been undergoing the mandate of stern justice promises interesting disclosures that will throw a sidelight on the management of affairs within the big institution.

A few days ago, Kelly emerged a free man in the suit of clothes presented as a farewell gift, seven dollars and a ticket to Woodstock in his pocket. He stood in the hallway of the Windsor Hotel as the interviewer entered.

The Feeling of Freedom.

Although the effects of prison life had left all too visible traces on his face and expression, Kelly walked with a firm, even step and breathed the air about him with the confidence born of a freedom that for eleven years had not been his. His eyes gleamed with a pathetic look, the hunted look of one whose life had been crushed by a momentary act of folly. His hair, which eleven years ago was as black as jet, now was grey and lifeless. He impressed one as a man who looked on the world with surprise and curiosity. He betrayed a hesitation in meeting the grasp of a hand. The old customs seemed strange to him.

"I cannot get used to wearing this collar," he said, starting to wriggle his neck, "I try to lower my head sometimes, but the collar holds me fast. The sidewalks with their boards seem strange to one who for eleven years never walked on anything but stone. The first night of freedom I lay in my bed and never slept a wink. The dawning of the new life gradually broke upon me. The comforts of hotel life, the soft pillows, the lights, the streets and their noises, the cars—it all seemed a dream. It's the invariable experience of men in my position. From force of habit I stretched my arms out to feel the cold stone walls on either side. Instead of that, here was nothing but unlimited space. My bed was not of iron, but of varnished wood. The gong didn't arouse me with its clamor calling me to do over again the same monotonous round. There was no clank, clank of the guard as he moved along the stone hallway. No cries of "All's well," no groans or hollow laughs from neighboring cells. No musty library books or scanty bills of fare. I was free to come, to go, to eat when and what I liked, to meet my friends. It was freedom at last.

"Could you give us some idea of your life behind the walls?" was asked.

Quietly lighting a cigarette, Kelly puffed slowly for a few moments. Then he began.

Life Story of a Convict.

"In 1893, I was working in Woodstock as a painter, though, understand me, I am an American by birth. My mother lived with me, and we were happy and contented until I reached the age of 29, when an event happened that landed me behind those walls on a fifteen-year sentence. My mother did not know of my whereabouts, so I sent her a letter. It was intercepted by the two detectives who had run me down, and instead of delivering it, which would have made things smooth, they told her a story which for base exaggeration could hardly be equaled. Two months after that, my mother passed away."

He stopped speaking for an instant and his eyes dropped to the floor. In a moment he had resumed.

"For the first six months of my confinement I chafed and fretted under the restrictions. I was gloomy and backward in conversation, but as the time wore on I got used to it. The new regime was adopted by me with less resistance than I had expected. I went to bed after supper, read till 8.45, when the evening gong sounded. As though each man in that huge dormitory was actuated by some mechanical thing, six hundred human beings dropped off to sleep at the same moment. The morning bell brought us all to our feet.

"I was sent to work in the laundry, to which I soon became accustomed. In this way I spent the time for five years without any exciting event to relieve the monotony.

Fire in Prison Chapel.

"On January 8, 1898, we were attending service in the chapel. All at once some of the light material with which the place was decorated burst into flame. For an instant I stood still, then as if by instinct I leaped to put out the blaze with a fellow convict at my side. The rest made a mad rush for the door, and some were already on the stairs, when at the bottom appeared the form of Chief Keeper Hughes, a revolver in his hand. 'Back! Every man of you!' he shouted, 'or I shoot,' and the firm though not unkindly voice carried power with it and slowly and sullenly, for the hope of freedom had been in their breasts, they backed up, and facing the gleaming weapon, retreated again into the room where the crackling fire still blazed. In the meantime, I had seized the silver on the altar and had carried it out of danger. In company with Keeper Brennan I hauled buckets of water and dashed them into the flames. In a few minutes we had the blaze under our control.

"Very soon after that I wrote to the Minister of Justice for a pardon, not mentioning my connection with the fire. No reply came. Again and again I wrote, but still no answer. I might say that all our correspondence has to pass through the office.

"Shortly after this I contracted a bad case of lead poisoning. The doctor sent me to bed, and there I lay for twenty-eight days between life and death. I was destined to recover, however. Soon after I spent another eight days in the hospital. Thus I lived till 1900, and I may say that I was underfed and poorly cared for throughout. At that time Father Macdonald, Father Meagher and Chief Keeper Hughes backed up a petition for pardon, which I had sent to the Minister. There was no result. No reply came to my repeated calls for mercy.

Broke Arms in Laundry.

"A year ago last April I broke both my arms in the laundry. They were installing some new electrical apparatus in place of the old steam gear. In due time the shafting was put in place, but by some carelessness the machinery was run at a higher speed than it was supposed to be. Crash went the shafting, and I lay beneath it with both arms mapped in two, the right one at the wrist, the left at the elbow. Then it was the old story of hospital wards and medicine and bandages over again. It is for the injuries received at this time that I am going to sue them."

He stopped speaking a moment and rolled back his sleeves. The scars were perfectly visible on both arms.

"In this state I lay for thirty-four days, suffering intense pain, and buoyed up by no hopes of freedom, because a prisoner's illness is alleviated by no hopes of any kind. My wounds healed soon enough and back again I went to the old round of work. By the way, I was looking in the blue book the other day, and among the prison statistics saw no mention of the smashing of the machinery or of my injuries. Now I near the end of my story. My time was coming to a close. I looked forward to my liberation with high hopes. I had carefully counted my time, and waited impatiently for the remaining period to pass. I had lost fifteen days for three reports, and besides this, my illness had increased my time by a month or more. In all, three years and two hundred days should have been taken from my fifteen-year sentence. Heaven only knows, I have paid a dear enough price. I had entered that institution a young man, twenty-nine years old. Eleven years or more wasted, taken out of the best part of my life, had left me gray-haired and careworn.

"At last, days after it was due, the order came, 'Send Kelly down.' I said good-by to the cell I had occupied so long. I took a last look at the cold stone walls and corridors, associated with so much that was disagreeable to me. The warden met me in his office. 'Have you anything private to say to me?' he asked. My answer was brief, 'No,' I said, and left him at the top of the hill. A car came in sight, and with some money in my pocket I boarded it. I can hardly describe the feelings I experienced in this first hour of liberty, but never mind, they'll hear more of me yet."

Not a Deterrent.

"What do you think the effect of such treatment at the prison would be on men who had once served a term?" the reporter asked. "Would it not create such a fear of penitentiary life that a man would think twice before he again committed a crime?"

"Not a bit of it," continued the narrator. "The hate which every convict bears towards that institution has only one effect. He will burglarize or do other things just as much as before if he cares to, but with this difference: When he's discovered in the act he'll shoot to kill every time. Rather than have a witness to convict him of the lesser crime, he'll commit murder. Such stringent rules as are now in force do not lessen crime, they make the criminal more desperate. I may say that the investigation which I have demanded is bound to result in some startling disclosures."

"And you are seconded in your demands for justice by most of your former comrades?"

"Every man Jack of them is fairly crying out for an investigation. You may say that they deserve hard treatment, but yet there's a line which cannot be overstepped. My efforts are simply for justice. I have been wronged personally, and I shall seek a fair hearing before the courts."

The door opened beside him. A breath of the fresh air was wafted in, and with it came the din of the street.

"I guess I'll take a stroll," said Kelly, his eyes lifting up with the new-found joy of being his own master. "It's nearly twelve years since I wandered about by myself."

He smiled sadly and passed from the room.

The groups who had gathered about him stood silent for a moment, then some one exclaimed: "It's 10 o'clock." Every listener started as though awakened from a dream of the life which they had just been told.

"By Jove," said one young fellow, "I could almost swear I heard the gong."

Gambling at Golf.

Although we have not yet reached the "gambling at golf" stage of the discussion upon the desirability or not of playing golf for a stake, the question is being discussed with some fervor. There can be no doubt that the gambling taint has touched the royal and ancient game and that there are many players who have grown to look upon it as insipid without the incentive of "something on the match."—London Court Journal.

Not Square.

The Teuton is a long time in learning British idioms. One who had been here for a year or more and could speak some English before his arrival—a very short and corpulent man, by the way—went to his grocer's and paid a bill which had been standing for several weeks.

"Now you are all square, sir."

"I vas vat?"

"You are square, I said."

"I vas square?"

"Yes, you are all square now."

Hans was silent for a moment, then, with reddening face and flashing eyes, he brought his plump fist down upon the counter and said:

"See here, mine frent, I will hav no more peesness mit you. I treat you like a shentleman. I pay my pill, und you make a shoke of me. You say I vas square ven I know I vas round as a parrel. I don't like such shokes. My peesness mit you vas done."—Tit-Bits.

The Red Earl.

Earl Spencer, whom Mr. Gladstone, according to Morley's "Life," would have named as his successor, is a great authority on co-operative trade. He carries his theory into practice on his own estate, where everything is done on the co-operative principle, to the great satisfaction of everyone concerned. The earl, who is now quite white, was at one time possessed of a rather fiery beard, and when he was in Ireland as Lord Lieutenant, he was one day watching the firing at the Dublin rifle ranges, when a small boy came up and remarked cheerfully: "Mr. Jones says you're to come at once, he's waiting for yer." The good earl mildly suggested that there must be some mistake, as he was unacquainted with Mr. Jones. "Oh, no; there ain't no mistake," said the lad; "he told me to give that message to the man with the ginger beard!"

A Radical.

"He poses as a reformer, doesn't he?"

"Oh, he's worse than a reformer. His ideas would upset the whole social and business world. He says if he had his way he'd put in jail everybody who ought to be there."

An Encouraging Message

I have a message of hope and good cheer, of encouragement and inspiration to every suffering woman. I have endured the torture due to female troubles and the consequent despondency and mental agony almost to the point of despair, and I have been restored from this condition to a state of vigorous health, and to the happy, exhilarating frame of mind which accompanies physical well-being. This change has been brought about wholly by the use of ORANGE LILY.

In addition, I have had the privilege and pleasure of inducing multitudes of other suffering women to give ORANGE LILY a trial, and have received thousands of enthusiastic acknowledgements of the blessings it has brought to them. The following is a sample:

Truro, N. S., April 5, 1901.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—Your very kind letter was received yesterday. In reply to your question about my health, I am thankful to say that I am very well. As I have never given you a statement of my case you may be interested in it.

For several years I have suffered untold agony. This suffering was continuous, but I would have violent attacks every few weeks, each attack lasting several days. The first Sunday in November, I felt the pain increasing and so did not go to prayers. The rest of the family did go and soon after the forcing down pains seized me and I had to remain on the floor until their return. I was in great pain all night, and was very sick for a whole week.

Then Mrs. L. came to see me and told me of your wonderful medicine. I got my husband to send for it right away, as I was too sick to write myself. (My doctor could do nothing for me.) I have used 6 boxes of ORANGE LILY, have had three months of good rest, and am now well, never better in my life. I have not had the old pains since. I often ask my husband if it is myself that is going around and doing my own work. I can scarcely believe it. It brings tears of joy to my eyes. I could shout it to all the world. I cannot speak enough in its praise.

Your friend, MRS. E. H. F.

Receiving as I do, dozens of such reports each day, I felt impelled to make known to my suffering sisters the merits of ORANGE LILY. It differs from the other so-called remedies in that it is not taken internally. It is a strictly local treatment, and is applied directly to the affected organs. Its curative elements are absorbed into the congested tissues, expelling the stagnant foreign matter which has been irritating the membrane and oppressing the nerves, and a growing feeling of physical and mental relief is noticeable almost from the start. It is a positive, scientific remedy, and even if you use no more than the Free trial Treatment you will be very materially benefitted.

FREE TRIAL OFFER.

I want every reader of this who suffers in any way from painful monthly periods, irregularities leucorrhœa, inflammation or congestion of the womb, pains in the back, etc., to send me their addresses, and I will forward at once, without charge, 10 days' treatment. If your case is not far advanced it may entirely cure you, and in any event it will do you much good. I am so earnest in making this statement, and so positive that it is true, that I trust every sufferer who reads this notice will take advantage of my offer and get cured at home, without a doctor's bill.

MRS. F. C. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.

ORANGE LILY is recommended and sold in Peterborough by Mr. W. B. Warne, Druggist, 348 George Street.

MR. L. WEAVER, GALT.

Who desires to publicly confirm the history of his remarkable recovery, as published quite recently by the daily press of Canada. Mr. Weaver was as bad a case of Consumption as might well be imagined. He was employed for five years in the grinding room of James Warnock & Co's, better known as "The Axe Factory," in Galt. Here he contracted consumption from the steel-laden dust. He persisted with local physicians' treatment for over a year, also consulted a number of lung specialists. They all did their utmost to cure, but declared Mr. Weaver's an incurable case of grinder's consumption giving him but three months to live. Mr. Weaver himself, despaired of a permanent cure, as two of his brothers before him had already died of consumption.

It is but seldom that any remedy receives such strong endorsement as Psychine is receiving daily. Seldom indeed that the cured come forward voluntarily to state their case a second time so that all may be convinced of the truth. The instance herein reported from the busy town of Galt, Ont., is a typical instance of what is occurring in every city, town, hamlet and country-side in this broad Dominion. Scores of people living in Galt were long ago conversant with the facts of this notable case: while to others the publication of it in the daily press came as a revelation.

Scores of people recently called upon Mr. Weaver to see if all that had been published was really true. Medical men evidenced a desire to see the good work wrought with Dr. Slocum's famous remedy, Psychine (Si-keen). Mr. Weaver has also been the recipient of hundreds of letters from all parts of the country enquiring as to his case.

Sad and sorrowful is the first chapter of the story told by the man whose case has excited the interest of Lung Specialists and of medical men and whose cure and complete restoration to health is the talk of Galt and the wonder of the medical profession. Such, in brief, are the opening remarks of the case of Mr. Weaver, of Galt, whose portrait appears above.

Mr. Weaver is to-day a splendid specimen of manhood and the picture of robust health. His lungs give him no more trouble. He is strong and healthy, eats and sleeps well, and feels better than he has for ten years.

Mr. Weaver's Case as given to the press, January 30th, 1904.

Dr. T. A. Slocum:—For five years I worked as a grinder in the James Warnock, better known as the Axe Factory, here. The dust from the grinding did for me what it has done for many others. It gave me "grinder's consumption." I was compelled, of course, to quit work. I persisted with two local physicians, and also consulted a number of lung specialists. Their diagnoses were all alike:—"You have Grinder's Consumption, and may possibly live three months, but you are liable to drop off at any time." This was over two years ago.

I then almost abandoned myself to what seemed my fate, my two brothers having died of consumption a few years previous. I was in an advanced stage of the disease, I was thin and weak, had night sweats, chills and fever, and a terrible cough.

I saw your advertisement of "Psychine," and determined to try it. Through the kind advice and assistance of REV. MR. KETTLEWELL, Methodist minister in charge here at that time, I procured your treatment. The very first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking six bottles I could walk down town and even work occasionally. Have since then entirely regained my health, and work hard every day. I can eat and sleep well. I feel better to-day than I have for years. I owe my life to Psychine.

Yours truly,
LEVI WEAVER.

Mr. Weaver's second statement after the above was published.

GALT, ONT.

Dr. T. A. Slocum:—The publication of the history of my case in Toronto and Galt papers has caused quite a sensation in this town. There have been scores of people ask me if such were really the case. I have also received by mail numbers of like enquiries. Some people hardly think it possible that I was so near death's door. But I can say for certain that Psychine saved my life and I bless the day I saw Psychine advertised and became convinced of its merits enough to try it. I have spread the good news in three counties, and shall ever continue to praise Psychine. Every word, as published January 30th, is true to the facts of the case.

Yours truly,
LEVI WEAVER.

FOR WEAK WOMEN.

Women Who Are Tired, Worn Out and Discouraged—Women Who Are Nervous and Hysterical and on the Verge of Despair—Women Who Are Almost Driven Crazy with Pain and Suffering.

MRS. EDWARDS.

Everywhere women are suffering from ailments which can be readily cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Headache, indigestion, nervous exhaustion, sleeplessness, irritability, dizzy spells, weakness and feelings of discouragement and despondency are among the symptoms, while troubles of a feminine nature are also directly traceable to an exhausted and run-down condition of the system.

An abundance of rich, red blood and a plentiful supply of nerve force are absolutely necessary to woman's health, and because of its extraordinary power as a creator of blood and nerve force Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has established a wonderful record as a cure for woman's ailments.

MRS. R. W. EDWARDS, 33 Murray Street, Brantford, Ont., describes her case as follows:—"For five years I have suffered more than words can tell from nervous headaches, nervous dyspepsia and exhaustion. The pains in my head would at times almost drive me crazy. I could not sleep nights, but would walk the floor in agony until I fell exhausted and unconscious, and my husband would have to carry me back to bed.

Sometimes I could take no food for four days at a time, and experienced terrible gnawing sensations in the stomach, had bad taste in the mouth and coated tongue. I was pale, nervous, irritable, easily exhausted, was reduced to a mere skeleton of skin and bone, and my heart would palpitate as though it was about to stop beating. My greatest suffering was caused by the dreadful pains in my head, neck and back, and all this was in spite of the best efforts of three leading doctors of this city.

"For the past nine months I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and for a considerable time I have not experienced a headache, nor any of the symptoms mentioned above. From a mere skeleton this medicine has built me up in flesh and weight, until now I am strong and well, do my own housework, walk out for two hours without feeling tired, and am thoroughly restored to health. Is it any wonder that words fail to express my gratitude for this remarkable cure? You can use this testimonial for the benefit of other sufferers."

FOREIGN HOME-SEEKERS

SKETCH OF SOME OF THE HORDES NOW ARRIVING IN CANADA.

A Thousand Immigrants Pass Through the Central Depot at Winnipeg—Busy Scenes in the Great West—Where the New Comers to the Land of Freedom Come From—With the Interpreter.

The Canadian who is not impressed by the mighty hosts moving in undiminishing volume through the Winnipeg distributing depot, all intent upon acquiring homes and participating in the fabulous wealth of the fertile prairies, can scarcely be inspired with that patriotic instinct and pardonable pride that is a part of the Dominion's history and tradition. For three weeks more than a thousand immigrants daily have passed through this central depot. For 127 days last year this prodigious mass of home-seekers kept up this ratio. Figures in possession of the department assure a material increase in 1904. And this represents less than two-thirds of the whole number of foreigners seeking the hospitality that Canada offers to all the world. It is a spectacle calculated to arouse the best emotions of the people of British America, the nations of Europe, of Asia and of the western hemisphere steadily pouring their surplus population into the lap of Western Canada.

With the Interpreter.

As five great transcontinental trains emptied their myriads of struggling, gesticulating, wildly excited inmates at the C.P.R. depot, standing beside Cyril Genick, the man of many languages, I enquired from whence came the representatives of so many nationalities. From the window the interpreter turned to a great map of the world exposed on the wall. With his thumb resting upon Norway and Sweden, the palm of his hand covering Austria-Hungary, the fingers spreading out over Southern Russia, the Black Sea, the Caspian, and extending far down through Persia and into Turkey and Egypt, the very cradle of the human race, Mr. Genick said: "Here, mostly."

Apparently the speaker was unmoved by sentiment—the thought of the tremendous forces swaying the multitude from over the sea, from lands that witnessed the dawn of civilization—all eager to tempt Dame Fortune in the Dominion's great west. The simple, matter-of-fact way in which the interpreter dismissed the subject, pregnant with interest for Canada and all the world, illustrates with irresistible force how common such scenes around the depot have become—"Here, mostly," that told the unique story.

It was an object lesson in Empire building, a fair measure of the scale of grandeur upon which these distant lands are being drawn and affording some idea of the vast scope of the immigration movement. It was these continentals that gave at once the picturesque and romantic tinge to the practical end of the hunt for homes, the cosmopolitan aspect that tells the Canadian how attractive his institutions are to lovers of liberty and industrial possibilities, how alluring to the victims of Asiatic tyranny, endured for thousands of years.

The Mixture of Types.

The tall son of Norway, with the blue of the vikings in his eyes, vied with a burly Galician from the northern provinces of Austria-Hungary, descendants of the fierce warriors that passed down the Vistula across the ancient boundary of Poland to swell the grand army of Napoleon as the conqueror swept on from Warsaw toward destruction; Mennonites from the valley of the Volga and Dnieper pushing and shoving the cringing, timid Russian Jew, who has learned too well the lessons of fear from the iron hands of the Russian ruler along the banks of the Ural; half-savage Slavs from the Caucasus Mountains sullenly giving way in the rush to the energetic Greeks from the vicinity of the Bosphorus; scowling illy-clad Italians refusing to give an inch to the onrush of many equally determined Nestorians, gathered from the southern banks of the Caspian and other sections of Persia, whose ancient military spirit remains unbroken in spite of fifteen centuries of ferocious persecution; the whole throng sprinkled with other nationalities, surging, swaying, grumbling and laughing alternately—this is the kaleidoscopic picture daily presented at the Winnipeg depot.

Nestorians Most Interesting.

The vernacular of these future citizens is as varied as their racial characteristics. Probably the most interesting of all this confusing array of humanity are the Nestorians—the sect today speaks the tongue spoken by Jesus and retains much of the traditional characteristics of the lowly people from the rugged and inhospitable mountains of Zebulon. It is like a page torn from sacred history—the appearance of these lineal descendants of the peasants of Galilee, from whom the Son of Man sprang, in the centre of British America, on the opposite side of the earth from which their progenitors witnessed that great drama of the human race at the dawn of the Christian era.

These immigrants bring with them to Canada their one religious symbol, the Cross, and exhibit all the profound religious fervor that history ascribes to the lowly people who derive their name from the pious bishop of Constantinople. Twenty centuries in the atmosphere of the Holy Land have given the race a devout conception of the Prophet of Man that even the furious persecutions of Nero and succeeding bloody monarchs could not shake. Prester John of romance was a Christian of this type, and their historians claim that even Mohammed learned what he knew of Christianity from the Nestorian monk, Sergius.

Their Aramaic vernacular sounds strangely out of place around the Winnipeg depot, mixed with the harsh and guttural variations that a corruption of the original tongue has accomplished. The rugged rural districts of Palestine are familiar to these Nestroians, who are to-day crowding into the free farms of Canada, and the locations of the events so striking in the eyes of the Christian world have been the abode of the race for two thousand years. From the shores of the Red Sea, where the waters engulfed Pharaoh's army, they are scattered around the rubbish heaps of the ten-times-taken City of Jerusalem, away from the scene of the Carpenter's martyrdom and up along the northern boundary of Persia. In Syria a hundred thousand of the sect still exist. These seeking homes around Winnipeg today are from the Caspian Sea and the Persian Gulf. How powerful the incentive must have been to force these religious folk away from the settled conditions of oriental life may be imagined.

True Descendants of Jacob.

But the Nestorians streaming into the west are not farmers. Though originally a pastoral people, these types are of a class occasionally seen passing through Ontario with packs on their backs—peddlers and itinerant merchants in a small way. But the traditional wit of the race clings to them in their new vocation. According to the immigration officials, the race which reaches back into antiquity to Abraham in tracing its table of consanguinity, acquiring through untold generations improvements on the trick by which their ancient ancestor Jacob led his father-in-law through the production of spotted and striped cattle to the system of peeling the bark from young trees and sprouts among which the partnership herds fed, do not require any Government protection in their trafficking in the new world.

It has been suggested that Canada is not obtaining from these sources the best material from which to mould her citizens. The west don't appear to look upon the problem in this light. Premier Roblin remarked to me upon the enthusiastic competition exhibited by these Continentals to get their children into the public schools, and forecasted for the next generation the elements of good citizenship at least.

But as a matter of fact there is a bright side to the story that does not appeal to the purely speculative mind. It is the fact that these Galicians, Russians and Nestorians are the remnant of a people who have contributed their share to history in the way of achievements for the betterment of mankind. The latter especially have their origin in a race whose devotion to Christian teachings has been a check to paganism for centuries. They have exhibited a mental and physical virility in a part of the earth that offers something towards the solution of the riddle of human existence. The spirit of the west receives these hordes with some discrimination, but with the conviction that a people imbued with a philosophy that sustains them in breaking away from their country and under conditions that the Anglo-Saxon resolution might well hesitate to meet, and traveling six thousand miles to find homes in the land of liberty and progress, must have within them the composition of which nations are constructed.—G. C. Porter in Toronto Sunday World.

TWO GREAT MEN.

Romantic History of Two Widely Different Types of the Makers of Canada—Papineau and Cartier.

It is strange to find two great men of such different types as Papineau and Cartier treated of under one cover and by one pen. But Mr. Alfred DeCelles has woven around these two great French-Canadians a story that is at once interesting and instructive. While it is said that these powerful leaders were the reverse of one another in methods and ideas, it is yet to be noted that they met at one point in their history. Cartier, as a matter of fact, fell under the influence of Papineau, and then branched off to lead his fellow-countrymen on better lines and to a better condition.

Papineau's Agitation.

Papineau, a man of remarkable oratorical power, came to the fore in Lower Canada before the concession of responsible government had been made. He felt deeply the conditions under which the province was ruled, and devoted himself to the agitation for reform embodying complete control by the people through their representatives. Antagonized by the governing men, he was soon at issue with the Governor, and his attitude, together with that of the Administration, affected the populace deeply. It does not appear that anybody experienced any oppression or restriction personally. The masses rather felt that they were the objects of political ostracism. The theory that they were deprived of the right of choice, chiefly for racial reasons, was, we may be sure, by no means calculated to reconcile them to the regime under which they lived. Papineau and his companions worked upon the sensibilities of their compatriots, and passed far beyond the limits of constitutional agitation in their efforts to bring about a change. It is impossible to read of their proceedings without remembering that Joseph Howe secured constitutional government in Nova Scotia without, as he once said, firing a shot, or even breaking a pane of glass.

The Revolt in 1837.

Agitation was accompanied by unfortunate advice. Rebellion was spoken of, and a proposal was made to memorialize the Congress of the United States to interfere. At this point many of the supporters of Papineau dropped aside. They were not prepared to pass into the perilous path which was opening up before them. But numbers of people saw the thing through, and among them was a young man—a descendant of Jacques Cartier, the discoverer of Canada—by name Georges Etienne Cartier. Cartier was a young lawyer. Although a close student of what was going on around him, he supposed that he and his compatriots were banned by the British. When he heard, as others did, that Papineau, the tribune of the people, was to be arrested for seditious language, he made to the place where the leader was to deliver his next speech. As serious work was impending, he was armed. The anticipated trouble came. The military appeared, and there was a fight. Papineau escaped, and was for years an exile. Young Cartier spent a winter in concealment, and then hastened to the United States, returning, however, when an amnesty was announced. The leader also came back later on. He was irreconcilable, and after a brief political career was supplanted by a more moderate man, Mr. Lafontaine. Papineau then went into retirement, and made his home at his beautiful seat, Montebello, on the Ottawa, dying soon after Confederation was accomplished.

Rise of Cartier.

Georges E. Cartier entered public life in 1849, representing the County of Vercheres. The times were troublous, and the sentiments of the two races towards each other were none too cordial. One of the first things the coming statesman did was to reproach the leaders of the agitation which had resulted in making him a rebel. Of Papineau he said that he should have used his great influence to give better advice to his fellow-countrymen. Then he turned his attention to the healing of the wounds. He was an early advocate of Confederation, and at the same time a valiant defender of the rights of his compatriots. Making an alliance with Sir John Macdonald, he succeeded in uniting the interests of the French and English. He was not afraid to say that he was a French-speaking Britisher. Nobody did more than did Cartier to produce harmony and to combine the two great races on the basis of mutual interest.

Honored by the Queen.

For his work in behalf of Confederation Cartier became a baronet. But there was an unfortunate incident in connection with this honor. The Confederation distinctions when distributed revealed the fact that the Upper Canadian leader, Mr. John A. Macdonald, had been created a knight, but that Cartier had been given a simple C. B. Mr. Cartier promptly declined the decoration. He had been a prime factor in the completion of the union, and the inferior distinction was a reflection upon his race and upon his work. One of the leaders to protest against the discrimination was Sir Charles Tupper. After that Sir George Cartier was gazetted a baronet.

Defeat and Death.

It is a melancholy fact that a man who stood so high and did so much should have suffered a humiliating defeat. But such was Cartier's fate. East Montreal went back upon him on a question with which he had no connection, and he passed out of Parliament, in the height of his power, never to re-enter its doors, for death shortly afterwards claimed him. Papineau created a condition that was not hopeful for peace in this country. Cartier, once his follower, corrected his error, and helped to give us a consolidated Canada.

Minced Beef.

An English medical authority recommends minced beef to people who are growing old as the most nourishing food known to repair the loss of vital energy.

Prayer and Practice.

"Did the deacon pray at the meeting?"

"Yep. Wound up his prayer with a plea to help us overlook the faults o' others."

"Well, he allus does that."

"I know, but as soon as he got up from his knees he turned around an' scowled at Beasley's baby because it squawked once or twice while he was prayin'."

The Way Wings grow on Weights

It's no use for people to try to be light-hearted if they are suffering in their bodies.

They are borne down by a heavy weight, it is impossible to be cheerful.

Life with them is a dark, cloudy existence, and no matter how bravely they try to bear up against it nothing results but the effort.

The hope is turned into a blank wall, the song is changed into a groan.

But the causes of this condition may be removed. The inactivity of the internal organs can be aroused once more.

Anti-Pill balances the system, restores organic harmony and touches a responsive chord that communicates its influence to animate the weak places.

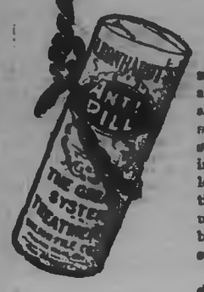
Anti-Pill is not a drug, nor had it any dragging qualities. It acts so as to lessen its own requirement, until the system is restored to a normal condition of health, when the shackles of disease are loosed, the burden is raised, and brightness and cheer once more dawn upon the oppressed body.

The natural supply of gastric juice will destroy germ life and prevent disease. Anti-Pill strengthens the stomach organs so that they provide the necessary amount of gastric juice required for preventing fermentation of food.

Anti-Pill also promotes a natural supply of bile which is nature's disinfectant for the bowels.

Expert medical testimony has decided that nearly all forms of disease, either acute or chronic, are caused by fermentation and putrefication of food in the stomach and alimentary canal. Anti-Pill is a creation based upon this very testimony and it is no wonder that it has accomplished marvelous results.

ANTI-PILL REMOVES THE BURDEN OF ILL-HEALTH



For deranged appetite, fullness and weight in the stomach after eating, dizziness, headache, easily tired, fagged, failing strength, sleeplessness, gas in stomach, drowsiness and mental inactivity, pain in back, hip and loins, backache, heart palpitation, breath heavy and offensive, urine loaded with sediment, biliousness, dyspepsia and constipation, use ANTI-PILL.

Anti-Pill never fails with elderly persons: "I will be sixty-five years old in March. Up to three years ago I was a remarkably healthy man, being seldom if ever sick. I had a severe attack of congestion of the liver which left my health shattered. I could eat very little and gradually wasted away to a mere shadow of my former self. I tried physicians and medicines, none of which did me any good, some doing me positive harm.

One day I saw an advertisement of Anti-Pill, and as a last resort I went to the corner drug store and purchased a bottle. At that time my stomach was in a fearful condition; I could eat nothing without the most distressing nausea and life was actually a burden.

After I took the first dose of Anti-Pill I felt better and have improved from that day to this. I now weigh 185 pounds, eat heartily, and enjoy every mouthful." (Mr. J. Brudd, Omaha, Neb.)

One Man's Insane Idea.

The writer once entered into conversation with the inmate of an asylum, at the request of the superintendent, who said he was a monomaniac and invited me to find out if I could the particular point of his insanity. "It is a rum subject to go mad on, I must say," he added, by way of helping me. I tried him on various subjects without success; in fact, he seemed better informed than myself, and I was turning to go when he tapped me on the shoulder and whispered in my ear:

"It's a long time coming, isn't it?"

"What is?" I asked.

"Why, the day of Pentecost, of course!" he answered.

And that was the only irrational thing he said during the whole interview.—London Tit-Bits.

THIS MORNING'S POLICE COURT

Wages case Discharged—Case of non Support.

At the police court this morning a wages case was dismissed, the evidence of the employer and employee was of a very contradictory nature. The complainant claimed a month's wages although she had worked but two days and had received her fare to Peterborough from an outside city. The case was not proved and was dismissed.

E. W. Chesley was charged with vagrancy. He pleaded guilty but promised to make his exit from town at once. He was discharged with a warning to disappear as soon as possible.

Jas. Longdo was charged with non-support of his wife. The latter was present and claimed that she had received but $5.50 from her husband since last October and that he worked only a small portion of his time and spent his money chiefly in spirituous drinks. The defendant claimed that he had put much of his money in the garden, not literally of course, but in purchasing seed, etc., and that he had two acres of potatoes growing. A spirited cross questioning between the husband and wife enlivened the court's proceedings and the magistrate finally enlarged the case for a week, Longdo promising to pay his wife $4.00 per week.

TEN REASONS IN FAVOUR OF UNION.

Rev. J. G. Potter a Warm Advocate of Union of the Churches.

The members and ministers of the Presbyterian Church have been active in the church union movement, and the proposal has met with a warm response from them. This morning Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's church, gave the Examiner an interview on this question, in which he said:—

"Since you have asked me to express an opinion regarding the union of the Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian churches, I have arranged my views under ten reasons why I am most heartily in favour with such union.

1. These churches are identical as their form of worship, in methods of procedure, and in church government.

2. A very strong practical unity exists in their unstinted support of every social, educational and moral reform.

3. These churches have been looked to for a very large share in the responsibility in carrying forward successfully, County, Provincial and International work in Sunday School, Christian Endeavour and Temperance interests. This has driven them together and has very largely tended to nullify the differences existing between them, and has presented a field of Christian service of great magnificence and magnitude.

4. Christians belonging to these churches have come to see with great shame stamped upon their face, that it is a disgrace to find in small communities two and three bright young workers ministering to twenty or thirty people separated in the worship and work of God although united and harmonious in all other conceivable relationships of life. These young men must report progress and growth at the completion of their term. Such a state of things has only led to unhallowed methods that have, alas, been too often practiced by all the known branches of the church, and in the name of Christ. When one studies the conditions, is it any wonder that the world looks on and ridicules? And is it any wonder, that, in such places referred to, after years of faithful work, many of the people have not made much advance morally or spiritually?

5. These churches in their sacraments have never been, and, by their very constitution, can never be exclusive. In redeeming and receiving members there is no respect of persons with them; but from every Christian church he that feareth God and worketh righteousness is accepted with them in the name of Christ. They are not to blame it in this respect they find themselves standing on common ground. With their eyes centred upon the same grand ideal they have merged in spirit and practice and it is found to be the most natural consequence that they shall declare what they have experienced and testify to what they have witnessed as they have laboured together in the wider spheres of Christian usefulness. The Kingdom of God is vaster than any church, and as no one church can give a guarantee of eternal life, our service lies in a larger and more secure arena in which we use the church and her means of grace as the instruments in the hands of God for the discipling of the whole world.

6. They hold the same Gospel truth as it is essential to Salvation and eternal life. If in the past they have contended over the question whether the skilful physician or the sick patient was the more important, they have come at last to see that only as they spend their energies in applying the remedy will the spirit of God own and bless their work in the salvation of souls. Thus have they been drawn together again in much fruitful evangelistic work. Too many decades have been spent in perpetuating differences and distructions that have perished with the history of each promulgator. Are we going to be party to this foolish practice while the world needs all our energies in its elevation and brightening?

7. A most important condition confronts us as Canadians to-day. We are builders of a nation and with the rapid material prosperity there is prompted in the heart of every true patriot the desire that in every solitary part of our growing Dominion there should be corresponding enlightenment, Spiritual as well as educational and industrial. "Let your light so shine before men. . . . That they might glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

This can best be accomplished by pushing forward large numbers of pioneers. This means men and money—Christian men and consecrated money. In union a large force of men, and considerable financial help would be released, and the great work would be accomplished with much better effectiveness. The work will be pushed forward, not to promote a church, but to win souls for Christ—not to perpetuate division and schism, but to heal the breach by the positive declaration of the truth as it is in Christ. Christ is not divided and we know that God approves

8. It is certainly reassuring to find as the advocates of union men who have for half a century been most forward in their own church's work, to whose untiring devotion and service much of the present strength of these churches is due. It is also most encouraging to notice that the opponents of union have not been found within the ranks of any of these denominations. All are impressed with the need of it. All seem to feel that toward that goal we have been looking and working. Why must our pious prayers wait for their fulfilment in generations to come, when Christians now have the opportunity, if they will exercise wisdom and grace, in working in harmony with the will of God?

9. Our Lord's petition taught to His disciples, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven," leads me to feel that Christ has made it possible for this earth, what we expect to find in Heaven, so far as oneness and harmony among believers is concerned. No one questions the unity and harmony of heaven. Christ prayed for that will to be done here, and with the curiosity of a student in the science of Christian politics I am impatient to see the experiment tried. For I believe that Christ's great longing desire was that His church should be a witness in the world of Him who came to reconcile us all to God.

10. It will be a magnificent object lesson to the world that in true spiritual growth all that is not in harmony with the life of Christ will be set aside, all points of controversy dropped in favour of positive teaching—all causes of friction removed, and everything that hinders the spiritual life and work will be abandoned. True there will be difficulties and dangers, but that only suggests that it is worthy of our highest, best and noblest efforts, and there is everything that is fascinationg and heroic in undertaking a problem that is at once going to be a spiritual blessing to its members, an untold boon to thousands outside the reach of any Christian church to-day, and from every standpoint glorifying to God.

Our one great purpose must ever be "For the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ: That we henceforth be no more children tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men and cunning craftiness whereby they lie in wait to deceive; But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into Him in all things, which is the head, even Christ. From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love."

GENERALLY SPEAKING

CHURCH UNION, whose academic discussion is much in evidence these days, may be an amiable dream of its advocates, more approximate in consummation, it is to be hoped, than the millennium, but there is no doubt that the ministers of Peterborough are getting together in a very material and neighbourly way. The purchase of the Cahill property, corner of Reid and King streets, as noted in yesterday's issue, by All Saints' for a parsonage, makes a nest of ministerial habitants perhaps unprecedented in any city or town in Canada. On the corner mentioned will reside Rev. W. Major, Rector of All Saints'. On the opposite corner of the next square is the residence of Rev. Dr. Torrance. A stone's throw north from All Saints' new rectory, is the residence of an apostle of Wesley, Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, while from the same point, a short distance away, about the length of a midsummer sermon, at the head of King street, is the manse of Rev. A. H. Brace, the pastor of the flock that foregathers on Sundays in the Park street Baptist church. Here we have a ministerial quartette, all steering their flocks heavenward by ways almost as theologically varied as the four points of the compass. Whether this conjunction, as to habitat of ministerial planets, affords any encouragement to the advocates of church union, it certainly indicates a measure of corporate unity, in which the four doubtless dwell, and will dwell, together in topical unity, no matter how much in their official capacity they may exchange "apostolic blows and knocks."

* * *

TO CHANGE THE SUBJECT, let us make a note of the occupation on Monday next, by the Dickson Company, of their new suite of offices, on Hunter street. To the oldest residents this suggests many thronging recollections. The industry represented by the Dickson Company is, with, perhaps, the exception of the William Hamilton establishment and the Peter Hamilton Agricultural Works—if they are an exception, is one of the oldest in Peterborough. It is intimately associated with the start in life of this thrifty town, for it is to the lumbering industry that we largely owe our initial importance as a commercial and industrial centre. For more than half a century the Dickson Company, or, at least, the enterprise now represented by it, has been a factor in Peterborough's prosperity. In one sense we have always had it with us, and therefore perhaps its importance is less appreciated, for it is a matter of history that this company has never received an excess of consideration—in proportion to its importance—from a section of our people or from successive town councils. Very few perhaps know and those who know do not perhaps sufficiently reflect upon what the operations of the Company mean to Peterborough. During the year the Company continuously gives, on their limits, drives and mills, remunerative employment, 400 men — all adults, earning men's wages, and about sixty teams. This means that they distribute in cash, and have done so for the past 30 years, an average of $300,000 per year in wages, and for supplies, all of which are purchased in Peterborough. A simple calculation shows that in the past thirty years the Company's operations have been the means of distributing in Peterborough — $300,000 x 30 years equals $9,000,000—nearly ten million dollars of the blood of business injected into the local arteries of trade. This is not mentioned by way of boast, but to stimulate a little reflection on the part of our citizens, as to the immense importance of our manufacturing industries in relation to the prosperity of the town and county. They are the very life blood of the town because, excluding them from the reckoning, and withdrawing their influence, our commercial interests would be very seriously dwarfed.

ANY SOUL TO ANY BODY.

So we must part, my body, you and I,
Who've spent so many pleasant years together!
'Tis sorry work to lose your company,
Who clove to me so close, whate'er the weather,
From winter unto winter, wet or dry.
But you have reached the limit of your tether,
And I must journey on my way alone
And leave you quietly beneath a stone.

They say that you are altogether bad!
(Forgive me; 'tis not my experience)
And think me very wicked to be sad
At leaving you, a clod, a prison, whence
To get quite free I should be very glad.
Perhaps I may be so some few days hence,
But now, methinks, 'twere graceless not to spend
A tear or two on my departing friend.

Now our long partnership is near completed,
And I look back upon its history,
I greatly fear I have not always treated
You with the honesty you showed to me,
And I must own that you have oft defeated
Unworthy schemes by your sincerity
And by a blush or stammering tongue have tried
To make me think before I lied.

'Tis true you're not so handsome as you were,
But that's not your fault, and is partly mine.
You might have lasted longer with more care
And still looked something like your first design.
And even now, with all your wear and tear,
'Tis pitiful to think I must resign
You to the friendless grave, the patient prey
Of all the hungry legions of decay.

But you must stay, dear body, and I go,
And I was once so very proud of you!
You made my mother's eyes to overflow
When first she saw you, wonderful and new.
And now, with all your faults, 'twere hard to find
A slave more willing or a friend more true.
Aye, even they who say the worst about you
Can scarcely tell what I shall do without you.

—Corne Monkhouse.

A JAPANESE LEGEND.

Origin of a Strange Insect Found Only In Himeji.

Lafcadio Hearn gives a curious tradition about a strange insect which is found only in Himeji, a pretty little town near the center of Japan: It seems there once lived a rich noble in a castle on the outskirts of the town who was famous for the magnificence of his dishes, among which were ten priceless bowls of solid gold. In his employ was a maidservant of good family, whose name was O-Kiku, to whom was intrusted the care of the precious plate, but to her great despair one day one of the gold dishes was missing. She searched diligently in vain, and, not knowing how to prove her innocence, in her despair drowned herself in a well, but her ghost returned nightly to the spot and could be heard counting the dishes slowly, with sobs, "Ichi-mai, ni-mai, san-mai, yo-mai, go-mai, roku-mai, shichi-mai, hachi-mai, ku-mai," up to nine, when there would follow a loud, wailing cry, and the uncanny count began over again. At last the uneasy spirit passed into the body of an insect whose head somewhat resembles a ghost with long, tousled hair, and in that part of Japan it is considered unlucky to cultivate the chrysanthemum, as the girl's name, O-Kiku, means chrysanthemum.

The Dieting of Pet Dogs.

Pet dogs require to be put on a starvation diet occasionally, as well as men and women," said a fancier who makes a specialty of doctoring pets.

"Nine times out of ten, when a woman rushes in here and tells me that her dog is poisoned, I can see at a glance that it's nothing but a case of overfeeding. I put the dog on a milk and water diet for two weeks, make up a simple prescription for the owner to take home with her pet when I am through with it and collect $25. Do I tell her so? Certainly not. She wouldn't believe me if I did. Women rich enough to stuff their pets with candy and such things like to think that they know more about the ailments of their Fidos and their Princes than I do."

The Perfect Waiter.

The complete waiter, like the angler and the poet, is born, not made. Fortunately, however, for the comfort of the world, a great waiter is born a good deal more frequently than a great poet. Both must have a remarkable combination of faculties. The perfect waiter must handle the knife like a skilled surgeon; plates, dishes, forks and spoons like a conjurer; know as much of the dishes he serves as any epicure; be as quick on his feet as a ballet girl and as sweet in his temper as an angel. It is a tribute to the possibilities of human nature to say that such Admirable Crichtons can be found.—London Telegraph.

A WOMAN'S SYMPATHY.

Are you discouraged? Is your doctor's bill a heavy financial load? Is your pain a heavy physical burden? I know what these mean to delicate women—I have been discouraged, too, but learned how to cure myself. I want to relieve your burdens. Why not end the pain and stop the doctor's bill? I can do this for you and will if you will assist me.

All you need to do is to write for a free box of the remedy which has been placed in my hands to be given away. Perhaps this one box will cure you—it has done so for others. If so I shall be happy and you will be cured for the cost of a postage stamp. Your letters held confidentially. Write to-day for my free treatment. Mrs. F. D. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont. Orange Lily is recommended and sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warnem 908 George street. s-w

FRIDAY'S SENATE SESSION.

Several Divorce Bills Read a Second Time —Other Business.

Ottawa, May 21.—The Senate sat for an hour yesterday and adjourned to May 31st.

The petition of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, praying to be heard at the bar of the Senate, was read.

Hon. Mr. Gowan, whose first appearance for the session was received with acclamation, presented the report of the Divorce Committee.

Hon. Mr. Cloran presented the first report of the special committee to investigate the position of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, asking power to examine witnesses on oath. He explained that the special permission was sought as the statute was not distinct. He moved the adoption of the report, which was carried.

Hon. Mr. David gave notice that he will move for a return of all correspondence between the Federal and Provincial Government respecting increased subsidies.

Bills For Divorce.

A bill for the relief of Eliza Robinson was read a first time.

The following bills were read a second time and sent to committee:

To incorporate the Boundary, Kamloops & Cariboo Central Railway.

Respecting the Edmonton & Slave Lake Railway Company.

For the relief of Andrew William Mann.

For the relief of Annie Christman.

For the relief of Jennie Davison Moore.

Hon. Mr. Kerr's (Toronto) bill to amend the Insurance Act was set for the second reading on June 1.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell gave notice of a motion for a return of the report to Council and order for the appointment of J. B. Jackson, commercial agent at Leeds, England.

RAINY RIVER MAN HAD TROUBLES

Till Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured his Kidneys

Then his Rheumatism and other Pains Vanished once and for all—His Case only one of Many.

Barwick, Ont., May 20. — (Special.) —That Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Rheumatism, or any other disease resulting from disordered kidneys is the experience of many of the settlers in this Rainy River country. The case of William John Dixon of this place, is a fair sample of the work the great Canadian Kidney Remedy is doing.

"I had rheumatism so bad that I had to use a stick to walk. I had pains in my back and right hip and I had no comfort in sleeping.

"I could no more dress or undress myself for nearly two months, and I was for nearly three weeks I could not lace my right shoe.

"My brother advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and I did so. After taking three boxes I could walk around and lace up my shoes, and do my work, and six boxes cured me completely."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure for sick Kidneys. Sick Kidneys are the result of nine-tenths of the ills the human family suffers from.

Taxing Wealth at the Cape.

Cape Town, May 20.—The budget submitted by Mr. Walton, the Cape Treasurer, to the House of Assembly proposes:

1. Excise duty of 6s. per gallon on brandy, producing £350,000.

2. Duty of 3d. per gallon on beer, producing £75,000.

3. Income tax of 6d. in the pound from £500 to £2,000, and of 1s. in the pound above £2,000 except on the first £5000. This would produce £275,000—of which De Beers would have to pay £145,000.

The Treasurer estimated that there would be a surplus of £155,000 at the end of the year.

Chinks on Way to Mines.

New York May 20.—A trainload of Chinese arrived from Canada yesterday on their way to the mines in South Africa. Their bundles tied together in every imaginable form, were piled in big heaps at the station and attracted a great deal of attention. The Chinese were of all sizes and ages, the youngest being about 17. All wore straw hats. The man in charge said they had come from various parts of Canada.

An Open Letter.

From the Chapin, S. C., News: Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhoea, and so severe were the pains that we called in a physician, who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand, gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. C. Bailey, Editor. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

Loss of $12,000.

St. Jacobs, May 20.—The Conestogo Flour Mills, together with warehouse, owned by Menno Snider, were totally destroyed by fire at 5 o'clock yesterday morning; also about 3,000 bushels of wheat and between one and two hundred barrels flour. The loss is about $12,000; insurance $8,000.

Marratt Is Insane.

Calgary, May 20.—Frank Marratt, the young Frenchman, who killed his brother at Canmore last Wednesday, was acquitted on a plea of insanity. Medical evidence was given for the defence, and was unanimous. The jury was out ten minutes. Marratt will be committed to an insane asylum.

Little Girl Drowned.

Kemptville, May 20.—The little daughter of Alexander Hyndman of Mountain township, near Kemptville, was drowned in their well a few days ago. There was a loose board in the well platform to permit of hanging a milk can in the water and the little one slipped through.

SANK IN DEEP WATER

Turret Bay Wrecked and Capt. Hayden and Part of Crew Lost.

IN HEAVY SEA AND DENSE FOG

Steamer Mistook Fog Alarm For Another Steamer's Whistle and Went Aground on St. Paul's Island, North of Cape Breton—For a Few Moments She Clung on the Rocks Then Went Down.

Halifax, N. S., May 21.—A despatch from St. Paul's Island, north of Cape Breton, yesterday, reads as follows:

"A terrible disaster here this morning. The Turret Bay, from Sydney for Montreal, with coal, struck near the southwest lighthouse at 8.30 a. m., during a heavy sea and dense fog. She backed off and sank in deep water, twenty minutes after she struck. We took fourteen men off floating wreckage with boats. Five died before reaching the shore. Survivors are doing well. Will wire later total number lost. The steamer mistook fog alarm for another steamer's whistle."

This news, following so close on the wreck of the Hibernian, caused consideable consternation in shipping circles. The Turret Bay left Sydney at 8.30 o'clock Thursday evening with a full cargo of 3,333 tons of coal for the Dominion Coal Company, Montreal. It was thick with fog and along the coast it was literally impenetrable. All went well until between 3 and 4 o'clock, when without a moment's warning the heavily laden vessel crashed into St. Paul's Island. For a few moments she hung on the rocks and then backed off into deep water, sinking in twenty minutes. The Turret Bay carried a crew of twenty-three, and only nine escaped.

This was the steamer's first trip of the season up the gulf, having only arrived from England a few days ago. It was Capt. Hayden's first trip on a steamer, he having previously sailed sailing vessels. He is married to a Halifax lady and lives in Limerick. The captain's inexperience is thought to have had something to do with it. The Turret Bay was built on Wall's End-on-Tyne in 1893 and was owned by the Canadian Lake and Ocean Navigation Company of Toronto.

The following were saved: — Mason, third engineer; J. Hacker, John Soderholm, Jacob Kristersen, firemen; John G. Johnson, John Niggust, Jacob Tresmeden, Gustave Gustaveesen, sailors; C. Anderson, carpenter. The dead are: — Grey, second mate; the steward, name unknown; Harry Buck, mess-room boy; — Lyindercot, fireman; the donkey man, name unknown.

The missing, as near as known, are: Capt. Hayden, First Mate McCara, Chief Engineer W. H. McAdam, Second Engineer Mathews, Boatswain Johnston, Fireman J. Brown, Sailor Hollfirst, cook, name unknown.

Chinamen Burned to Death.

Montreal, May 21.—Two Chinamen, Lee Lung and Lee Hays, are dead, and Pan Long and Lee Moy fatally injured as a result of a fire which broke out in their laundry at the corner of Mouat St. Mary avenue and St. Antoine street early yesterday morning. The fire was extinguished within ten minutes of its discovery, but before the firemen effected an entrance the two were dead, and the others badly injured. The laundry was in a small two-storey building, and the damage is consequently very slight.

Drowned in a Pit.

Newtonville, May 21.—William Ovens, farmer, and respected resident, 80 years old, was found dead last evening on his farm. He was subject to fainting spells. He was crossing a small creek and fell on his face. When found life was extinct.

Probably Drowned.

Winnipeg, May 21.—It is reported at Brandon that Steve Hickling, a young Englishman, was drowned in the Assiniboine at Kemnay bridge Thursday night. He is supposed to have gone bathing, as his clothes were found upon the bank.

Lost His Left Leg.

Peterboro, May 21.—At the Nicholl's Hospital Thursday night, William Maxwell, a young man from Irondale, had his left leg amputated above the knee as a result of an accident at Gull Lake. The unfortunate young man was employed with the Dickson Lumber Company and had his leg crushed while working on a boom. The operation was successful, and the patient is doing well.

Hurt While Fishing.

Windsor, May 21.—James Taylor of Windsor met with a serious accident yesterday, which may result in the amputation of both legs. While fishing from one of the spring piles at the Canadian Pacific ferry slip, his legs were caught between the piles by the bumping of one of the huge car ferries, which was just landing. Taylor was removed to his home, where he lies in a very serious condition.

New Hope—New Courage.

Persons whose nerves are affected get blue and discouraged, are easily irritated and annoyed and learn to look on the dark side. The restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon shows its effect on the feelings. It gives new hope and courage, new energy and confidence. By creating nerve force it affords new vigour and vitality for both mind and body.

Did Not Stop British Ship.

Rio Janeiro, May 19.—There is no truth in the report that Brazilian officials stopped a British ship at Manaos, on the Amazon River, May 13, on the ground that she had on board 260 cases of ammunition destined for the Peruvian forces.

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough." This remedy keeps the cough loose, lessens the severity and frequency of the coughing spells and counteracts any tendency towards pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

We Shall Buy a Million

Bottles of Liquozone and Give Them to the Sick.

We have purchased for $100,000 the American rights to Liquozone. We thus control the only way to kill germs in the body and end a germ disease. We want the sick to know this product, and at once. So we make this remarkable offer. We will buy a million 50c bottles and give them to a million sick ones. Will you—if you need it—let us buy one for you?

Costs $500,000

We publish this offer in every great newspaper in America. The cost of the offer, we expect, will reach $500,000. We pay that price because it seems the only way to quickly let the sick know what Liquozone does.

The greatest value of Liquozone lies in the fact that it kills germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. And no man knows another way to do it. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Liquozone does in germ troubles what all the drugs, all the skill in the world, cannot do without it. It cures diseases which medicine never cures.

Acts Like Oxygen

Liquozone is the result of a process which men have spent over 20 years in perfecting. Its virtues are derived solely from gas, made in large part from the best oxygen producers. By a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time, these gases are made part of the liquid product.

The result is a product that does what oxygen does. Oxygen gas, as you know, is the very source of vitality. Liquozone is a vitalizing tonic with which no other known product can compare. But germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter. Yet this wonderful product which no germ can resist, is, to the human body the most essential element of life.

Germ Diseases

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, wherever they are, and the results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.

Asthma, Abscess—Anemia, Bronchitis, Blood Poison, Bright's Disease, Bowel Troubles, Coughs—Colds, Consumption, Colic—Cramp, Constipation, Catarrh—Cancer, Dysentery—Diarrhea, Dandruff—Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Hay Fever—Influenza, Kidney Diseases, La Grippe, Leucorrhea, Liver Troubles, Malaria—Neuralgia, Many Heart Troubles, Piles—Pneumonia, Pleurisy—Quinsy, Rheumatism, Skin Diseases, Scrofula—Syphilitis, Stomach Troubles, Throat Troubles, Eczema—Erysipelas, Fevers—Gall Stones, Goitre—Gout, Gonorrhea—Gleet, Tuberculosis, Tumors—Ulcers, Varicocele, Woman's Diseases.

All diseases that begin with fever—all inflammation—all catarrh—all contagious diseases—all the results of impure or poisonous blood.

In nervous debility Liquozone acts as a vitaliser, accomplishing what no drugs can do.

50c Bottle Free

If you need Liquozone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on your local druggist for a full size bottle, and we will pay your druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you; to show you what Liquozone is, and what it can do. In justice to yourself, please accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligation whatever.

Liquozone costs 50c. and $1.

PIANO TUNERS.

They Are Masters of Harmony, but Few Know Written Music.

The piano tuner was jangling the keys with one hand as he twisted and swung his little hammer at the pins with the other. Now and then he would strike a chord nonchalantly, but he never pretended to produce any succession of sounds that resembled a theme or phrase of music. He wound up with a final jangle of chords that were harmonic, but not in any manner related to one another. Then he screwed on the front of the case and announced that the tuning was finished.

"Won't you play something for me?" asked the mistress of the household expectantly.

"I am afraid I can't gratify you, madam," was the response. "I can't play."

"Not play? I should think any person with such knowledge of harmony would be a master of music," said the woman.

"The tuner is a master of harmony, or his ear is," said the man, "but few of us know written music. We don't need it in our business. All a tuner has to have is an acute ear for notes and their harmony. With the pitch of a fork set at a certain point he has a basis to start from, and all he does is to give each string on the instrument its proper grade in the scale. It takes a mighty fine ear and much training of the sense of hearing, but that is all there is to it."

RHEUMATISM CURED.

I WILL REFUND YOUR MONEY IF IT FAILS TO CURE.

I want every sufferer from Rheumatism to try my Rheumatism Cure. I know it will positively cure Rheumatism in any part of the body. I know it cures sharp shooting pains in the Arms, Legs, Side, Back or Breast and Rheumatic Swelling or Soreness of any part of the body in a few hours.

It effects a speedy and permanent cure of all forms of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, or pain in the back, Lameness, Stiff and Swollen Joints, and all pains in hips and loins. This remedy does not put the disease to sleep, but drives it from the system. It neutralizes the acid and makes good, rich, red blood.

Get a 25c bottle of this remedy, and if you are not perfectly satisfied with the results I will refund you money.—Munyon. 249

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, itchiness of the skin, eruptions or blotches, ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general depression of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old fogy" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will protect you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the patient feels prepared anew for the duties and the pleasures of life. CURES GUARANTEED OR NO PAY. 25 Years in Detroit. 250,000 Cured.

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA

By Booth Tarkington.

CHAPTER VII.

THE moon had risen, and there was a lace of mist along the creek when John and Helen reached their bench. (Of course they went back there.) She turned to him with a little frown.

"Why have you never let Tom Meredith know you were living so near him—less than a hundred miles—when he has always liked and admired you above all the rest of mankind? I know that he has tried time and again to hear of you, but the other men wrote that they knew nothing, that it was thought you had gone abroad. I had heard of you, and so has he seen your name in the Rouen papers—about the White Caps and in politics—but he would never dream of connecting the Plattville Mr. Harkless with his Mr. Harkless; though I did, just a little, in a vague way. I knew you, of course, when you came into Mr. Halloway's lecture the other evening. But why haven't you written to my cousin?"

"Rouen seems rather far away to me," he answered quietly. "I've been there only once, half a day on business. Except that, I've never been much farther than Amo—and then for a convention or to make a speech—since I came here."

"Wicked," she exclaimed, "to shut yourself up like this! I said it was fine to drop out of the world, but why have you cut off your old friends from you? Why haven't you had a relapse now and then and come over to hear Ysaye play and Melba sing, or to see Mansfield or Henry Irving, when we have had them? And do you think you've been quite fair to Tom? What right had you to assume that he had forgotten you?"

"Oh, I didn't exactly mean forgotten," he said, pulling a blade of grass to and fro between his fingers and staring at it absently. "It's only that I have dropped out of the world, you know. They rather expected me to do a lot of things, and I haven't done them. Possibly it is because I am sensitive that I never let Tom know. They expected me to amount to something, but I don't believe his welcome would be less hearty to a failure—he is a good heart."

"Failure!" she cried and clapped her hands and laughed.

"I'm really not very tragic about it, though I must seem consumed with self pity," he returned, smiling. "It is only that I have dropped out of the world while Tom is still in it."

"'Dropped out of the world!'" she echoed impatiently. "Can't you see you've dropped into it? That you"—

"Last night I was honored by your praise of my graceful mode of quitting it!"

"And so you wish me to be consistent," she retorted scornfully. "What becomes of your gallantry when we abide by reason?"

"True enough; equality is a denial of privilege."

"And privilege is a denial of equality? I don't like that at all." She turned a serious, suddenly illuminated face upon him and spoke earnestly: "It's my bobby, I should tell you, and I'm tired of that nonsense about 'women always sounding the personal note.' It should be sounded as we would sound it. And I think we could bear the loss of 'privilege'"—

He laughed and raised a protesting hand. "But we couldn't."

"No, you couldn't. It's the ribbon of superiority in your buttonhole. I know several women who manage to live without men to open doors for them, and I think I could bear to let a man pass before me now and then or wear his hat in an office where I happened to be, and I could get my own ice at a dance, I think, possibly with even less fuss and scramble than I've sometimes observed in the young men who have done it for me. But you know you would never let us do things for ourselves, no matter what legal equality might be declared, even when we get representation for our taxation. You will never be able to deny yourselves giving us our 'privilege!' I hate being waited on! I'd rather do things for myself."

She was so earnest in her satire, so full of scorn and so serious in her meaning, and there was such a contrast between what she said and her person—she looked so pre-eminently the pretty marquise, the little exquisite, so essentially to be waited on and helped, to have cloaks thrown over the dampness for her to tread upon, to be run about for—he could see half a dozen youths rushing about for her ices, for her carriage, for her chaperon, for her wrap, at dances—that to save his life he could not repress a chuckle. He managed to make it inaudible, however, and it was as well that he did.

"I understand your love of newspaper work," she went on less vehemently, but not less earnestly. "I have always wanted to do it myself, wanted to immensely. I can't think of a more fascinating way of earning one's living. And I know I could do it. Why don't you make the Herald a daily?"

To hear her speak of "earning one's living" was too much for him. She gave the impression of riches, not only by the fine texture and fashioning of her garments, but one felt that luxuries had wrapped her from her birth. He had not had much time to wonder what she did in Plattville. It had occurred to him that it was a little odd that she could plan to spend any extent of time there, even if she had liked Minnie Briscoe at school. He felt that she must have been sheltered and petted and waited on all her life. One could not help yearning to wait on her.

He answered inarticulately, "Oh, some day," in reply to her question and then fell into outright laughter.

"I might have known you wouldn't take me seriously," she said, with no indignation, only a sort of wistfulness. "I am well used to it. I think it is because I am not tall. People take big girls with more gravity. Big people are nearly always listened to."

"Listened to!" he said, and felt that he must throw himself at her feet. "You oughtn't to mind being Titania. She was listened to. You"—

She sprang to her feet, and her eyes flashed. "Do you think personal comment is ever in good taste?" she cried fiercely, and in his surprise he almost fell off the bench. "If there is one thing I cannot bear, it is to be told that I am 'small!' I am not. Every one who isn't a giantess isn't 'small.' I detest personalities. I am a great deal over five feet, a great deal more than that—I"—

"Please, please," he said, "I didn't"—

"Don't say you are sorry," she interrupted, and in spite of his contrition he found her angry voice delicious, it was still so sweet, hot with indignation, but ringing, not harsh. "Don't say you didn't mean it, because you did! You can't unsay it, you cannot alter it, and this is the way I must remember you! Ah!" She drew in her breath with a sharp sigh and, covering her face with her hands, sank back upon the bench. "I will not cry," she said, not so firmly as she thought she did.

"My blessed child!" he cried in great distress and perturbation. "What have I done? I—I"—

"Call me 'small' all you like," she answered. "I don't care. It isn't that. You mustn't think me such an imbecile." She dropped her hands from her face and shook the tears from her eyes with a mournful little laugh. He saw that her fingers were clinched tightly and her lip trembled. "I will not cry," she said again.

"Somebody ought to murder me. I ought to have thought—personalities are hideous"—

"Don't! It wasn't that."

"I ought to be shot"—

"Ah, please don't say that," she said, shuddering. "Please don't, not even as a joke, after last night!"

"But I ought to be for hurting you. Indeed"—

She laughed sadly again. "It wasn't that. I don't care what you call me. I am small. You'll try to forgive me for being such a baby? I didn't mean anything I said. I haven't acted so badly since I was a child."

"It's my fault, all of it. I've tired you out, and I let you get crushed at the circus, and"—

"That!" she said. "I don't think I would have missed the circus."

He had a thrilling hope that she meant the tent pole. She looked as if she meant that, but he dared not let himself believe it.

"No," he continued, "I have been so madly happy in being with you that I've fairly worn out your patience. I've haunted you all day, and I have"—

"All that has nothing to do with it," she said, with a gentle motion of her hand to bid him listen. "Just after you left this afternoon I found that I could not stay here. My people are going abroad at once, and I must go with them. That's what is almost making me cry. I leave here tomorrow morning."

He felt something strike at his heart. In the sudden sense of dearth he had no astonishment that she should betray such agitation over her departure from a place she had known so little and friends who certainly were not part of her life. He rose to his feet, and, resting his arm against a sycamore, stood staring away from her at nothing. She did not move. There was a long silence. He had wakened suddenly. The skies had been sapphire, the sward emerald, Plattville a Camelot of romance, a city of enchantment, and now, like a meteor burned out in a breath, the necromancy fell away and he gazed into desolate years. The thought of the square, his dusty office, the bleak length of Main street, as they would appear tomorrow gave him a faint physical sickness. Today it had all been touched to beauty. He had felt fit to live and work here a thousand years—a fool's dream, and the waking was to arid emptiness. He should die now of hunger and thirst in this Sahara. He hoped the fates would let it be soon, but he knew they would not; knew that this was hysteria, that in his endurance he should plod on, plod, plod dustily on, through dingy, lonely years.

There was a rumble of thunder far out on the western prairie. A cold breath stole through the hot stillness, and an arm of vapor reached out between the moon and the quiet earth. Darkness fell. The man and girl kept silence between them. They might have been two sad guardians of the black little stream that plashed unseen at their feet. Now and then a reflection of faraway lightning faintly limned them with a green light. Thunder rolled nearer, ominously. The gods were driving their chariots over the bridge. The chill breath passed, leaving the air again to its hot inertia.

She sprang to her feet, and her eyes flashed.

"I did not want to go," she said at last, with tears just below the surface of her voice. "I wanted to stay here, but he—they wouldn't—I can't"—

"Wanted to stay here?" he said huskily, not turning. "Here? In Indiana?"

"Yes."

"In Rouen, you mean?"

"In Plattville."

"In Plattville!" He turned now, astounded.

"Yes. Wouldn't you have taken me on the Herald?" She rose and came toward him. "I could have supported myself here if you would, and I've studied how newspapers are made. I know I could have earned a wage. I could have helped you make it a daily." He searched in vain for a trace of raillery in her voice. There was none. She seemed to intend her words to be taken literally.

"I don't understand," he said. "I don't know what you mean."

"I mean that I want to stay here; that I ought to stay here; that my conscience tells me I should; but I can't, and it makes me very unhappy. That was why I acted so badly."

"Your conscience!" he cried.

"Oh, I know what a jumble and puzzle it must seem to you!"

"I only know one thing—that you are going away tomorrow morning and that I shall never see you again."

The darkness had grown intense. They could not see each other, but a wan glimmer gave him a fleeting, misty view of her. She stood half turned from him, her hand to her cheek in the uncertain fashion of his great moment in the afternoon. Her eyes, he saw in the flying picture that he caught, were troubled, and her hand trembled. She had been irresistible in her gayety, but now that a mysterious distress assailed her, of the reason for which he had no guess, she was so adorably pathetic and seemed such a rich and lovely and sad and happy thing to have come into his life only to go out of it, and he was so full of the prophetic sense of loss of her, it seemed so much like losing everything, that he found too much to say to be able to say anything.

He tried to speak and choked a little. A big drop of rain fell on his bare head. Neither of them noticed the weather or cared for it. They stood with the renewed blackness hanging like a drapery between them.

"Can—can you—tell me why you think you ought not to go?" he whispered finally with a great effort.

"No; not now. But I know you would think I am right in wanting to stay. I know you would if you knew about it; but I can't, I can't. I must go in the morning."

"I should always think you right," he answered in an unsteady tone, "always." He went over to the bench, fumbled about for his hat and picked it up.

"Come," he said gently, "I am going now."

She stood quite motionless for a full minute or longer; then, without a word, she moved toward the house. He went to her, with hands extended to find her, and his fingers touched her sleeve. Together and silently they found the garden path and followed its dim length. In the orchard he touched her sleeve again and led the way.

As they came out behind the house she detained him. Stopping short, she shook his hand from her arm. She spoke in a breath, as if it were all one word.

"Will you tell me why you go? It is not late. Why do you wish to leave me, when I shall not see you again?"

Grandma

Here sits dear old Grandma in silk and old lace.
We boast that no wrinkles disfigure her face;
She's healthy and bright and I've oft heard her say:
'Tis because she has used Abbey's Salt every day.

No matter how hearty the old folk appear, their digestive organs are on the wane. The stomach and bowels are noticeably weaker. The liver often sluggish. Nature needs assistance.

ABBEY'S SALT is the tonic laxative to keep the old folk in healthful vigor. It is so mild—yet so effective—that it puts the stomach, bowels and liver in perfect order without the least discomfort.

TEARFUL OR CHEERFUL?

Whether a woman is tearful or cheerful depends not on what she has materially, but what she is physically. Many an indulgent husband is driven almost to despair by the tearful outburst of a wife who has "everything she wants." He wants to know what's the matter. But the wife can't tell. She only knows that she is depressed and despondent.

Such a condition is usually related to some form of womanly disease.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Mrs. Alice Adams, of Laboratory, Washington Co., Pa., says: "With many thanks I write to let you know how I am. I can say by God's help and your help I am well. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and two of his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I can do all my work. I can't praise your medicine too highly. I will recommend your medicines as long as I live. If any one doubts this give them my address."

Keep the bowels healthy by the timely use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

CURED BY

Doan's Kidney Pills.

THE WELL-KNOWN SPECIFIC FOR

Backache, Sideache, Diabetes, Dropsy, Bright's Disease, and all Kidney or Bladder troubles.

Read of how a whole family got cured by using these wonderful Pills.

Mr. Henry Hedrick, South Woodslee, Ont., says that Doan's Kidney Pills are far ahead of doctor's medicine.

He writes: "I have tried Doan's Kidney Pills and can honestly say that I never used anything better. I was so bad with my kidneys I could hardly raise myself up without help but Doan's Kidney Pills cured me.

"My wife was always complaining of a lame back, and they completely cured her.

"Our son was also troubled with his kidneys and as our pills had done us so much good we got him to try them and they cured him as well. They are far ahead of doctor's medicine, and I advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills for all sufferers from kidney trouble."

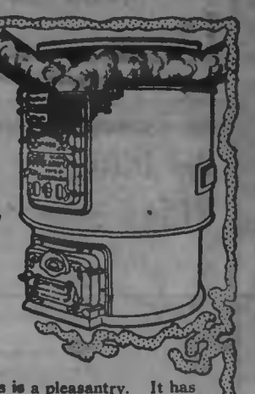
Sunshine Furnace

Water-pan



Dry air is light—it lifts and carries dust. Dry air cracks your furniture, gives you a headache, shrivels your skin, parches your lungs.

The water-pan in most furnaces is a pleasantry. It has no serious business in the work of the furnace—it is merely placed there for effect, because a water-pan is a good thing.

And a water-pan is an absolute necessity to your health and comfort, but it must be properly placed to radiate moisture evenly and uniformly throughout the house.

The water-pan of the Sunshine Furnace is the most scientifically arranged water-pan in any furnace in the world.

It does the work a water-pan should, and does it well.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET.

Bank Statement Good and the Close Was Strong.

The Fluctuations of the Leading Stocks

The Wall street market in its early stages this morning was slow but had a strong undertone. The close was strong and at the highest of the day. This was, no doubt, due to the very favourable bank statement which was quite unexpected. Prices advanced all along the line, the Eries, Pa., Mop and Rg. being particularly strong. C.P.R. advanced to 117 3-8 and Twin City came out at 95. Pa. came within a quarter of touching 115 after opening at 114 3-4. Erie Common made 24 1-8 and Erie 1st advanced to 59 3-4.

ROYAL TEMPLARS' MEDAL CONTEST

At St. Andrews Last Evening was a Success.

Miss Laura Sager the Successful Contestant—An Enjoyable Programme of Music and Recitations—Rev I. J. Shanks, of Hamilton, Spoke.

The elocutionary silver medal contest in St. Andrews' school room last evening, attracted a fairly large audience, which was greatly pleased with the excellent programme provided.

The affair was under the auspices of the local Council of the Royal Templars of Temperance, and was the first of its kind ever held in Peterborough, though in other places throughout the Dominion, several have been held with successful results. Last evening's contest was in every way a most gratifying one, and the efforts of the contestants, who were five in number, were most praiseworthy, and each showed a talent along the line of elocution, which, when developed by future instruction and cultivation, will place these young people in the front rank.

The selections of the contestants were along the line of temperance, and the effect of impressing upon the audience the great evils of intemperance. The medal was awarded, after careful deliberation by the judges, to Miss Laura Sager, who displayed remarkable ability in her selection, her enunciation being good, her manner unaffected, her voice well suited to the selection, and her interpretation intelligent and sympathetic. The other contestants also showed much ability and are deserving of much credit.

The programme was one of much interest and enjoyment. It was opened by a few remarks by the chairman, Rev. J. G. Potter, after which Miss McCall rendered a vocal solo. The first contestant, Master Norman Long, recited, "The House Full of Wine," following which Miss H. Balfour gave a vocal solo. Miss Laura Sager's prize selection was "The Puddler's Saturday Night," a pathetic and dramatic number depicting a scene of misery and crime. Little Maud Titterson sang a very pleasing solo, which was followed by the third contest number, "The Fatal New Year's Day," by Miss A. Armstrong. Rev. J. G. Potter gave a vocal solo which was followed by the fourth selection. "The Face Upon the Floor," by Miss Jennie Gray. Mrs. McColl rendered another solo after which the last contest recitation was given by Miss Ella Matthewson, the selection being "The Lips that Touch Liquor Shall Never Touch Mine." Miss Maud Titterson recited in such a successful manner that she was presented with a beautiful bouquet in appreciation of her effort. Miss Lizzie Smith recited "An Inventor's Wife," and was encored.

Rev. I. J. Shanks, of Hamilton, editor of the Royal Templar, and Superintendent of Medal Contests, gave a short address. The medal contest scheme had been begun some years ago in New York City, and had spread to Canada where it was now quite popular among the temperance societies. The regulations state that there must be at least five contestants and that the winner shall not compete again for a silver medal. Five silver medalists may compete for a gold medal and five gold medalists for a diamond medal. There had already been four diamond medal contests in Canada. The speaker gave a short sketch of the work being done by the society and explained the two degrees the Royal and the Select. He was greatly pleased with the showing of the contestants for the evening and hoped that many more such contests would be held in Peterborough.

Mrs. Gunney and Mr. T. Carey were each called upon for a few remarks.

The judges were Rev. J. A. Wilson, Mr. F. E. Kerr and Mr. W. Langford. The former in awarding the medal to the winner, complimented each contestant upon her excellent showing and hoped that they would continue study along the elocutionary line.

The evening was in every way a most enjoyable and successful one and any future event of a similar nature will undoubtedly be largely attended.

BETHANY TABERNACLE.

Pastor Steusnagel will speak both morning and evening. Morning subject, "The Tongue, its uses and abuses." Evening subject, "Cain and Abel, or what constitutes True and False Religion." Everybody cordially invited.

ECZEMA

The World's Greatest Skin Humour.

Affects Every Age and Condition.

The Only Sure Cure is Cuticura.

If there were not another external skin disease known, eczema would be a sufficient infliction on mankind. It pervades all classes, and descends impartially through generations. While some are constantly enveloped in it, others have it confined to small patches in the ears, on the scalp, on the breast, on the palms of the hands, on the limbs, etc., but everywhere its distinctive feature is a small watery blister, which discharges an acrid fluid, causing heat, inflammation, and intense itching, scaling and crusting.

The Cuticura treatment is at once agreeable, speedy, economical and comprehensive. Bathe the affected parts freely with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent, or Pills, to cool and cleanse the blood. This treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning and scaly humours, and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure of torturing, disfiguring humours, eczemas, rashes and inflammations, from infancy to age, when all other remedies and the best physicians fail.

Cuticura Resolvent, Liquid and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors.

Town Takes Stock.

Bracebridge, May 21.—The bylaw regarding the Hess Furniture Company was carried by a large majority here yesterday, only seventeen votes being polled against it. The principal item of the bylaw was that the town should take $15,000 in preferred stock in lieu of their mortgage on the property of the company, on the company complying with some conditions to make this safe. The change was made owing to the injury to the company by a lack of borrowing power.

A $300,000 Fire.

Montreal, May 21.—The seven storey carriage factory of B. Ledeux & Co., perhaps the largest in Canada, on the north side of Osborn street, near the C. P. R. depot, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon; and Mr. Ledeux says the loss will be $300,000, half of which is covered by insurance.

PLAGUE HELPS THE JAPANESE.

Russians Contract "Green" Sickness and Die Rapidly.

JAPS SAID TO BE IMMUNE.

London Telegraph's Correspondent With Headquarters Declares no Change in Situation has Taken Place for Ten Days—Location Kept Secret—Reported Sortie From Port Arthur Unlikely.

Tokio, May 23.—It is stated on good authority that the Japanese have captured Kaiping, and are driving the Russians back in the direction of Yinhow. Kaiping is on the railroad about fifty miles south of Newchwang.

PLAGUE KILLING RUSSIANS.

Russian Soldiers Take Disease to Which Japs Are Immune.

Paris, May 23.—A despatch from Moscow to The Matin says that one of the first horrors resulting from the war in the Orient is a new disease, known as the "green plague," which is spreading among Russian soldiers who are quartered in Chinese houses. Undoubtedly the bacteria of this disease are always present in these houses, but the yellow race is immune to them, while Caucasians are easy victims. The first symptom of the plague is an affection of the eyes. Then the sufferer has frightful sweats and his body becomes covered with green spots. The army surgeons are totally at sea concerning this new disease and the soldiers are dying like flies.

That the Japanese do not boast in face of their successes is winning the praise of the French press. The newspapers would scarcely believe that the Japanese were capable of such restraint and self-effacement.

The newspapers, too, point out that neither combatant is operating on home territory, and that the attitude of the Coreans and Manchurians toward the belligerents is bound to have much to do with the result of the struggle. Everything indicates to-day that Japan is the favorite both in Corea and Manchuria, and, it must be remembered, the Manchus are the most self-reliant of all the Chinese family.

Russia's Financial Standing.

The continental newspapers are paving the way toward a new Russian loan by publishing pictures of the Czar's treasure vaults bursting with gold. Financiers, knowing that the Russian gold reserve must, by law, equal in value half the issue of currency—which is 600,000,000 rubles—and that, above this amount, the gold reserve must equal the currency, dollar for dollar, estimate that Russia has enough cash to last six months. And this, calculating the expenses of the war at 400,000,000 rubles monthly.

Japs Are Great Spies.

Tomsk, Siberia, May 23.—The melting of the ice on the Siberian rivers has yielded yet further evidence as to the completeness of the preparations made by the Japanese for damaging Russia's line of communications.

A boatman at Omsk, noticing something protruding from an ice floe, summoned his companions and towed the floe ashore. A huddled human form was then dimly perceived through its glassy covering.

When the ice was hacked away there was discovered a little yellow-faced man, with an agonized expression in his protruding eyes. Although dressed in Russian clothing, the boatman suspected that he was a Japanese, and carted the body to the police office.

A search showed that the dead man was a Japanese secret agent. Under his shirt were found a number of Japanese documents, and a letter from his wife in Kioto addressed to Nagasaki, counselling him to be cautious in the perilous enterprise he was undertaking.

It is assumed that the spy, while attempting to blow up the railway bridge, fell into a hole in the ice and was drowned.

Bogatyr's Fate Uncertain.

St. Petersburg, May 23.—Private advices from Vladivostock confirm the report that the cruiser Bogatyr ran on the rocks. Officials claim that they have no intimation regarding the incident, and it is not known whether or not the ship has yet been hauled off.

Shell Killed 25 Japs.

Tokio, May 23.—During the reconnaissance of Port Arthur, made by Admiral Togo on Friday of last week, a shell hit the torpedo boat destroyer Akatsuki, killing one officer and 24 men.

Russian Soldiers Loyal.

St. Petersburg, May 23.—Gen. Kuropatkin on Saturday sent the following telegram to Emperor Nicholas:

"To-day, in the presence of all the troops here, forming the chief force of one of our divisions, a thanksgiving service in honor of St. Nicholas, the miracle-worker, was celebrated.

"After a te deum, I thanked the troops in behalf of Your Majesty for their valiant, self-denying services, and personally communicated to them the tenor of Your Majesty's despatch of May 20. The troops replied with a hearty cheer to the wishes I expressed for Your Majesty's health and long life.

"The newly-created knights of the military orders and all of the wounded officers and men of the regiments present were then called out, and the troops, headed by myself, marched past these brave men."

Russians Probably Stayed in Port.

London, May 22.—A despatch from St. Petersburg to Reuter's Telegram Co. says that the report of a sortie by the Port Arthur garrison has not been confirmed. It appears, says the despatch, to have originated in the receipt of Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel's report of the fight at Kinchau. This, together with the fact that Gen. Stoessal commands at Port Arthur, gives rise to the rumor that the garrison had made a sortie.

Skrydloff Arrives.

Vladivostock, May 23.—Vice-admiral Skrydloff arrived here at 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Positively No Change in Situation.

London, May 23.—The Daily Telegraph this morning prints the following despatch, dated May 19, from its correspondent at the Japanese headquarters, which the despatch does not locate. There has been no change in the position here for the past ten days. Our advanced division is in touch with the enemy near Maotien Pass, where the Liovang road traverses the defile. The Russian line extends from Haicheng to the west of Maotien Pass.

Russians Fought With Vigor.

Tokio, May 23.—(5 p.m.)—A supplemental report was received here yesterday, covering the opposition encountered by the Japanese force, which landed at Takushan on May 20. The Russians consisted of a squadron of the independent Trans-Baikal Cossacks. They vigorously resisted the Japanese advance and only retreated after one officer and nine men were killed and a number of men wounded. One Russian officer and four men were captured. The Japanese lost one man killed. The Russians retired in the direction of Hsiuyen and Shalichai.

TRIES TO WRECK CZAR'S TRAIN.

Rails Found Displaced When His Train Was About to Start.

St. Petersburg, May 23.—The rails were displaced on the railway just outside the town of Kremenmug when the Emperor was about to leave it Saturday in the course of his southern trip. The danger was discovered before the Imperial train started. Another train was upset. The official account says that four persons were injured in the accident.

Russian Peasants Firing.

St. Petersburg, May 23.—A rising of peasants, headed by Socialists, has taken place in the district of Gori, Government of the Caucasus. The Governor ordered the troops to fire a volley, and several casualties resulted.

BRITISH IN TIGHT PLACE.

Danger in British Advance and Retreat Would Raise Yellow Peril.

London, May 23.—The Thibetan affair offers fresh illustration of the feebleness of the Chinese Government and the inconvenience and risks to which England is exposed. The British expedition is surrounded with a superior mobile force, and is compelled to remain defensive until it can be strongly reinforced. Chinese influence is paralyzed, and apparently the British must choose between a hazardous advance to Lhassa and an ignominious retreat to the Indian frontier. The moral effect of a retreat is naturally dreaded in these days of Oriental revival, when the imagination of Asiatics is inflamed by victories over western civilization. Lord Curzon, luckily, is at hand, to give the British Government advice on this most difficult question.

For Judgment Guarantee.

Montreal, May 23.—It is understood that as soon as preliminaries are attended to a request will be made for a judgment guarantee of a bond issue for the construction of the Canso bridge, the cost to be $6,000,000. U. C. Ross of Sydney, who has been in Ottawa to secure the time for completion extended this year, says that a precedent has been established in one case of the Quebec bridge. He also announces that the steel superstructure, which will represent more than half the total cost, will be manufactured at the Sydney Steel Works. He adds that Waddell & Hendricks of Kansas City are the men completing the working plans.

Tablet From Gezer.

London, May 23.—The secretary of the Palestine Exploration Fund announces that the excavators of the site of the ancient Levitical city of Gezer have discovered part of an inscribed tablet written in cuneiform characters on both faces. Impressions of thirteen lines on one face and five on the other have been taken and are on the way to London for decipherment. The previous discoveries at Gezer included remarkable evidences of human sacrifices and prehistoric occupation. The tablet is the first written document that has been found.

Set Fire to His Horse.

Paris, May 23.—A conflict between sentiments of curiosity and humanity in the Parisian idler was seen on Monday. A cabman, after trying to raise a fallen horse before a crowd, devised the plan of pouring methylated spirit on the beast's crupper and then setting it on fire. The crowd watched the proceeding with interest, but when the show was over, attempted to lynch the cabman. Police saved the man for prosecution.

He Suicided to Pay Debts.

Macon, Ga., May 23.—Believing that he was worth more to his creditors dead than living, Robert H. Plant, president of the First National Bank, and owner of the Plant's Sons' Bank, both recently placed in the hands of receivers, arose from a sick bed and committed suicide by shooting himself through the temple. By his act $800,000, carried as life insurance, may be distributed between his wife and his creditors.

Narrow Escape.

Toronto, May 23.—Last night Mrs. Clark of Barrie, and her daughter-in-law were crossing Spadina avenue, when the former was struck by north bound car No. 940 and thrown ten feet into the air. She came down between the trucks, but managed to roll out before the hind wheels struck her. She received a bad cut over the right eye, but is in a fair way of recover.

Helped to Go West.

Ottawa, May 21.—The Italian colony at Montreal has sent a deputation, composed of Signors Mariotti and Pittelti to interview the Government with a view of obtaining relief for the 5,000 of their fellow-countrymen who have landed at Montreal this spring and have failed to realize their anticipations of finding employment. Mr. Sifton expressed the readiness of his department to place all the departmental machinery at the disposal of those who desired to go to the West and take up land.

Britain's Share in Egypt.

In Lord Cromer's annual report of the finances and condition of Egypt and the Soudan an interesting point is made in connection with the railway contracts, of which Great Britain had the largest share. The principal British orders were for first-class carriages, electric lighting plant, and signalling appliances. As regards this latter order, Major Blakeney, the traffic manager, remarks: "It is, perhaps, worthy of note, while the present cry of British trade being on the decrease is so loud, that the firm which obtained the contract, and whose tender was the lowest and most suitable, was English, and that it has been enterprising enough to send a capable representative to study the requirements of the country. It is conceivable that if other British firms were to follow the same procedure their trade would not fall off, despite foreign competition."

Marconi Produces Deluges.

The fishermen near the Marconi wireless telegraph station in England have petitioned Parliament to take it away because it, they allege, produces the deluges descending upon them.

FATAL SUNDAY WORK

Fireworks Factory Blown Up and Many Killed.

SEVEN KNOWN TO BE DEAD

The Factory Blown to Atoms and Houses in City Wrecked By Shock—Only Thirty Were at Work Out of a Staff of 300 or Fatalities Would Have Been Much Greater.

Findlay, Ohio, May 23.—As a result of an explosion in the two drying-rooms of the Lake Shore Novelty Co.'s plant here Saturday, seven persons are known to be dead, five are so seriously hurt that recovery is probably impossible, and twelve or fifteen are injured badly. From reports of the physicians, ten of the less seriously injured may die as a result of blood poisoning from the potash that was driven into their bodies.

Two employes are missing and are supposed to have been blown to atoms.

The Lake Shore Novelty Works' plant covered nearly ten acres in the southwest part of the city and employed about 200 men, women and children. Railroad torpedoes and Fourth of July explosives were manufactured. Owing to a rush of orders, the officials of the plant requested the employes to report for duty Sunday. About 30 complied.

Yesterday morning two magazines in separate rooms at the Novelty Works let go simultaneously with terrible reports. The exact cause of the explosion is not definitely known.

It is surmised that one of the Sherwood brothers, who were the only persons in the drying room, dropped a large box of torpedoes, but this story cannot be confirmed.

The explosion occurred shortly before the employes assembled for duty.

Human forms were strewn considerable distances apart on the factory site. The remains of the Sherwood brothers were found in drying room No. 1, mangled and almost unrecognizable. Their clothing was blown from their bodies, save a stocking on the right foot of Jay Sherwood.

The body of Edith Dillon was picked up 200 yards from where the explosion occurred.

The news of the catastrophe spread rapidly throughout the country, and every train and interurban car that has arrived in the city for the past ten hours was crowded. The large plant was shattered, not one single wall remaining. Windows throughout the city were shattered, and the concussion was felt for miles.

OPPOSE SUDBURY LINE.

Canadian Northern Opposed to C.P.R. Building Sudbury Line.

Montreal, May 23.—"Mr. Mackenzie is all wrong in this matter. We have looked into the legal aspect of the question and our right to construct branch lines is quite perfect. We have not, in fact, asked for Parliamentary authority to build from Toronto to Sudbury, simply because we have already secured this right. Our legal authority did not expire in 1891, as Mr. Mackenzie alleged; as a matter of fact we have already started work of construction."

The above statement was made yesterday by A. R. Creelman, chief solicitor of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who was seen last evening in connection with the contention of the president of the Canadian Northern.

William Mackenzie, who left here yesterday for a trip over the Halifax Southwestern Railway, announced that the contract for the Toronto and Sudbury section of the James Bay Railway would be given out almost at once, and that active construction would be begun in July. He held strongly to the theory that, as the time for completing the C. P. R. expired in 1891, and as the Toronto and Sudbury branch was included in that charter, no legal authority had since been obtained by the C.P.R. for its construction.

In the meantime, the Canadian Pacific have started active operations on the Sudbury end of the line, and some time ago they asked tenders for the building of sixty miles, and the tenders were to have been opened Saturday. In the meantime, 800 men had been set to work at different points, and the Sudbury end is being rushed forward, intimating, indeed, that a very serious conflict is on between the C.P.R. and the Canadian Northern.

A Modern Cromee.

London, May 23.—The land of Cocas has not revealed any hidden treasure to the explorers who set out in full hope on the steam yacht Santa Maria last November. The latest of these explorers, who have just returned on the royal mail steamer La Plata, said they discovered the island some 300 miles southeast of Costa Rica, near the Galapagos group.

Search revealed none of the treasure, which is said to have been buried in the days of Drake, and to be worth nearly $8,500,000. But the expedition performed one good act. It found on the island a solitary inhabitant, an aged German trader, who had spent a dreary existence. He was taken on board and landed at Panama.

Killed Playing Polo.

New York, May 23.—Harry D. Babcock, jr., a member of the freshmen class at Yale, and a player on the Yale polo team, died at his home here Sunday from the effects of an accidental blow on the head from a polo mallet in the hands of W. C. Devereaux, a Princeton player. The accident happened late Saturday afternoon in Van Cortlandt Park, during the last half of the first intercollegiate polo game

LIBERAL FINANCE.

The announcement that Mr. Fielding will show a surplus of $16,000,000 for the present fiscal year does not satisfy the Opposition, which is loath to admit that the country can thrive under Liberal rule. The mode of figuring our surpluses is, they say, a sham; instead of deducting ordinary expenditure from revenue and calling the remainder a surplus, we should add capital to ordinary expenditure and deduct the sum of the two from revenue. That might give us a clearer idea of yearly intake and outgo. Mr. Fielding, however, is simply following the old plan, and in order to compare Liberal with Conservative finance cannot very well depart from it. It would scarcely be fair to ask him to include capital expenditure as part of the outlay when the Tories, in arriving at their surpluses, excluded it.

Since 1867 the surpluses—excess of revenue over ordinary expenditure—have amounted to $32,000,000, the deficits to $23,000,000. From 1894 to 1897, that is to say, in the last four years of Tory rule, there was a deficit every year, aggregating over $6,000,000, or an average of $1,500,000 per annum. Since then there has been a surplus every year, notwithstanding the reduction of the tariff by Liberals. The aggregate Liberal surplus in this period, not counting the $16,000,000 for the current year, which expires on June 30, amounted to $42,000,000. In other words, over one-half the aggregate of surpluses since Confederation have been accumulated since the Liberals took office in 1896; while the surplus for the present year will be more than twice as great as the largest ever rolled up by the Conservatives, namely, $7,000,000 in 1882. In 1882 the percentage of duty on goods entered for consumption, dutiable and free, exceeded 19 per cent. In 1903 it was below 16 per cent. Diminished taxation has nevertheless yielded a greater revenue—a sure sign of wide-spread prosperity. From 1874 to 1878 the Liberals fell on the wintry time, their deficits for those five years aggregating $8,000,000. In the two years 1885 and 1886 the Tories had to chronicle deficits amounting to $8,000,000. The next deficit, $800,000, occurred in 1898, and then came the series of four from 1894 to 1897, already referred to.

The Conservatives have two cries, one contradicting the other:—First, Mr. Fielding's surpluses show that he is taxing the people too much; secondly, they show that he is not taxing them enough, his boosted revenues being due to growth of imports, which are cutting the ground from under Canadian imports. Flog high, flog low, the brethren "squeal." Reasonable persons gather from his surpluses, amassed under reduced Customs taxation, that the country is doing well under the existing regime, and that it would not be wise to create a disturbance by changing either men or measures.

Last year, Jas. Macoun, of the Geological Survey, was despatched to the Peace River to report upon that region. His report, issued some weeks ago, was on the whole unfavourable. The late Dr. Dawson, Mr. Horetzky, Professor Macoun, (James Macoun's father), and other authorities, had, on the contrary declared that the Peace River country was admirably suited both for grain growing and stock raising. The Committee on Agriculture of the House of Commons, summoned Mr. Jas. Macoun, at the instance of certain Conservative members, to supplement his report with oral testimony, hoping, apparently to further discredit that part of the country, and incidentally to score a point against the Government's transcontinental project, inasmuch as the Grand Trunk Pacific will traverse the lower portion. Mr. Oliver and Mr. Davis thereupon proceeded to cross-examine Mr. Macoun somewhat sharply, and he modified and explained away a good deal of what he had written in his report about the region. It is to be regretted that party politics should have figured in a matter of this sort but the responsibility rests on Mr. Macoun and his political friends on the committee.

"THE COLONIALS AND THE FLAG."

(A patriotic song by A. H. Keane.)

Approved by His Majesty the King; approved by and under the patronage of His Excellency, the Earl of Minto, Governor General of Canada; approved by the Honourable R. Harcourt, Minister of Education, for use in the public schools and other educational institutions in the Province. Approved by the Hon. P. Boucher de la Bruere, Supt. of Education, Quebec; by A. H. Mackay, F. R. S. C., Supt. Education, Nova Scotia, etc., specially recommended for Empire Day.

I.

Not the least were they of the Empire's hosts
When her need called her sons to fight.
To maintain the freedom the old flag boasts—
Freedom's flag, Britannia's might,
The flag that has waved o'er chill Northlands
And plains 'neath the Southern Cross
That has glory won on desert sands
And isles 'round which oceans toss.
For the Empire's defenders, hurrah!
They have shown us once more how her heroes fight
When the old flag unfurls for honour and right.

CHORUS

And hurrah for the dear old Union Jack!
The flag of the brave and free;
May it never bulwarks or true hearts lack
To defend it by land or sea;
May it never be left to the weakling's hand
Who counsels surrender and ease
But be guarded with honour on the land
And reign glorious on the seas.

II.

The flag that has taught through blood and tears
The lessons freedom decrees,
The flag "that has braved a thousand years
The battle and the breeze."
The flag that tyrants and wrongs defied
That with precious blood is stained,
Men who bravely dared and nobly died
For the right that that flag maintained.
For the Empire's defenders, hurrah!
They have shown us once more how her heroes fight
When the old flag unfurls for honour and right.

SONS OF ENGLAND ATTEND CHURCH

Rev. W. J. Jolliffe Preached to Them Last Evening

At Charlotte Street Church—The Object of the Society Praised—An Appropriate Sermon

At Charlotte street church last evening, the pastor, Rev. W. J. Jolliffe preached to the members of the Sons of England. He spoke from the words, "Honour all men, love the Brotherhood, fear God, honour the King," I Peter, 2; 17.

Rev. Mr. Jolliffe was pleased to welcome those present as members of an important society. He had read their constitution and formed some idea as to their object and life as a Society. He noticed that its membership was confined to Englishmen and their male decendants, that all must be Protestants, of good moral character and in sound health. They met together for mutual benefit and support and the maintenance of the British connection.

In the text the words, "honour all men," meant that in every case one should render promptly every man his due. We should recognize and respect other men's rights and not despise those who may not be equal to us in possessions or attainments. We are taught to "love the brother hood," which is larger than anyone society and though there is great variety there is nevertheless unity. While you as Sons of England recognize the brotherhood of all man, you are bound by sacred promises and vows to be true and faithful to all the brotherhood of this benefit society. You are therefore interested in each other's welfare and are ready to care for the sick, to cheer the disconsolate to weep with those who weep and rejoice with those who rejoice.

The text says we are to "Fear God." This is not a slavish or tormenting fear but a loving, filial fear. The constitution of the society calls for all its members to be of good moral character and along this line the speaker spoke briefly on morality, stating that there were certain virtues indespensable to true manhood and to prosperity in this life. There were certain elements of morality that must precede and underlay every spiritual life. Morality in itself could not save men but all religous experiences must have sound morality underneath. To be moral, one must be truthful, must be honest, must possess fidelity and purity. You require these virtues to be manifested in all who seek admission to your Society, said the preacher, and with these virtues strongly developed and a consciousness of your sins forgiven and the continued presence of the Holy Spirit we will become valiant soldiers of Christ Jesus, and can measure up to the words, "Fear God."

In dealing with the closing words of the text, "Honour the King," the speaker was pleased that the Society endeavoured to maintain the British connection, and the members were loyal subjects of our noble King, the greatest King of the greatest Empire on the face of the earth, and if our Empire but held on to righteousness, there was a wonderful future in store. The Society's object was to "demonstrate that on her citizens of English birth or English descent, Canada can always rely for the advancement of the true interests of the country;" there could be no loyalty to our King and Empire where there was no loyalty to Canada and there could be no loyalty to either were there not loyalty to the home. Loyalty to the home requires the practice of those principles on which your Society is founded and on which its great growth than has been attained. No less than 200 members of the Sons of England had gone to South Africa during the time of the war. In closing the speaker urged upon the members to be true to the principles which are praiseworthy ones, to be true to one another, true to God and true to their King and country.

The choir sang "Sun of My Soul," in an effective manner, Miss Bellegheim taking the soprano solo. During the offertory, Mr. A. E. Brandrette delighted the large congregation by his splendid rendition of Jordan's "The Great Heavenly Choir."

PILLS AND PILES.

A prolific cause of piles is the use of cathartics and pills of a drastic, violent nature.

Followed by a reaction on account of the resinous, drying properties they contain.

There are other causes, but no matter what the cause or what the kind of piles, Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid can be regied upon to cure—to stay cured.

It's an internal remedy that removes the causes of itching, blind, bleeding or suppurating Piles.

A guarantee goes with each package containing a month's treatment.

It can be obtained for one dollar at James Lynch's, druggist, No. 166 Hunter street, Peterborough.

Asks For Clemency.

Paris, May 23.—Emile D'Aurignac, Mme. Humbert's brother, has petitioned the Minister of the Interior for a remission of a quarter of his term of imprisonment. The petition, however, was refused. He will be released on the expiration of his sentence, in December.

Two Were Drowned.

Winnipeg, May 23.—H. C. Koffer, aged 24, and Mrs. Hugh McDougal, wife of a young farmer, were drowned Saturday night at Virden by the capsizing of a boat while crossing the river about three miles from town. Several others in the boat managed to reach shore.

Ottawa Girl's Body Found.

Ottawa, May 23.—The body of Martha Burke, daughter of Michael Burke of the Ottawa Electric Railway, was found yesterday in the Ottawa River, near the Chaudiere Falls. Doubtless she committed suicide by leaping from the bridge.

A GUARANTEED CURE FOR PILES.

Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure you, in 6 to 14 days. 50 cents.

WON THE KING'S PRIZE.

Dymond's Sapper Landed the Coveted Guineas in Record Time.

Toronto, May 23.—Records were broken all along the line at the Ontario Jockey Club's opening on Saturday. The attendance was beyond all previous days, the weather was ideal, the track fast and the time made in Canada's great race for the King's Plate, 2.12, a second faster than the best on record made by Ferdinand.

Sapper took the lead at the start and finished an easy winner.

Hendrie's Nimble Dick came in second with Mackenzie's Kirkfield colt War Whoop, the popular favorite, a close third.

The following fourteen candidates faced the starter's flag for the plate:

Fifth race, the King's Plate, 1½ miles:

The joy of Living.

It is only the healthy who find a real joy in life. Weak, nervous, languid and discouraged people find new hope and energy in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. With new rich blood coursing through the veins and the thrill of new nerve force sent tingling along the nerve fibres, the joy of living returns and disease and weakness disappear.

THE SKUNK CABBAGE.

The soft south wind hath kissed the earth
That long a widowed bride hath been!
And she begins, in tearful mirth,
To weave herself a robe of green.
The budding spray
On maples grey
Proclaims the quick approaching Spring;
And brooks their new-found freedom sing.

Green is the moss in yonder glade
On cedars old that loves to grow;
And, underneath the pine tree's shade,
The wintergreen peeps through the snow.
The fields no more
With frosts are hoar;
But not a flower doth yet appear
In glade or wood or meadow sere.

The earth within her sheltering breast
The pale hepatica doth hide;
The bloodroot and wake-robin rest
In quiet slumber side by side;
The violet
Is sleeping yet;
And still the sweet spring-beauty lies
Beyond the reach of longing eyes.

But look! beside the silent stream,
Beneath the alders brown and bare,
What is it shines with purple gleam
'Mid withered leaves that moulder there?
I know thee well
But may not tell
Thy name. Yet I rejoice to meet thee,
And from my heart, old friend, I greet thee!

The lily hangs her dainty head
To hear her charms so loudly sung;
The rose doth blush a deeper red
To know her praise on every tongue.
But no kind word
Is ever heard
Of thee: The poets all reject thee,
The vulgar scorn thee or neglect thee.

And yet I love thee. Thou dost bring
To me a thousand visions bright
Of joyous birds that soon shall sing
Among the hawthorn blossoms white;
Of happy hours
'Mid dewy flowers;
The hum of bees, the silvery gleams
Of leaping trout in amber streams!

Soon as the snows of winter yield
To April sun and April floods,
Retiring from the open field
To strongholds in the thickest woods,
Then, like a scout,
Dost thou peep out,
And cheerily lift up thy head
To tell the flowers the foe has fled.

Oh thou that comest our hearts to cheer,
The first of all the flowers of spring,
Brave herald of the opening year,
Accept the tribute that I bring,
When now once more,
The winter o'er,
Thy honest face has greeted us,
O Symplocarpus foetidus!

ALL GOOD THINGS

must win upon their merits. The International Dictionary has won a greater distinction upon its merits and is in more general use than any other work of its kind in the English language.

A. H. Sayce, LL.D., D.D., of Oxford University, England, has recently said of it: It is indeed a marvelous work; it is difficult to conceive of a dictionary more exhaustive and complete. Everything is in it—not only what we might expect to find in such a work, but also what few of us would ever have thought of looking for.

A supplement to the new edition has brought it fully up to date. I have been looking through the latter with a feeling of astonishment at its completeness, and the amount of labor that has been put into it.

Brant Sero Declares That Canada Needs 100,000 More.

IRISH ADOPT BLAKE'S PLANS

Boers Talk of Sending Team to Bisley and Believe They Can Beat All Comers—Canada's Plan of Advertising in Britain Recommended to Australia to Follow—Empire League Honors the Maple Leaf.

London, May 23.—(C.A.P.)—Brant Sero, lecturing at the Cosmopolitan Club on "Should Women Emigrate," said that women were badly needed in Canada, which was 100,000 short.

Appeal Dismissed.

London, May 23.—(C.A.P.)—The Privy Council appeal from the judgment of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland in the case of the Glenwood Lumber Co. v. Bishop has been advised. The appeal is dismissed, the appellants paying costs.

Fame For the Maple Leaf.

London, May 23.—(C.A.P.)—The League of Empire is sending out Empire Day programs containing the words of "The Maple Leaf Forever" as well as "The Recessional."

Follow Blake's Advice.

London, May 23.—(C. A. P.)—The annual convention of the United Irish League in Great Britain on the proposal of Hon. Edward Blake, M. P., abolished local home rule in the affairs of the League. The proposition was vigorously opposed, but was carried by a small majority on the second vote. T. P. O'Connor, the president, declared that the League by its action in the Gateshead by-election saved England from Chamberlainism.

Boers For Bisley.

Lindsay, May 23.—(C.A.P.)—A public subscription is being raised in the Transvaal to send a team of Boer shots to Bisley. The team is sanguine that it will capture the King's prize.

To Fellow Canada.

London, May 23.—(C.A.P.)—The Graphic, referring to the Australian Premier's advice regarding the appointment of a Commonwealth Commissioner in London to advertise the colony, after the manner of Canada, says that reliance on a cricket team is not an exhaustive form of advertisement. The Canadian Government bestowed and received benefit from the triumphal arch it built and the maps and information circulated, and it would be well if the other colonies followed her example.

TOLD IN A FEW LINES.

Hamilton will have a new drill hall costing $150,000. Plans are being prepared for it.

The brickmakers of Toronto have gone on strike for recognition of their union and higher wages.

The Ontario Department of Fisheries will re-stock the lakes with black bass as fast as possible, and a first shipment of 400 parent bass has just been taken to Lake Erie.

Labor Convention in Berlin.

Berlin, May 23.—The second annual convention of the Labor Educational Association of Western Ontario, which was organized in Woodstock on July 1, 1903, will convene in Berlin on Victoria Day.

This will be an important gathering of the labor leaders of Western Ontario, to discuss the labor movement. Some of the matters coming before the meeting will be the advisability of sending labor representatives to Great Britain to stop the importation of laborers and mechanics into Canada; also that of enlarging the scope of the Association so as to embrace the whole province. About fifty delegates will attend.

Princess of Wales Not Ill.

London, May 23.—Rumors are current that the health of the Princess of Wales is in such an unsatisfactory condition that it will cause the abandonment of the proposed trip to India and also the visit to St. Louis. At Marlborough House it was said that the Princess was enjoying her usual good health. The postponement of the Indian visit is not due to the state of the Princess' health. No definite plans have yet been made as to the visit to the St. Louis Exposition.

Cardinal Leaves For Ottawa.

Baltimore, Md., May 23.—Cardinal Gibbons has gone to Ottawa, Ont., to attend the ceremonies incident to the laying of the corner stone of the University of Ottawa, which event will take place on May 24.

The Cardinal will deliver an address on the occasion. While in Ottawa Cardinal Gibbons will be the guest of Archbishop Joseph Duhamel.

Brantford Suppresses Liquor.

Brantford, May 23.—Sunday was a dry day in this city. Promptly at 7 o'clock Saturday night every bar closed and even the regular customers could not gain admittance. It is not known whether the closing is due to the effort of Chief Slemin or the new license inspector, George Miles, or whether there was a mutual agreement among the hotelmen.

Boy Killed By Car.

St. Catharines, May 23.—A five-year-old son of David Jordan of Merritton was run down and killed at Merritton Saturday evening by the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto street car, which left here at 4.30. The little child was running after a wagon and suddenly stepped on the track about ten feet ahead of the car.

R. L. Tupper Dead.

Winnipeg, May 23.—R. Latouche Tupper, formerly superintendent of fisheries for Manitoba, is dead, aged 59.

The Babies' Troubles.

The greatest suffering of childhood is caused by eczema, scald head, chafing or other forms of skin irritation or eruption. Because of its extraordinary soothing, healing power Dr. Chase's Ointment is of inestimable value in the home where there are small children. No mother who has learned the secrets of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used would think of being without it in the house.

WHAT YOU LIKE

SPRING LAMB — Fine, firm and tender—as sweet as a chicken — with the mint sauce added, so tempting for dinner on a hot day.

YOUNG BEEF — Wholesome and full of nutriment. Trade where you are sure the best of meats are always to be had, for Roasts, Steaks, Broil or Boil.

Whether you order from home or come personally, your orders are given our best consideration.

TOPLIS, FIREMAN, KILLS HIMSELF.

Was in Poor Health When He Committed the Rash Act.

Toronto, May 21.—Charles S. Toplis, 25 Maple Grove avenue, a fireman attached to hose 15, at the Cowan avenue station, committed suicide by shooting himself in the temple late yesterday afternoon. He went on duty yesterday morning as usual and remained until noon. Just before leaving, he told one of his comrades that he was not feeling well and intended going to the drug store to procure some medicine. Shortly afterwards he was seen on an eastbound car. It is supposed that he came down-town and purchased the revolver, as he was not known to have previously had one in his possession.

About 6.15 p.m. his daughter came to the fire station enquiring for him. Driver Joseph Spence accompanied her home and found the dead body in a shed in the rear of the house. It is supposed that he fired the fatal shot while seated on an old trunk.

Deceased has been in poor health for some time. He was injured two years ago, being thrown from the hose wagon while going to the McIntosh fire, and again similarly last winter while on his way to the Mensie & Turner fire. Yesterday morning while on duty he was seized with a severe attack of vomiting.

Wireless Stations in the Gulf.

Montreal, May 21.—The Canadian Marconi Company has signed a contract to build seven stations in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and on the Atlantic seaboard. The first stations to be constructed are four in number, and are to be located as follows: Fame Point, Heath Point, Point Armour, Belle Isle. The first is on the Gaspe Coast, Heath Point in on Anticosti Island. Point Armour is on the Labrador Coast, and the Belle Isle station will be located on Belle Isle Island.

Wife Beaters Sentenced.

Cornwall, May 21.—Uriah Wert of Crysler has been sentenced by Judge O'Reilly to one year in the Central Prison at Toronto, for beating his wife. Another wife-beater, James King of Cornwall, has been sent down for six months by Police Magistrate Davis.

Death From Hiccoughs.

Ottawa, May 21.—Samuel Chivers died at the Protestant Hospital Thursday morning from the effects of two prolonged attacks of hiccoughing, which caused the breaking of a blood vessel and hemorrhage.

Lose Nine Millions.

Toronto, May 21.—From data to hand Secretary Garrow of the adjustment committee, believes that the total insurance of the Toronto fire will approximate $9,000,000.

Rapid Gains of Transvaal Gold.

Despite the gloomy accounts of conditions in South Africa, the output of Transvaal gold continues to make rapid gains. At the meeting of the Standard Bank of South Africa, recently held at London, the report showed that 1903 output was £12,500,000, compared with £7,179,074 for 1902. In the last half of 1903 it was £7,000,000, a fact which warrants the belief that this year's output will be larger than that of the record year, 1898 (the year before the war), which was £15,141,376. There were 68,000 natives employed in December, 4,000 more than in June, as against 100,000 in 1898.

Trades Unions in Great Britain.

On Dec. 31 the 655 trade unions in Great Britain had a membership of 1,604,812 and funds amounting to £5,016,408. The income for the year was £2,441,427 and the expenditure £2,058,630.

The whole of the wheat is the food for every need of life.

Whether your employment calls for the use of brain or muscle, you must eat the food that will nourish these parts in your body. The only perfect food is the one which supplies nourishment to every element, and Nature has given us that in whole wheat. Each grain contains exactly the proportion of brain-nerve-muscle-and tissue-bone-building elements that the body requires. The only foods in which you can get the whole of the wheat are MONDAY, MAY 23, 1904.

Trip to Stony Lake.

To-morrow, Victoria Day, May 24, the Majestic will leave Lakefield on the arrival of the morning train and make a trip round the lakes, returning to connect with the last train for Peterborough.

Entertaining Lord Dundonald.

The Peterborough Ladies' Golf Club will entertain Lord Dundonald and party, and the officers of the 57th Regt., at the club house, on Tuesday afternoon to five o'clock tea. All members of both the ladies and gentlemen's golf clubs are cordially invited.

Proclamation!

The Peterborough Cash Bookstore will be open until ten o'clock this evening. There will be no delivery of daily papers to-morrow but the store will be open for an hour after the train arrives to give out papers. A. H. Stratton & Co.

The Event for To-morrow.

Under Lord Dundonald's distinguished patronage the grand Patriotic Concert in the Opera House to-morrow night will be of special interest. The Opera House will be specially decorated for this occasion and a rare musical treat is in store for those who attend. Artists: Miss Alice Dean, violinist; Master Clarence Glass, "boy soprano," Toronto; Misses Helen Davies and Florence Miller, Messrs. Alfred E. Young and Sydney Glass. Plan will be at the opera house box office all day to-morrow.

POST OFFICE TO BE IMPROVED.

Mr. R. R. Hall has Received Assurances That This Will be Done.

Two General Delivery Wickets and a Parcel Wicket—More Space for Money Orders.

It will be gratifying news to the residents of Peterborough, who have felt the need for improved post office facilities, to learn that through the exertions of Mr. R. R. Hall, the Liberal candidate for West Peterborough, assurances have been received from Ottawa, that an appropriation will be made in the estimates for the purpose of making very necessary improvements in the Peterborough post office.

It is proposed that the box fronts shall be so arranged as to allow of two general delivery wickets, as well as a third wicket for the delivery of parcels to box holders.

The above arrangements include a complete outfit of new boxes and rearrangement of the entire fittings, so as to provide more space for money order, postal note, savings bank and registration sections.

VICTORIA DAY.

It is nearly three score years and ten since loyal Canadians began to loyally celebrate what is now known as Victoria Day. When the great and good Queen passed away in 1901, the Canadian Parliament, (on May 2nd, 1901), established by special Act, May 24th as a perpetual memorial of her splendid personality and gracious reign. The life of Queen Victoria became so deeply interwoven with the fibre of Canadian hearts, that even her death has not broken the tie, and the celebration of the "Queen's Birthday" has become perpetuated. And there is no incongruity in blending in the greater light of a great reign the glory of the new reign of King Edward. There is a happy fitness in making the anniversary of his illustious mother's birth the occasion of his own birthday celebration—the two reigns in character so much alike, have insensibly become merged, the new into the old. King Edward, in his long novitiate as a sovereign, learned well the lessons his great mother taught. In popularity and the conditions that make for popularity, he has shown in his more manlike way, the same qualities that made his mother beloved of her subjects and revered by the whole world. He has shown the same respect for constitutional obligations; he has shown the same graceful tact, the same love of peace, the same solicitude for the welfare of his subjects and the glory of the empire. So that, in celebrating Victoria Day, after the sovereign who gave it name, has passed away, we are still perpetuating under another reign the same demonstrations of personal loyalty and affection, still paying the same well-deserved tribute to royal sway, as approximately perfect as human conditions permit. Therefore, we can as of yore, as we have done for more than two generations, still as earnestly and sincerely say, and with added significance, "God save the King."

PROGRAMME FOR VICTORIA DAY.

How Empire Day Will be Observed in Peterborough —Some Items of Interest.

Victoria Day will be celebrated in a fitting manner in Peterborough. A programme has been arranged in which will be found something to meet the tastes of all classes of the community. The following is a brief summary of the day's proceedings. Since it is a day set apart primarily for patriotic purposes, the patriotic spirit will naturally predominate. The programme as far as the military exercises are concerned, are as follows:—

12.15 a.m. — Lord Dundonald and Staff arrive from Toronto, carriages will meet party at train and drive to Oriental Hotel where rooms will be ready.

10.30 a.m.—Carriages will take party to the Nicholls Oval, where presentation of new colours will take place.

1.30 p.m.—Luncheon at "Castle Knock" Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun.

3.30 p.m.—Carrriages to drive the party to points of interest about the vicinity, and at 5 o'clock afternoon tea at the Golf Club.

9.00 p.m.—Supper at the Armouries by Officers of the 57th Regiment.

12.10 p.m.—Carriages to the station for train to Ottawa which leaves at 12.25 a.m.

In the morning a baseball game will be played between the Young Quakers and the Athletics of Port Hope on the Separate School Grounds.

The other events for the day will be Field Day of Sports at the T.A.A. grounds in the afternoon, for which a good list of prizes will be given. A lacrosse game between Lindsay and Peterborough will constitute a part of the programme. In the evening the 57th Band will give a patriotic concert in the Rink.

A concert, which will also partake of a patriotic nature will be given in the Opera House.

GOD SAVE THE KING

The following military orders have been issued:—

No. 1 The regiment will parade with both bands at the drill hall on Monday, May 23rd at 7.45 p. m.

No. 2. On Tuesday, May 24th, at 9.15 a. m., the regiment with both bands and stretcher bearer section will parade at the drill hall in review order—tunics, helmets and ball bags. The regiment will leave the drill hall at 9.30 a. m. for Nicholls' Oval for the purpose of receiving the General Officer Commanding and for trooping the colours.

No 3. All non-commissioned officers and men will appear on parade properly dressed, with brasses, buttons and clothing clean, boots blackened and hair trimmed.

No. 4 By the courtesy of Capt Ackerman the left section of the 14th Field Battery will furnish a police squad to patrol the saluting base of the parade grounds. This squad will report at the drill hall at 9.15 a. m. Tuesday, May 24th.

By order,
D. WALKER,
Capt. and Adjutant.

ELECTRICAL PROCESS OF STEEL MANUFACTURE

Interview with Mr. C. E. Brown of Government Commission.

All the Electrical Plants in Existence were Visited—Something About the Trip and the Plants Examined.

Mr. C. E. Brown arrived home from Ottawa on Friday evening, where he has been engaged during the past few weeks in preparing his report on the electrical side of the investigation by the Government Commission into the methods made use of in Europe for the manufacture of steel by electrical process. The report of the Commission will be published in a few weeks and will contain an exhaustive review of the work with cuts and drawings of the plants, furnaces, etc., which were visited. The object of the Government in sending this Commission abroad was to find out what methods were in use in the European plants, and supply information regarding the same, to Canadian capitalists and private parties. This was a work which could be undertaken far more satisfactorily by the Government than by individuals.

A representative of the Examiner interviewed Mr. Brown this morning upon his trip. The Commission was composed of Dr. Haanel, Government Superintendent of Mines, Erik Nystrom, Mining Engineer, C. E. Brown, Electrical Expert, and T. Cote, of the members of the commission, Secretary, of the Commission. The party sailed from New York, on the Lucanian, on Jan. 23rd, arriving in Liverpool on the 30th of the month. They were joined by Prof. F. W. Harbord, of the Royal Indian Engineering College, of Cooper's Hill, and on Feb. 3rd they sailed from Queensboro to Flushing, Holland. From here the party went to Keel, Germany, by rail, took the boat to Korsor, Denmark, went by train to Copenhagen, by boat to Malom, Sweden, and from there went to Stockholm by train. Two or three days were spent here in making preparations to visit the first plant, at Guisinge, Sweden. Four days were spent in examining the manufacture of steel. The furnace was charged on three occasions, it taking six hours for each charge, and the Commission was enabled to get readings on the quantity of electricity used, the output of steel and tests of quality. A test of pig iron manufatours was also made. At this plant what is known as the Induction Method is used, the current being induced directly in the furnace, while in the other plants inspected electrods were used. About four tons of high grade steel was the output daily from this plant. The inventor was Kjellin, and the manager was Herr Benedicts.

The next place visited was Kortfors, Sweden, where was installed a plant for refining steel from scrap iron. Only one day was spent here in looking over the plant, no particular tests being made. Heroult was the inventor of the system here, and Baron Hermelina was the manager.

After leaving Kortfors, the party returned to Stockholm and went to Berlin, where a two days sojourn ensued. A peat congress was in session at the time, and considerable information regarding the peat industry was received. The manufacture of peat for fuel is being done extensively in Germany. From Berlin the Commission went to Paris, where a stop of two weeks was made in making further preparations regarding the places to be visited, and in testing the instruments to be used. The plant in France inspected was at La Praz, in the south-eastern part of the country, near the Alps, and in the near proximity of the Mount Cenis Tunnel, the longest in the world. Here steel was manufactured in large quantities from old scrap iron, while pig iron was manufactured directly from the ore, but only for experimental purposes. At Lapras, the manufacture of alluminum was carried on very extensively and of the 17,000 horse power only about 500 was used for the steel. About 6 tons daily is turned out. M. Heroult the inventor is the manager of this plant. The next plant visited was at Turin Italy, where there was a steel plant but not in commercial operation and only experimental work was done here. It is a Government plant and the inventor is Capt. Stassanna. After spending three days here the party moved on to Livet, France, in the region of the Alps, where 14 days was spent. In four days spent in investigating the system here, about 18 tons of pig iron was manufactured direct from the ore. The steel plant, an experimental one, was operated for one day. The Ferro Compound was manufactured to a great extent here. Keller was the inventor of the process and the plant was managed by the Keller-Leleux & Co. This was the last plant inspected and the party returned to Paris, and sailed on April 4th for London, and on the 6th left Liverpool on the Cedric for New York.

At only three of the places visited is steel manufactured commercially, at Guisinge, Kortfors and LaPras, while pig iron is not manufactured commercially at all. Only the higher and improved product of steel is turned out and up to the present the lower grade has not been developed. The manufacture of the high grade of steel is found to be a success financially and until there are more plants installed and consequently more competition, it will not be found necessary to manufacture the lower grade of steel. The manufacture of pig iron is still in an experimental state and has not proved sufficiently profitable to have it manufactured commercially.

When asked regarding the different languages which would have to be used, Mr. Brown said the Commission was very fortunate in regard to its members as Mr. Nystron was a Swede and did the conversing in Sweden; Mr. Cote was a French-Canadian, while Dr. Haanel spoke German. The former's duties were to look after the securing of photos, drawings, etc., Prof. Harbord dealt with the metallurgic questions, Mr. Brown the electrical while Dr. Hoanel summarized the whole proceedings.

The weather for the greater part of the trip was rather damp and wet, except in Southern France, where the climatic conditions were very agreeable. There was practically no snow in Europe except in Atlantic was quite rough on the first voyage, but the weather was very pleasant on the return.

Mr. Brwon was delighted with the trip which was a very enjoyable one for all concerned. He will be in town for some time, but has made no definite plans as yet as to the future.

STREET RAILWAY NEWS

The Old Guard Wires Being Taken down To-day.

This morning further operations were resumed in connection with the street railway. The guard wires, above the trolley wires, were found to have suffered materially from exposure, and it was deemed necessary to have them replaced by new ones, and work was begun this morning in taking down the old wires. The trolley wires are in a good state of preservation, and these will not have to be replaced, it is thought.

Plan of Opera House for to-morrow night's Concert will be at the Opera House box office all day to-morrow.

A SERMON TO THE YOUNG WOMEN

Some Good Advice Offered in a Practical Sermon.

Rev. J. P. Wilson B. A. of George Street Church Preached Special Sermon Last Night.

Last night in George Street Methodist Church, Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A. preached a sermon to young women, prompted by the fact that May 24th, the birthday of the late Queen was at hand. In his introduction Mr. Wilson said that the people of the British Empire could not forget the birthday of the late Queen Victoria, and the Government very wisely directed that the birthday of the present King should be celebrated on May 24th, the day which has for so long been associated with the late Queen.

During the reign of Victoria womanhood reached its highest state of ennoblement, for in no other period in the world's history have women been so prominent in the world's affairs. This was in a great measure due to noble life of Queen Victoria.

The text for the sermon was I Sam. 25, 3, "Now the name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife was Abigail, and she was a woman of good understanding, and of a beautiful countenance, but the man was churlish and evil in his doings." The speaker said that personal attractiveness had an influence, but the real beauty is the inward beauty, and yet the face gives index to the soul within. There were some persons who had the erroneous idea that it was not a woman's function to engage in business pursuits or to evidence any particular strength of character. Young men are given university training and fitted to take their places in the business world, but women are often obliged to be content with little or no real preparations for their life's work. As an instance of the greater attention paid to young men he drew attention to the well-equipped Y.M.C.A. He was glad to see however, that such public spirited men as Sen. Cox others had given valuable assistance to the proposal to erect a new building for the young women.

He was strongly of the opinion that every young woman should have some means of making her own living. While motherhood and the home are the ideal functions of womanhood, they should also be trained in business. The speaker was also in favour of women franchise. If this were granted many of the great evils now agitated would be apollished.

Women should inform themselves on the current events of history. To do this it is not necessary to have an extensive library. The newspaper of today chronicles events which will be the history of to-morrow. Nothing gives a woman such a feeling of independance and self control as to be informed of the world's doings.

The art of conversation is one which is dying out, and the reason is that the idea has gotten abroad that it is impossible to spend an evening with each other without playing games. If women would read good literature, conversation would be made easy.

Women are useful in the world today, and if the history of many of the greatest men were told, it would be found that they owed most of their success to the influence of women. He strongly advises against marrying for mercenary considerations. No woman should marry a man for whom she did not possess an honouring love. Marriages influenced by any other motive were bound to prove disastrous.

Great Day in Sports on Saturday—Baseball and Football Games—The Events for To-morrow.

CITY CHAMPIONSHIP.

The Examiner has donated to the Guild Baseball League a trophy to be competed for annually, until won by one Guild three years in succession, when it becomes the property of the Guild thus winning it. This trophy will represent practically the city championship, since the Guild League is the only baseball organization drawing players from all parts of the town; and is a strictly amateur league.

The above offer was made to the League at the Executive meeting on Saturday night, and accepted by it. The first games will be played in the series next Monday, May 30th. The teams comprising the Guild League this year are:—

St. Andrew's
St. Paul's
St. Luke's

QUAKERS—WON THIRD STRAIGHT

Defeated Harwood Again Last Saturday by 2-0

Game was a fine Exhibition—Harwood Team much Strengthened—Excursion was a Success.

And still they win! Yes, that bunch of football artists, twelve in number, with the word, "Quaker," upon their red jerseys, have yet to meet their conquerors, and still persist in winning games with great regularity. On Saturday they took a trip down to see the Harwood people and enjoy a sail upon the Otonabee, and incidentally defeated the Harwood football team in a Midland League match by the score of 2—0, and by so doing raised their chances for the district championship by several points. And the funny part of it is that every time the team plays it improves materially, and if some team does not soon loom upon the surface and trounce them, they will be beyond control, and will walk away with the Stratton Trophy. And that's just what they are after. And that is also the reason why they turned down Harwood last Saturday by the aforesaid score.

The club's excursion, per the steamer "Water Lily" was well attended for so early in the season, and over one hundred genuine "rooters" and supporters were on board, prepared to use their vocal organs with startling effect when the game was in progress. And they did, too.

The sail down the river was a beautiful one, the weather being perfect for such a trip. Harwood was reached at five o'clock, and at six o'clock the struggle began.

The whole of Harwood and vicinity were present to view the contest, but it must be said that the volume of sound which escaped from the band of Quaker rooters drowned every effort of the homesters. There was plenty of opportunity to cheer, for the game was a good exhibition of football, and was very closely contested throughout. The grass on the field was several trifles too high, and bothered the visitors, who were accustomed to playing on the oval, but they soon sized up the situation, and set a fast clip. The play was of a gentlemanly nature, and was pretty to witness. Both teams were stronger and played better football than was the case here on the previous Saturday.

The Quakers played in better form than at any time this year. They were up against a strong and well-balanced team, and the victory was as creditable as it was unexpected to the Harwoodites, who were confident of reversing the previous Saturday's result. But they didn't. The Quakers' forwards played better combination, and did not bunch as much as formerly, though there is still room for some improvement in this regard. The backs, while slightly unsteady at the outset soon settled down and played their usual strong and effective game. Belleghem, in goal, was equal to every occasion, and handled some difficult shots. Simpson of course, was like a huge brickwall, and whenever he went after the ball he either got it,—or the man—and it was all the same in the end. Doria played very effectively, hecking accurately and relieving danger time and again by his excellent kicking. P. Fitzgerald, at centre half, put up his usual brilliant game, and made the most of every opportunity. M. Guerin was in the game for keeps, and showed up in fine shape, while Parnell played his usual steady game and gave his checks all kinds of trouble. On the forward line all were stars. Brooks especially in the first half, played the game of his life, working like a Trojan. His runs down the wings and passing were very fine, while his body checking was also effective. Perdue took care of everything that came his way, and did useful work. J. Guerin at centre always shone prominently, feeding the wings well and shooting very accurately. Both goals were the result of the accurate aim of his toe. C. Fitzgerald was in the thick of every scrimmage, and assisting materially in the scoring. Renton, after being laid up for two weeks, jumped into the game again like a whirlwind, and played great football. His rushes down the wing were great features. The whole team played well and deserved their victory.

The Harwood team were considerably strengthened and gave the visitors a hard tussle throughout. They had the play in the winners' territory fully one half the time, and at the outset looked like winners. They came very nearly scoring on several occasions and have no reason to feel downcast over the result of the game. McAllister and Donaldson were the stars of the defence while W. Butters the smallest and youngest player on the field was the pick of the forwards and played a great game. The forwards made several nice rushes but could not pass the opposing backs.

The line up of the teams was as follows:

Quakers.		Harwood.
	Goal.
Belleghem		Johnson
	Backs.
Doria		McAllister
Simpson		Butters
	Half-backs.
M. Guerin		Payne
P. Fitzgerald		Donaldson
Parnell		Corkery
	Forwards.
Renton		Butters
C. Fitzgerald		Harris
J. Guerin		Smart
Perdue		Clapperton
Brooks		Foley

Mr. Art. Noble made a satisfactory referee.

The play for the first few minutes was in Harwood territory but the losers by a combined rush transferred the ball to the Quakers' end and Belleghem had a couple of shots to handle. Perdue gave C. Fitzgerald a chance to score, but the shot was wide. Belleghem got in front of two hot ones and Renton made a long run up the wing but his aim was defective. Finally after 28 minutes play, Brooks passed neatly to centre to Renton, who, after dodging Butters, booted the leather to C. Fitzgerald, who did the needful. Half time was called soon afterwards.

In the second half, Harwood worked desperately to score, but without avail. C. Fitzgerald and C. Butters were ruled off for two minutes. After 15 minutes' of close play, Perdue shot a sizzler at Johnson who stopped the ball, but was slow in clearing and Guerin was "Johnny-on-the-spot," and swiped it through. And there was great and prolonged rejoicing among the Quaker admirers. The winners were contented not to score any more and the game ended Quakers 2, Harwood 0.

NOTES OF THE VICTORY.

Three straight!

The score was the same as on the previous Saturday.

Everyone had a fine time and enjoyed the trip immensely.

The Harwood team fully anticipated winning as their team was much strengthened.

The Quakers got to Caughnawaga next Saturday. A victory will cinch the district championship.

And incidentally the owner of the above mentioned tinship will be obliged to send an order somewhere for a new supply of dippers.

The treatment received at the hands of the Harwood team was very courteous and the Quakers are loud in praise of the manner in which they were used.

The victory was to no small extent due to the liberal support of the "Dipper Club," organized in one of Harwood's tinshops. They rooted vigourously and provided all kinds of fun for the crowd.

OPENING OF THE KAWARTHA LEAGUE

T.A.S. Team Defdated Auburns in the First Game.

Score was 7-3 and the Game an Interesting one—Twirlers did Good Work

The Kawartha Baseball League series opened last Saturday with a game between the two town teams, the Auburns and the T.A.S., at the oval. The game was an interesting contest, and in every innings, except the fourth, when the T.A.S. brought in four runs, and practically won the game, the honours were pretty evenly divided. The score, after nine innings of good ball playing, was 7—3 in favour of the Total Abstainers, who played a good game, and earned their victory. Some costly errors were made by the Auburns, otherwise the game was cleanly played. If the quality of ball is maintained to a standard equal to that set by Saturday's game, the Kawartha League will doubtless receive generous public support during the season.

Saturday's game was the first in which the Auburns had participated, and with a little more practice they should be able to give a good game to any team. McCorry, who twirled for the Auburn team last year in the City League, will again do the slab work of the shoddy men this year. He pitched good ball on Saturday, few hits being secured off his delivery, but his support was not of the best, and this with a few fielding errors made by himself, lost the game. Quinlan, who was in the box for the winners, is fast rounding into a star twirler. His offerings on Saturday were for the most part puzzles to the opposing team, and he was given good support.

A fairly large crowd witnessed the game, and no fault was found with the quality of ball dished up.

The Auburns started in strong, and looked like easy winners. In their half of the first they brought in two runs, while the best the T.A.S. could do was one. In the first of the first of the fourth, however, the T.A.S. took a batting streak, and when the smoke had cleared away the score stood 6—2, which lead the Auburns could not overcome.

Craig, who batted first for the T.A.S., was out to McCorry, Callaghan reached first on Kelly's error, stole second and scored on Quinlan's hit to left field. This finished the scoring, the next two men up going out.

McCorry, for the Auburns, hit safely to right, was advanced to second on a pass ball, and stole third. Kelly struck out and McCorry scored on a pass ball. Oille hit to second, but was safe at first, Trainer having his foot off the bag. Long hit to the right field, scoring Oille. Callaghan caught Long napping off third, and Earls struck out, retiring the side, with the score 2—1.

In the second, the first man up struck out; Derocher got first on Earl's error, stole second, and scored on Quinlan's sacrifice. Callaghan was out to McCorry. There was nothing doing in the last half. Long went out to Trainor; Shaw fanned; Earls was hit by a pitched ball and got his base, but died there, as Pedlar flew out to Callaghan.

In the first of the third Latimer flew out to Kelly, Quinlan reached first on Earl's fumble, stole second, but was caught stealing third. Callaghan singled and Fitzpatrick struck out. In this half the Auburns could do nothing. Hayes was out to Callaghan and Gillespie shared the same fate at the hands of Quinlan. McCorry reached first on Grady's error, but was left there, Kelly flying out to Latimer, who made a sensational catch.

It was in the fourth that the game was won. Derocher, who was first up was safe on McCorry's error, and stole second. Latimer also reached first safely on an error. Derocher rapped a grounder to third and beat the ball to first. Quinlan fanned, but Callaghan, with two on bases, sent a nice one out into centre, scoring Derocher and Latimer. Fitzpatrick followed suit scoring Callaghan. Fitzpatrick stole third and scored on Kelly's error. Trainer retired the side by hitting to McCorry, who threw the batter out at first;

The Auburns did nothing in their half.

In the fifth the T.A.S. went out in one, two, three order. Grady, Craig and Derocher retiring the side on flies. In the second half Kelly flew to Callaghan. Oille reached first on Craig's low throw. Long, who followed, was not so lucky, Craig throwing him out at first. Shaw fanned, retiring the side.

The T.A.S. had a chance to score in the sixth, but failed. Latimer was out to Pedlar, but Quinlan beat out a bunt, Callaghan singled, and Fitzpatrick hit to McCorry who fumbled, allowing the batter to reach first, leaving the bases full. Latimer fanned and Trainer flew out to Long. In the last half Earl's singled and stole second. Pedlar struck out, and Earls stole third, but was caught trying to reach the plate. Hayes hit to Grady and reached first, was advanced to second on a passed ball, but was out stealing third.

The T.A.S. scored in the seventh. Earls fumbled Latimer's grass-cutter, who stole second and scored on Trainer's single. Trainer stole second and the next three batters went out in order. Grady flying to McCorry and Craig to Oille. Trainer tried to steal home, but was caught. In the last half Oille was out at first, Long fanned and Shaw flew to Grady.

Only three men faced McCorry in the eighth. Latimer flew out to Kelly, who made a sensational catch. Quinlan hit a low one to McCorry, and Fitzpatrick flew out to short.

The Auburns scored in their half on a nice piece of playing. Earls had three strikes called, but Latimer muffed the ball and the runner reached first, but was caught stealing second. Pedlar reached first on the same terms as Earls, stole second on a pass and reached third on Callaghan's error. Hayes got first on an error and stole second. Gillespie fanned. Pedlar made the feature play of the game, when he stole home after the catcher had thrown the ball to the pitcher. McCorry was out to Quinlan.

Neither team scored in the ninth, which was not characterized by any startling features.

GEN. BOOTH AT 75 YEARS

THE GRAND OLD MAN OF THE GREAT SALVATION ARMY.

Interview on the Anniversary of His Birth, April 10, He Gives Some Account of His Work, Which Is Not Yet Finished —"Preaching," He Says, "Is First of All"—Why He Is Not "Satisfied" With Life's Work.

General Booth was 75 on April 10. Three-quarters of a century have rolled over the head of this man, leaving him still alert and active in command of the wonderful organization he called into being nearly forty years ago. In fifty different countries and 81 different languages the Salvation Army is carrying on its work to-day, and the old chief, though heavy with years, his tall, stalwart figure at last beginning to bend beneath the weight of them, is yet able to direct the army's operations in the furthermost parts of the earth.

This is an army with 14,000 officers, under the personal command of one general. That general knows them all. It is his proud boast that he has visited his outposts in every country with the exception of Japan, the West Indies, Java and South America.

Up early and to bed late, with hard and weary journeys in between, has been the general's daily round during his seventy-five years, which has just closed. Within recent months, apart from all he has done at his headquarters at Queen Victoria street, General Booth has been preaching and organizing in America, France, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium, Scotland and Ireland.

This very night he ships for the continent again, on a three weeks' preaching tour throughout Germany and Scandinavia. Within a fortnight of his return he is booked to visit the army stations in Switzerland. He must then hurry back to take part in the army's great international gathering in London this summer.

These details (writes a member of The London Daily News staff) are what I learnt from the general himself by dint of much questioning. So busy a man is hard to catch with a few minutes to spare for a chat about himself. First he thought I might be able to see him for a brief space on Sunday afternoon. Afterwards he had to alter the appointment by telegram announcing that the only half hour he could spare would be on Saturday night at his home at Hadley Wood.

Like an Old Warrior.

Pacing up and down his room while he talks, with his grey hair and beard, his strong face, his iron will, General Booth at 75 reminds one of nothing so much as an old warrior. A certain brusqueness, almost harshness, about his manner suggests the old soldier more than ever. But this impression fades when he becomes earnest in spiritual things or refers to the needy and suffering. Then he is more like a prophet than a soldier.

"What do I regard as the chief work of my life?" he repeated after me. "Preaching. Advancing years make no difference to me as a preacher. I forget everything when I get on my feet. Voice, energy, mental power, and I hope spiritual inspiration, are all more vivid and vigorous than at any previous period of my life. I am glad to say I have more success in leading people to a new life than I ever had."

So it would seem from some of the stories the general tells—stories that have the true Salvation Army ring about them. I hear how at Glasgow recently a well-to-do youth, the despair of his father, came out before an audience of 3,500 people to enlist in the army's service; how in America a woman, who had begged her fare from a publican, travelled 500 miles to hear the general preach in Kansas City, "going back converted to convert the man who had lent her the money." When last in Winnipeg the general heard of a "notorious backslider up country," as he was described, who was going about saying if he could only hear General Booth preach he believed he would be reclaimed. The man sold his horse to travel 600 miles to attend one of the services. "He was the first at the penitent form, and though he went home minus a horse his heart was full of love and peace."

And so on through many other similar cases, including that of a man in a north of England town who boasted that he had barely been sober for 20 years, until General Booth came to town.

I checked the flow of these miraculous narratives that sounded so much like passages from the New Testament by asking the worn old leader about other phases of his work.

"You are an organizer and a writer as well as a preacher. How do you find time for it all, especially at 75?"

Preaching First of All.

"I divide my work into three principal parts," came the ready answer. "First and foremost I place preaching. Then I have the business side of the army to attend to. There are 14,000 officers to direct in the four quarters of the globe. There is our great social scheme, with its emigration agency, now subsidized by the Canadian Government. We have also a large and rapidly growing trade in various things, as well as insurance, banking and legal business. All these matters call for a considerable amount of time and thought and care. Thirdly, I have my literary work. I am compelled to write a great deal for our different publications. We have 61 of them, with a combined circulation of over a million copies a week. The War Cry alone is published in 17 different languages."

Preaching is not merely General Booth's principal work; it is his chief joy in life. "I began exactly sixty years ago," he told me. "I was 15 at the time. I made a beginning at an open-air meeting in my native Nottingham. How well I remember giving out that old Methodist hymn:

O for a thousand tongues to sing
My blest Redeemer's praise.

And the old man's face became radiant as he repeated Charles Wesley's words and recalled his first boyish fervor.

"The Salvation Army had its rise in open-air meetings," he went on. "It is now some 38 years since I, then a Methodist minister in the east end, commenced the series of open-air meetings on Mile-end Waste which laid the foundation of the Salvation Army. Our movement was begun among the poor for the poor, and we have been preaching to the poor ever since."

For a moment or two the grey-haired veteran walked the room without speaking, neither his secretary nor myself breaking his silence. Then, as though speaking to himself, he said, in an undertone: "For sixty years I've been preaching, chiefly to the poor. For the poor I have nothing but pity and compassion."

"Are you satisfied with your life's work?" I interposed.

"No," he said sharply. "Satisfied? Who could be satisfied amid the indifference and disbelief of to-day. Look at the multitude around us who care nothing for God. Look at the growing agnosticism of the people. Look at the wretchedness and sufferings of the poor. Look at our national sins. Never was selfishness so marked as a national vice as it is to-day. Our thoughts are centred on spreading our trade and our flag regardless of principle. We are filled with a desire to expand, forgetting the lesson of the frog in the fable. In all the discussions about Chinese labor you never hear it asked, not even by regular churchgoers, What would Christ do with the Chinese?

"Satisfied? How can a man at 75 be satisfied when sin has got hold of the nation so?" And the old general held out his hand and bade me good-bye.

SCIENTISTS AND RADIUM.

English Making Huge Endeavor to Get Element in Bulk.

It is within the region of probability that before many days are passed the whole of the scientific world will be startled by the news that radium has been found in larger quantities than ever before known.

A Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper representative hears on excellent authority that, within easy distance of the metropolis, experiments are being conducted on a huge scale to obtain the new element, concerning which many weird stories have been related, some of which remind one of the old alchemists who sought over deadly poison fumes the substance or element which they believed would change the baser metals to gold and prove to be the elixir of life.

Up till now, owing to the small quantities of radium isolated from nature—two ounces being about the total quantity of the new element found in the world—the investigations of scientists have been confined to test-tube experiments, and nothing of a startling character has been announced outside radium's own mysterious activity, which is so wondrous that it has been suggested it may ultimately be found to be a link between the organic and the inorganic.

The present experiments are being carried on with extreme care, and unless some alarming accident shatters the hopes of the scientists engaged in the research, a big find of radium is expected on account of the large quantity of helium—about 25 cubic feet—that has been specially collected for this experiment and placed at the disposal of the scientific men engaged in getting radium in bulk.

To ensure success, a special apparatus has been constructed, and the work is carried on under 400 atmospheres.

Mrs. Poyser and Hetty Sorrel.

A picturesque but unpretentious old building known as Corley Hall Farm was recently sold at auction in Birmingham, England, that readers of George Eliot will be interested to hear about.

This house figures conspicuously in "Adam Bede" as the home of the immortal Mrs. Poyser and her unfortunate niece, Hetty Sorrel. The novelist was born within three miles of the place, and Canadian pilgrims to scenes of her early days have always been shown this house on the main road to Nuneaton.

Who has now purchased it and whether it must go the way of all other romantic landmarks has not yet been divulged, but once when the Poyser farm was pointed out to a great admirer of George Eliot the lady said she had rather live in it than in the finest house in Brookline, and I've no doubt she meant it too.

Never Hits It.

Sunlight Soap is recommended, by those who have investigated the different kind of soaps, as being the best and purest on the market. Those who have gone still farther and tried the different methods state that the Sunlight way of washing is greatly superior to ordinary methods because it requires much less work and makes the clothes whiter and cleaner. Because Sunlight Soap is quite pure and free from adulteration it will not injure delicate fabrics or the user's hands.

More of London's Millions Will Be Able to Find Passageway.

London bridge will soon be wearing its usual aspect. Its reconstruction is going on apace, and in a few weeks it will be open to its customary uninterrupted traffic. When this takes place the roadway will be found to be just six inches wider. This, however, is explained by the fact that the improvements that have been going on so long did not aim at expediting horse and vehicular traffic so much as facilitating that of the pavement. As a consequence, pedestrians will fully appreciate the wider space that has been provided for their passage across the bridge. The total widening is from fifty-three to sixty-five feet, and the footways on either side will thus gain, as near as makes no matter, six feet each in width. Fifty thousand cubic feet of stone has been used in the reconstruction, which, put another way, works out at four thousand tons. Part of this is old stone reworked, and has been quarried in Devonshire. The space under the enlarged footways will be utilized for pipes, wires, and so forth. Given favorable weather, the bridge may be opened in a month. On the other hand, inclement days may delay the opening much longer. The total cost of the improvements amounts approximately to £100,000.

A Noted Yachtswoman.

Lady Margaret Crichton-Stuart, who has just chartered the Zaza for a yachting tour in the Mediterranean, was born and bred on the Island of Bute, and has been devoted all her life to the sea. The Zaza no doubt has a fully qualified skipper, but he will find that his temporary owner has much more than a smattering of seamanship, and is quite capable, if need be, of navigating the craft to Egypt or anywhere else. It is probable that Lady Margaret's only rival of her own sex (at any rate within the ranks of the Peerage) in the knowledge of things nautical is Lady Ernestine Hunt, the elder daughter of the Marquis of Ailesbury. Lady Ernestine Bruce (as she was before her marriage) went through a complete course of navigation, and caused quite a flutter in the Board of Trade by applying to be examined and to be granted a sailing master's certificate.

Fifty-Four Men Killed.

Turk's Island, Bahamas, May 20.—Mail advices from Santo Domingo announce severe fighting at Navarett on May 14. The Government troops were defeated, losing 54 men killed and 67 wounded. Express trains carrying the wounded arrived in Puerto Plata and Santiago de Los Caballeros, May 15. A convoy conveying 20,000 cartridges from Puerto Plata to President Morales' forces fell into the hands of the Dominican insurgents.

First Symptoms of Paralysis

Should warn you to revitalize the wasted nerve cells by the use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Though paralysis is dreaded by everybody, some do not recognize as nervous headache, sleeplessness, irritability and low spirits the indications of nervous exhaustion which point to paralysis as the final outcome.

Whatever else you may neglect do not allow the nervous system to become exhausted and run down.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most potent nerve vitalizer known to science to-day. You can use it with positive assurance that each dose is bound to be of some benefit to you in building up the system and preventing nervous prostration and paralysis.

Mrs. S. J. Schooley, 12 Arthur avenue, St. Thomas, Ont., states:—"I was troubled a great deal with nervousness, severe headache and sleeplessness and at times a sort of numb feeling would come over me. I was in constant fear of paralysis as the doctors told me my trouble was exhaustion of the nervous system. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and soon noticed a great improvement. Now I can say that my nerves are completely restored, I sleep very much better and the distressing feeling of numbness has disappeared."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 1

IN THE LAND OF FIRE.

How the Native of Tierra del Fuego Manages to Exist.

In Tierra del Fuego the Yaghan Indian leads a remarkable existence. He braves the seas of Cape Horn naked in a frail bark canoe. He owns no faith, religion or tribal tie other than that of the family, which huddles together for food and sustenance. His only household goods are the smoldering firebrands which he carries on a slab of turf in his canoe to each fresh halting place. The women, usually two, paddle the canoe from the stern. The man crouches in the bow on the lookout for prey. On the shore runs one or two dogs to sniff out and turn any lurking otter or sea bird. The long kelp that fringes the coast serves as a breakwater for the frail craft, whose crew only venture out into the open channels when their foresight tells them that a calm will be of sufficient duration to enable them to pass from one inhospitable beach to another. They are unduly developed in the torso at the expense of the lower limbs, for they pass their lives thus circling the coasts. Fishing without hooks, living on mussels and fungus, this tribe marks the limit to which man may strip himself of all aid or comfort and yet survive.

TICKLING TROUT.

How Irish Poachers Catch the Fish With the Bare Hand.

In Europe trout poachers have the reputation of catching trout with their bare hands. The process in Ireland is called "tickling." I could scarcely believe that this thing was done—that the most timid and wary of fish could be caught by the naked hands. Reading of one fellow sent to jail for "tickling" trout, I was curious enough to try the process myself in the presence of an angler as witness. I found it the simplest thing in the world, as far as the "tickling" was concerned. The difficulty appeared to lie in approaching the trout. But I found that this could be done almost every time by quiet, adroit maneuvering, and I shall never forget the astonished face of my friend when I lifted from a pool a plump trout and held him in the palm of my hand just on the surface of the water. Half a dozen times I lifted the same trout, tickling him gently on the belly and sides. He appeared to like it, lying over against my hand like a cat that courts rubbing. I found that I could do almost anything with the trout, carrying them in my hand for a few moments before returning them to the water.

An Octogenarian's Recollections.

Lady Bloomfield, who is contributing some "Recollections of an Octogenarian" to The Pall Mall Magazine, is a daughter of the first Lord Ravensworth, and widow of the second and last Lord Bloomfield, British Ambassador at Vienna from 1860 till 1871, who died 25 years ago without issue, when all his honors became extinct. When Lady Bloomfield was a child she lived with her parents at Percy's Cross, Waltham Green. Percy's Cross was the scene of several large "breakfasts," as afternoon reception were then designated. One of these was honored by King William IV. and Queen Adelaide and the beau monde of London, and Lady Bloomfield mentions the fact that on this occasion she remembers Prince George of Hanover and his cousin, Prince George of Cambridge, then very handsome boys, running races. When Lady Bloomfield was eight years old she was taken to Kensington Palace to visit the young Princess Victoria, who was three years her senior, and who gave her a little Dresden china figure. "The Queen playfully alluded to our visit to Kensington," Lady Bloomfield says, "the very last time I had the honor of dining with Her Majesty, at Cimiez in 1899."

Sunshine Furnace

Easy to Shake.

More than half the drudgery of tending a furnace is in the shaking down. Enough to break a man's back, and certainly no work for a woman, is the job of shaking down some furnaces.

With a Sunshine Furnace you stand up and oscillate a gently working lever that a child could handle. It's so easy you won't believe it, if you've been used to the common back-breakers.

And the Sunshine is a hygienic, coal-saving, practical housewarmer in every way that a good furnace ought to be.

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA

By Booth Tarkington.

"The Lord be good to me!" he broke out, all his long pent passion of dreams rushing to his lips as the barrier fell. "Don't you see it is because I can't bear to let you go? I hoped to get away without saying it. I want to be alone. I want to be with myself and try to realize things. I didn't want to make a babbling idiot of myself, but I am. It is because I don't want another second of your sweetness to leave an added pain when you've gone. It is because I don't want to hear your voice again, to have it haunt me in the loneliness you will leave. But it's useless, useless. I shall hear it always, just as I shall always see your face, just as I have heard your voice and seen your face these seven years, ever since I first saw you, a child, at Winter Harbor. I forgot for awhile. I thought it was a girl I had made up out of my own heart, but it was you all the time. The impression I thought nothing of then; just the merest touch on my heart, light as it was, grew and grew deeper till it was there forever. You've known me twenty-four hours, and I understand what you think of me for speaking to you like this. If I had known you for years and had waited and had the right to speak and keep your respect, what have I to offer you? I couldn't even take care of you if you went mad as I and listened. I've no excuse for this raving— Yes, I have."

He saw her in another second of lightning, a sudden, bright one. Her back was turned to him, and she had taken a few startled steps from him.

"Ah," he cried, "you are glad enough now to see me go! I knew it. I wanted to spare myself that. I tried not to be a hysterical fool in your eyes." He turned aside, and his head fell on his breast. "God help me!" he said. "What will this place be to me now?"

The breeze had risen. It gathered force. It was a chill wind, and there rose a wailing on the prairie. Drops of rain began to fall.

"You will not think a question implied in this," he said, more composedly, but with an unhappy laugh at himself. "I believe you will not think me capable of asking you if you care"—

"No," she answered, "I—I do not love you."

"Ah, was it a question, after all? I—you read me better than I do, perhaps. But, if I asked, I knew the answer."

She made as if to speak again, but words refused her.

After a moment, "Goodby," he said very steadily. "I thank you for the charity that has given me this little time—with you. It will always be precious to me. I shall always be your servant." His steadiness did not carry him to the end of his sentence. "Goodby"—

She started toward him and stopped. He did not see her. She answered nothing, but stretched out her hand to him and then let it fall quickly.

"Goodby," he said again. "I shall go out the orchard gate. Please tell them good night for me. Won't you speak to me? Goodby!"

He stood waiting, while the rising wind blew their garments about them. She leaned against the wall of the house. "Won't you say goodby and tell me you can forget my"—

She did not speak.

"No!" he cried wildly. "Since you don't forget it! I have spoiled what might have been a pleasant memory for you, and I know it. You are already troubled, and I have added, and you won't forget it, nor shall I—nor shall I. Don't say goodby! I can say it for both of us. God bless you, and goodby, goodby, goodby!"

He crushed his hat down over his eyes and ran toward the orchard gate. For a moment lightning flashed repeatedly. She saw him go out the gate and disappear into sudden darkness. He ran through the field and came out on the road. Heaven and earth were revealed again for a dazzling white second. From horizon to horizon rolled clouds contorted like an illimitable field of inverted haystacks, and beneath them enormous volumes of bluish vapor were tumbling in the west, advancing eastward with sinister swiftness. She ran to a little knoll at the corner of the house and saw him set his face to the storm. She cried aloud to him with all her strength and would have followed, but the wind took the words out of her mouth and drove her back, cowering, to the shelter of the house.

Out on the road the lashing dust came stinging him like a thousand nettles. It smothered him and beat him so that he covered his face with his sleeve and fought into the storm shoulder foremost, dimly glad of its uproar, yet almost unconscious of it, keeping westward on his way to nowhere. West or east, north or south, it was all one to him. The few heavy drops that fell boiling into the dust ceased to come; the rain withheld while the wind kings rode on earth. On he went in spite of them. On and on, running blindly when he could run at all. At least the wind kings were company. He had been so long alone. There was no one who belonged to him or to whom he belonged. For a day his dreams had found in a girl's eyes the precious thing that is called home. Oh, the wild fancy! He laughed aloud.

There was a startling answer—a lance of fire hurled from the sky, riving the fields before his eyes, while crash on crash numbed his ears. With that his common sense awoke, and he looked about him. He was two miles from town. The nearest house was the Briscoes', far down the road. He knew the rain would come now. There was a big oak near him at the roadside, and he stepped under its sheltering branches and leaned against the great trunk, wiping the perspiration and dust from his face. A moment of stunned quiet had succeeded the peal of thunder. It was followed by several moments of incessant lightning that played along the road and the fields. From that intolerable brightness he turned his head and saw, standing against the fence, five feet away, a man, leaning over the top rail and looking at him.

The same flash swept brilliantly before Helen's eyes as she crouched against the back steps of the brick house. It revealed a picture like a marine of big waves, the tossing tops of the orchard trees, for in that second the full fury of the storm was loosed, wind and rain and hail. It drove her against the kitchen door with cruel force. The latch lifted, the door blew open violently, and she struggled to close it in vain. The house seemed to rock. A candle flickered toward her from the inner doorway and was blown out.

"Helen! Helen!" came Minnie's voice anxiously. "Is that you? We were coming to look for you. Did you get wet?"

Mr. Willetts threw his weight against the door and managed to close it. Then Minnie found her friend's hand and led her through the dark hall to the parlor, where the judge sat placidly reading by a student lamp.

Lige chuckled as they left the kitchen. "I guess you didn't try too hard to shut that door, Harkless," he said, and then when they came into the lighted room, "Why, where is Harkless?" he asked. "Didn't he come with us from the kitchen?"

"No," answered Helen faintly. "He's gone." She sank upon the sofa and put her hand over her eyes as if to shade them from too sudden light.

"Gone!" The judge dropped his book and sat staring across the table at the girl. "Gone! When?"

"Ten minutes—five—half an hour—I don't know. Before the storm commenced."

"Oh!" The old gentleman appeared to be reassured. "Probably he had work to do and wanted to get in before the rain."

But Lige Willetts was turning pale. "Which way did he go? He didn't come around the house. We were out there till the storm broke."

"He went by the orchard gate. When he got to the road he turned that way." She pointed to the west.

"He must have been crazy!" exclaimed the judge. "What possessed the fellow?"

"I couldn't stop him. I didn't know how." She looked at her three companions, slowly and with growing terror, from one face to another. Minnie's eyes were wide, and she had unconsciously grasped Lige's arm. The young man was staring straight before him. The judge got up and walked nervously back and forth. Helen rose to her feet and went toward the old man, her hands pressed to her bosom.

"Ah," she cried out, "I had forgotten that! You don't think they—you don't think he"—

"I know what I think," Lige broke in. "I think I'd ought to be hanged for letting him out of my sight. Maybe it's all right. Maybe he turned and started right back for town—and got there. But I had no business to leave him, and if I can I'll catch up with him yet." He went to the front door and, opening it, let in a tornado of wind and flood of water that beat him back. Sheets of rain blew in horizontally in spite of the porch beyond.

Briscoe followed him. "Don't be a fool, Lige," he said. "You hardly expect to go out in that." Lige shook his head. It needed them both to get the door closed. The young man leaned his back against it and passed his sleeve across his wet brow. "I hadn't ought to have left him."

"Don't scare the girls," whispered the other; then in a louder tone: "All I'm afraid of is that he'll get blown to pieces or catch his death of cold. That's all there is to worry about. They wouldn't try it again so soon after last night. I'm not bothering about that; not at all. That needn't worry anybody."

"But this morning"—

"Pshaw! He's likely home and dry by this time. All foolishness. Don't be an old woman."

The two men re-entered the room and found Helen clinging to Minnie's hand on the sofa. She looked up at them quickly.

"Do you think—do you—what do you"—

Her voice shook so that she could not go on.

The judge pinched her cheek and patted it. "I think he's home and dry, but I think he got wet first. That's what I think. Never you fear. He's a good hand at taking care of himself. Sit down, Lige. You can't go for awhile." Nor could he. It was a long, long while before he could venture out. The storm raged and roared without abatement. It was Carlow's worst since '51, the old gentleman said. They heard the great limbs crack and break outside, while the thunder pealed and boomed, and the wind ripped at the eaves till it seemed as if the roof must go. Meanwhile the judge, after some apology, lit his pipe and told long stories of the storms of early days and of odd freaks of the wind. He talked on calmly, the picture of repose, and blew rings above his head, but Helen saw that one of his big slippers beat an unceasing little tattoo on the carpet. She sat with fixed eyes, in silence, holding Minnie's hand tightly, and her face was colorless, growing whiter as the slow hours dragged by.

Every moment Mr. Willetts became more restless. He assured the ladies he had no anxiety regarding Mr. Harkless. It was only his own dereliction of duty that he regretted. The boys would have the laugh on him, he said. But he visibly chafed more and more under the judge's stories and constantly rose to peer out of the window into the wrack and turmoil, and once or twice he struck his hands together with muttered ejaculations. At last there was a lull in the fury without, and as soon as it was perceptible he announced his intention of making his way into town. He "had ought to have went before," he declared apprehensively, and then, with immediate amendment, of course he would find the editor at work in the Herald office. There wasn't the slightest doubt of that, he agreed with the judge, but he better see about it. He would return early in the morning and bid Miss Sherwood goodby. Hoped she'd come back some day; hoped it wasn't her last visit to Plattville. They gave him an umbrella, and he plunged into the night, and as they stood for a moment at the door, the old man calling after him cheery good nights and laughing messages to Harkless, they could see him fight with his umbrella when he got out into the road.

Helen's room was over the porch, the windows facing north, looking out upon the pike and across the fields. "Please don't light the lamp, Minnie," she said when they had gone upstairs. "I don't need it." Miss Briscoe was flitting about the room hunting for matches. In the darkness she came to her friend and laid a kind, large hand on Helen's eyes, and the hand became wet. She drew Helen's head down on her shoulder and sat beside her on the bed.

"Sweetheart, you mustn't fret," she soothed in motherly fashion. "Don't you worry, dear. He's all right. It isn't your fault, dear. They wouldn't come on a night like this."

But Helen drew away and went to the window, flattening her arm against the pane, her forehead pressed against her arm. She had let him go; she had let him go alone. She had forgotten the danger that always beset him. She had been so crazy; she had seen nothing, thought of nothing. She had let him go into that and into the storm alone. Who knew better than she how cruel they were. She had seen the fire leap from the white blossom and heard the ball whistle, the ball they had meant for his heart—that good, great heart. She had run to him the night before. Why had she let him go into the unknown and the storm tonight? But how could she have stopped him? How could she have kept him after what he had said? He had put it out of her power to speak the word "Stay!" She peered into the night through distorting tears.

The wind had gone down a little, but only a little, and the electrical flashes danced all round the horizon in magnificent display, sometimes far away, sometimes dazingly near, the darkness doubly deep between the intervals when the long sweep of flat lands lay in dazzling clearness, clean cut in the washed air to the finest detail of stricken field and heaving woodland.

A staggering flame clove earth and sky, and sheets of light echoed it, and a frightful uproar shook the house and rattled the casements, but over the crash of thunder Minnie heard her friend's loud scream and saw her spring back from the window with both hands, palms outward, pressed to her face. She leaped to her and threw her arms about her.

"What is it?"

"Look!" Helen dragged her to the window. "At the next flash! The fence beyond the meadow."

"What was it? What was it like?" The lightning flashed incessantly. Helen tried to point. Her hand only jerked from side to side.

"Look!" she cried.

"I see nothing but the lightning," Minnie answered breathlessly.

"Oh, the fence! The fence! And in the field!"

"Helen! What was it like?"

"Ah, ah!" she panted. "A long line of white looking things—horrible white"—

"What like?" Minnie turned from the window and caught the other's wrist in a strong clasp.

"Minnie, Minnie! Like long white gowns and cowls crossing the fence!" Helen released her wrist from her companion's grasp and put both hands on Minnie's cheeks, forcing her around to face the flickering pane. "You must look! You must look!" she cried.

"They wouldn't do it! They wouldn't—it isn't!" Minnie shuddered. "They couldn't come in the storm. They wouldn't do it in the pouring rain."

"Yes! Such things would mind the rain!" She burst into hysterical laughter, and Minnie seized her round the waist, almost as unnerved as Helen, yet trying to soothe her. "They would mind the rain," Helen whispered. "They would fear a storm. Yes, yes! And I let him go; I let him go!"

Pressing close together, clasping each other's waist, the two girls peered out at the landscape.

"Look!"

Up from the distant fence that bordered the northern side of Jones' field a pale, pelted, flapping thing reared itself, poised and seemed, just as the blackness came again, to drop to the ground.

"Did you see?"

But Minnie had thrown herself into a deep chair with a laugh of wild relief. "My darling girl!" she cried. "Not a line of white things—just one—Mr. Jones' scarecrow! And we saw it blown down!"

"No, no, no! I saw the others. They were in the field beyond. I saw them. When I looked the first time they were nearly all on the fence. This time we saw the last man crossing. Ah, I let him go alone!"

Minnie sprang up and infolded her. "No; you dear, imagining child, you're upset and nervous, that's all the matter in the world. Don't worry; don't, child; it's all right. Mr. Harkless is home and safe in bed long ago. I know that old scarecrow on the fence like a book, and you're so unstrung you fancied the rest. He's all right. Don't you bother, dear."

(To be continued.)

The amount of energy in a food doesn't count so much as the amount you can get out with the least effort.

"FORCE" is easily digested, and it is likable beyond description.

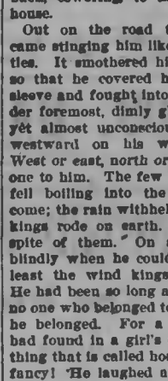
GOOD LIVING

Quite often results in bad health, because what is termed "good living" is usually the gratification of the palate without reference to the nutrition of the body. When the good liver is a business man and rises from a full meal to plunge at once into work requiring mental effort the result is almost sure to be disastrous, because digestion draws upon the same nervous forces which are employed in thought. In time the stomach becomes diseased, the processes of digestion and nutrition are imperfectly performed and there is a physical breakdown.



Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates the effete poisonous matter which originates in the system as a consequence of imperfect digestion. It gives sound health to the whole body.

"I wish to say to the world that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has proved a great blessing to me," writes Mrs. Ellen R. Bacon, of Shutesbury, Franklin Co., Mass. "Prior to September, 1897, I had doctored for my stomach trouble for several years, going through a course of treatment without any real benefit. In September, 1898, I had very sick spells and grew worse; could eat but little. I commenced in September, 1897, to take Dr. Pierce's medicine, and in a short time I could eat and work. I have gained twenty pounds in two months."

EIGHT REASONS

why Scott's Emulsion is an ideal food-medicine.

1. It is partly pre-digested and therefore passes quickly into the blood.
2. It imposes no tax upon the stomach or other digestive organs.
3. It does not cause fermentation such as usually results from ordinary food when the stomach is weak.
4. Its action is mild and even, insuring the greatest nourishment with the least effort.
5. Its quality is always uniform.
6. It feeds and strengthens the bones, blood, nerves and tissues.
7. It is one of the greatest flesh producers known to medical science.
8. It is palatable and agreeable to the taste and easily taken.

NORWOOD WINS FROM THE O.C.W.

In a Midland Football League Game on Saturday.

Score was 1-0—First win for the Norwood Team—Hard Luck for the Wanderers.

Saturday was visitors' day in the Midland Football League, both home teams being defeated in the two games played, Quakers winning at Harwood, while Norwood won from the Wanderers here. The game between the two latter teams was played at the driving park during the evening, and was a good contst. Both teams displayed good science, and although the Wanderers lost it certainly cannot be laid to the work of the defence, every player on that division playing a splendid game. Whitlow as usual proved a stone wall on the back division, and saved a score a good many times. He and the other defence players were given plenty to do, too. The Norwood forwards played a snappy, aggressive game, and the ball was in the Wanderers' territory for the greater part of the time, and that they were able to score only one goal was largely due to the good work of Whitlow. The score at the end of the game stood 1—0, at which figure it had also stood at half time, the only goal scored being put into the Wanderers' goal during the first half of the game, when the Norwood team by a nice piece of work, scored a tally, Lamey and Tucker doing the necessary. A short kick was stopped by Butler, but the two players mentioned pushed Butler, who still held the ball, through the posts, scoring the only goal. Butler had other shots to stop and took care of them well, this being the only one to get through.

Howson, for the Norwood team, nearly scored in the second half. He took the ball from centre field through the entire Wanderers' defence, and made a shot on goal, which unfortunately for the Norwood team, went wide. The Norwood forwards checked their men so closely that the goal keepers had little to do, only one shot being made on goal, and this Foster stopped easily. Finlay on the back line is a strong player, and relieved many a dangerous situation, while Nicholls on the half back line, played a good game. He is an aggressive player, and is always on the ball when it reaches his territory. The forwards, while light, are exceedingly active, and put up a fine game, proving too fast for their obecks in many cases.

In the former game in Norwood, neither team scored, and Saturday's contest was the third successive game in which the Wanderers have participated without scoring a goal. The Wanderers comprise a number of splendid players, but as a combination they are weak in the scoring division. Their defence players are among the best in their class, and it takes an exceedingly fast forward to score against such players as Whitlow, Smailes, Haddow and Hawkins, with Butler in goal.

The game on Saturday was witnessed by a small crowd of spectators, many of whom were supporters of the Norwood team.

The teams were:—

Norwood — Goal, Foster; backs, T. Finlay, Weir; halves, Miller, Nicholl, Power; forwards, Lamey, Howson, Doherty, McFee, Tucker.

Wanderers — Goal, Butler, backs, Whitlow, Smailes; halves, Hawkins, Haddow, Evans; forwards, Wright, Lyons, Dixon, Haddow, Strong.

Mr. J. W. Kelly of Bridgenorth, refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

EXAMINER TROPHY FOR GUILD TEAM

League Championship Represented by Trophy Donated by the Examiner.

A meeting of the Executive of the Guild Baseball League was held Saturday night in the Y.M.C.A. Board Room, all the Guilds being represented except St. Paul's. Mr. P. A. Kerr, president of the League, acted as chairman of the meeting.

The secretary made an offer to the Guild on behalf of the Examiner, to donate to the League for annual competition, a silver trophy to represent the League championship, and to be won three years in succession before it becomes the property of one club. The League, through its executive accepted this offer, and the secretary was instructed to write Hon. Mr. Stratton thanking him for the trophy. The silver cup already purchased by the League will now be given to the runners-up each year, until it has been won 3 years in succession by one club, when it will become the property of that Club. The effect of the Examiner's offer has been to create an increased interest in the League, which really represents the city, since it is composed of players from the different wards. The Examiner trophy will represent the City Championship, and the competition for it will be very keen among the different Guilds. A meeting of the Executive will be held on Wednesday night, when all lists of players must be in the secretary's hands for submission to the Executive. The League season will open on May 30th, when George street will play All Saints and St. Luke's will play Charlotte street.

Each Guild will contribute $2.50 towards the funds of the League.

LACROSSE.

Peterborough will place two lacrosse teams in the field to-morrow. One team will play Lindsay here, while the other will go to Port Hope and give the team of that town a game. The Port Hope people are looking forward to a good contest. Preparations are being made to entertain the team visiting in good shape, and a strong dozen will be put in the field against them. Some of the last year's senior players will be on the team. The players to go to Port Hope are asked to be at the G.T.R. station at 11.30 sharp. The team to go to Port Hope will be:—Goal, W. Galley; point, Donovan; cover point, McCormack; defence, G. Galley, F. Whaley, Dunford; centre, Belland; home, Dumble, Bowes, Gorham; outside, F. McCoy; inside, A. Long, Payne. Team to play Lindsay here will be:—Goal, O'Brien; point, Dillon; cover point, Morgan; defence, Howell, Meagher, Mein; centre, McGrath; home, Parnell, Derocher, McCabe; outside, Glover; inside, Wasson.

BASEBALL.

In the Midland League to-morrow Oshawa goes to Cobourg, Port Hope to Bowmanville and Peterborough to Lindsay.

• • • •

To-morrow in the Kawartha League, the game scheduled is Lindsay at Fenelon Falls.

• • • •

A good game is promised to-morrow morning between the Young Quakers of town and the Young Athletics of Port Hope.

• • • •

Charlotte street Guild team will practice this evening, weather permitting.

• • • •

Peterborough will have two lacrosse and three baseball teams struggling for honours on the green to-morrow.

• • • •

On Saturday afternoon the South Central Juniors played the South Enders, defeating them by 15—12. W. Thornton, umpire.

• • • •

In the School League the North Ward trimmed the George street school team by 24—13, on Saturday.

• • • •

The Sheridan Terrace team won from the Bethune street team Saturday, the score being 15—4.

• • • •

The George street Guild team will practice to-night at 6.30. All members are asked to be on hand.

• • • •

Manager Whitcroft will take a strong team to Lindsay to-morrow to play the opening game in the Midland League. The following players will go on the 8.20 train:—J. Pilling, Simpson, Graham, Bellegham, Whitcroft, T. Pilling, Wareham, Sheridan, Flaherty, Lamont, Cawthorne. The team has not been chosen yet, but this will be done at a meeting to be held to-night.

• • • •

The game in the Kawartha League between the Auburns and Bobcaygeon, scheduled to be played here to-morrow has been postponed.

• • • •

Toronto lost to Newark on Saturday and Sunday. But the worst of it was Montreal beat Jersey City.

• • • •

It is likely that Mr. C. G. Graham will be unable to go to Lindsay to-morrow. It will be up to the manager to fill the breech.

GOLF.

The members of the Golf Club are notified that the draws and handicaps for the Stratton Cup will be on the board Saturday morning. Play starts Saturday, and the first round must be played by the following Friday.

FOOTBALL.

The Quakers will hold a full practice at 6.45 to-night at the Oval.

THE PATRIOTIC CONCERT.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Mr. Editor,—Publicity has been given to a report that the patronage of Lord Dundonald has been withdrawn from the patriotic concert in the Opera House to-morrow night. In view of this a little explanation is necessary.

As Victoria Day has been established to give an opportunity to citizens to celebrate all that the occasion brings to mind, and as we have the privilege of being leaders in one of the church choirs in town, and further finding that last year no effort was made to put on a good concert for those who stayed at home, we decided after consultation with the Rev. Mr. Potter, of St. Andrews to make extensive preparations, and arranged what we believed would be a concert worthy of the memory of our late Queen.

As it was learned that the Band had run an excursion last 24th, and up till last Wednesday morning had not definitely announced any concert, we felt free to take another step which has given rise to a little misunderstanding. Knowing Lord Dundonald's public spirit, and in view of the fact that it was Victoria Day, we ventured to ask the patronage of His Lordship, which was most graciously granted. In reply to this we forwarded our most sincere thanks. On the announcement of the Band concert last Wednesday only, and foreseeing that it might lead to a little unpleasantness, Mr. Potter advised as a courteous thing to confer with Mr. Gliddon, the Band Master, as to some mutual arrangement. Such of course was found not to be practicable, and the Band Master asserted that there was a different crowd that would patronize both concerts.

The patronage so graciously extended, "SO FAR AS WE ARE AWARE," has not been withdrawn. Representatives of His Majesty have the privilege of, and take delight in bestowing their favours upon the humblest of the King's subjects, and while owing to the busy day that Lord Dundonald will have to-morrow, we could not expect him to attend all the entertainments that seek his favours, yet we prized above measure his recognition of our efforts to commemorate the day. We have on every hand been complimented for our enterprise in giving such a high-class concert, and having announced the matter for a full month, we feel that we must keep faith with the public as well as the artists.

We are compelled to look upon it as a most ungenerous thing for any organization to make a wrong use of a programme, drawn up by the district officer.

It ought rather to have given delight that His Lordship had been pleased to extend his benediction to another concert. This would have done no harm, and it would, we think, give added joy to Lord Dundonald, when he would see that his blessings were appreciated both in public and in military circles.

We are led to understand that if we had made application for patronage through Lt. Col. J. W. Miller, matters would have been different. We regret our lack of knowledge of military usage, and appreciate all the more highly the gracious response of Lord Dundonald to two very humble yet loyal subjects of His Majesty and patriotic citizens in anything commemorating the life and character of our late beloved Queen Victoria.

With deepest gratitude for your valuable space,

Yours sincerely,
ALF. E. YOUNG,
SYDNEY GLASS.

SPECIAL SESSION OF KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Will be Held in Peterborough Lasting Three Days

The Knights of Columbus of Canada will hold a special three days' session in Peterborough, commencing to-morrow morning. The session will open with the delegates attending Divine service in St. Peter's Cathedral, where Rev. Father McCall, the rector, will preach a sermon. It is expected that a large number of distinguished members of the order, both clergy and laymen, will attend the session, the principal business of which will be the initiation of candidates into the degrees. A number of prominent gentlemen will be present from the United States to exemplify the third degree.

The sessions will be held in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street.

Hard to Kill.

Cats, according to the old tradition, have nine lives, but they are not the only creatures that enjoy such a plurality. Infusoria have been dried and restored to life by moistening after remaining inert dust for twenty-seven years, and the drying resuscitation has been successfully tried eleven times on one lot of rotifers. Frogs and many fishes suffer no injury from freezing solid, while in a few cases even warm blooded animals have been restored to life after apparent death from freezing.

PETEBOROUGH WON FROM LINDSAY.

At Lacrosse Yesterday Afternoon by 14-1

Programme of Sports at Murray Street Grounds—Large Attendance saw Fine Sport.

Several hundred people gathered in the Murray Street Separate School Grounds yesterday afternoon to witness the programme of athletic sports and the lacrosse match between Lindsay and Peterborough. The sports were well contested and provided some splendid finishes. The lacrosse game was easy for the locals who trotted away from the Scugog boys to a tune of 14—1.

The lacrosse game was called at 3 o'clock and between the quarters, the sports were run off. The home club was represented by a strong line-up while only a portion of the visitors' regular team was present, two or three gaps being filled by local players. But it is very doubtful if even the strongest team that Lindsay can produce will be able to hold our speedy team in check this season. The game for the most part was rather too one-sided to be exciting and after the first quarter the result was a foregone conclusion and towards the close the boys were scoring just about when they took the notion. The play was quite quite strenuous at times and a number of players were disciplined for transgressing the rules. The style of lacrosse was not up to mid-summer variety, there being considerable wild passing and muffing on both sides, but the match was sufficient to demonstrate that the locals will make all comers hustle for the honours this summer.

For their first game, the Peterboroughs played good lacrosse most of the time and showed that they have material galore and good material too. The team was composed of a combination of last year's T.A.S. and Athletics, there being six players from each of these teams and the dozen thus forme made a very strong bunch. The defence was very strong and refused to be drawn out while the home was fast and sure, exhibiting some very pretty and effective combined play at times and shooting with deadly accuracy. With a little strengthening in spots and a week of good stiff practice, the boys will be prepared to give Oshawa a great struggle there next Wednesday.

O'Brien was seldom called upon but was never found wanting. Dillon and Morgan stuck to their checks like glue and relieved in clever fashion. Howell, Meagher and Mein made a great defence field and checked in excellent form. Crowley at centre played his usual fast and effective game. The home was quite brilliant, and played well together. McGrath was very speedy. Parnell played a very useful game, while McCabe was always prominent, and with Glover, who put up a star game throughout, was responsible for most of the scoring. Glover's shooting was deadly in the extreme.

The Lindsay team as a whole was outclassed and after the first few minutes were never in the hunt. Boyle in goal made some splendid stops. McWilliams, formerly of Lindsay, but who is living in Peterborough at present played a splendid game and was one of the most effective of the visitors' defence players.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

The winners went right at it from the start and after two minutes Crowley made a long run and transferred the sphere to Glover whose shot sagged the net. Six minutes later Parnell gave Glover another chance to score and he did so again. Six minutes later, Glover passed to McCabe and Jack made the tally 3—0. Quarter time was called.

A pretty piece of combination play between Glover, Dunford and McCabe resulted in a score by the latter in one minute. Dunford and O'Leary had a little scrap and were ruled off. Elliott scored Lindsay's only goal in 6 minutes. Howell and Gilgugley went to the side for disagreeing, and Dunford scored from Parnell's pass in 4 minutes. The score at half time was 5—1.

From the face-off the ball went to Glover who handed the goods to McCabe, who scored. Morgan was ruled off and in 8 minutes McCabe again shot one past Boyle and the score was 7—1. McCabe still persisted and just before three-quarter time made the score stand 8—1.

In the last quarter the boys got very busy, Parnell scored in one minute, Glover scored again in three minutes. McGrath was ruled off. Glover again fooled Boyle in 2 1-2 minutes and tallied again two minutes later. Parnell and Elliott were made spectators and McCabe made the score 13—1 in three minutes. The last goal was scored in 30 seconds by Glover.

The teams lined up like this:—

Lindsay.	Peterborough.
Goal.
Boyle	O'Brien
Point.
O'Leary	Dillon
Cover Point.
Buck	Morgan
First Defence.
Williamson	Howell
Second Defence.

Mr. F. A. Clarke gave perfect satisfaction as referee.

The winners of the different athletic events were as follows:—

100 yds. hurdle dash — McGrath, Crowley, Armstrong.

220 yds. dash — McGrath, Armstrong, LeVasseur.

OPERA HOUSE CONCERT WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Very fine Programme was Presented Last Evening.

Miss Alice Dean and Master Clarence Glass Assisted by Local Singers—An Appreciative Audience.

One of the best concerts that has been heard in our opera house for a long time was that which was given last evening before a fairly large audience. On the programme were four local artists, and two from other places, and the work of each was very creditable. It was an evening of high class music, which was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated by the audience, which manifested its pleasure in a demonstrative manner. Those who were absent missed a rare musical treat, and the promoters of the concert are deserving of credit for its successful issue.

Miss Alice Dean, violinist, who created such a favourable impression upon her appearance here last fall, was even more popular last evening, and her playing more than delighted the audience. She won a distinct triumph in every number, her charming appearance and manner, combined with her exquisite playing arousing the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Miss Dean plays in a masterly manner, producing a tone of remarkable sweetness, sympathy and breadth, while her technique and execution were suberb. The intricate passages and difficult runs were played with precision, and in such a manner, as to convince the audience of the truly artistic ability of the performer. Her opening number, Borowski's "Adoration," was brilliantly rendered, as was her next number, "Glencoe," by Murdock; the bagpipe imitation in this number was very realistic. For her last number she played by special request, "La Mazurka de Concert," by Musin, which was rendered beautifully, and very enthusiastically received. Miss Dean was encored upon each appearance, and will be certain of a hearty welcome upon any future visit to Peterborough.

Master Clarence Glass, Toronto's favourite boy soprano, was heard for the first time in town, but it is safe to say that it will not be long before he appears here again. He possesses a delightful voice, remarkable for its great range and exquisite purity and sweetness of tone. His high notes were of a bird like quality, while his whole register was remarkably well developed. Everyone was greatly impressed with his beautiful singing, and he was several times recalled. His numbers were "Beauty's Sleep," Arditti; "Lovely Spring," and "Ave Marie," by Bach-Gounod, with violin obligato by Miss Dean.

Miss Florence Miller was in excellent voice last evening, and sang in a charming manner. The fine qualities of her powerful and very musical soprano voice, were advantageously displayed in her selection, "I Dreamed of a Lover, Tall and Fair," by Weir, and in response to a hearty encore she sang with exquisite grace and expression, "In May."

Miss Helen Davies' singing is too well known to bear any criticism, but she undoubtedly excelled herself last evening, when her magnificent voice, combined with her superb interpretation of her numbers, greatly delighted the audience. A warmth of expression and feeling was always strongly manifested in her solos. She gave a double number, Bohn's "Calm as the Night," and "Stars of Normandy." Miss Davies responded to an encore.

Mr. Alfred E. Young was last evening heard in two numbers, which he sang in splendid fashion. Possessing a well cultivated baritone voice of good range and resonant quality, his singing is always popularly received. His numbers were Allitsen's "There is a land," and "Sons of the British Empire."

Mr. Sydney Glass, tenor, was very successful in his numbers last evening. His fine tenor voice, remarkable for its power of range and expression, was heard to great advantage in his different numbers. His selections were Mattei's "Leave Me Not," and Mascagni's "Intermezzo "Ave Maria," from Cavalleria Rusticana. He was enthusiastically recalled upon each appearance.

The accompanists were Mrs. H. Mowat and Mrs. W. J. Morrow, who played in a most sympathetic and efficient manner.

FIFTY SEVENTH BAND IN SKATING RINK

One of the Always-Expected Musical Triumphs.

A Splendid Programme Splendidly Presented to a Large Audience.

The concluding feature of the successful day's military end of Victoria Day celebration, was the grand military concert in the Brock street skating rink, under the patronage of Lord Dundonald. There was an audience of over a thousand persons, and although many may have been attracted by the expected presence of Lord Dundonald, the excellence of the programme and the merits of the presentation, would have of themselves been a sufficient inducement. It is but trite to say that the band seemed to perform better than on any other occasion, for with their ability, and the industry of their leader, great as is the pitch of excellence they have reached, they show continuous improvement in style and finish.

The chief features of the evening were the classical selections, the overture to "William Tell," and "Reminiscences of Bellini," though there were several musical "sidedishes" of minor musical merit, but all performed with admirable spirit and finish. After an introductory march, came the Tell overture, which was a delight to those who had heard it before, and a revelation to those who had not done so. The band dealt with this selection in a musicianly, intelligent way, bringing out prominently its inherent beauties, and handling its technical difficulties with an ease and finish possible only to arduous practice. And here it may be suggested that it is a wonder that the band accomplishes so much and so well, with their limited opportunities for rehearsal. Military bands which reach the highest excellence, are required to devote hours daily to practice, and that the 57th, with its occasional evenings of rehearsal, accomplishes so much, masters so many new selections of classic calibre and difficulty, is a strong tribute to the excellence of their leadership, and the musical intelligence and musical ability of the individual members. During the performance of the Tell overture Lord Dundonald and suite entered the rink, and were received with great cordiality. After remaining a short time he made his acknowledgments to the band, and retired, the band playing as a "recessional" "The Maple Leaf."

Lord Dundonald warmly complimented the band on the fine character of its work. During the day the said that the Fifty-seventh was one of the best bands he had heard in Canada.

The demands upon space to-day, prohibit the extended reference to the Bellini number which its merits and the merits of its performance deserve. It was a genuine musical triumph and much as we have learned to expect from the band, their splendid treatment of the number in every respect was a delightful surprise. The precision of attack was admirable, while the beauty of the shading was of wonderful delicacy, as smooth and gradual as the falling of the twilight, the ensemble, while robust, was not noisy, and the finish was all that could be desired. The solo work incidental to the selection was a work of virtuosity, and great praise is due to the performers—Mr. Hughes, cornet; Mr. Cronk, euphonium, and Mr. Gibbs, clarionet. The work of the latter is especially worthy of laudable mention for its clear, artistic finish. The magnificent manner in which this number was given is most creditable to the band. A composition, bristling with difficulties, numerous changes of tempo, frequent variations in sentiment and character, and requiring about 25 minutes of continuous performance represents not only a great deal of hard work but unusual aptitude and ability.

Peterborough has many things of which it can justly be proud, but no organization is a more worth subject of boast than the excellent band of the 57th.

AN OLD RESIDENT PASSED AWAY

Mr. Samuel Adams for Nearly Half a Century a Resident of this Town.

This morning about two o'clock, one of the old and respected citizens of Peterborough passed away in the person of Mr. Samuel Adams, who died at the home of his son, Ald. Frank Adams, Robinson street, Fifth Ward, after an illness of about a week, during which time he had been confined to his bed, although he had been ailing for about a year. The deceased was 73 years of age, having been born in Monaghan, Ireland. He came to Canada in 1857, and for about one year lived in Ottawa, after which he came to Ashburnham, where he has lived ever since. He leaves a wife and seven sons and two daughters, the sons being Ald. Frank, and T. H., of town; James and Samuel jr., of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich; Robert, of Winnipeg; William, Snowflake, Manitoba; George, Teller, Alaska. The daughters are Mrs. J. Burgess, of London; Miss Maud, of Snowflake, Manitoba.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at three o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery.

EMPIRE DAY ELSEWHERE.

Games at St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, May 25.—Victoria Day was celebrated here by sporting events, picnics and otherwise. A game of lacrosse in the morning, between the Oneida Indians and the juniors of the St. Thomas Club resulted in a tie, 2—2. In the afternoon the second twelve of the Brantford Lacrosse Club played the St. Thomas seniors. It was a pretty game and resulted: St. Thomas 7, Brantford 3. The St. Thomas Baseball Club beat the McClary Club of London in two games.

Athletic Sports at Bowmanville.

Bowmanville, May 25.—Victoria Day was celebrated here by a full program of athletic sports, under the joint auspices of the Bowmanville Baseball Club, Bowmanville Football Club and Durham Rubber Company's Band. A large crowd from town and country were present, and a large number came down from Toronto with the Sharbourne street Methodist Football Club. The town was decorated for the occasion, and citizens generally kept holiday.

An International Event.

Burlington, Vt., May 25.—The Prince of Wales Royal Fusiliers of Montreal celebrated the royal birthday yesterday by a trip to this city. The visitors, to the number of 500 arrived early, and were the guests of Company M, Vermont National Guard. The chief event of the day was a parade through the principal streets of the city, in which besides the visitors and Company M., the Fifteenth U. S. Cavalry, and two batteries of Field Artillery from Fort Ethan Allen and a battalion of students from the University of Vermont participated. The parade was reviewed at City Hall Park by Mayor Burke and Col. Rogers, commandant at Forth Ethan Allen.

COCK FIGHTERS CAUGHT.

County Constable Takes 14 Birds and Names of Participants.

Hamilton, May 25.—County Constable Nichol yesterday morning "got wise" to the fact that a cocking main was in progress in Barton township, on the mountain, and his blood boiled at this daring outrage of law and decency. Without waiting for a body-guard he set out for the scene of the bird conflict, which was on Gerrard's farm, and he made a very good haul. He discovered about 150 men in the barn, and, nothing daunted by the great superiority of numbers, Constable Nichol started in to make things interesting for the gang. One of the number objected to this rash intrusion, and a "scrap" ensued. The officer came out on top, and then he proceeded to take into custody fourteen birds, two pairs of spurs and one pair of scalps. It is understood that prosecutions will follow, as Constable Nichol has the names of a number of the men present. It is said a number of well known citizens were in the party.

A HUNDRED TONS NITRO-GLYCERINE.

Exploded at Keystone Powder Co.'s Works at Emporium, Pa.

Emporium, Pa., May 25.—By the explosion of 100,000 pounds of nitroglycerine Monday night the plant of the Keystone Powder Company, near here, was wholly destroyed. The employes, 100 in number, were warned in time to escape. The explosion was caused by a fire in the plant.

UNIVERSITY OF OTTAWA.

Cardinal Gibbons Present at Laying of Corner-Stone and Makes a Speech—Mgr. Sbaretti Performs Ceremony.

Ottawa, May 25.—Preceded by solemn high mass and accompanied by imposing ritual, the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the University of Ottawa took place yesterday, amid the half-razed ruins of the buildings destroyed by fire six months ago. Cardinal Gibbons assisted at the throne, having on his right Father Fallon of Buffalo, and his own private secretary on his left. Mgr. Sbaretti officiated at the laying of the corner-stone, assisted by Rev. J. Letpau and Rev. E. Richard. The copper casket which was deposited in the stone contained printed and manuscript copies of the college charter, both ecclesiastical and civil.

Specimens of the silver coins of the Dominion of Canada of the stamp of 1903, and a gold dollar, a small statue of the Blessed Virgin, a copy of the Catholic Directory of the Dominion, copies of the local papers of the City of Ottawa, copy of The College Review of the present month, a Latin script, setting forth that this corner-stone was laid on May 24, 1904, in the reign of Pope Pius X., in the presence of Cardinal Gibbons, of the chancellor of the university, of his excellency the Governor-General, of the Prime Minister of the country, of the Minister of Education of the province and of the rector of the university. On the platform, which was decorated with Union Jacks and Stars and Stripes, were representatives of the Evangelical churches.

His eminence Cardinal Gibbon addressed the assembly immediately after the laying of the corner-stone.

After the ceremony of the corner-stone laying was completed a luncheon took place in the Rideau Rink. Seated at the table of honor on the raised platform were Archbishop Duhamel, Chancellor of the University, who presided, with Lord Minto and the apostolic delegate on the immediate right, and Cardinal Gibbons and Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the left, while others present were: Archbishop Bruchesi, Archbishop Gauthier, Archbishop O'Connor, Bishops Emard, Macdonnell, Lorraine and McEvoy, and other dignitaries and priests of the Roman Catholic Church; R. L. Borden, M. P.; Sir Sandford Fleming, Hon. P. Brodeur, Speaker Belcourt, Hon. J. G. Foster, American Consul-General; Hon. R. Harcourt, Speaker Powell, Principal Loudon of Toronto University; Archdeacon Bogert of the Church of England; Rev. Dr. Herridge, St. Andrew's Presbyterian; Rev. Dr. Armstrong, St. Paul's Presbyterian; Revs. Grenfell and Lett, Methodist, the Mayor and Aldermen of Ottawa. Archbishop Duhamel pronounced an address of welcome.

The toast of the King, proposed by the Governor-General, was loyally honored.

Cardinal Gibbons proposed the health of His Holiness the Pope, in responding to which Mgr. Sbarretti, the papal delegate, read a telegram from Pope Pius X., dated Rome, May 23.

Hon. R. Harcourt, Minister of Education of Ontario, proposed the toast of Canada, to which Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied. The toast of the United States, proposed by Rev. Dr. Herridge, was responded to by Mr. Foster, U.S. Consul-General. Judge Curran replied to the toast of the alumni, proposed by Mr. Macdonnell, one of the students.

Sir Sandford Fleming, on behalf of Queen's, and Mgr. Mathieu for Laval, conveyed the cordial greetings of those institutions to the University.

Speaker Belcourt proposed the civic toast to which the Mayor responded.

The Joy of Living.

It is only the healthy who find a real joy in life. Weak, nervous, languid and discouraged people find new hope and energy in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. With new rich blood coursing through the veins and the thrill of new nerve force sent tingling along the nerve fibres, the joy of living returns and disease and weakness disappear.

Librarian John Kenrick Dead.

Hamilton, May 25.—John Kenrick, librarian of the public library died in the City Hospital about 11 o'clock last night. He had been in the hospital for several weeks, having gone there suffering from pneumonia and nervous prostration. He was about 68 years of age. His wife predeceased him by several years. The deceased was an ex-alderman of this city. For several years he was on the public library board.

COSSACKS WORSTED

Were Routed by a Section of the Japanese Infantry.

RUMORS OF A GREAT BATTLE

London Daily Telegraph's War Correspondent Says Russian General Will Make a Stand at Liaoyang and That the Battle to Follow Will Probably Be the Greatest of the War—Many Skirmishes.

Tokio, May 25.—Gen. Kuroki reports that a section of Japanese infantry encountered and defeated two hundred Cossacks at Toutao-Kou, eight miles northeast of Kuang-Tien. The Cossacks fled to Ai-Yuang-Piemmen, leaving twenty dead. The Japanese sustained no losses.

Additional details of the fight at Wang-Chiatun, near Taku-Shan, May 20, indicate that the squadron of Cossacks was almost annihilated by the Japanese infantry, which surrounded and completely routed the enemy. All the Russian officers were killed, wounded or captured. Natives report that some of the Cossacks escaped on foot, abandoning their equipment. Many killed or wounded were found on the battlefield.

What Does This Mean?

London, May 25.—A Russian transport is moving from Liaoyang in the direction of Mukden, but it is not known whether this means a retirement of the army or merely the removal of winter clothing, which no longer is needed. The movements of war correspondents, the despatch says, are limited to a radius of a mile and a half from Fengwangcheng.

The Battle of the War.

The Daily Telegraph's Newchwang correspondent declares that General Kuropatkin is determined to check the Japanese at Liaoyang, where probably the greatest battle of the war will be fought. He adds that the Japanese land operations against Fort Arthur are meeting with little success and that Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel and Maj.-Gen. Fock continue to make well-directed, but desperate sorties against the advance of the Japanese who are fighting with a stubborn determination almost unknown in history. Sveral hundred Japanese have been killed during the past few days. Japanese reinforcements are arriving daily from Pitsewo and Polandien, according to this correspondent.

Japs Besiege Kinchau.

The Seoul correspondent of The Daily Mail says that Kinchau is being besieged by the Japanese and its surrender is momentarily expected.

Included in a score of rumors is one sent by the Shaghai correspondent of The Morning Post to the effect that the Russians have been defeated near Kingkau, abandoning 50 guns and that Gen. Kuropatkin has been advised by Viceroy Alexieff to retreat to Harbin.

Russians Beat Japs Back.

Mukden, May 25.—The Russians on May 16 made a sudden attack upon the town of Anju, Corea, from the village of Haitchien, and captured the town, destroying it. The Japanese garrison set fire to the houses and stores and retired in perfect order.

What the Russians Surmise.

St. Petersburg, May 25.—The prevailing opinion at the headquarters of the general staff is that the withdrawal of the Japanese from Fengwangcheng means that the enemy has decided to devote himself primarily to operations against Port Arthur.

Disembowelled Himself.

Liaoyang, May 25.—A Japanese officer, who was a prisoner here, committed suicide yesterday, according to the ancient Japanese custom, by disembowelling himself.

Continual Skirmishing.

Liaoyang, May 25.—There is continual skirmishing between the Russian cavalry and the Japanese. Cossacks are harrassing the Japanese in the hills and by roads, generally driving them back. The general plan of the Japanese has not been divulged. They are apparently marking time, awaiting the arrival of reserves from Corea, that have been delayed owing to the impassability of the roads. The Chinese report the destruction of another Japanese battleship off Port Arthur, but the report is unconfirmed and is not credited.

JEWS PROTEST AGAINST WAR.

Carried a Banner: "Down With the War," in Russia.

Gomel, Russia, May 25.—A band of 50 young Jews made an anti-war demonstration in the streets here Monday night. They carried a red banner bearing an inscription reading, "Down with the war!" and scattered an inflammatory proclamation. The police interfered in the interest of order.

To Send Man to Britain.

Berlin, Ont., May 25.—Fifty delegates, representing nine Trades and Labor Councils and twenty-one local unions, attended the second annual convention of the Western Ontario Labor Education League in Berlin yesterday. The most important action taken was the passing of this resolution: "That this convention take up the discussion of the advisability of a movement of some description to send a representative to Great Britain to counteract the indiscriminate advertising throughout the country for labor in Canada." Messrs. Fred. Todd, J. Laughlin and J. Heintzman, Stratford; H. Clark and J Marks of London, were constituted a committee to raise funds towards sending the delegate.

DAY FOR THE EMPIRE

Programs Carried Out in London and Throughout Canada.

VICTORIA DAY CELEBRATIONS

Stirring Address By Sir Charles Tupper at the Canadian Society's Banquet in London—Presentation of Colors to the 57th at Peterboro—Lord Aylmer at Woodstock—Two International Military Celebrations.

London, May 25.—(C. A. P.)—Earl Meath presided at the inaugural celebration of Empire Day by the Children's Aid Society in St. James' Hall. Telegrams of greeting were received from Dr. Jameson, Premier of Cape Colony; the Straits Settlement's, the Premier of Australia, and the Governor of Mauritius. Lord Meath said the promoters of Empire Day had absolutely nothing in common with jingoism. There is no desire to plant the standard definitely in the face of any people.

Sir Gilbert Parker said it was the duty of every man and woman in the Empire to celebrate once a year the deeds of the heroes of the Empire then when the day of trial came, loyalty would pervade the Empire as electricity the air. The entente cordiale between the Motherland and the colonies must grow, or Britain would fail in her mission.

The Canadian Society.

The Canadian Society of London celebrated the day by a brilliant banquet at the Trocadero Restaurant. The toast of the Imperial forces was proposed by Colonel Baynes of Montreal, and was responded to by General Laurie, both of whom amid repeated applause dwelt on the co-operation of Canada with the Motherland in the Fenian raid, the Red River and Nile expeditions, and the Boer war.

The chairman, in proposing the Dominion, said that more loyalty existed in Canada than was found generally within the sound of Bow Bells.

Hamar Greenwood, who was cheered throughout, replied for his country, comprising 36 different nationalities, and whose chief characteristic was that all were given equality and opportunity for every one. When the nationalities were merged they would produce a virile race for the future glory of the British Empire.

W. T. R. Preston, who made a clever speech, in proposing the sister colonies, declared that Canada had solved problems unsolved by Britain because democracy ruled.

Canada's Unselfishness.

Sir Horace Tozer, replying, said he hoped that at the forthcoming conference on the Pacific Cable Australia would reciprocate the generosity of Canada by whose unselfishness alone they were now connected.

O. Devlin, M.P., proposed wittily the Parliament of Canada.

Sir Charles Tupper, in responding amid a scene of great enthusiasm, dwelt on the magnificent work accomplished in the uniting of the Canadian people through the growth of railways and the increase of trade. The grand wheat fields of Manitoba alone were able to supply every pound of bread-stuffs required by Britain. He was indignant at the strictures of the English press, that Canada was not contributing her share to the defence of the Empire. Canada was liberally doing her share by drawing in population and developing the country that was to sustain them. Now that Canada had opened her wheat lands and was able to give happy homes to as large a population as the United States, if six millions sent 3,000 troops to Africa, what would a large population be able to do.

During the evening A. Mossman, one of the founders of the London Society, and just about returning to Canada, was presented with a gold watch. "Rule Britannia" and the "Maple Leaf Forever" were sung during the evening. Among the guests present were Sir John Robinson, Hon. Mr. Copeland, the Bishop of Calgary, the Agent-Generals of Tasmania, Nova Scotia and Town Bay and Gibraltar. The room was profusely decorated. One thousand voices sang the National Anthem. A fete and illuminations followed.

Militia at Kingston.

Kingston, May 25.—Victoria Day was a sunshiny, cool day, just the kind of weather for outdoor pleasure after the tedious winter, and great throngs of people from outside poured into the city and enjoyed the events presented for their entertainment. The chief feature was the military review in the Fair grounds before 10,000 people. Colonel Buchan, C.M.G., D.O.C., was the reviewing officer. There were royal salutes by cannon and rifle and voice, and marching and re-marching before the reviewing base. The forces in line were: The Royal Canadian Field Artillery, the 14th Princess of Wales Own Rifles, the 15th Argyle Light Infantry, No. 3 Company Canadian Army Service Corps, No. 2. Company, Field Hospital; the St. Andrew's Highland Cadets, a battalion of the National Guard, State of New York. There was a parade through the city before dismissal. The afternoon was spent in military sports, horse races, baseball matches and other events.

Pictures of the Queen.

Montreal, Que., May 25.—Victoria Day was duly celebrated here yesterday. No serious accidents have been reported. The French papers published large pictures of the late Queen.

A Military Demonstration.

Woodstock, May 25.—In every particular the military demonstration here yesterday was a success. At least 5,000 visitors were present in the city, and the proceedings were replete with interest. The Thirteenth Regiment of Hamilton arrived at 10 o'clock a.m., 650 strong, and participated in all the events of the day. About 8,000 people witnessed the unveiling of the Leonard memorial at the court house in the forenoon. The unveiling was performed by Lord Aylmer, adjutant-general of the Canadian militia, who delivered a stirring patriotic address. Speeches appropriate to the occasion were also given by Hon. James Sutherland, Minister of Public Works; Col. Munro, M.P.P., and Mayor White. A concert by the 13th Band in the evening concluded the day.

At Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, May 25.—Victoria Day was duly observed here yesterday, and the 7th Fusiliers of London, under command of Col. Little, being the card of attraction. Before a large crowd of spectators at Athletic Park they trooped the colors, raced a feude jole and marched passed, and were greeted with rounds of applause. The athletic events followed, and were well contested.

YOUNG WINNIPEGGER KILLED

Head Almost Severed From His Body By An Electric Car—Chicago Publisher Throws Himself Under a Fast Train —Wreckage of the Steamer Corwin, With 89 on Board, Found on Vancouver Island.

Bowmanville, May 25.—A sad gunning accident occurred Friday evening, near Enniskillen, in Darlington Township, by which a promising young man named Frederick Harrison lost his life. He was hired with J. J. Ormiston, and Friday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Ormiston went to Bowmanville and left Fred at home to look after the farm work. Not finding him at the house on returning, they enquired at their nearest neighbor's, but they had not seen him for the day. The stable and barn were visited, and Mr. Ormiston discovered his lifeless body prostrate on the barn floor with a shot gun he had recently purchased near by with one barrel discharged. No evidence of a struggle was to be seen, so that it is likely that death was instantaneous.

He was not a expert with a gun, and had been cautioned by his mother not to get one. The charge had entered his breast near the heart. He was of a cheerful disposition, and no suspicion of suicide is entertained.

Killed By a Trolley.

Winnipeg, Man., May 25.—Fred. Attwood, a young Winnipegger, was killed by an electric car yesterday afternoon. He tried to get aboard a trailer, but slipped under the wheels, and his head was almost severed Attwood was 26 years of age and was married.

Ends Life Under Fast Train.

Chicago, May 25.—Enos Ropp, a member of the publishing firm of C. Ropp & Sons, 501 Lakeside building, committed suicide in South Madison, Wis., by throwing himself in front of a fast Northwestern train. He was 22 years of age.

Died After a Drive.

Iroquois, May 25.—Norman Foster, father of Edward Foster, reeve of Matilda, died yesterday very suddenly. He was out driving at 11 a. m., at 11.30 he was dead. He was in his 71st year.

Suffocated.

Blairmore, N.W.T., May 25.—Mike Guidnon, a miner, was killed in the American Coal Company's mine at Frank Monday. In entering a manway he slipped and fell into the chute and was suffocated before he could be got out.

Two More Deaths.

Camden, N. J., May 25.—Two additional deaths, making five in all, have occurred as a result of the explosion in the Independent Fire Works Co., on the outskirts of this city Monday.

FEARS FOR THE CORWIN.

Her Wreckage Said to Have Been Found on Vancouver Island.

Tacoma, Wash., May 25.—It is reported from Victoria that wreckage of the steamer Corwin, which sailed from Seattle for Nome with eighty-nine passengers on Tuesday, has been found on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The steamer was scheduled to sail on Monday a week ago, but some of the persons booked for passage complained to United States inspectors of the way the steamer was overloaded and the inspector ordered all freight stored in the holds.

The local agents of the Corwin received a letter from the captain, dated at Ketchikan last Friday. The cargo of the vessel had shifted at that time and she put into Ketchikan to overhaul and straighten out. A number of the passengers had become frightened and refused to proceed further in the vessel. Several returned to Seattle, arriving yesterday on the Dolphin.

The captain in his letter expressed no fear for the safety of the Corwin and declared his purpose to proceed on the voyage to Nome.

Tacoma shipping men who saw the steamer before she sailed express the fear that she is lost. The Corwin had quite a list and seemed to be heavy and unseaworthy.

Since the discovery of gold in Alaska the transportation problem has taxed the owners of various lines running north from Seattle and Tacoma.

Owing to the limited season many of the steamers have sailed in an overcrowded condition.

The Corwin is a steel steamer of 307 tons. She is 137.5 feet long, 24 feet broad, 11.2 feet deep and was built at Portland, Ore.

The Babies' Troubles.

The greatest suffering of childhood is caused by eczema, scald head, chafing or other forms of skin irritation or eruption. Because of its extraordinary soothing, healing power Dr. Chase's Ointment is of inestimable value in the home where there are small children. No mother who has learned the scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used would think of being without it in the house.

SUMMER COLDS

Produce Chronic Catarrh.

Madame Isabella Ellen Bavoss.

Madame Isabella Ellen Bavoss, 14th Governor Grand Lodge of Free Masons of England, in a letter from Hotel Saratoga, Chicago, Ill., says:

"This summer while travelling I contracted a most persistent and annoying cold. My head ached, my eyes and nose seemed constantly running, my lungs were sore and I lost my appetite, health and good spirits. Doctors prescribed for me all manner of pills and powders, but all to no purpose.

"I advised with a druggist and he spoke so highly of a medicine called Peruna, that he induced me to try my first bottle of patent medicine. However, it proved such a help to me that I soon purchased another bottle and kept on until I was entirely well."—Madame Isabella Ellen Bavoss.

Summer colds require prompt treatment. They are always grave, and sometimes dangerous. The promptness and surety with which Peruna acts in these cases has saved many lives. A large dose of Peruna should be taken at the first appearance of a cold in summer, followed by small and oft-repeated doses. There is no other remedy that medical science can furnish, so reliable and quick in its action as Peruna.

Address The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book entitled "Summer Catarrh," which treats of the catarrhal diseases peculiar to summer.

BURIED TREASURE.

Odd Search for It With Dip Needle in Oxford County.

Equipped with a Spanish "dip needle," an instrument to determine the location of minerals, James Ostrander, of Big Raoids, Mich., arrived in Woodstock, Ont., recently, and took the Port Dover train for the south at 11 o'clock, on a unique mission. He proceeded to Charlottesville, a village on the southern border of Oxford County, where he hopes to discover the location of the sum of $15,000 in gold and silver coins, representing money buried by his father at the time of the American invasion of Western Ontario in the war of 1812. From his father he learned the approximate location of the buried treasure, and with the use of the modern dip needle, recently received from Spain, he is confident of finding the money. Mr. Ostrander made an effort to find the treasure several years ago, but failed.

Two heavy brass cannon were also buried near the coins. These were the equipment of a regiment of British soldiers, which retreated after the defeat of the Canadian forces near Moraviantown. Mr. Ostrander's father was a member of one of the British regiments sent to Canada at the time of the war of 1812. He was unfortunate enough to be among those pursued after the defeat of the Canadians in the west, and with the others resolved to bury his money possessions rather than run the risk of having them fall into the hands of the Americans. At the close of the campaign he was forced to return with the regiment to England, and no opportunity was afforded of regaining the lost treasure.

Did Not Differentiate.

The major told this tale in the rotunda of the Russell House last night. It came, apropos of the story in The Journal about the police releasing a prominent citizen while keeping in jail a workingman, both of whom had been mixed up in the same scrap, and presumably equally guilty.

"It was ten years ago, and half a dozen of us were coming home from a dinner. A couple of our number by way of a joke picked up a large Salvation Army sign on the corner of Elgin and started to carry it along with us, singing as we went.

"Somehow the blamed thing slipped and broke into half a dozen pieces. At the same time a couple of policemen whose sense of duty had been over-developed at the expense of their sense of humor arrived, and half an hour after, all explanations having proved vain, we were each reposing in our iron-barred boudoir at the station.

"We were all in evening dress, and after the edge of the joke was worn thin we wanted to get out. But we had to stay till Police Court, so the officers told us, unless the magistrate—the late Magistrate O'Gara—would give an order for our release.

"Well, we wrote our plea to him—most of us knew him personally—and got a messenger to take it out to his house. We recited our positions and families, and asked on these grounds to be allowed to go.

"About 4 a.m. the messenger got back.

"'Did he give you an order of release?' we all yelled in unison as he came in.

"'Yes, sir,' said the messenger, 'he got right out of bed and read your letter and sent an answer to the sergeant.'

"The sergeant opened the proffered letter. This is what it contained, word for word:

"'The sergeant in charge will take greatest care not to differentiate in any way between a well-dressed and a poorly-dressed gang of blackguards.'

"Next morning he fined us five and two apiece."—Ottawa Journal.

THE GREATEST JACK.

Flag That Flies Over British Parliament—400 Yards of Bunting and a Flagstaff Weighing 16 Tons.

It would hardly occur to the King, perhaps, when he entered the House of Parliament by the Victoria Tower this week, that this tower, so conspicuous among the glories of the capital, has a place of its own among the wonders of the world, says The London Daily Mail.

From its dizzy height floats an emblem of British power, which, whether London believes it or not, would hide a two-storied house from view. The great flag which floated here on Tuesday, hauled to its great height by machinery, looks like an ordinary piece of bunting from Westminster Bridge, but it took 400 yards of bunting to make it; it stretches, when the breeze opens its folds, to a length of sixty and a breadth of forty-five feet, and it is kept in place by a flagstaff which has certainly no rival in England, and probably none in the world. This mast, rising from its base to a height of 110 feet, firmly fixed on its foundations with a diameter of three feet, is made of many sheets of iron, bolted together with hundreds of bolts, and it would weigh, if we could put it in the scales, not less than sixteen tons!

They who would reach the height from which London looks like some dim city of the mist must wind round and round the longest spiral staircase in the world. At the low iron door which brings you to its foot the staircase appears to be one unending iron thread, reaching up into darkness, and it is not until the visitor has gazed at it awhile that there breaks at the top, 350 feet above him, a blue light no bigger than a man's hand.

If the distant ray of light, losing itself in utter darkness a little way down the tower, does not unnerve him, the climber winds round the spiral staircase a dozen times and finds himself, almost tired, on the first floor. He is in a room over 50 feet square, and in this grand apartment he will pause to reflect upon the splendors of the Victoria Tower.

The tower has a weight of 30,000 tons, and it helps us to realize its grandeur and strength if we reflect that its building was in progress for all but twenty years. The Londoner who went abroad for a year in the forties or the fifties came back home to find that the new tower had risen not quite eight yards in his absence, and so, at the rate of 28 feet a year, the Victoria Tower grew, from 1842 until it was completed.

It has within it over 140 separate rooms, each one fireproof, each containing the precious State papers which tell the story of England and its Kings. Divided into eleven floors all save two with sixteen rooms, the tower is a miracle of construction. How little the Londoner who gazes at this splendid pile imagines that at the top of it, on the eleventh floor, works a powerful steam engine! It is its work to haul up through the well of the spiral staircase the bundles of State papers, delivering them on the floor where they may be required, and it is a wonderful sight to see this huge narrow passage throb, as it were, with busy life. It is a wonderful sight, indeed, when the engine is not at work. The spiral staircase stretches from the ground to the top apparently without a single support, and looking like one long thin line of ironwork which the least overbalancing would bring clattering down, is one of the engineering marvels of our day. In reality it is held in its place by wrought-iron clads hanging from each floor through which it passes, but the rods are not readily visible to the eye, and it needs a more than ordinary nerve to scale this fragile staircase to the greatest height in London.

Yet this suspended Jacob's ladder has its own magnificent reward for those who climb it to the top. If one has enthusiasm to spare for architecture, the Victoria Tower has enough of the architect's genius to engage him for much longer than he will be able to stay. But it is the view of London from the top which will appeal to him who is neither architect, artist nor antiquarian. The great city lies deep below like a toy world—"like a diminished and smoky model of itself," wrote a climber nearly half a hundred years ago.

Even half way up the tower London seems a dwarf city as you walk around the arcade with massive pillars and enormous arches, and as wide as some of the streets you dimly see below. But the roof is the treasure of the tower. Built as lightly as could be, consistent with its safety from the wind, it weighs, nevertheless, 400 tons. The little parapet, looking like a speck of stone from Parliament square, is 16 feet high. The lions and crowns are taller than a man, and the gilt tops to the four turrets are iron crowns 5 feet across and a ton each in weight. The gilt railing at the top is 6 feet high; the four lions which guard the corners are 20 feet high. From these corners rise four arched buttresses of cast iron, forming in the centre into a crown 30 feet above the roof, and through this again passes the flagstaff, from the top of which floats 400 yards of bunting made into the biggest Union Jack in England.

No man, except in mid-air, has ever seen London from the height at which this great flag flies.

All We Could Carry.

John Kernell, the noted Irish comedian, liked in his prime to go back to Ireland, whence he would often bring material, gathered in alehouses and on the highroads, that afterward served him well in dialogue upon the stage.

Kernell once said at a little supper party in Boston that he had met on a summer day in Galway an Irishman driving a horse so thin that it staggered as it walked.

"Why don't you put more flesh on that nag?" Kernell exclaimed indignantly.

"More, is it?" the Irishman answered. "Why, by the powers, don't you see that the poor creature can hardly carry what little there is on him now?"—Colorado Springs Gazette.

AS A WORKING TOOL

for the student and the writer, as an authoritative reference book for schools, teachers, families, business and professional men, there is one book which offers superior advantages in the solid value of its information, and the ease with which it is obtained.

One's admiration for Webster's International Dictionary increases daily as it comes to be better known. It never refuses the information sought and it never overwhelms one with a mass of misinformation illogically arranged.

The St. James Gazette of London, England, says: For the teacher, the pupil, the student and the litterateur, there is nothing better; it covers everything.

The New and Enlarged Edition recently issued has 25,000 new words and phrases, a completely revised Biographical Dictionary and Gazetteer of the World, 2000 pages and 5000 illustrations.

Our name is on the title-pages of all the authentic dictionaries of the Webster series.

PRESENTATION OF THE NEW STAND OF COLOURS

Tuesday Was a Memorable Day for the Gallant Fifty-Seventh Regiment.

INSPECTION OF THE TROOPS

Earl of Dundonald, Commander-in-Chief, Honours Peterborough.

Trooping of the Old Colours—New Stand Presented by Mrs. Dennistoun and Mrs. J. R. Stratton—A Brilliant Ceremony—Features of the Day.

Peterborough has been the scene of many a military demonstration, and the history of the town in matters military is one of which any town or city either, for that matter, might well be proud. Not only in times of peace, when "soldiering," is a safe and popular occupation, and when the hardest part of a spldier's life is the weekly drill, but in stormy seasons, when to be a soldier meant hard work, and when there was danger to life and limb, Peterborough citizens have responded nobly, and the record of this town is one which does it credit; and one which might well be emulated by the citizens of other towns and cities.

But brilliant as have the military demonstrations been in the past, it is doubtful if ever in the history of the town an event either of equal importance or of equal brilliancy to that of yesterday, has taken place in Peterborough. The chief factor entering into the demonstration of yesterday was, doubtless the fact that Lord Dundonald, Commanding Officer of the Canadian Militia, was present, as the guest of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, the occasion of his visit being the trooping of the old, and the presentation of the new colours of the 57th Regiment.

The events leading up to the procuring of the new colours are dealt with in a subjoined article, but it is fitting that reference should be made here to the interest taken by the ladies, the results of whose efforts and generosity were seen yesterday in the beautiful and costly stand of colours, of which the regiment was made the recipient and which, it is safe to say, every individual member will highly prize. The task undertaken by the ladies of Peterborough, the officers of the committee representing which were: — President, Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun; Vice-President, Mrs. J. R. Stratton; Secretary, Mrs. P. Campbell; Treasurer, Miss M. C. Barlee, was no light one, and it has entailed months of patience, and sometimes doubtless discouraging work, and that it has been carried through to such a successful issue is greatly to the credit of the public-spirited ladies of Peterborough. The ladies record with pleasure the fact that the idea of obtaining new colours for the 57th Regiment was originated and successfully inaugurated by Mr. T.A.S. Hay, C.E., who was formerly treasurer of the fund. The idea was enthusiastically taken up by the ladies, and the response on the part of the citizens generally, was of a nature calculated to fully bear out the assertion made on their behalf, that a worthy enterprise is generously supported by them.

THE WORK OF THE LADIES.

The new colours, which were manufactured in England, and a description of which has already appeared in these columns, cost in the neighbourhood of $300, and it is needless to say that every member of the Regiment now feels a new pride in the beautiful stand of colours presented to the regiment yesterday. The day opened bright and warm, genuine "King's weather,' and the fears entertained by many on the preceding evening when rain fell in quantities sufficient to disquiet those who were in charge of yesterday's proceedings, and whose earnest wish was for fine weather, were groundless, for it would have been hard to imagine a more perfect day in which to engage in such an exercise as that which formed the most important part of the Victoria Day programme.

The streets were thronged with spectators from early morning, and at 9.30 when the 57th Regiment in the strength of about 300, with both bands, stretcher corps and the Boys Brigade, the latter under command of Captain Devlin, with Lieutenant H. Miller, and second Lieut Ferguson Perdue, fully three-fourths of the town's population was on the route of parade to the Nicholls Oval, where the presentation took place, and to which, after the soldiers had passed, the spectators repaired.

It is doubtful if as large a number of persons as that which gathered yesterday, has ever been on the Oval, and to one who saw the thousand, and witnessed the interest which was taken in the proceedings, no further evidence of the popular interest in military affairs in Peterborough is necessary. The regiment has never marched better than it did yesterday, and a very favourable opinion was created, and many complimentary remarks made on the regiment's appearance, both on the march and during the exercises at the Oval, which were executed in a very creditable manner, and Lord Dundonald's words of commendation spoken after the review of the troops were well merited.

ON THE OVAL.

The regiment reached the Oval shortly after 10 o'clock, and the troops were formed in inspection order to await the arrival of Lord Dundonald and his Staff who reached the ground before eleven o'clock. Accompanying the Commanding Officer were his Aide de Camp, Captain Newton, who, by a strange coincidence is attached to a regiment of the same number as the 57th, his regiment being the 57th Middlesex, End.; Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, Lt.-Col. Col. E. B. Edwards, Col. H. C. Rogers, 3rd Dragoons, and Surgeon-Major J. T. I. Halliday, M.D.

Lord Dundonald was given the salute, and at once proceeded to inspect the regiment, during which he commented upon the general appearance of the men, and their soldierly attitude.

The exercises in connection with the trooping of the old colours, which had done service in the regiment since July, 1868, were proceeded with. The service is in a sense a sad one, and the few who remembered the occasion 36 years ago, when on a July evening in a field at the head of McDonnel street, the colours which were marched to the rear of the regiment yesterday with honour and almost pathetic reverence, were presented to the regiment, as was the new stand yesterday, witnessed the proceeding with in some cases a tear in the eye.

The old colours, which in the parade, were carried at the rear of No. 4 Company, by Lieut. W. Higgins and Lieut. J. W. Kelly, the guard consisting of Col.-Segt. Sturgeon, Col.-Segt. Edwards, and Col.-Segt. Dummett, were taken charge of by No. 1 Company, after the regiment had formed up into columns. The old colours were taken to the left of the line, and guarded by sentries, the band and drums being in front at the right of the line facing the colours. The officers fell out and the drums marched to the left of the line. The drums played a quick march, and the sergeants in charge of the different guards marched out 60 paces and turned inwards. The officers then fell in in front of the sergeants, and the drums marched back to the right. The commanding officer then ordered the officers and non-commissioned officers to take their post in the guard, which they did, the band playing a slow march.

The band and drums then played a troop (slow march), and marched from the right to the left of the line, counter-marched and halted. They then played a quick march, and proceeded from left to right, again counter-marched and halted; the drums calling the officers of the colour escort, Captain Cluxton, and Lieuts. McLean and Hamilton.

The escort, preceded by the band and drums, playing "The British Grenadiers' March," to the left of the column. The officers then received the colours from Sergt.-Major Britton, the escort presenting arms, and the band playing "God Save the King." The escort next proceeded to the left, preceded by the band playing the "Grenadiers' March." Afterwards the band and drums and colours paraded from left to right of the columns, the guards presenting arms. The escort then proceeded alone to the rear of the column, resuming their place in the line, as the colours passed alone in front of the column. The colours, after this exercise, took a place in the rear of the right guard, and proceeded to the left of the line, preceded by the band, playing "Auld Lang Syne." The escort returned to their places in the line, and the colour cases were left in the rear in charge of two colour sergeants.

CONSECRATING THE COLOURS.

The presentation of the new stand then proceeded with. The drums of the Bugle Band were stacked, facing the commanding officer's party, and the new colours were paraded from the rear of the regiment by Sergts. Best and Murphy, and stacked over the drums, when the ceremony of consecration was conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, Chaplain of the Regiment, who, in opening, said:—

"Dearly beloved in the Lord, for as much as men at all times have made for themselves signs and emblems of their allegiance to their rulers, and of their duty to uphold those laws and institutions which God's Providence has called them to obey; we, following this natural and pious custom, and remembering that God Himself led His people Israel by a pillar of fire by night, and a pillar of cloud by day, are met together before God this day to ask His blessing on these colours, which are to represent to us our duty towards our Sovereign and our country. Let us, therefore, pray Almighty God of His mercy to grant that they may never be unfurled save in the cause of justice and righteousness; and that He may make them to be to those who follow them a sign of His presence with them in all dangers and distresses, and may increase their faith and hope in Him Who is the King of kings and Lord of lords."

The following responses were then said:—

Our Help is in the Lord, Who hath made Heaven and Earth.

The Lord be with you and with thy spirit.

Lord have mercy upon us.
Christ have mercy upon us.
Lord have mercy upon us.

The Lord's prayer was then repeated by the entire regiment, after which the Chaplain said the following prayer:

"Oh Lord, our Heavenly Father, high and mighty, King of Kings, Lord of Lords, the only Ruler of Princes, who dost from Thy Throne behold all the dwellers upon earth; Most heartily we beseech Thee with Thy favour to behold our most gracious Sovereign Lord King Edward, and so replenish him with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit that he may alway incline to Thy will and walk in Thy way.

Bless also, we beseech Thee, Thy servants the Governor General of the Dominion of Canada and the Lieutenant Governor of this Province. Grant that they may use the sword committed unto their hands with justice and mercy, for the protection of this people and the promotion of true Religion amongst us. These and all other mercies for our Rulers, for our Country and for Thy whole Church we ask in the Name and for the merits of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

The colours were then consecrated by the Chaplain, who said:

"To the greater Glory of God and to the honour of our Sovereign Lord the King we do hereby consecrate these Colours of the 57th Regiment as Emblems of duty towards our King and Country; in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

Following which the Doxology was sung by all present, and the final prayer was said as follows:

Our Lord Who Rulest over all things, accept, we beseech Thee, our Service this day. Bless what we have blessed in Thy Name. Let Thy gracious favour rest on those who shall follow the Colours now committed to their trust. Give them the spirit of courage, of loyalty and of duty. Keep them in thought word and action ever true to their Colours. Guide the Counsels of those who shall lead them, and sustain them by Thy help in the hour of need. And grant that we may all so faithfully serve Thee in this life that we fail not finally to attain Thy heavenly promises; through the merits of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

The Benediction closed the consecration service.

THE PRESENTATION.

The presentation of the colours to the regiment on behalf of the Ladies' Committee, by the president, Mrs. Dennistoun, and Vice-President, Mrs. J. R. Stratton, was then proceeded with. The ladies were escorted by Col. H. C. Rogers, and after the beautiful colours had been unfurled, they were presented to Lieuts. Hamilton and McLean, who received them on bended knee from the ladies, who in making the presentation, addressed the recipients briefly, charging them to preserve them safely in the name of His Majesty.

The presentation address was read by Mr. T. A. S. Hay, in the absence from town of Miss M. C. Barlee, the treasurer of the fund. The address was as follows:

To the Officer commanding, Officers and Members of the 57th Regiment Peterborough Rangers:

On behalf of the ladies of Peterborough we are requested to convey to you an expression of their pleasure and pride in being able to present you with a new stand of colours.

In the year 1868 the ladies of Peterborough presented you with the colours borne with honour until to-day.

Every member of that committee has now passed away, but their names are still cherished in the community and it seems fitting to recall them at this time. They were Mrs. Carnegie, Mrs Gilmour, Mrs. Romaine, Mrs. Kempt, Mrs. Dennistoun, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Snider and Mrs. Hall.

The Commanding Officer of the regiment, Lieut.-Col. Poole, when accepting those colours stated that they would be guarded as the honour of the regiment, and to-day we feel that the promise has been well kept by him and his successors.

The old colours are now worn out by age and their work is done, but the esprit de corps which pervades all ranks is, we believe, stronger and more aspiring than ever before.

We remember with pride the services rendered to the country by your regiment in The Fenian Raid, The North West Rebellion and the South African War. Whenever the call to arms has sounded you have bravely responded with alacrity and enthusiasm.

The only difficulty ever encountered has been to make choice from the eager numbers of volunteers for active service.

And now when we intrust to your keeping these new colours, we do so with confidence that you will be true to your past history and to the opportunities which as yet lie hidden in the future.

The King's colours will serve to remind you of the loyalty and devotion we owe to the crown and person of our Gracious Sovereign, King Edward VII, whom God save!

The regimental colour is emblematic of comradeship and devotion to duty, of obedience and discipline, of courage and ambition.

The emblem of the beaver which you are proud to bear upon your crest will remind you of that unflagging industry without which no real success can be attained.

Your duty calls you to the defence of home and country, of fireside and liberty, and you may always rely upon the admiration and affection of the women of your country whom we represent to-day.

Signed on behalf of the Ladies of Peterborough.

MRS. J. F. DENNISTOUN,
President.
MRS. J. R. STRATTON,
Vice President.
MRS. PETER CAMPBELL,
Secretary.

Lieut.-Colonel Miller, replying on behalf of the regiment, said:

General Dundonald and Ladies of the Presentation Committee:—

A favour has fallen to me to-day. It is my pleasant duty to thank you for the splendid gift of a Stand of Colours.

I well remember the day in 1868, when the colours we have just trooped were unfurled to the breeze. How the hearts of officers and men in the battalion beat with pride, when they realised that they were to march neath the shadow of the Queen's colours! My predecessor on that day stated the battalion had had little opportunity of showing what they would do in response to the call of duty, but promised that if called upon to defend their colours, they would prove to the country that they were worthy of the trust that day placed in them. The officers that commanded the battalion and the ladies who presented the colours have passed beyond the Great Divide and reported to the King of kings. Succeeding Commanding Officers have watched these now old colours with jealous care.

It is a pleasure for me to say that the promises of Lieut.-Col. Poole have been fulfilled, for when it became our proud opportunity to offer our services to the Mother Land, every recruiting station in the Dominion was thronged with the bravest of the brave clamouring to go; crying "Take me!" "Take me!"

How proud we were of our boys, when to the tap of the drum they marched to the front! With what joy we received the news of the Battle of Paardeberg, and later Hart's River, for we then knew that our boys had marched shoulder to shoulder with the Kilted Scot and the Irish Fusilier and breasted the kopje with England's best. Some have dyed the outer slops with the best blood of a British Canadian.

We shall always remember that we are the decendants of the men who stormed the breach at Badajor, climed the heights of Alma and immortalized the names of their regiments at Inkerman and Balakalava, and in far off India.

It was under the folds of such colours the Raw Lwdes of Britain shattered the mighty sword of Napoleon and hurled back the unconquered heroes of Austerlitz and Zena, and I can assure you that if occasion presents itself, the 57th Regiment will add a page of honourable history to the annals of this country.

We are as proud of our country as of our flag. Mr. Kipling has dubbed us the "Lady of the Snows" and right well are we pleased with this "Lady of the Snows". What though the rock-tipped mountains lift their lofty heads in lonely grandeur towards a northern sky, and the valleys covered with eternal snow,—these gray mountains are the western sentinels of our great Dominion, and that great winding sheet of snow covers untold millions of yellow gold.

Ladies we have now trooped the old colours and ended one chapter in the life of the 57th Rangers.

To-day you have presented us with a new stand of colours, and we gladly accept them with all the obligations and responsibilities that go with them, promising that we shall always remember our colours, our King and country.

We are on the outer slope of the Great Empire, but our hearts beat in perfect unision with those within the shadow of the Throne.

Ladies, I am very grateful to, and thank you kindly for this most beautiful gift.

LORD DUNDONALD'S REMARKS.

Lord Dundonald, the Commanding Officer, of the Canadian Militia, then addressed the Regiment as follows:—

"Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers, and men of the 57th Regiment,

"I am very pleased to be with you on such an important day in your regimental history. It is very fitting that you have chosen the birthday of our late revered Queen for such an event as this. I congratulate you in having so worthily maintained the honour of your regiment during the 36 years you have served under the old colours, which are being replaced to-day.

"Colours are the outward sign in a regiment of everything that is noble and great. I feel certain that you, the 57th Regiment, will worthily maintain the honour of the regiment under the new colours, which have been presented to you to-day, and that should a time come when your services are required by your King, and country, that you will be as ready as the 57th were in the late war, and always have been in the past, to respond to the call of duty."

His Worship Mayor Roger, followed in a brief address, in which he said he was pleased indeed to participate in such a function. Peterborough was proud of her 57th Regiment — was pleased that its history had been such an honourable one. The ladies of Peterborough had only expressed what every citizen of the town felt, and the town as a whole was very proud of its soldier-boys, and the place they had taken in the defence of the empire. He was especially pleased to welcome Lord Dundonald to Peterborough. The commanding officer, he said, was by no means a stranger to the people of this town, a fact which would need no verification had one been in Peterborough on the night when the relief of Ladysmith was celebrated. Great Britain could have done no greater honour to Canada than by appointing Lord Dundonald the commanding officer of the Canadian militia.

The regiment was then reviewed by Lord Dundonald in the marchpast, in the execution of which they acquitted themselves well. Subsequently the commanding officer addressed the regiment briefly, expressing his pleasure at seeing such a good turn out, and hoping the members would always turn out when possible. He noticed that the South African war was recalled by an inscription on the new colours, and thought that a regiment that had contributed fifty men, as the 57th had done, was fully entitled to some recognition.

The regiment then paraded back to the drill hall, where it was dismissed.

Lord Dundonald's Address to the 57th Regiment.

Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and men of the 57th Regiment:—

I am very pleased to be with you on such an important day in your regimental history. It is very fitting that you have chosen the birthday of our late revered Queen for such an event as this, I congratulate you in having so worthily maintained the honour of your regiment during the 36 years you have served under the old colours, which are being replaced to-day.

LORD DUNDONALD THE COMMANDANT.

Head of Canada's Militia a Thorough and Practical Soldier.

Lord Dundonald, who was the guest yesterday of the officers of the 57th Regiment, and who was present at the trooping of the colours, and the presentation of the new stand, is the officer commanding the Canadian Militia, sent here by the British War Office, and has been in Canada since August, 1902.

He was well known even before his arrival in this country, the event in his military career which brought him the greatest prominence, to Canadians at any rate, being the fact that he was the first British officer to enter Ladysmith, after its relief, which he practically effected.

LORD DUNDONALD.
Commanding Officer of the Canadian Militia, Inspecting Officer of the Regiment on Victoria Day.

Since his advent into Canadian military circles, he has shown himself to be a thorough and a practical soldier and commander, and under his direction many reforms are being effected in the Canadian Militia.

That Lord Dundonald consented to visit Peterborough and participate in the events of yesterday, is a fact which cannot but be gratifying to every citizen, and that his visit was given under such pleasing circumstances, in which the town and its attractions could be seen at ease, and at their best, is additional cause for the same feeling. Besides the effect of his visit may be felt hereafter in the greater prominence given Peterborough as a military centre.

The name of Lord Dundonald came very prominently before the public in relation to Sir Redvers Buller's operations. The gallant officer led his cavalry brigade and his mounted infantry with the greatest enterprise and success, sometimes on the one flank, and sometimes on the other, and when the troops under Sir Charles Warren, crossed the Tugela he made an extended movement towards Acton Holmes. He is a descendant of the famous naval officer, Lord Cochrane, afterwards the Earl of Dundonald, who fought so splendidly for his country; afterwards placed his sword at the disposal of Chili, and later on was reinstated in all honour in the British servcie.

The present Earl of Dundonald, who was born in 1852, and entered the second Life Guards in 1870, becoming Captain in 1878, Major in 1885, and Lieut.-Colonel two years later, is the twelfth of his name to bear the title. He was in command of the 2nd Life Guards' detachment of the Camel Corps in the Nile Expedition of 1884-1885, and he commanded the transport and baggage of the Desert Columns under Sir Herbert Stewart in the advance to Mettammal. He was present at the battle of Abu Klea and at Gubat, and he acted as guide to convoys and reinforcements, and brought the despatches from Gubat announcing the fall of Kartoum.

Lord Dundonald is the inventor of a well-known galloping gun carriage which possesses remarkable endurance, and enables guns with ammunition to accompany cavalry at the gallop, when necessary. Several of these carriages were tried in South Africa, and were found to be fully up to expectations, as far as their vitality was concerned.

Lord Dundonald is the most popular commanding officer the Canadian Militia has had for some time, and his popularity is not greater than his efficiency.

Interest of Ladies in 57th Regiment.

Events Leading up to the Presentation of New Colours.

On Tuesday, June 23rd, 1903, a meeting of especial moment was held in the Y.M.C.A. parlours, when the ladies of the town gathered together for the purpose of trying to raise sufficient funds to purchase a new stand of colours for the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers. The meeting was called by Mayor Roger, on the suggestion of some of the most prominent ladies of the town, and was well attended considering the fact that the first note of its calling only appeared in the local papers on the previous day. During the discussion, which tended towards attempting the undertaking it was learned that the prices for such stands of colours as was proposed, ranged from $200 to $300 and that the ordinary price paid was from $230 to $250. However, it was decided there and then that if the colours be bought as much as $300 be paid for them.

The first business of the evening was the election of officers, and that resulted as follows:—

President—Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun.
Vice-President—Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton.
Treasurer—Miss Barlee.
Secretary—Mrs. P. Campbell.
Executive Committee—Mrs. Collins, Miss Collins, Mrs. R. E. Wood, Miss Landy, Miss Boucher, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. Rubidge, Miss A. Dennistoun, Miss Roger, Mrs. C. B. McCallister, Mrs. O'Sullivan and Mrs. LeBrun.

It was then resolved that the contract for the colours be placed with some English firm who made a specality of manufacturing colours for the regiments of the Imperial Army and British auxiliary forces. Such a firm, it was argued, would turn out a stand, not only correct in design but also of such texture as to withstand the climatic conditions of "Our Lady of the Snows."

Several firms in London were corresponded with and a number of designs submitted by the various factories written to. The Executive Committee after considerable careful thought placed their order with Messrs. Hobson & Son, of London, Eng. The colours arrived during the early part of the present year.

On deciding to provide the Regiment with new colours a fund, for the purchase of the same, was started in the local press, and in the course of a few months the amount desired was more than subscribed, chiefly in one dollar contributions.

The new colours were made according to regulations as to design and size and consist of two flags, one a Union Jack with the Regimental crest worked in the centre and the other a blue ensign having in addition to the crest, a beaver in each corner, save, of course, that in which the Union Jack is worked. The following is the official crest and motto of the regiment: A beaver, under which are the numerals LVII, encircled by a scroll or garter, clasped by a buckle, and bearing the designation "Peterborough Rangers," the whole surrounded by a wreath of maple leaves, entwined with the Rose, the Thistle and Shamrock, and surmounted by the Imperial Crown. Underneath all the motto, "Quis Separabit." The colours are also heavily embroidered with quantities of gold braid, which gives them a very handsome appearance.

The Regiment has an enviable record, both in peace and war. In the early sixties there were two rifle companies in town, and these during the Fenian Raid were attached to a provisional battalion, commanded by the late Lt.-Col. Williams, Port Hope. Although the Peterborough men did not come under fire, they distinguished themselves along the frontier, wherever they happened to be stationed. On May 3rd, 1867, the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, was formally organized, with three companies, Nos. 1 and 2 in Peterborough, and No. 3 across the river in Ashburnham. All were under the command of Lt.-Colonel Edwin Poole. Later in the same year three more companies were added, bringing the strength of the regiment up to six companies, with the headquarters of No. 4 at Keene, of No. 5 at Norwood, and of No. 6 at Hastings. The ladies of the town presented the old stand of colours to the regiment in the following year, in 1885 the regiment, which previously had been a rural corps, was reorganized into a city battalion.

After a regime of twelve years, Lt.-Col. Poole was succeeded by Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, and under his command the regiment saw service in the Northwest Rebellion. In the year 1895 Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers retired, and was succeeded by Lt.-Col. R. W. Bell, who held the command for five years, being replaced in 1900 by Lt.-Col. Edwards. During the dark days of the South African war, when British territory was invaded by the sturdy Burghers of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State, the 57th Regiment came to the fore in offering themselves for service, and many took an active part in defending British prestige in South Africa. Lt.-Col. Edwards was in command for two years, and was succeeded by Lt.-Col. J. W. Miller, then a Major in the Regiment. Lt.-Col. Miller has been associated with the 57th since its formation, and was also a member of the rifle companies in 1864.

Was Guest of Honour at a Banquet Last Night.

Brilliant Military Social Function in the Mess-room—Addresses by Many Gentlemen.

Lord Dundonald was the guest of the officers of the 57th Regiment last night in the officers' mess at a banquet given in his honour, and the event was a fitting climax to the day's proceedings. A very pleasant social evening was spent with the commanding officer of the militia, who was found to be as jovial in the mess room as he was strict in discipline on the parade ground. The mess room was beautifully decorated, and an abundance of flowers lent an additional brilliancy to the scene. Lord Dundonald occupied the seat of honour at the centre of the table, with Lt.-Col. Edwards on his right, and Lt.-Col. Miller on his left. Major Halliday was president of the mess, and Major Hayes vice-president. There were also present Capt. Newton, Lord Dundonald's aide-de-camp, Col. H. C. Rogers, Col. J. Z. Rogers, Hon. Chaplain J. C. Davidson, Mayor Roger, Mr. R. R. Hall, Mr. Jas. Kon-

Bodies of Three Infants in a Glass Jar Picked up on Monday.

On Monday the bodies of three infants, each about three inches long, were found in a large sized glass jar floating in the Otonabee river, a short distance below the locks. The Water Lily was making a trip down to the lake, and the engineer noticed the jar floating and curiosity led to the boat being stopped, and the jar was picked up. The crew were horrified at the sight of the contents. Dr. Gray, coroner, was notified, but could do nothing under the circumstances.

STABBING AFFRAY ON GEORGE STREET.

Three Men Wounded Last Evening Between Simcoe and Hunter Streets.

A stabbing affray took place last evening on George street about 9.30 o'clock and naturally caused much excitement in the vicinity for a time. A party of four or five Italians were coming north on George street and when in front of Sutcliffe's store a boy threw a firecracker so close to the men that they become enraged and attacked the boy. The assault was witnessed by some passers by who interfered on the boy's behalf, and the Italians drew their knives. Mr. Robert Sheridan was stabbed in the left thigh, receiving a deep wound about three inches long. Mr. Jos. Gray was also passing at the time and in attempting to stop the trouble was stabbed on the left arm above the wrist about an inch in length. A man named Baker was bitten on the finger also, but not seriously injured. The Italians made off at once before the arrival of the police, but arrests were made shortly afterwards. The injured men each of whom simply interfered to protect the boy, are tosday doing as well as could be expected, and no serious results are expected to follow the affray.

About 10 o'clock, the police called at an Italian settlement on Simcoe street opposite the Gas Works, and arrested three, Frank Tambolino, Fidelo Giscomb and Etto Scatsino. They appeared at the Police Court this morning charged with fighting in a public place in town, and taking part in an affray. None of the trio could converse in English, but through the medium of an interpreter, pleaded not guilty, claiming that they were not up town after 9 o'clock last evening. They were remanded until next Tuesday.

The police are working on the case in hopes of securing the whole party.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS INVADE PETERBOROUGH.

A Large Gathering of Distinguished Knights of the Fraternity.

Yesterday and last night were a field day for the local Knights of Columbus, a Roman Catholic fraternal organization. Last night a grand initiation ceremony was put on and it was made the occasion of a visit to the Peterborough Council of about two hundred visiting Knights, representing Councils of Montreal, Ottawa, Cornwall, Brockville, Kingston, Cobourg, Madoc, Marmora, Hastings, Lindsay, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and New York. Among the visiting Knights were Rev. Fathers Whelen, Ottawa; Murtagh, Marmora; Maher, Madoc; Crowley, North Bay; French, Pontiac; McDonald, Chrysler. Other distinguished Knights from abroad were Hon. Senator McHugh, Lindsay; Dr. Moher, Brockville; M. J. Gorman, Ottawa; R. D. Gunn, K.C., and W. T. J. Lee; J. G. O'Donoghue, Toronto, Dr. Moloney, Cornwall; and Col. Hendricks, American Consul, Belleville.

In the morning the visiting and local Knights attended solemn High Mass, coram pontifica, His Lordship Bishop O'Connor being present. The mass was sung by Rev. Dr. O'Brien.

In the evening the installation ceremonies were conducted, and as they are of a private nature, as far as the general public is concerned, of course are not available, or even desirable.

The occasion was a delightful event in the history of the local fraternity, the privilege of fraternizing with the visiting Knights being especially appreciated, and the latter were in turn delighted with the town and the attentions received from their local consociates.

dry, M.P., Warden E. A. Peck, and the officers of the regiment. Hon. J. R. Stratton was unavoidably absent, having been called to Toronto during the afternoon.

The caterer for the banquet was Mr. Harry Long, and the spread provided was of an elaborate nature, and was done full justice to by those present. The band then serenaded the company in the drill hall. The toast list was next proceeded with, and a number of brief but brilliant speeches were made. The King was honoured in the usual manner. "Our Guest" was next proposed by Major Hallidsy, and responded to by Lord Dundonald, who gave a practical address on military matters, after complimenting the Regiment on its successful carrying out of the day's programme. He referred to the new peace service now being inaugurated in the Canadian Militia. Capt. Cluxton favoured the company with a solo, followed by a solo, "Drill Ye Tarriers, Drill," by Major Dennistoun.

"The House of Commons of Canada," was the next Toast honoured. This was responded to by Mr. James Kendry, M.P., and Mr. R. R. Hall. Mr. Kendry, in his reply, referred to the new drill shed to be erected. Mr. Hall congratulated Colonel Miller and the officers and the volunteers connected with the 57th Regiment upon the successful part which everyone took in connection with the difficult ceremony of presenting the colours.

He felt that every possible encouragement should be given by the Town and Government to the local Militia. More stimulus would be given to the local Militia if Peterborough were made the mobilization point of No. 3 District. To do this suitable armouries, which should cost between $100,000 and $150,000 should be erected. With suitable armouries here, there should be no difficulty in such a growing and important centre like Peterborough to have our volunteer forces increased from a membership of about three hundred to over one thousand.

With suitable armouries erected, Peterborough would be the head quarters for the Cavalry, a corps of Artillery and a corps of Engineers.

With the increasing growth in wealth and population in Canada more money should be expended by the Government for the benefit of the Militia. What better protection is there to life and property than a strong efficient Militia in time of peace? What better guarantee is there for the assurance of peace when a country has a strong and efficient Military organization, and is well prepared for any eventuality?

He desired to impress upon the General Officer Commanding, the importance of Peterborough as a point for mobilization. It is situated back from the frontier upon two great railway lines, the C.P.R. and Grand Trunk, which have lines radiating in all directions. It has a magnificent waterway running from the Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. It is the most suitable point in the province of Ontario for the establishment of a factory for the manufacture of small arms and ammunition.

It is a pleasure and a satisfaction to the Canadian people that they have secured the services of Lord Dundonald as General Officer Commanding on account of his great military experience in different quarters and particularly in South Africa.

It is a source of satisfaction to know that the organization of the military forces in Canada is in the hands of one of the great heroes of South Africa, who brought glory and honour to English arms at the relief of Ladysmith.

Col. Miller recited his favourite selection, "Glencoe," and Mr. Gus. Loch sang "Boys of the Old Brigade." This was followed by a recitation by Col. Edwards. The "Municipal Corporation" was the next toast honoured, and was responded to by Mayor Roger and Warden Peck. Solos were then given by R. Watt, the Chaplain, Major Hayes and Major Stevenson, after which the company dispersed.

PRESENTATION OF THE OLD COLOURS.

Ceremony Connected With the Presentation Which Took Place 36 Years Ago.

57th Regiment was Then the Best in the District as it is To-day—Those who Were Prominent in Ceremony.

On Monday, July 13th, 1868, the colours which yesterday were trooped and replaced by a new stand, were presented to the regiment. The Examiner of July 14th, 1868, contained a lengthy account of the event, from which the following extracts are taken:

On Monday evening Lieut.-Col. Jarvis, accompanied by Brigade-Major Patterson, inspected the Battalion in the large field north of the Rev. Mr. Gilmour's residence. Long before the time appointed, crowds of people were seen on the grounds, and by the hour of six o'clock, p.m., almost one-half the town, the majority ladies, appeared to be in the field. When Lieut.-Col. Jarvis appeared, the Battalion was drawn up in line, and as he passed up and down both front and rear of the men, he several times expressed his entire satisfaction with their fine soldier-like appearance, singling out No. 1, Peterborough; No. 4, Ashburnham; and the Norwood company as particularly fine looking men. The Battalion then went through various evolutions, marching and counter-marching, etc., the inspecting Officer placing himself in a position to see to best advantage, and during the whole he was heard again and again to say that they did well, several of the companies being almost equal to the Regulars in their movements and in their efficiency in drill.

Presentation.

About seven o'clock the Battalion formed into three sides of a rectangle. The colours then to be presented were brought out and carried to the rear. Before this the drums were placed in front of the men about fifty yards distant; the banners were then brought and placed across the drums, and Major Kennedy and Leigh placed one at each flag; the two Ensigns stood midway between the Majors.

Mrs. Carnegie, accompanied by Mrs. Gilmour, Mrs. Kempt, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. John J. Hall, Mrs. Romaine, and two or three other ladies then came forward. Mrs. Robt. Dennistoun and Mrs. McKerris had taken active part in obtaining funds for the colours, but were unavoidably absent from the presentation.

The ceremonies being through, the Battalion was again put through different parts of their drill, until the darkness prevented their being seen. They were then arranged, the two wings facing each other, when Col. Jarvis addressed the officers and men in the most flattering terms. He highly praised the appearance and drill of the Ashburnham and No. 1 Companies, and the fine soldier-like appearance of the Norwood Company and of the Embrayegeon Company, and expressed a desire that it should be attached to the 57th Battalion. He also said that the whole Battalion was about the best in his district—there might be one better, but it was very doubtful—and he declared that they were equal to Regulars in their appearance, efficiency in drill and marching. He felt that a particular honour had been done him in presenting the Queen's colours during his visit of inspection, and he knew that the 57th Battalion would never allow them to receive a stain. He several times reiterated his commendations of the officers and men, and was heard to declare that our volunteer Band is the best in the Province, and the only one that knew how to conduct itself properly during a review. It must be very gratifying to Lieut.-Col. Poole and the officers and men of his battalion to thus receive the highest encomiums while we understand that other battalions have received blame. It is doubly pleasing to know that this county has the best battalion of volunteers, and one, too, that if their services are required will do their duty. Mr. Ruckette, bandmaster, must feel proud that his labours to make the 57th Battalion Band a good one has been successful.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Lord Dundonald wishes it stated publicly that he fully intended to attend both concerts given last night, but lack of time prevented him from carrying out his intentions, which fact he deeply regretted.

The manner in which the exercises in connection with the trooping and presentation were carried out by the regiment reflects great credit upon it, and it compares very favourably with any city regiment in the service.

A number of veterans were on the grounds, among them being Fred McCorry, who has medals for the Fenian Raid, Northwest Rebellion and Long Service. He was in the service 32 years and 8 months. Major Birdsall, of the 46th, and Sergt.-Major Martin, of the 45th, were also present.

A squad of the 14th Field Battery participated in the parade and had charge of the grounds while the trooping and presentation exercises were being conducted. Their services were a very necessary part of the day's proceedings, and were highly appreciated by those in charge of the event. Capt. Ackerman was in command.

The band never created so favourable an impression before as it did yesterday. The marching and playing of the band were features noticed by all who witnessed the proceedings. Great credit is due Drum Major Peters for his work in perfecting the band in the manoeuvring, which was so successfully carried out yesterday. Many complimentary remarks were made on the appearance of the band, and they were well deserved.

The 57th Regiment created a name for itself yesterday, and among the many military men who witnessed yesterday's exercises, the general opinion expressed was that the regiment had acquitted itself admirably, and Lord Dundonald himself was highly pleased with the showing made. So much was he impressed with the work of the regiment that he did a very unusual thing for a commanding officer. After his public address to the regiment, he again spoke to the men after the marchpast, the bearing of the men during which had impressed him very favourably.

Lord Dundonald and his staff were guests at Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun's for luncheon, and at the Golf Club House for tea. During the afternoon the commanding officer with his ladies and aide-de-camp, was driven around the town by the officers of the regiment. He expressed great pleasure at the beauties of Peterborough; the lift lock claimed particular attention from him, and he was deeply interested in it.

The advent of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music Concert Company, will be something novel in local musical circles. Wherever they have visited on their tour they have been received with great enthusiasm. Their welcome here next Tuesday, May 31st, ought to be just as great. St. Andrew's lecture hall.

A DOUBLE RESCUE

By ELLIOT WALKER

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

"I'll kiss you for that!" cried the child tremulously. "I'd marry you if I was big enough."

Her arm clung about the man's muscular neck as he tried to dodge the impulsive caresses. Laughing faintly, he carried his light burden across the street, put her down in safety and beckoned to a white faced, horrified woman on the other side of the track.

Curly did not quite comprehend how he had done it. Just an instinctive leap, a clutch at the pink frock, and the trolley's fender had grazed his leg as he jerked forward, trying to cast the little girl from him, with a flash of thought that he himself was gone.

Voices cursing the motorman, who was not in the least at fault; voices and hands applauding hammed in his ear without meaning as he straightened up with a long breath of relief, his eyes on her grateful, childish face."

"Marry me, eh?" he whispered mischievously as he disentagled the clinging fingers. "Oh, no, my dear, you wouldn't; not if you were ten years older."

"I would! I'd be twenty-one then," holding his none too clean hand with both her tiny ones. "I'm going to wait for you. Every day I'll remember just how you look, and"—

"You tot!" smiled her rescuer, hastily pulling from his breast pocket an envelope and extracting a card photograph from a rather soiled bunch. "Here, take this. Look at it once in awhile. That'll be thanks enough for me, and maybe you won't entirely forget a poor fellow who won't forget you in a long while. Bless your little white soul! I didn't know I had a soft spot left."

"Allena Raceway!" quavered the thin lady in black, coming up with a rush after painful indecision in crossing. "How dared you disobey me? Have you thanked the kind gentleman properly? Which is he, Allena?"

"He's gone," answered her charge, with a wail of disappointment, her glance roving through the crowd. "Oh,

"DEAR ME! I DON'T EVEN KNOW YOUR NAME."

dear! I didn't even find out his name. I've got his picture, though, to remember him by. See, Charlotte."

The governess gazed and bit her lip.

"A pretty hard face," she murmured.

"It isn't!" cried Allena in wrath. "It was just saintly when I kissed him."

"You kissed him! You dreadful child! Come home at once. You! Judge Raceway's daughter! Why, the man might have had consumption—or—germs. He may have given them to you!"

"He gave me his picture, anyway, and you and your old germs can go to pot," retorted Allena impolitely. "Say, you needn't drag me along, Charlotte Spicer. I can walk."

* * * * * * *

Curly stood irresolutely in front of the saloon. The crowd jostled him, but he didn't move along. A flashily dressed man seized his arm.

"You're shaky this morning, boy," he accosted cordially. "Let's get inside. I'll break a small bottle with you. That will put you on your feet."

"I'm on my feet now," returned the otter roughly. "Let me alone!"

His companion stared. "Curly!" he coaxed good naturedly. "Come on, now. Don't stand here in the sun. Yes, yes, I know how a fellow feels sometimes. It's the nerves. Settle 'em, and you'll be all right."

"You don't know how I feel, Joe, and you never will," smiling queerly. "I've had an experience. Just say to the crowd that I've cut my hair, and the sooner they forget Curly the better it will please me. Say I'm Todd Shipman now, the same who came among you two years ago, when I was kicked out of college. Joe, I'm twenty-one today. Lord knows. I want a drink, but I don't take it. I've a little money coming, and I was going to 'blow' it in good shape, but something has changed my mind. You've been a good friend and square. Goodby and luck to you."

The muscular figure straightened with a half friendly, half warning flash in the gray eyes.

A strong momentary pressure of fingers which were quick at dealing poker hands and Shipman's broad shoulders swung down the street.

"Beats me!" meditated his sporting friend and, more softly, "Maybe he is right, though—twenty-one—birthday—new leaf—hum!"

* * * * * * *

"Show him in," said the judge, a bit testily. "Right here in the library, John. Turn up that lamp a trifle." He pored over the card. "Can't be Otis Shipman's son," he ruminated. "Let's see. Todd's a family name. Why, it was ten years ago that boy went off—goodness knows where—and glad they were to be rid of him, the wild rascal! Seems to me I heard he had done mighty well, but that didn't cure him, I imagine. Yes, I remember, a curly headed, gray eyed scamp, bright as a dollar. Too bad! Too bad!"

When the visitor emerged from the library after that hour of rapid conversation he went straight to the drawing room, and his host, with a puzzled visage, pattered upstairs.

Shipman stood under the great chandelier, a bronzed, well formed man, the rings of clustering hair low on his broad brow. He trembled at the sound of soft approaching steps.

"My father said you wished to speak with me," came a clear voice as a girl, tall, bright eyed and sunny haired, came quickly in without embarrassment, looking at him keenly.

"I do," replied the stranger. "I have every day for ten years prayed for this meeting that I might thank you."

"Thank me?" starting. "And for what, please? Oh," she cried, "I—I do know you now! You are my picture. I have it yet in a tiny frame. You who saved me when I was a little girl. So often I have wondered, dreamed, that I might some time see you again. And here you are."

"Yes, here I am," solemnly, with his hands clasped behind him. "I have had a talk with your father. He has given me permission to tell you my story, if—if you care to hear it."

"Of course I do." Allena's cheeks were glowing. "Let us sit down. Dear me! I don't even know your name."

"Shipman—Todd Shipman of Colorado Springs."

"Oh!" she gazed at him interestedly.

"That day," began the man, his tone reverent, "the trustful embrace of a little child turned my steps. During all my struggle her face has been ever before me—an inspiration. I have been true to it. It has been my one thought to live and work for this date, this anniversary, that I might tell her what she did. You do not seem strange to me, but as I expected to find you. Goodby! May God bless you!"

"But you will come again?" cried the girl, giving him her hands as he rose.

"If I do," the deep voice trembled, "you—you will understand."

The fair head drooped and nodded almost imperceptibly; her fingers tightened on his. He bent his lips to them and stepped softly away.

"Mrs. Todd Shipman," murmured Allena as she heard the front door close. "Quite an attractive name!"

Vicarious Vengeance.

It was undoubtedly a mean trick of Sawyer. He was a big man, and when he came home late a few evenings ago and found his little friend, Ben Allen, with whom he shared his lodgings, asleep in the middle of their common bed he made little to do, but when he retired, with a little effort, he kicked his small friend on to the floor.

Ben said nothing at the time, but when a few evenings later he found that Sawyer had taken up a similar position in bed he determined to have his revenge.

Stealthily climbing over the huge form, he braced his back against the wall and, placing his feet against his friend's spine, gave a tremendous push. The effect was instantaneous, if not exactly what had been anticipated.

The big man moved, but the bed moved with him, opening a wide space between it and the wall, through which Ben disappeared.

The little fellow had shot himself out of bed.

Perfumed Garments.

Saturate tiny pieces of absorbent cotton with your favorite perfume, and put these bits in every bureau drawer, box and trunk where wearing apparel is kept. The merest suggestion of perfume will attach to the garments. The balls will need to be saturated about once a month.

Bath sprays can now be bought consisting of a rubber tube to attach to the faucet, having a nickel spray at the other end. A great convenience for the ordinary bathroom.

Don't forget that hearty laughter is a source of relaxation. So are all high thoughts, as those of hope, beauty, trust and love.

A lamp wick will give a brighter, stronger flame if the end in the oil is frayed out for an inch.

DIZZY'S OLDEST TENANT.

Thomas Coates, Who Has Retired From Wardenship of Hughendon Church.

To have occupied the post of churchwarden for 40 years is in itself a feat of which few can boast, but to have claimed during part of that period the personal friendship in the dual capacity of fellow parishioner and tenant of the late Lord Beaconsfield is more enviable still, says Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper. This, however, is the record of Mr. Thomas Coates, who has just retired from being warden of Hughendon Church after serving for close upon half a century. Seen by a Lloyd's representative, he explained that old age was the cause of his retirement, and when it comes to be said that he is within a few days of his 88th year, one can appreciate his desire for a rest. Seated in his cosy parlor, with—appropriately enough—a bust of the great statesman looking approvingly on, the old gentleman was reminiscent of the time during which he was Lord Beaconsfield's tenant. "for," said he, "I am the oldest tenant on the estate."

He recalled his first meeting with Disraeli after he took the Manor Farm, which adjoins Hughendon Manor on the top of the hill, upon the slope of which in the trim churchyard rest the remains of the great statesman.

"He walked over from the manor to the farm," said Mr. Coates, "and remarked that I was his nearest neighbor. We talked about many matters, and he wound up by saying that when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer I should be his First Lord of the Treasury. I told him I hoped I should live to see him Chancellor; and I did. But"—with a quiet twinkle in his eye—"I never became First Lord."

Mr. Coates also mentioned how he met Disraeli one day when he was on his way to Slough Agricultural Show. "He asked me where I was going, and I told him to Slough. He said he was going to the same place, and asked me to go along with him and tell him something about crops and so forth, because he was to make a speech at the dinner. He mentioned that he was coming back by a certain train, but when I pointed out that the train did not stop at Slough he said, 'Don't you trouble about that. Just watch when I get up to go and come along.' Well, he made a long speech, and up I jumped when he rose from the table. Outside I found a carriage with a pair of grey horses in. He told the coachman to drive to another station, and we just caught the train. Before we got in he said to me, 'Just give the driver half a sovereign, for they've cleared me out at Slough.'"

"And the half-sovereign?" queried our representative.

"Oh," said Mr. Coates, "the footman brought that down to the house the next morning."

Referring to the Reform Bill of the late sixties, Mr. Coates said "The Squire," as Disraeli was called at Hughendon once asked his opinion of it. He wanted Mr. Coates' view, because it would probably reflect the opinion of the vast majority of the electorate. "I think you have gone too far, sir," said Mr. Coates.

"Ah, well, don't you see," replied Disraeli, "it's this way. If we don't give them the franchise, someone else will."

"All of which," added Mr. Coates, "showed what a far-seeing man he was, although I thought he was wrong at the time."

An interesting sidelight upon the domestic side of Beaconsfield's character was shown by the way in which he interested himself in the wedding of Mr. Coates' eldest daughter. "He came to me," said Mr. Coates, "and asked whether it was true that my daughter was to be married. I said it was, and he asked when. I told him the day, and he at once said he would like to be present, and also to bring Lady Beaconsfield too. I thanked him, and explained that I had not asked him because it looked like a liberty. However, he came and brought her ladyship, notwithstanding that she had a sprained foot, in a carriage. He proposed the toast of the "Bride and Bridegroom,' and made them a present of his works, and a gold brooch for my daughter, which she wears to-day."

As for notabilities who had been there, Mr. Coates could not recall the scores he had seen and conversed with, but he has a vivid recollection of his landlord bringing the late Duke of Wellington to see a famous litter of Berkshire pigs which he had, and of the two men talking learnedly thereon.

As for the great statesman's general ways, he was wonderfully kind-hearted and thoughtful to anyone he knew, although he generally appeared so austere to strangers. He had a word and a nod for everyone. "And," concluded Mr. Coates, "nobody could have wished for a better landlord—he was of the best."

Thievish Bees.

Buckner in his "Psychic Life of Animals" speaks of thievish bees which in order to save themselves the trouble of working attack well stocked hives in masses, kill the sentinels and the inhabitants, rob the hives and carry off the provisions. After repeated enterprises of this description they acquire a taste for robbery with violence. They recruit whole companies, which get more and more numerous, and finally they form regular colonies of brigand bees. But it is a still more curious fact that these brigand bees can be produced artificially by giving working bees a mixture of honey and brandy to drink. The bees soon acquire a taste for this beverage, which has the same disastrous effects upon them as upon men. They become ill disposed and irritable and lose all desire to work, and finally when they begin to feel hungry they attack and plunder the well supplied hives.

To Walk Gracefully.

Keep your limbs free and untrammeled that you may walk with the grace and elegance of a thoroughbred, not the melancholy shamble of the broken-down old horse, and in clothing yourself bear in mind "lightness and warmth" in place of layers of petticoats that hang round and incommode one's movements, for freedom of the limbs is a great help towards a graceful figure. Everyone is not blessed with classic features and rare beauty, but fresh, sweet youth is delicious, like a young rosebud that opens itself out to the sun. That is what early girlhood is—all charm and sweetness, and full of promise for the future. Take care of the future, girls; think what grumbles and fret and worry will bring you by-and-by in the shape of wrinkles and frowns and discontent. Keep your brow smooth and placid, and use your lips to smile.

First Symptoms of Paralysis

Should warn you to revitalize the wasted nerve cells by the use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Though paralysis is dreaded by everybody, some do not recognize in nervous headache, sleeplessness, irritability and low spirits the indications of nervous exhaustion which point to paralysis as the final outcome.

Whatever else you may neglect do not allow the nervous system to become exhausted and run down.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most potent nerve vitalizer known to science to-day. You can use it with positive assurance that each dose is bound to be of some benefit to you in building up the system and preventing nervous prostration and paralysis.

Mrs. S. J. Schooley, 12 Arthur avenue, St. Thomas, Ont., states:—"I was troubled a great deal with nervousness, severe headache and sleeplessness and at times a sort of numb feeling would come over me. I was in constant fear of paralysis as the doctors told me my trouble was exhaustion of the nervous system. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and soon noticed a great improvement. Now I can say that my nerves are completely restored, I sleep very much better and the distressing feeling of numbness has disappeared."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 1

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA

By Booth Tarkington.

The big, motherly girl took her companion in her arms and rocked her back and forth soothingly and petted and reassured her and then cried a little with her, as a good hearted girl always will with a friend. Then she left her for the night, with many a cheering word and tender caress. "Get to sleep, my dear," she called through the door when she had closed it behind her. "You must if you have to go in the morning. It just breaks my heart. I don't know how we'll bear it without you. Father will miss you almost as much as I will. Good night. Don't bother about that old white scarecrow; that's all it was. Good night, dear; good night."

"Good night, dear," answered a plaintive little voice. Helen's cheek pressed the pillow and tossed from side to side. By and by she turned the pillow over; it had grown wet. The wind blew about the eaves and blew itself out. Sleep would not come. She got up and laved her burning eyes; then she sat by the window. The storm's strength was spent at last. The rain grew lighter and lighter until there was but the sound of running water and the drip, drip on the tin roof of the porch. Only the thunder rumbling in the distance marked the storm's course, the chariots of the gods rolling farther and farther away till they finally ceased to be heard altogether. The clouds parted majestically, and then, between great curtains of mist, the day star was seen shining in the east.

"Look!" she cried.

The night was hushed, and the peace that falls before dawn was upon the wet, flat lands. Somewhere in the sodden grass a swamped cricket chirped; from an outlying flange of the village a dog's howl rose mournfully; it was answered by another far away and by another and another. The sonorous chorus rose above the village, died away, and quiet fell again.

Helen sat by the window, no comfort touching her heart. Tears coursed her cheeks no longer, but her eyes were wide and staring, and her lips parted breathlessly, for the hush was broken by the far clamor of the courthouse bell ringing in the night. It rang and rang and rang and rang. She could not breathe. She threw open the window. The bell stopped. All was quiet once more. The east was gray.

Suddenly out of the stillness there came the sound of a horse galloping over a wet road. He was coming like mad. Some one for a doctor? No; the hoof beats grew louder, coming out from the town, coming faster and faster, coming here. There was a plashing and trampling in front of the house and a sharp "Whoa!" In the dim light of first dawn she made out a man on a foam flecked horse. He drew up at the gate.

A window to the right of hers went screeching up. She heard the judge clear his throat before he spoke.

"What is it? That's you, isn't it, Wiley? What is it?" He took a good deal of time and coughed between the sentences. His voice was more than ordinarily quiet, and it sounded husky. "What is it, Wiley?"

"Judge, what time did Mr. Harkless leave here last night, and which way did he go?"

There was a silence. The judge turned away from the window. Minnie was standing just outside his door. "It must have been about half past 9, wasn't it, father?" she called in a choked voice. "And—you know—Helen thought he went west."

"Wiley!" The old man leaned from the sill again.

"Yes," answered the man on horseback.

"Wiley, he left about half past 9—just before the storm. They think he went west."

"Much obliged. Willetts is so upset he isn't sure of anything."

"Wiley!" The old man's voice shook. Minnie began to cry aloud. The horseman wheeled about and turned his animal's head toward town. "Wiley!"

"Yes."

"Wiley, they haven't—you don't think they've got him?"

Said the man on horseback, "Judge, I'm afraid they have."

CHAPTER VIII.

THE courthouse bell ringing in the night! No hesitating stroke of Schofields' Henry, no uncertain touch, was on the rope. A loud, wild, hurried clamor pealing out to wake the countryside, a rapid clang! clang! clang! that struck clear in to the spine. The courthouse bell had tolled for the death of Morton, of Garfield, of Hendricks; had rung joy peals of peace after the war and after political campaigns, but it had rung as it was ringing now only three times—once when Hibbard's mill burned, once when Webb Landis killed Sep Bardlock and intrenched himself in the lumber yard and would not be taken until he was shot through and through, and once when the Rouen accommodation, crowded with children and women and men, was wrecked within twenty yards of the station.

Why was the bell ringing now? Men and women, startled into wide wakefulness, groped to windows. No red mist hung over town or country. What was it? The bell rang on. Its loud alarm beat increasingly into men's hearts and quickened their throbbing to the rapid measure of its own. Vague forms loomed in the gloaming. A horse, madly ridden, splashed through the town. There were shouts; voices called hoarsely; lamps began to gleam in the windows; half clad people emerged from their houses, men slapping their braces on their shoulders as they ran out of doors; questions were shouted into the dimness.

Then the news went over the town. It was cried from yard to yard, from group to group, from gate to gate, and reached the furthermost confines. Runners shouted it as they sped by, and boys panted it, breathless; women with loosened hair stumbled into darkling chambers and faltered it out to new wakened sleepers, and pale girls, clutching wraps at their throats, whispered it across fences. The sick, tossing on their hard beds, heard it. The bell clamored it far and near; it spread over the countryside, and it flew over the wires to distant cities. The White Caps had got Mr. Harkless!

Lige Willetts had lost track of him out near Briscoe's, it was said, and had come into town at midnight seeking him. He had found Parker, the Herald foreman, and Ross Schofield, the typesetter, and Bud Tipworthy, the devil, at work in the printing office, but no sign of Harkless there or in the cottage. Together these had sought for him and had roused others who had inquired at every house where he might have gone for shelter, and they had heard nothing. They had watched for his coming during the slackening of the storm. He had not come, and there was no place he could have gone. He was missing. Only one thing could have happened.

They had roused up Warren Smith, the prosecutor, and Horner, the sheriff, and Jared Wiley, the deputy. William Todd had rung the alarm. It was agreed that the first thing to do was to find him. After that there would be trouble, if not before. It looked as if there would be trouble before. The men tramping up to the muddy square in their shirt sleeves were bulgy about the right hips, and when Homer Tibbs joined Columbus Landis at the hotel corner and Landis saw that Homer was carrying a shotgun Landis went back for his. A hastily sworn posse galloped out Main street. Women and children ran into neighbors' yards and began to cry. Day was coming, and as the light grew men swore and savagely kicked at the palings of fences as they ran by them.

In the foreglow of dawn they gathered in the square and listened to Warren Smith, who made a speech from the courthouse fence and warned them to go slow. They answered him with angry shouts and hootings. But he made his big bass voice heard and bade them do nothing rash. No facts were known, he said. It was far from certain that harm had been done, and no one knew that the Six Crossroads people had done it, even if something had happened to Mr. Harkless. He declared that he spoke in Harkless' name. Nothing could distress him so much as for them to defy the law, to take it out of the proper hands. Justice would be done.

"Yes, it will!" shouted a man below him, brandishing the butt of a rawhide whip above his head. "And while you jaw on about it here he may be tied up like a dog in the woods, shot full of holes by the men you never lifted a finger to hender, because you want their votes when you run for circuit judge. What are we doin' here? What's the good of listening to you?"

They answered him with angry shouts.

There was a yell at this, and those who heard the speaker would probably have started for the Crossroads had not a rumor sprung up which passed rapidly from man to man and in a few moments had reached every person in the crowd. The news came that the two shell gamblers had wrenched a bar out of a window under cover of the storm, had broken jail and were at large. Their threats of the day before were remembered now with convincing vividness. They had sworn repeatedly to Bardlock and to the sheriff and in the hearing of others that they would "do" for the man who had taken their money from them and had them arrested. The prosecuting attorney, quickly perceiving the value of this complication in holding back the mob that was already forming, called Horner from the crowd and made him get up on the fence and confess that his prisoners had escaped, at what time he did not know, probably toward the beginning of the storm, when it was noisiest.

"You see," cried the attorney, "there is nothing as yet of which we can accuse the Crossroads. If our friend has been hurt it is much more likely that these crooks did it. They escaped in time to do it, and we all know they were laying for him. You want to be mighty careful, fellow citizens. Horner is already in telegraphic communication with every town around here, and he'll have those men before night. All you've got to do is to control yourselves a little and go home quietly." He could see that his words (except those in reference to returning home—no one was going home) made an impression. There was a babble of shouting and argument and swearing that grew louder and louder.

Mr. Ephraim Watts, in spite of all confusion, clad as carefully as upon the preceding day, deliberately climbed the fence and stood by the lawyer and made a single steady gesture with his hand. He was listened to at once, as his respect for the law was less notorious than his irreverence for it, and he had been known in Carlow as customarily a reckless man. They wanted illegal and desperate advice and quieted down to hear it. He spoke in his professionally calm voice.

"Gentlemen, it seems to me that Mr. Smith and Mr. Ribshaw," nodding to the man with the rawhide whip, "are both right. What good are we doing here? What we want to know is what's happened to Mr. Harkless. It looks just now like the shell men might have done it. Let's find out what they done. Scatter and hunt for him. Soon as anything's known for certain Hibbard's mill whistle will blow three times. Keep on looking till it does; then," he finished, with a barely perceptible scornful smile at the attorney—"then we can decide on what had ought be done."

Six Crossroads lay dark and steaming in the sun that morning. The forge was silent, the saloon locked up, the roadway deserted even by the pigs. The broken old buggy stood rotting in the mud without a single lean little old man or woman—such were the children of the Crossroads—to play about it. Once, when the deputy sheriff rode through alone, a tattered black hound, more wolf than dog, half emerged, growling, from beneath one of the tumbledown barns and was jerked back into the darkness by his tail, with a snarl fiercer than his own, while a gun barrel shone for a second as it swung for a stroke on the brute's head. The hound did not yelp or whine when the blow fell. He shut his eyes twice and slunk sullenly back to his place.

The shanties might have received a volley or two from some of the mounted bands, exasperated by futile searching, had not the escape of Horner's prisoners made the guilt of the Crossroads appear doubtful in the minds of many. As the morning waned the advocates of the theory that the gamblers had made away with Harkless grew in number. There came a telegram from the Rouen chief of police that he had a clew to their whereabouts. He thought they had succeeded in reaching Rouen, and it began to be generally believed that they had escaped by the 1 o'clock freight train, which had stopped to take on some empty cars at a side track a mile northwest of town, across the fields from the Briscoe house. Toward noon a party went out to examine the railroad embankment.

Men began to come back into the village for breakfast by twos and threes, but many kept on searching the woods, not feeling the need of food or caring if they did. Every grove and clump of underbrush, every thicket, was ransacked. The waters of the creek, shallow for the most part, but swollen overnight, were dragged at every pool. Nothing was found. There was not a sign.

The bar of the hotel was thronged all morning as the returning citizens rapidly made their way thither, and those who had breakfasted and were going out again paused for internal as well as external re-enforcement. The landlord, himself returned from a long hunt, set out his whisky with a lavish hand.

"He was the best man we had, boys," said Landis as he poured the little glasses full. "We'd ort of sent him to the legislative halls of Washington long ago. He'd of done us honor there. But we never thought of doin' anything fer him. Jest set round and left him build up the town and give him empty thankyes. Drink hearty, gentlemen," he finished gloomily. "I don't grudge no liquor today—except to Lige Willetts."

"He was a good man," said young William Todd, whose nose was red, not from the whisky. "I've about give up."

"It's goin' to seem mighty empty around here," said Ross Schofield. "What's goin' to become o' the Herald and the party in this district? Where's the man to run either of 'em now? Like as not," he continued desperately, "it'll go against us in the fall."

Dibb Zane choked over his four fingers. "We might's well bust up the dab dusted ole town ef he's gone."

"I don't know what's come over that Cynthy Tipworthy," said the landlord. "She's waited table on him last two years, and her brother Bud works at the Herald office. She didn't say a word, only looked and looked and looked, like a crazy woman; then her and Bud went off together to hunt in the woods. They jest tuck hold of each other's hands like"—

"I reckon there ain't many crazier than them two Bowlders, father and son," interrupted a patron, wiping the drops from his beard as he set his glass on the bar. "They rid into town like a couple of wild Indians, the old man beatin' that gray mare o' theirn till she was one big welt, and he ain't satcherly no cruel man either. I expect Lige Willetts better keep out of Hartley's way."

"I keep out of no man's way!" cried a voice behind him. Turning, they saw Lige standing on the threshold of the door that led to the street. In his hand he held the bridle of the horse he had ridden across the sidewalk and that now stood panting, with lowered head half through the doorway, beside his master. Lige was hatless, splashed with mud from head to foot; his jaw was set, his teeth ground together, his eyes burned under red lids, and his hair lay tossed and damp on his brow. "I keep out of no man's way," he repeated hoarsely. "I heard you, Mr. Tibbs, but I've got too much to do, while you loaf and gas and drink over Landis' bar. I've got other business than keepin' out of Hart Bowlder's way. I'm lookin' for John Harkless. He was the best man we had in this ornery hole, and he was too good for us, and so we've maybe let him get killed, and maybe I'm to blame. But I'm goin' to find him, and if he's hurt I'm goin' to have a hand on the rope that lifts the men that did it if I have to go to Rouen to put it there. After that I'll answer for my fault, not before."

He threw himself on his horse and was gone. Soon the room emptied, as the patrons of the bar returned to the search, and only Mr. Wilkerson and the landlord remained, the bar being the professional office, so to speak, of both.

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

1847 TRADE MARK ROGERS BROS

The above trade mark has been stamped on every article of the original and genuine Rogers Bros.' goods for over 50 years. Get this and you get the best that is made.

Ask a healthy woman what she would sell her health for and she would tell you that the choicest diamonds in the world could not buy it. What use for diamond rings to emphasize the shrunken fingers, or earrings to light up the cheeks hollowed by disease?

Health is the first requisite to womanly happiness. General ill-health in women has its origin in local womanly diseases. Cure the diseases of the delicate womanly organism and the general health is perfectly restored.

The remarkable benefits experienced from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription are due to this medicine's perfect cures of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' writes Mrs. Flora Arn, of Dallas, Jackson Co., Mo. "I was tempted to try these medicines after seeing the effect upon my mother. At an early stage of married life I was greatly bothered with painful periods, also a troublesome drain which rendered me very weak and unfit for work of any kind. I became so thin there was nothing left of me but skin and bone. My husband became alarmed and got me a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription.' After he saw the wonderful effects of that one he got me two more, and after I used those up there was no more pain, and I began to gain in flesh very rapidly."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

THE LAUNCHING WAS SUCCESSFUL.

"Sovereign" Took to the Water at Shipyards Yesterday.

The steamer "Sovereign," being built at the Point St. Charles shipyards, was launched yesterday forenoon, with the usual ceremonies, Mrs. Snyder, wife of the proprietor, christened the new boat, breaking a bottle of wine over the prow of the new vessel as the craft took to the water gracefully. A number of persons were present at the launching, which was very successfully conducted. The new boat rides well on the water, and when the upperworks are completed the boat will present a handsome appearance.

The upper deck will be built at once, and the boat will be completed in a few weeks, when she will commence her season's work.

Sultan's Son-in-Law Exiled.

Constantinople, May 25.—Kemal Pasha, the Sultan's son-in-law, and other high officials have been arrested and sent into exile in consequence of the discovery of a secret correspondence between Kemal Pasha and Princess Khadidje, daughter of the imprisoned ex-Sultan Murad. Kemal Pasha, who is a son of the late Osman Ghazi Pasha, is a general in the Turkish army, and aide-de-camp to the Sultan.

Chinaman at Head of Class.

New York, May 25.—Chao Chu, son of Wu Ting Fang, former Chinese Minister to the United States, and now vice-president of the foreign board at Pekin, has been graduated at the head of his class in the Atlantic City High School. There were thirty-one scholars in the class. The young Oriental will begin the study of medicine in Philadelphia next fall.

Curtail Pig Iron Production.

New York, May 25.—Within the next thirty days the production of pig iron will, it is stated by leading dealers, be greatly curtailed at the furnaces in all parts of the United States. The proposed reduction, which is not by united action, is variously estimated at 20 to 40 per cent. of the present output.

National Bank Suspends.

Cape May, N. J., May 25.—The First National Bank of Cape May was closed yesterday by order of the United States Comptroller of the Currency. The bank was recently reorganized. It is said that the depositors will be paid in full.

SPECIALTIES

Straw Hats, Panamas, Manillas And Summer Felts

This is an age of specialism. People go to specialists for everything to-day when they want absolute satisfaction.

In manufacturing specializing means better quality, better making, lower cost of production, and the very best class of workmen.

In Hats we are the local agents for the largest and most up-to-date specializing Hat makers in the world. That is why you'll find Barrie'e Hats are always right, not merely in the matter of material, but in the perfection of art-in-hat making.

Just now we show Summer Headwear made by Christy, Hawes, Stetson, DeLeon, Borsalino, Roeloff, Mallory, Duplex, etc.; prices varying all the way in these makers' goods from 50c. to $12.00 each.

See our Great $1.00 Range of Stiff and Soft Felt Hats. Fur Felts in excellent Shapes.

All are excellent values, some of them exceptional. Have a look through.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—There were no holiday drunks at the police court this morning.

—A special meeting of the Board of Education will be held this evening.

—An assault case was enlarged until Friday at the police court this morning.

—A quantity of local news has been unavoidedly held over until to-morrow.

—Piano tuning promptly attended to. Satisfaction guaranteed. A. F. Hoover. 'Phone, 199.

—People are remarking about those dandelions growing on the lawn in the Best Stove Company's window.

—St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild will run their annual excursion on the third Thursday of June, to the back lakes.

—The Charlotte street Epworth League will meet next Friday, instead of Monday. A social evening with a good programme will be given.

—If you have not the time nor inclination to passe portout those pictures, take them to the "Framery," 428 George street. The only store in town entirely devoted to pictures and picture framing.

—The members of Court Stanley, Ancient Order of Foresters, will attend Divine service in St. Andrew's church on Sunday evening June 26, when Rev. J. G. Potter will deliver the annual sermon to the brethren.

—Dr. Wightman, dentist, is now occupying permanent offices in the Bank of Commerce Building, opposite the post office, first door to the right of the landing, Hunter street entrance. 6d115

—At the Nicholls Hospital on Monday the death occurred of Jos. Halliwell, son of Mr. F. Halliwell, who has been living in town for about five weeks. The deceased was seven years of age. His death was caused by typhoid fever. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning from the hospital.

—The town clock will not be relied upon for the correct time during the next week. Mr. McLellan the official clock-maker for the corporation has dismantled the clock and will repair it this week.

—For fresh rhubarb, green onions, lettuce, asparagus, spy apples, bananas, oranges, lemons, groceress, etc., order from Jas. R. Bell's grocery, 161 Hunter street. Any quantity of good, sound potatoes. Telephone 455.

—Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons received on Monday morning an order from the Provincial Board of Health of the British Columbia Government for one of the firm's famous hospital tents. The letter containing the order states that should the tent prove satisfactory one more will probably be ordered.

—It has been learned that satisfactory arrangements have been made with Mr. A. J. Small, the Opera House magnate and with the Dickson Company, and the only thing necessary now to make an Opera House for Peterborough a realization is the response of the citizens. Mr. Fair will wait upon the persons from whom it is expected that subscriptions will be received in a few days.

PAINFUL RHEUMATISM.

This Trouble is Caused by an Acid in the Blood, and can Only be Cured Through the Blood.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid in the blood. That is a medical truth every sufferer from this trouble should bear in mind. Liniments and outward applications cannot cure what is rooted in the blood—the disease must be cured through the blood. That is the reason rheumatism yields almost like magic to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This new blood conquers the painful poison, sweeps out the aching acid, soothes the nerves, loosens the muscles and banishes rheumatism. Mr. Robert Morrison, one of the best known and most esteemed residents of Guelph, Ont., gives striking testimony to the truth of the statements made above. He says:—"My trouble came gradually and was pronounced muscular rheumatism, and was located chiefly in my neck and shoulders. I can hardly tell you how much I suffered. I was confined to my bed for fifteen months. A great many friends came to see me during that time and I think I am safe in saying that most of them had very few hopes that I would get better. I tried a great many remedies without any lasting benefit. Then I tried Dr. Williams Pink Pills, and I am thankful to say that through the use of these pills and the indefatigable nursing of my wife I am again on my feet. My neck is still somewhat stiff but the pain is gone. I am now in my 79th year, and I feel that I owe much to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These pills have cured thousands of the very worst cases of neuralgia, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago and backaches, and they can do the same for you. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CURRENT RUMOURS OF BIG BATTLES.

Reports of Engagements on Liaotung Peninsula.

KUROKI'S ARMY ADVANCING.

Part of Japanese Fleet Bombards Port Arthur—Russia Says Land Communication Between Armies of Generals Kuroki and Oku Have Been Cut—Russians Failed to Destroy Dalny's Piers and Docks.

Chicago, May 26.—A special to The Daily News from Che Foo says: While cruising in Society Bay yesterday morning the Fawan (The Daily News' despatch boat) ran across a Japanese fleet of four cruisers and four destroyers. The vessels were evidently assisting some landing party. From Chinese junks in the bay it was learned that heavy fighting is in progress ashore in the neighborhood of Port Arthur.

Port Arthur Bombarded.

Che Foo, May 26.—A portion of the Japanese fleet bombarded Port Arthur at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. The attack was witnessed by a Frenchman who left Dalny on the night of the 22nd, arriving here on the 25th. He says that eight large warships circled before the entrance of Port Arthur harbor for one hour, firing broadsides at intervals of ten minutes.

Reports of Bloody Battle.

Mukden, May 26.—According to the latest information obtainable, the Japanese have resumed their forward movement. Several columns are advancing, though the bulk of the invading army is still near Fengwangcheng. There are persistent reports of a bloody battle having taken place between the Japanese army advancing along the railroad from Pulantien, and the Russians, near Kinshou (Liaotung Peninsula), resulting in the defeat of the Japanese with great loss.

Ships That Passed.

Che Foo, May 26.—Four Japanese cruisers and a fleet of torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers passed midway between Port Arthur and the Miaotao Islands at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, but no sounds of firing have yet been heard. The Russians again have removed their guns and troops from the forts at Newchwang.

Cut Land Communications.

Paris, May 26.—A despatch to The Temps from St. Petersburg says Gen. Kuropatkin has cut the land communications between the armies of Generals Kuroki and Oku.

Dalny Not Destroyed.

Che Foo, May 26.—The attempt made about a fortnight ago to destroy the docks and piers at Dalny was not successful, and Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, cammander of the military forces at Port Arthur, has ordered that the docks and piers be not destroyed.

Japs Ran Into Artillery.

Liaoyang, May 26.—A report has been received from Newchwang, saying that on May 23 five battalions of Japanese troops reconnoitred to the south, almost as far as Kinchou, and ran into Major-Gen. Fock's artillery.

The Yochina's Drowned.

Tokio, May 26.—Of the complement of the protected cruiser Yochina, sunk recently in collision with the cruiser Kasuga, sixty-three non-commissioned officers and 220 blue jackets were drowned and forty-eight non-commissioned officers and men were rescued.

What Will He Do With Him?

Liaoyang, May 26.—The father (a corps commander) of the Japanese officer who yesterday committed suicide by disembowelling himself, has given orders to the men of his corps to capture a Russian officer alive.

Russians Burn Shrines.

Seoul, May 26.—A telegram has been received here from Gensan saying that the Russians, after the engagement with Corean troops at Hambeung on May 19 burned the shrines and the royal mausoleum, which were erected there by the founder of the present Corean dynasty in the year 1364, and which were regarded by the Coreans as sacred. This apparent wanton desecration of tombs in a land imbued with the spirit of ancestor worship has caused excited denunciation of the Russians on the part of Seoul officials.

ALFRED MACDOUGALL'S TRIAL.

Judge Decides to Go on Whether Accused Is Well or Not.

Toronto, May 26.—A year ago last December Alfred Macdougall was arrested in connection with defalcations in the Provincial funds, and since then his trial has been postponed from time to time in accordance with the medical evidence of the unfitness of Mr. Macdougall to leave his bed.

On Monday the Crown had an examination made by Drs. N. D. Beemer and J. M. Cotton, and they agreed that, though physically weak, he was quite able mentally to stand his trial, and that the trial might take place in his room under medical supervision without danger.

Judge Winchester yesterday decided to go on with the case in two weeks whether the accused were present or not. Both the Crown physicians stated that he could not be moved except on stretchers with a staff of hospital officials in attendance. Mr. DuVernet, who appeared for Macdougall, protested against the proposal to try his client in absence.

"He has a right to be tried according to British law, and if my learned friend persists in forcing the matter, I have my remedy."

Two weeks were then arranged for in order to give counsel time to move for a writ of prohibition.

It is not unlikely that if the case goes on the evidence will be taken in Macdougall's own apartments.

COL. COOKE'S REQUEST GRANTED.

Edward Qurin, K.C., Replaces Him As Crown Prosecutor at Montreal.

Montreal, May 26.—Edward Qurin replaces Col. Cooke as Crown prosecutor. The following letter received by J. P. Cooke, K.C., from the offices of the Attorney-General, explains the matter:

Sir,—I am directed by the Attorney-General to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated May 20, in which, in view of the appointment of a Royal Commission to enquire into the charges made by William Blackley of Toronto against you as Crown prosecutor, and as this commission will be unable to report before the June term of the Criminal Court in Montreal, and as you would prefer not to act as Crown prosecutor until after the report of the commission has established whether such charges are true or not, you ask him to appoint someone to replace you for the June term of the Criminal Court, which opens on the 1st proximo, and, in answer, to inform you that he has this day appointed Ed. Gurin, K.C., to act as Crown prosecutor at said term.

L. J. Cannon,
Assistant Attorney-General.

Tried Suicide But Failed.

London, May 26.—Tuesday a young man named Tait son of an East Nissouri farmer named Wm. Tait, attempted to commit suicide by hanging himself in a barn. He was discovered and cut down before life was extinct, but the physicians give slight hopes for his recovery. The young man had suffered lately from melancholia, the result of illness.

Jumped From Launch.

Watertown, N. Y., May 26.—Fred Fitch, aged 36, of Alexandria Bay, was drowned in the St. Lawrence yesterday while crossing in a "put-put." Believing that he was going to be run down by a passing steamer he jumped from his naphtha and was drowned in the steamer's swell. His boat continued running and crossed the steamer's bow in safety.

Killed By Lightning.

Fame Point, Que., May 26.—Joseph Cloutier, aged 20 years, was killed at Little Cape on Tuesday by lightning.

EUGENE HURTUBISE WRESTLING CHAMPION

Defeated all Comers at Toronto Tournament this Week.

Another pronounced success for Peterborough's athletes. On Tuesday evening at the Canadian boxing and wrestling tournament in Toronto, Eugene Hurtubise won the heavyweight championship by defeating Fred Russel, the husky scrimmager of the Argonaut Rugby team of Toronto. On Monday night, Eugene threw Pieper, of New York. Both his victories were quick ones and comparatively easy for him. It was a case of Greek meeting Greek when Russel tried to throw Eugene for both are scrimmage players on the rugby field, but as usual, Peterborough triumphed. The Toronto press speak in flattering terms of Hurtubise's work and he created a most favourable impression with the wrestling critics there. He returned to town yesterday with a handsome silver medal emblematic of the wrestling championship, and which is on exhibition in Tully, Merrill & Meredith's window.

Mr. Hurtubise is deserving of much credit for his fine work, for his opponents, both of whom he threw quite handily, were men of experience, and high reputation, but they were no match for our stalwart wrestler.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The Charlotte street choir will rehearse this evening.

—Several cases are on file for tomorrow's police court.

—The Board of Health will meet tomorrow morning at 9.30 o'clock.

SOME HAPPENINGS IN THE NORTHERN TOWN.

Personal Mention and Other Items of Interest at Lakefield.

Mr. Booth and Mr. Pullen are taking a four days' paddle through the back lakes. They left Lakefield on Sunday morning and hoped to reach Coboconk on Tuesday. If the weather is favourable this should be a delightful trip as the chain of lakes presents a series of beautiful scenes, especially at this season of the year.

Mr. Butler of the Pittsburg Coal Co., Buffalo, spent a couple of days in the village last week, the guest of Mr. Kilbourn.

Mr. Frank Oliver of the Dickson Co., is spending a couple of days with his father in Toronto this week.

A return cricket match wasp layed between the village team and the Grove on Friday afternoon, but owing to delays on account of the rain The Grove team which went to bat first, were not out in time for the village team to go to bat, therefore the village team is waiting a chance for their innings.

On the morning of the 24th a most interesting baseball game took place on the Agricultural grounds between the merchants nine and the village team. The score was 9–7 in favour of the village team.

Dr. R. A. Fraser took in the concert given in the opera house on the evening of May 24th.

Quite a large number from Bobcaygeon took in the excursion from that place to Lakefield on the 24th.

The Dickson Co's saw mill started operations on Friday last with a full complement of men.

The council is going ahead with the cement sidewalks and they intend to lay the first on the west side of Queen street at as early a date as possible.

Many of the young folks of the village spent Victoria day in canoes. One part paddled to Young's Point for supper.

HAVELOCK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Miss Ethel Mathison left for Deseronto last Saturday to visit friends.

Mr. Hugh McLean spent a few days in town visiting with friends.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the residence of Mr. George Young a party being given in honour of their eldest son, George.

Mr. J. Powers of Peterborough, spent Monday in town.

Mr. Chas. Milne of Toronto, is the guest of Mr. J. W. Rose for a few days.

Mr. J. J. Sullivan left for Toronto on Monday where he spent the 24th.

Miss Annie Mathison is in the Queen City on a visit to friends.

Mr. Sam Higley of Tweed, has moved his family to town.

Dr. J. McLean, who has for the past two weeks been at Stanley Barracks, learning the new drill, dropped into town this evening to renew old acquaintances before going to Bancroft to resume his practice.

It would be a good investment for some person to build about a dozen houses in town, as for every house that becomes vacant ten or twelve people are after it.

When the junior lacrosse club left for Madoc about half the town was at the station to wish them luck and success in their game on the 24th.

A thing that would be appreciated by all would be if the Belmont council would cut down the two big hills between the two and the burnt dams. The hills are so steep a horse is liable to break its legs going down. A number of the farmers who have to pass over this road find it a very hard one with loads.

Mr. German Sells has the contract for conveying the clubs for the season. He has secured one good rig, and expects another any day from the factory.

Mr. Jas. McNicholl of Peterborough, has been visiting friends in town for the past few days.

The passenger traffic on the C. P. R. has been so heavy for the past few nights that it has been found necessary to run the trains in two sections.

The lacrosse boys have to thank Mr. William Webster, who is an old Cleveland lacrosse player, for letting off a few of their best men to play at Marmora and Madoc.

Mr. William Mathison spent Saturday in Peterborough.

It is thought that Dr. Holderoft will soon put his fast horse on the track.

Mr. R. Phillips spent the 24th in Toronto.

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough." This remedy keeps the cough loose, lessens the severity and frequency of the coughing spells and counteracts any tendency towards pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

THE LATEST NEWS FROM NORWOOD.

Rev H. A. Reid of Algonquin, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Baptist church.

Rev. E. W. Peckford, of Mona, conducted the services in the English church here on Sunday.

The young ladies of the Presbyterian church gave a very excellent play in the town hall on Friday night. The title of the play was "A King's Daughter." Cast of characters:—

"Mrs. Graham,... ...Mrs. T. E. Finlay
"Aunt Claressa" ... ...Miss Chandler
"Rebecca Spencer" ... ...Miss Morrison
"Helen Graham" ... .Miss Lillie
"Florence Baldwin" ... ...Miss Ray
"Kitty Green" ... ... Mrs. Smith
"Sallie Browing"... .....Miss Robson
"Ruth Adams" ... .Miss McKelvie
"Mable Morris" ... ...Miss Moffat
"Polly Graham" ... ...Miss Kempt
"Nan Graham" ... ...Miss Patterson

All took their parts well and deserve credit for the manner in which the play was given.

Mr. Torpy shipped this week one car of hogs to the Matthes Company, Peterborough. Price paid $6.65.

Mr E P. Ouffe has purchased from Mr. J Baskin the lot where the old foundry buildings are on. It is probable that Mr. Ouffe will build a residence on it.

An Open Letter.

From the Chapin, S. C., News: Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhoea, and so severe were the pains that we called in a physician, who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand, gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. O. Bailey, Editor. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

Ten Miners Killed.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 26.—A telegram received at the Susquehanna Coal Company's offices in this city last night states that ten miners were suffocated by gas and sulphur fumes from a small locomotive yesterday in the workings of the Summit Branch Coal Company at Williamstown.

Will Not Meet Cut.

London, May 26.—The Cunard Line officials in London say they have no intention of meeting the cut in steerage rates to $10 from Liverpool to the United States by way of Boulogne, made by the Red Star Line.

Sir William Mulock Will Initiate Effective Legislation.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENTS

Alien Labor Bill Promised Which Will Embrace All Classes of Employment—Judge Winchester Appointed to Investigate Alleged Employment of Aliens on G.T.P. Surveys—Progress With Railway Bill.

Ottawa, May 26.—Refreshed and invigorated by the brief holiday, the Commoners returned to their labors yesterday, and the Opposition resumed with renewed energy the debate upon the third reading of the National Transcontinental Railway bill. An amendment by Mr. George A. Clare, proposing to insert in the bill a clause providing against the employment of aliens on the surveys and construction of the railway, was productive of an animated and energetic debate, in the course of which Sir William Mulock made a couple of important announcements regarding the Government policy. The Minister of Labor stated that Judge Winchester had been appointed to investigate the complaints that the G. T. Pacific were employing American engineers on the surveys.

General Alien Labor Law.

The other announcement was that the Government had decided to introduce at this session general legislation which would be effective in protecting Canadians from the competition of alien labor. Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick supplemented this statement by emphatically declaring that the legislation when introduced would be found ample in its scope to protect professional employes, as well as mechanics and laborers. Furthermore, that it would apply to all undertakings and enterprises receiving public aid, and he intimated that complaints having been received that the C.P.R. were also offenders as regards the employment of aliens, the legislation should be general in its character, and that the G.T.P. should not be singled out for special treatment.

Mr. Fitzpatrick's Protest.

The claim of Mr. Taylor, endorsed by Mr. E. F. Clarke, and other Opposition speakers, for the credit of having introduced an alien labor bill in 1890, drew from the Minister of Justice a vigorous protest that the bill was on two occasions introduced just on the eve of a general election, with the full knowledge that it could not pass. The amendment was voted down by a majority of 36 in a comparatively small House, many members not having returned from the holiday. Several other amendments providing for the taking over of the road by the Government at any time on six months' notice were also disposed of.

Canada Temperance Act.

Mr. Law, member for Yarmouth, introduced a bill to amend the Canada Temperance Act. The amendment deals with penalties for violation of the Scott Act and gives magistrates the right to imprison convicted persons with or without hard labor. Under the present law a magistrate has no power to imprison with hard labor.

C.P.R. Stock and Bonds.

Replying to James J. Hughes of King's, P.E.I., the Minister of Railways stated that the amount of stock, ordinary and preferred, issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway is $117,000,000. The bond issue of the C.P.R. was $120,000,000.

I.C.R. Dismissals.

Mr. Smith asked a number of questions concerning the dismissal of Fabrian Leger and F. B. Wood from the employ of the I.C.R. at Moncton. The Minister of Railways gave a general answer to the effect that the services of the two men were not deemed to be in the interests of the railway.

The House adjourned at 1 a.m.

HE'S ONLY ONE OUT OF SCORES

But Dodd's Kidney Pills made him a New Man.

Richard Quirk, Doctored for a Dozen Years and Thought his Case Incurable—Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Fortune Harbour, Nfld., May 25th.—(Special.) — Scores of people in this neighbourhood are living proofs that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney Ailments from Backache to Bright's Disease. Among the most remarkable cures is that of Mr. Richard Quirk, and he gives the story of it to the public as follows:—

"I suffered for over twenty years from Lumbago and Kidney Disease, and at intervals was totally unable to work. After ten or twelve years of doctors' treatment I had made up my mind that my complaint was incurable. Reading of cures of Dodd's Kidney Pills tempted me to try them. I did so with little faith but to my great surprise I had not taken more than half a box before I felt relief, and after the use of seven or eight boxes, I was completely cured and a new man.

"Yes, Dodd's Kidney Pills cured my Lumbago and Kidney Disease, and the best of it is I have stayed cured."

Walked Track to Death.

Port Colborne, May 26.—Bert Ross of Marshville was killed Monday night on the G.T.R. tracks between Wainfleet and Lowbanks. It is thought that he got off the train from Toronto at Lowbanks in mistake for Wainfleet and then started to walk back along the track.

Must Register Death.

Kingston, May 26.—R. McCoy and Peter Bedoun were fined $1 yesterday for not registering the death of a child at Parham.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, May 25.—About 450 head of butchers' cattle, 90 milch cows, 1200 calves and 500 sheep and lambs were offered for sale at the Eastern Abattoir to-day.

The butchers were out strong, but were not needing many cattle, having bought largely on Monday.

There were not many prime cattle and these brought rather better prices than on Monday, but the common stock were plentiful and some of the rather lean in flesh.

Milkmen's strippers were also plentiful and not very fat. Prime beeves sold at 4¾c to 5¼c per pound and mediums 4¼c to 4¾c; ordinary mediums, 3¾c to 4c and the common stock from 2½c to 3½c per pound.

There was considerable variety in the milch cows, some of them being superior milkers, selling at from $50 to $60 each, while others were small and very lean, selling at from $20 to $30 each. Calves were plentiful and sold at from $1.50 to $8 each. Shippers paid 4c per pound for good, large sheep, but the butchers paid from 3¾c to 4¼c per pound for the others. Lambs were plentiful and of good quality; lower in price; selling at $3 to $4.50 each. Fat hogs are lower; good lots sold at 5¾c to 5¾c per pound.

Cured a Leper.

New Orleans May 26.—For the first time in history, it is said, a leper will be ordered from a lazzaretto completely cured. This week the Louisiana Lepers' Home at Indian Camp will discharge one of its patients, a Creole boy, a native of New Orleans, aged 15, who has been afflicted with leprosy for four years and who has been under treatment at Indian Camp for nearly two years.

$2,000,000 Fire.

Yazoo City, Miss., May 26.—After burning a space 12 blocks long and 8 wide and causing a loss of $2,000,000, a fire which started here yesterday morning has been got under control. All the banks, business houses, newspaper offices, postoffice, court house, city hall and other buildings have been destroyed.

The joy of Living.

It is only the healthy who find a real joy in life. Weak, nervous, languid and discouraged people find new hope and energy in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. With new rich blood coursing through the veins and the thrill of new nerve force sent tingling along the nerve fibres, the joy of living returns and disease and weakness disappear.

A STARTLING STORY.

London Newspaper Publishes Account of Many Russians Hanged.

London, May 26.—The Standard publishes a despatch from a Russian correspondent, in whom the paper says it places great confidence, containing most sensational statements regarding the alarming condition of Russia, as the outcome of the war. The correspondent asserts that disturbances in various cities have been followed by wholesale executions without any civil trial. It is stated that 600 persons have been hanged in Warsaw alone, and that many others have been hanged in Cronstadt and Moscow. At the latter place the troops buried eighty coffins, containing the bodies of those who have been hanged. The bodies were buried secretly in the dead of night, presumably in the woods.

The Standard, in an editorial, says it publishes this correspondent's statement under all reserve, but it thinks there are many indications, such, for instance, as the sinking of the battleship Orel, that the normal dissatisfaction of the population of Russia has been greatly stimulated by the war.

House Painters Out.

Boston, May 26.—Sixteen hundred house painters and decorators of this city struck yesterday for an increase in wages.

The Babies' Troubles.

The greatest suffering of childhood is caused by eczema, scald head, chafing or other forms of skin irritation or eruption. Because of its extraordinary soothing, healing power Dr. Chase's Ointment is of inestimable value in the home where there are small children. No mother who has learned the scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used would think of being without it in the house.

Railways Cut Off 75,000 Men.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 26.—The reduction of the working forces of the railroads in this country is more extensive and radical than was thought, a month ago, would be necessary. Estimates are that not less than 75,000 employes have been dropped from the railroad pay rolls. A large proportion of these employes are losing their jobs under orders from company headquarters to dismiss from the freight departments every person not absolutely needed. Train hands, station men and clerks have been receiving notices to quit since April 15, and by June 10 it is expected that the weeding out process will have been completed. With the exception of the panic period, beginning in 1893, this is the most general reduction of railroad working forces known at any one time.

DANIEL O'CONNELL.

Irishman of the Most Persuasive Eloquence, His Later Speeches Became Full of Bitter Epithet.

It is a strange omission that an adequate biography of Daniel O'Connell was not written long ago, says a reviewer of Macdonagh's "Life of Daniel O'Connell," in The London Spectator. Whatever we may think of the "Member for Ireland" we cannot deny that his career deserves a record. In a higher degree than any politician of his time, he displayed the histrionic gift; he knew precisely how to capture the public attention and keep it; and he appeals to our sense of drama, apart from the views which he held so pertinaciously and advocated with such rancorous eloquence.

Daniel O'Connell was born in Kerry in 1775, the son, to use his own words, of a "grazier, or gentleman farmer." But he had a characteristic pride in his birth. When he was described by a journalist as of humble origin, "The vagabond, he lies," exclaimed O'Connell, "when he says I'm of humble origin. My father's family was very ancient, and my mother was a lady of the first rank." The boast reminds us of Barry Lyndon. But however distinguished was O'Connell's ancestry his grandfather and father were cattle dealers in comfortable circumstances, and Daniel himself was adopted and educated by his uncle Maurice. The boy was educated abroad, as was the custom of Roman Catholics, and learnt what Latin and Greek he could acquire at the College of St. Omer, whence he was transferred to Douai; and he left France on the day that Louis XVI. was executed, full of hatred for the Revolution and all its works. Indeed, it is said that as the English packet sailed out of Calais harbor he tore the tricolor, which prudence had forced him to wear, from his hat and flung it into the sea. Nor, three years later, did he display any sympathy with the French invasion of Ireland.

Liberty Dangerous.

The arrival of a hostile fleet in Dantry Bay did not elate him. "I love," he wrote, "from my heart, I love, liberty. Liberty is in my bosom less a principle than a passion, but I know that the victories of the French would be attended with bad consequences. The Irish are not yet sufficiently enlightened to bear the sun of freedom. Freedom would soon dwindle into licentiousness. They would rob, they would murder. We may regret that O'Connell did not always preserve this attitude of moderation; but he was a politician who grew in violence as he grew in years, and the conflict of his career did but intensify the bitterness of his thought and speech. He chose the bar for his profession, was called in 1798, and seems to have succeeded from the very first. He was not a great lawyer, but there can be no doubt that he was a most persuasive advocate.

Disraeli's Sarcasm.

It would not be difficult to find a hundred greater Irishmen than O'Connell, but it is enough to mention two—Burke and Grattan—superior to him in intelligence, patriotism and true eloquence. We would even assert that Parnell was, in many respects, a greater and a more unselfish agitator than O'Connell. O'Connell's acceptance of the famous money tribute has never been wholly justified. Mr. Macdonagh is content to say that it was an "income worthily earned and generously paid." But even an agitator may live on less than £18,000 a year, and it is difficult to respect a man who flattered his own extravagance often at the expense of a famine stricken country. Disraeli's reply to him in 1835 was too bitter, but it had in it an element of justice.

Bitter Language.

"With regard to your taunts as to my want of success in my election contests," Disraeli wrote, "permit me to remind you that I had nothing to appeal to but the good sense of the people. No threatening skeletons canvassed for me. A death's head and crossbones was not blazoned on my banners. My pecuniary resources, too, were limited. I am not one of those public beggars that we see swarming with their obtrusive boxes in the chapels of your creed; nor am I in possession of a princely revenue arising from a starving race of fanatical slaves." The words are hard, as we have said, but compare them with O'Connell's attack and you will have no doubt which was the better hand at invective, which had the better case. The truth is, that the vituperation upon which O'Connell prided himself is his most wearisome quality. His language was habitually so violent that the worst insult which fell from his lips soon ceased to have either sting or meaning; and clearly the habit of abuse was far more reprehensible in one sworn by remorse never again to fight a duel.

But in his words Wellington is "a stunted corporal," Alvanley "a bloated buffoon," Lyndhurst "a lying miscreant and a contumelious cur," Sir Henry Hardings "a one-armed ruffian." But perhaps his most elegant effort was a description of the House of Lords. "They are the soaped pigs of society," said he, "the real swinish multitude, as obstinate and as ignorant and as brutish as their prototypes." Though the words were then greeted with "great laughter and cheering," they appear monstrous to-day. An orator who uses a mere mass of scurrilous words is like a tired man gasping for breath. Nevertheless, O'Connell had the useful faculty of compelling others to look at him and listen to him; he also had a rare talent for attaching his people to his person. But after reading his biography we are in still greater difficulty to find an answer to the question asked by Mr. Lecky, "Whether his life was a blessing or a curse to Ireland?"

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS TOTALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Quebec, May 3, 11 p.m.

This evening at half-past ten o'clock by some unaccountable fatality the handsome and capacious edifice situated on Cote-a-Coton, built as a church for the Soeurs de Charite, which was neatly fitted up temporarily at an immense expense for the meeting of Parliament, took fire and is this moment one sheet of flames. . . . The firemen are adjusting their hose. The Commandant is at the scene of destruction, and thousands of people are looking on, and doing what they can in the way of saving property, but the building is doomed.

We anxiously expected further particulars all day yesterday, but unfortunately, both telegraph lines being down, we were unable to learn more. —From The Globe of May 5, 1854.

Anniversary of Cut Knife.

Of the many incidents in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885, with the single exception of the memorable engagement at Batoche on May 12th, which brought the campaign to an end, there is none which made a greater impression on the public or is more vividly remembered than the fight at Cut Knife Creek, which took place just nineteen years ago.

The troops engaged under Colonel Otter were about 320 strong and consisted of B. Battery R.C.A., detachments from the G.G.F.G and Q.O.R., C. Co. I.S.C., and some of the N.W.M.P. The attack was made on the reserve of Poundmaker, the Indian Chief, and it was the first serious blow struck against the rebels by Colonel Otter's brigade. Considering the small number of troops engaged the list of casualties was a heavy one no less than seven killed and eleven wounded, the latter including a civilian volunteer. The killed were:

Corporals Laurie and Sleight and Bugler Burke, all of the N.W.M.P.; Privates Osgood and Rogers, of the G.G.F.G., with Private Dobbs and Bugler Foulkes, of "C" Co., I.S.C.

In the list of wounded were Lieut. Pelletier and two N.C.O.'s and men of "B" Battery, R.C.A.; a sergeant of the N.W.M.P.; the sergt.-major of "C" Company; Color-Sergeant, now Major, Winter and one private of the G.G.F.G., and Sergt. Cooper, who has since died, with two privates of the Q.O.R.

There were said to be fifty killed and wounded among Poundmaker's force, which was about 600 strong. Among Toronto men present at this fight, besides those mentioned, were Lieut. Brock, Q.O.R., who was specially mentioned in despatches for his gallantry, and the late Major A. J. Boyd, of the R.G., who was then a private in the Q.O.R.

The Canadian Spring.

I wonder if English people, who have verdure about them all the year round, really realize the genuine joy and "resurrection" which our Canadian spring means to us? Of course we have evergreens, but we have none of the dull leaf life, like the ivy and laurels, which English people have during the winter, and in the gardens here there are cauliflowers and "kails" of all sorts, and they have several flowers which never seem to cease blossoming. Who can wonder that we Canadians take great joy in our spring? The contrast is vivid, the joy so great. Here already great masses of golden gorse flame on the downs and hillside, but the bracken and blackberry bushes have no idea of showing fresh leaves as yet.—Lally Bernard, in The Globe.

In Sunny Castile.

Land in Castile is in greater part devoted to the production of wheat, and during planting and harvesting times laborers, especially reapers, are brought hither from Galicia.

"Soo" Reorganization.

Toronto, May 26.—Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., and General Manager White, of the National Trust Company, returned yesterday morning from New York, after investigating the reorganization plans of the "Soo" Company. A long conference on the subject was held at noon in the Premier's office, the Attorney-General, Senator Kerr and Mr. Rowell being present.

ROYAL GOLFERS.

English Sovereigns From North of the Border Were All Adepts.

The news that King Edward is developing a remarkable enthusiasm for golf, and when he is at Windsor rarely fails to spend a couple of hours a day on the sporting little nine-hole course there, takes one back to the days when golf was a favorite pastime of his royal predecessors.

The Stuart Kings were keen golfers to a man, and many an interesting record is preserved of their doings on the links. When James Duke of York, afterwards James II., had his court at the Palace of Holyrood, and spent his days in a succession of balls, plays, masquerades, and diversions of all kinds in and out of doors, he was to be seen almost daily playing golf on the famous links of Leith. Long years after a Mr. Tytler, of Woodhouselee, wrote: "I remember in my youth to have conversed with an old man named Andrew Dickson, a golf club maker, who said that when a boy he used to carry the Duke's golf-clubs and run before him and announce where the balls fell."

There may be seen to this day a substantial memorial of the Duke's love of golf in an ancient house on the north side of the Canongate, Edinburgh. On the house is a tablet bearing a coat-of-arms with, for crest, a right hand grasping a golf-club, and the motto—"Far and Sure."

It is in connection with this house that the following interesting story is told. One day the Duke of York became engaged in a dispute with two English noblemen of his court as to whether golf was a peculiarly Scottish or English pastime. As the disputants could come to no satisfactory conclusion, it was decided to settle the matter by an appeal to the game itself, the nobles offering to play His Royal Highness and any Scotsman he could bring forward for a large sum of money. "The Duke," so the record runs, "whose great aim was popularity, thinking this had no bad opportunity both for asserting his claim to the character of a Scotsman and flattering a national prejudice, immediately accepted the challenge."

He discovered a suitable partner in one John Patersone, a shoemaker, a member of a famous golfing family, and himself a champion player. In the match the Duke and his partner achieved an easy victory over the Englishmen, and James in his delight handed over half the winnings to his humble coadjutor. With this sum the shoemaker built himself the substantial house which survives today in the Canongate, and on its front the Duke caused the escutcheon described above to be affixed.

The first James was as enthusiastic a golfer as the second, and was, indeed, more than a match for some of the reputed good players of his time. He even did honor to the game by formally appointing golf-club and ball makers under the Privy Seal of Scotland. William Mayno, "bower burges of Edinburgh," was constituted "Mr. fledger, bower, club-maker, and speir-maker to His Hieness;" and in 1618 James Melvill and others were empowered to furnish "His Hieness' Kingdom of Scotland with golf ballis" for the space of twenty-one years, "our Soverane Lord understanding that thair is no small quantitie of gold and silver transported yeirlie out of His Hieness' Kingdom of Scotland for bying of golf ballis."

Henry, son of James I., was a noted golfer, even as a boy, and of him the following story is told: "At another time playing at golf, a play not unlike to pale maille, whilst his schoolmaster stood talking with another, and marked not His Highness warning him to stand farther off, the Prince, thinking he had gone aside, lifted up his golf-club to strike the ball. Meantime one standing by said to him, 'Beware you hit not Master Newton;' wherewith he, drawing back his hand, said, 'Had I done so I had but paid my debts.'"

King Charles I. was equally devoted to the game, and it is on record that it was while playing on the links of Leith that a courier handed him a letter giving news of the rising in Ireland under Sir Phelim O'Neal; whereupon His Majesty threw down his club and, calling for his coach in great agitation, was soon being driven rapidly to Holyrood House, whence he started next day for London.

Since the Stuart days none of the sovereigns have taken much practical interest in golf until our own times; though it is true that William IV. was patron of the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews, and presented a gold medal for annual competition. Now, after the lapse of two centuries, golf has once again been exalted into royal favor. The Queen, under Ben Sayers' tuition, plays it excellently; the Prince of Wales also under Sayers' guidance, has become a clever and keen golfer; and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught have spent many hundreds of happy hours on the new course at the Royal Hospital, Dublin, or on the links at Malahide, or at the Viceregal Lodge.

RULE BY LOVE.

A Motto Every Mother Should Use in Governing Her Children.

Many mothers might profit by making this their motto: "Rule by love." The child heart is so susceptible to the influence of affection that it seems a wondrous pity that the budding soul should be hindered by the stumbling blocks of severer methods as the little life develops. Love is the only power that really conquers after all. Battles won by force are but battles likely to be fought over again. A rebellious spirit overcome by love and kindness is a conquest made permanent.

If a mother desires her child to do a certain thing, why not, first of all, request him to do it, just the same as you would ask it of any other person? Do this kindly, but with the appearance of one expecting the request to be granted. If the child refuses, explain to him why you wish him to obey.

If he still draws back, appeal to his conscience, for the average child old enough to understand what is wanted of him has a conscience sufficiently developed to do its work. Say: "Surely you wish to do what is right. This is right, and I expect it of you." Whether the child obeys or not, this method cannot fail to quicken his conscience and set him to thinking.

SOLEMN DEDICATION OF NEW CHAPEL.

Place of Worship at Mount St. Joseph Blessed.

Ceremony Performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor — Sermon by Ven. Archdeacon Casey.

NEW COMMUNITY HOUSE

The Chapel and enlarged Mother House of the Community of St. Joseph were dedicated this morning by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, Bishop of the Diocese of Peterborough, in the presence of a large congregation. Ven. Archdeacon Casey, of Lindsay, was the preacher for the occasion, and in the course of his sermon, which was an eloquent one, he spoke appreciatively of the good work done in this diocese by the Sisters of St. Joseph, the Mother House of which was located here. He gave a short history of the Order of St. Joseph, telling briefly of the different stages in the history of the Order; which at the present time has charge of seven schools, two hospitals, at Peterborough and Sault Ste. Marie, and one House of Providence, at Peterborough.

The first work done by the Sisters was to establish a House in Port Arthur in 1881, when at the time of the C.P.R. construction the Sisters opened a House and cared for the sick and injured on that work.

The new Chapel dedicated today, is a handsome building, forming a part of the House, and in it the Sisters will worship.

This morning was a memorable time in the history of the Sisters of St. Joseph. The new chapel erected at the Mount was blessed and dedicated by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, of the Diocese of Peterborough, assisted by a number of clergy from different parts of the Diocese. The clergy present were: His Lordship the Right Rev. R. A. O' Connor, Bishop of Peterborough, who celebrated the pontifical high mass; Ven. Archdeacon Casey, of Lindsay, by whom the dedicatory sermon was preached; Rev. Father McColl, Rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, who acted as Deacon; Rev. Father Scratt, of Wolfe Island, Deacon of Honour; Rev. Father Fitzpatrick of Enniskmore, Sub-Deacon; Father Dr. O'Brien, Master of Ceremonies; Rev. Father Conway, of Norwood; Rev. Father Crowley, of North Bay; Rev. Father John O'Brien, and Rev. Father Galvin. The mass and dedicatory services were conducted in the new chapel, which forms a part of the now enlarged Community of Mount St. Joseph. The Mount has been considerably added to, and from a comparatively small two story building, it has been enlarged to a magnificent three story white brick structure, the older portion also having a story added to it. The building is now a credit to the Order of St. Joseph, of which it is the Mother House. The work of improvement was commenced last summer, the corner stone being laid by His Lordship, and the sermon being preached by Ven. Archdeacon Casey of Lindsay. The new building was erected by Richard Sheehy, the architect being Mr. John Belcher, C. E., and the structure does great credit to those who had charge of its construction.

The enlargement was made necessary by the rapid growth of the Community of St. Joseph, and the need experienced for greater facilities for training the Novices for their work in the schools of the Diocese, of which there are now seven, with two Hospitals and one House of Providence, all of which are conducted by the Sisters of Mount St. Joseph, who are to be highly commended on their self-sacrificing work in the Diocese.

On the first floor of the new portion of the structure, the chapel is situated, and it is a very creditable place of worship. The complete finishings have not yet been placed in the building. New pews and a new chancel rail will be furnished, and it is expected that in the course of two months the chapel will have been fully equipped. The walls are finished in white, with the ceilings divided in panels by ornate mouldings.

It is electric lighted and steam heated, and will doubtless prove a very comfortable place of worship for the good Sisters of the Mount.

On the upper floors the rooms are equipped for the work of the Community in training those who have given themselves up to the work of the church in instructing the ignorant and caring for those who are afflicted or infirm, in which Christian duties the Sisters have made themselves greatly beloved throughout the entire diocese.

The first exercise this morning was the blessing of the chapel by His Lordship, who, after a prayer had been said at the entrance, sprinkled the chapel both inside and out with holy water, after which the Litany of the saints was recited.

The Pontifical High Mass was then celebrated by His Lordship, and the dedicatory sermon preached by Ven. Archdeacon Casey, of Lindsay, who in an eloquent sermon told of the good work done by the Sisters of St. Joseph, and the different Sisterhoods of the Catholic Church.

The text upon which the Ven. Archdeacon preached his sermon was "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul and with they whole mind. This is the greatest and the first commandment, and the second is like to this. Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. On these two commandments dependeth the law and the prophets," Matt. 22; 37 to 40. The Archdeacon said that the ceremony to-day was one to dedicate the the chapel to the worship of God, and the whole house to His service for the work of charity. The blessed Lord loved the world with a great love and He asks His children to make a return for that love. But He does not ask all to possess the same degree. There are some souls from whom He requires more—some that He takes into Himself and perfects for His service here. He has chosen these for Himself, and call's them like the young man in the Gospel to give up all and follow Him.

Many souls have chosen Jesus Christ as their spouse, and by living a chaste virgin life emulate the life of Christ. These chosen ones are found among the Sisterhood who are doing such a good work in the world.

What, said the Archdeacon, do we find in the life of Christ? We find first of all poverty. He said that He had not where to lay his head, and those who follow Him as Sisters seek poverty, that they may be like their Master. Jesus was a Virgin Son of a Virgin Mother, and many have followed His example and have given up their all to follow Him, modelling their lives after His and after that of His Mother. We see in these two virtues the love of God exemplified, but there is another virtue in addition to these two which characterizes the life of Christ; that of humility. By pride man fell, and by humility he was rescued. How is this humility manifested? They seek not to do their own will, but submit to the will of the Mother Superior. The speaker said it was no wonder that the Sisterhood of the Roman Catholic Church had done so much good in the world. Before Christ, charity was a virtue unknown in the world, but since His command to love one another, charity became a virtue practised by many. Christ changed all former conditions in the world, and from the first the Church has sought to help mankind.

The Sisterhood of the Church has done a good work throughout the Christian world, on the battle-field, nursing lepers, establishing and nursing in hospitals, looking after orphans and instructing the ignorant. The praise of the Sisters is on every tongue. Before the Civil War in the United States the Sisters were practically unknown, but their work in that war had endured them to the whole nation, and to-day none stood higher in the estimation of the American people than the Sisters. The history of the people is briefly as follows: They came from God, are doing the work of God, and, dying, they go back to God.

The great need in this age is for Christian education. This need the Sisters supply in addition to giving secular education, equal to anything in the country. Hospitals have been built as well as institutions for the care of the afflicted and orphans.

The Archdeacon said that they had gathered to dedicate the Chapel to the worship of God, the Mount of St. Joseph to His service, and in view of this fact it might be found profitable to review briefly the work done by the Sisters of St. Joseph.

In 1881 Bishop Jamot, a good man, who had the interests of his people at heart, had charge of the district of North Ontario, extending from Ottawa to the Rainy River. He saw the necessity existing in the north, at the head of Lake Superior, where there was then a small hamlet, for some means of relieving the distress of many persons there. The C.P.R. was just being built then, and many men were sick, and others had met with accidents. No one was there to attend to their wants. He asked the Toronto Sisters to go that far north region, and five willingly volunteered, among them being the present Mother Superior of the Toronto House.

A few years later Bishop Jamot was transferred to the See of Peterborough, and he established at Fort William the Indian School, where the Indian children were taken in, and instructed in the habits of industry. Only this year one of the Sisters who had spent years in labour in that district went back there to die, and the gratitude felt by the people there for her work was shown by their devotion to her. About the same time the Bishop asked the Sisters to take charge of a school in Cobourg, and for 14 years a school was conducted there, and at the present time one of the best four-room schools in the province is in existence.

Bishop Dowling, who succeeded Bishop Jamot, commenced the erection of St. Joseph's Hospital, and one of the first works of His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, was to complete that work. He secured the Sisters to take charge of it, and the Community of St. Joseph was then established, the Sisters of the Loretta Convent in Lindsay being moved to Toronto. Mother Austin was the first Mother Superior. There were now five houses and only 20 nuns, but the number grew rapidly, many young women offering themselves for the work, and several new houses were started. At Sault Ste. Marie an hospital was built, and at Fort William a school, and to-day there are seven schools, two hospitals and one House of Providence in the Diocese, all under the direction of the Community of St. Joseph.
